"(iv) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe, but not to exceed the lesser of forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-quarters of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the building improvements.

"(B) The price for which the individual family unit is sold to the low or moderate income purchaser shall not exceed the appraised value of the property, as determined under subparagraph (A)(ii), except that the purchaser shall be required to pay on account of the property at the time of purchase at least such amount, in cash or its equivalent (which shall be not less than 3 per centum of such price, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate.

"(3) Upon the sale of all of the family units covered by the project mortgage, and the release of all of the family units (including the undivided interest allocable to each unit in the common areas and facilities) from the lien of the project mortgage, the insurance of the project mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be collected by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(4) Any mortgage covering an individual family unit insured under this subsection shall contain a provision that, if the original mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the project mortgage; except that the requirement for an increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary, or (ii) a low or moderate income purchaser who has an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5). The mortgage shall also contain a provision that, if the Secretary determines that the annual income of the original mortgagor (or a purchaser described in clause (ii) of the preceding sentence) has increased to an amount enabling payment of a greater rate of interest, the interest rate of the individual mortgage may be increased up to the highest rate permissible under the regulations of the Secretary for mortgages insured under this section effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the mortgage.

"(5) For the purpose of this subsection—

"(i) the term 'mortgage', when used in relation to a mortgage insured under paragraph (2) of this subsection, includes a first mortgage given to secure the unpaid purchase price of a fee interest in, or a long-term lease-hold interest in, a one-family unit in a multifamily project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project; and

"(ii) the term 'common areas and facilities' includes the land and such commercial, community, and other facilities as are approved by the Secretary.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any rental project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a cooperative approved by the Secretary. Membership in such cooperative shall be made available only to those families having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at such below-market rate: Provided, That families residing in the rental project at the time of its conversion to a cooperative who do not meet such income limits may be permitted to become members in the cooperative under such special terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection cooperative mortgages financing the purchase of projects meeting the requirements of paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves;

"(ii) bear interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5); and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization within such term as the Secretary may prescribe."

(b) Section 221(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (i) of this section".

(c) Section 221(g)(2) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (1) of subsection (h)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (1) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (j),".

(d) Section 221(f) of such Act is amended by inserting after "subsection (h)" in the third sentence of the second paragraph the following: ", (i), or (j)".

ASSISTANCE TO NONPROFIT SPONSORS OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 106. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, information, advice, and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation by nonprofit organizations of housing for low or moderate income families. Assistance by the Secretary may include—

(1) the assembly, correlation, publication, and dissemination of information with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing, and

(2) the provision of advice and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing.

(b)(1) The Secretary is authorized to make loans to nonprofit organizations for the necessary expenses, prior to construction, in planning, and obtaining financing for, the rehabilitation or construction of housing for low or moderate income families under any federally assisted program. Such loans shall be made without interest and shall not exceed 80 per centum of the reasonable costs expected to be incurred in planning, and in obtaining financing for, such housing prior to the availability of financing, including, but not limited to, preliminary surveys and analyses of market needs, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. The Secretary shall require repayment of loans made under this subsection, under such terms and conditions as he may require, upon completion of the project or sooner, and may cancel any part or all of a loan if he determines that it cannot be recovered from the proceeds of any permanent loan made to finance the rehabilitation or construction of the housing.

(2) The Secretary shall determine prior to the making of any loan that the nonprofit organization meets such requirements with respect to financial responsibility and stability as he may prescribe.

(3) There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this subsection not to exceed $7,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $10,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this paragraph but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year.

(4) All funds appropriated for the purposes of this subsection shall be deposited in a fund which shall be known as the Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund, and which shall be available without fiscal year limitation and be administered by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the purposes of this subsection. Sums received in repayment of loans made under this subsection shall be deposited in such fund.

NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

SEC. 107. (a)(1) There is hereby created a body corporate to be known as the "National Homeownership Foundation" (hereinafter referred to as the "Foundation") to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families through such means as—

(A) encouraging the investment in, and sponsoring of, housing for lower income families;

(B) encouraging the establishment of programs of assistance and counseling to lower income families to enable them better to achieve and afford adequate housing;

(C) providing a broad range of technical assistance through publications and advisory services to public and private organizations which are carrying out, or are desirous of carrying out, programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower families; and

(D) providing grants and loans to public and private organizations carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to help cover some of the expenses of such programs.

(2) The Foundation shall be deemed to be a corporation without members organized and established under the provisions of the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act, with all the rights, powers, and responsibilities thereof except as limited by this section and any amendments thereto. This section shall constitute the articles of incorporation and charter of the Foundation, which shall not be an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government. The Congress expressly reserves the exclusive right to alter or amend this charter. The Foundation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. The Foundation shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia.

(3) No part of the net earnings of the Foundation shall inure to the benefit of any private person, and no substantial part of its activities shall be devoted to attempting to influence legislation. The Foundation shall not participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office. The Foundation shall be operated and administered at all times as a charitable and educational foundation.

(4) No employee or officer of the Foundation shall receive compensation in excess of that received by or hereafter prescribed by law for heads of executive departments.

(5) The Foundation shall make maximum use of existing public and private agencies and programs, and in carrying out its functions the Foundation is authorized to contract with individuals, private corporations, organizations, and associations, and with agencies of the Federal, State, and local governments.

(6) The Foundation is authorized to receive donations and grants from individuals and from public and private organizations, foundations, and agencies.

(7) The Foundation may use only donated funds, or funds derived from payment of interest on loans made by it, for the principal and interest payments on any borrowings.

(b) (1) The Foundation shall have a Board of Directors consisting of eighteen members, fifteen of whom shall be appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The other three members shall be, ex officio, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. The President shall appoint one of the fifteen appointed members to serve as Chairman of the Board during his term of office as a member.

(2) Within thirty days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall appoint the fifteen appointed members of the Board. Not more than five of such members shall, at the time of their appointment, be serving full time as officers or employees of the Federal Government, or as officers or employees of any State or local government. Each appointed member of the Board shall hold office for a term of three years, except that (A) any member appointed to fill a vacancy prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term, and (B) the terms of the members first taking office shall expire, as designated by the President at the time of appointment, five at the end of the first year, five at the end of the second year, and five at the end of the third year after the date of appointment. Members of the Board, however appointed, shall be eligible for reappointment, but at no time shall there be more than five members of the Board who at the time of their appointment or reappointment were full-time officers or employees of the Federal Government or of any State or local government.

(3) Appointed members of the Board who are not employees of the Federal Government, while attending meetings or conferences of the Board or otherwise serving on business of the Board, shall be entitled to receive compensation at rates fixed by the President, but not exceeding $100 per day, including travel time, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(4) The Board shall appoint an Executive Director of the Foundation. The Executive Director shall be the chief executive officer of the Foundation and shall serve at the pleasure of the Board, and all other executive officers and employees of the Board shall be responsible to him. The Board shall also cause to be appointed a secretary, a treasurer, and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct properly the business of the Foundation, and shall provide for filling vacancies in such offices.

(5) The Board shall adopt bylaws for the Foundation which shall be made available for public inspection upon request.

(c) (1) The Foundation shall assist public and private organizations, at their request, in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families. To provide such assistance and to carry out the purposes of this section, the Foundation is authorized to—

(A) carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in the establishment of such programs;

(B) assist in the formation of organizations the purpose of which is the development and carrying out of such programs, including the establishment of local development funds for financing housing for lower income families through the pooling of moneys from private sources;

(C) identify and arrange for the technical and managerial assistance and personnel needed for the successful operation of such programs by public and private organizations;

(D) assist public and private organizations in obtaining the mortgage financing, insurance, and other requirements or aids necessary for conducting programs of housing construction, rehabilitation, or improvement for lower income families;

(E) arrange for, or provide on a limited basis, training for persons in the skills needed in administering programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families;

(F) encourage research and innovation, and collect and make available such information as may be desirable to further the purposes of this section, including but not limited to such activities as the sponsoring of seminars, conferences, and meetings, and the establishment of a continuing information program to acquaint lower income families with the means they can use to improve the quality of their housing and the homeownership and housing opportunities available to them;

(G) assist private and public organizations in establishing, in connection with their homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families, counseling and similar activities designed to advise lower income families of the means available to better themselves economically through job training and manpower development programs; and

(H) perform other similar services in order to further the purposes of this section.

(2) The Foundation may, if it deems it appropriate, charge a reasonable fee for any assistance or services provided under this subsection.

(d) (1) In order to assist public and private organizations which are carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to fill unmet needs, initiate exceptional programs, and experiment with new approaches and programs, the Foundation is authorized, subject to such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, to make grants and loans to such organizations to help defray the following expenses:

(A) organizational and administrative expenses incurred in commencing the operation of a program, or in expanding an existing program, to the extent that the activities are related to providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families;

(B) necessary preconstruction costs incurred for architectural assistance, land options, application fees, and similar items; and

(C) the cost of carrying out programs providing counseling or similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided, in order to enable those families better to achieve and afford adequate housing, in such matters as home management, budget management, and home maintenance.

(2) In order to be eligible for a grant or loan under this subsection, the organization seeking such assistance shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Foundation that the fund requested are not otherwise available from Federal sources: Provided, That a grant or loan under this subsection may be provided to help cover that portion of the cost of an eligible activity not covered by Federal funds.

(3) The Foundation shall encourage cooperation between public and private organizations carrying out programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families and the neighborhoods and communities affected by such programs. To help assure such cooperation and in order to coordinate, to the maximum extent feasible, any construction or rehabilitation activities with the development goals of the neighborhood or community affected, no application for a loan or grant under this subsection shall be considered unless such application has been submitted to the governing body of the community affected, or to such other entity of local government as may be designated by the governing body, for such recommendations as the local governing body or its designee may desire to make. Any recommendations so made shall be given careful consideration by the Foundation before taking final action on any such application. If, upon the expiration of thirty days after any such application has been submitted to such governing body or its designee, such body or designee fails to provide such recommendations, the application may be considered without the benefit of such recommendations.

(e) The Foundation shall coordinate its activities and consult with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and other Federal departments and agencies engaged in providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(f) (1) Not later than one hundred and twenty days after the close of each fiscal year, the Foundation shall prepare and submit to the President and to the Congress a full reoprt of its activities during such year. Such report shall include an account of the Foundation's experiences with the efforts of private and public organizations to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, together with such recommendations as it deems appropriate.

(2) Whenever in its judgment the general unavailability of mortgage funds is sufficiently serious to deter the Foundation from carrying out its objective of expanding homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, the Foundation shall, in its annual report or in a separate report to the President and the Congress, state its findings and make such recommendations for alternate means of financing housing for such families as it deems appropriate.

(g) (1) The financial transactions of the Foundation shall be audited by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial corporate transactions and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, accounts, financial records, reports, files, and all other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by the Foundation and necessary to facilitate the audit, and they shall be afforded full facilities for verifying transactions with the balances or securities held by depositories, fiscal agents, and custodians. The audit shall cover the fiscal year corresponding to that of the United States Government.

(2) A report of each such audit shall be made by the Comptroller General to the Congress not later than January 15 following the close of the fiscal year for which the audit was made. The report shall set forth the scope of the audit and shall include a statement of assets and liabilities, capital, and surplus or deficit; a statement of sources and application of funds; and such comments and information as may be deemed necessary to keep the Congress informed of the operations and financial condition of the Foundation, together with such recommendations with respect thereto as the Comptroller General may deem advisable. The report shall also show specifically any program, expenditure, or other financial transaction or undertaking, observed in the course of the audit, which, in the opinion of the Comptroller General, has been carried on or made without authority of law. A copy of each report shall be furnished to the President and to the Foundation at the time submitted to the Congress.

(h) Funds of the Foundation shall be deposited, to the extent practicable, in accounts with financial institutions which are actively engaged in making loans or are otherwise carrying on activities in furtherance of homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(i) There is authorized to be appropriated to the Foundation not to exceed $10,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section. Appropriations made hereunder shall remain available until expended.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 108. (a) In order to encourage the use of new housing technologies in providing decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families; to encourage large-scale experimentation in the use of such technologies; to provide a basis for comparison of such technologies with existing housing technologies in providing such housing; and to evaluate the effect of local housing codes and zoning regulations on the large-scale use of new housing technologies in the provision of such housing, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") shall institute a program under which qualified organizations, public and private, will submit plans for the development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies, on Federal land which has been made available by the Secretary for the purposes of this section, or on other land where (1) local building regulations permit the construction of experimental housing, or (2) State or local law permits variances from building regulations in the construction of experimental housing for the purpose of testing and developing new building technologies.

(b) The Secretary shall approve not more than five plans utilizing new housing technologies which are submitted to him pursuant to the program referred to in subsection (a) and which he determines are most promising in furtherance of the purposes of this section. In making such determination the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the potential of the technology employed for producing housing for lower income families on a large scale at a moderate cost;

(2) the extent to which the plan envisages environmental quality;

(3) the possibility of mass production of the technology; and

(4) the financial soundness of the organization submitting the plan, and the ability of such organization, alone or in combination with other organizations, to produce at least one thousand dwelling units a year utilizing the technology proposed.

(c) In approving projects for mortgage insurance under section 233(a)(2) of the National Housing Act (as added by subsection (f) of this section), the Secretary shall seek to achieve the construction of at least one thousand dwelling units a year over a five-year period for each of the various types of technologies proposed in approved plans under subsection (b). The Secretary shall evaluate each project with respect to which assistance is extended pursuant to this section with a view to determining (1) the detailed cost breakdown per dwelling unit, (2) the environmental quality achieved in each such unit, and (3) the effect which local housing codes and zoning regulations have, or would have if applicable, on the cost per dwelling unit.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, any land which is excess property within the meaning of such Act and which is determined by the Secretary to be suitable in furtherance of the purposes of this section may be transferred to the Secretary upon his request.

(e) The Secretary shall, at the earliest practicable date, report his findings with respect to projects assisted pursuant to this section (including evaluations of each such project in accordance with subsection (c)), together with such recommendations for additional legislation as he determines to be necessary or desirable to expand the available supply of decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families through the use of technologies the efficacy of which has been demonstrated under this section.

(A) by inserting "(1)" after "(a)",

(B) by redesignating clauses (1), (2), and (3) as clauses (A), (B), and (C), respectively, and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The Secretary is further authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties in projects to be carried out in accordance with plans approved by the Secretary under section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.".

(2) Section 233(c) of such Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any authority which the Secretary may exercise in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, insured under any other section of this title (including payments to reduce rentals for, or to facilitate homeownership by, lower income families) may be exercised in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, meeting the requirements of such other section (except as specified in subsection (b)), which is insured under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as if the mortgage insured under this section was insured under such other section."

INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR HOMEOWNERS

SEC. 109. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, to develop a plan for the establishment at the earliest practicable date of an insurance program to help homeowners in meeting mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity. Such insurance program shall be designed to protect mortgagors against foreclosure due to curtailment of income resulting from factors beyond their effective control, including such factors as death, disability, illness, and unemployment. Such insurance program shall also be designed to be actuarially sound through the use of premiums, fees, extended or increased payment schedules, or other similar methods, in conjunction with such Federal participation as may be necessary.

(b) Within six months following the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on his actions under this section, and shall recommend to the Congress such legislation as he deems appropriate to authorize him to enter into agreements with any insurance company, or any corporation or joint enterprise formed to provide home mortgage insurance protection, for the purpose of reinsuring insurance reserve funds, subsidizing premium payments on behalf of lower income mortgagors, or otherwise making possible the insurance protection of homeowners in accordance with subsection (a). In preparing such recommendations the Secretary shall consult with other agencies or instrumentalities of the United States which insure or guarantee home mortgages in order that such legislation as may be recommended affords equal benefits to mortgagors participating in their programs.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MRS. DWYER

Mrs. DWYER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mrs. DWYER: On page 4, after line 10, insert the following new section:

"ANNUAL REPORT ON AREAS OF PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT WHICH REQUIRE IMPROVEMENT

"SEC. 5. The Secretary shall, as soon as practicable in each calendar year and beginning with an interim report no later than January 15, 1969, make a report to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency of the House of Representatives and the Senate identifying specific areas of program administration and management which require improvement, describing actions taken and proposed for the purpose of making such improvements, and recommending such legislation as may be necessary to accomplish such improvements. Each report shall include, but not be limited to, the following areas of program administration and management: uniformity and standardization in program requirements, simplification of program procedures, ways and means of expediting consideration of proposed projects and applications for assistance, the provision of more useful and specific assistance to communities, organizations and individuals seeking to utilize the Department's programs, and ways and means of combining or otherwise adapting the Department's programs to increase their usefulness in meeting the individual needs of applicants."

Mrs. DWYER. Mr. Chairman, my amendment, I believe, is self-explanatory. It would simply implement the language in the committee report on page 4 which expresses the committee's "dissatisfaction" with "excessive redtape, extensive delays in processing applications, cumbersome and complicated procedural requirements."

In all essential respects, moreover, the language of my amendment follows the language of the committee report. It is designed to follow up our concern with action.

Certainly, Mr. Chairman, no one here will question the need for such improvements. Our colleagues are all too aware of shortcomings in program administration, not only in the Department of Housing and Urban Development but in other departments and agencies having urban program responsibilities. As I mentioned during general debate, our committee hearings on the pending bill revealed considerable evidence of the problem, and I shall cite only a few to illustrate the need for action.

The mayor of Philadelphia, for instance, told us how he has been forced to increase his staff of one coordinator to five, with each of the five requiring a backup staff of 20 or 30.

The president of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials argued strongly for greater reliance on local initiative and for elimination of the requirements of prereview of local projects, which involves so much time-consuming duplication of effort.

The chairman of the Housing Committee of the American Institute of Architects put it bluntly. He said, and I quote:

Delays are so great in many of our Federal housing programs that it takes weeks and even months to get minor approvals. Existing programs must be strengthened to provide greater efficiencies.

The mayor of Norfolk, Va., was another who stressed the problem of delays in housing programs. And he, too, urged upon the committee the importance of faster approval of local projects and the elimination of redtape.

This judgment is shared by officials at the State level, too. In my own State of New Jersey, the Newark Sunday News recently reported one of the most vigorous attacks on the complexities of Federal program administration I have ever seen. No less than three top State officials—the budget director, the community affairs commissioner and the transportation commissioner—agreed on the chaos created by uncoordinated Federal programs. The News reported expressions of "disbelief" at what was termed "an indescribable morass."

Finally, the report of the National Commission on Civil Disorders devoted some of its strongest, and most ignored, language to these problems. It said, and I quote again:

Federal programs often seem self-defeating and contradictory: field officials unable to make decisions on their own programs and unaware of related efforts; agencies unable or unwilling to work together; programs conceived and administered to achieve different and sometimes conflicting purposes.

The whole point of my amendment, Mr. Chairman, is to make department officials think in a systematic way about the problems of redtape, delay, and complexity. But unless Congress requires that this be done, unless we set this process of self-criticism in motion by statutory requirements, it will not be done. At best, we will continue to see sporadic and isolated attempts to improve administration. At worst, we will witness more of the unsatisfactory status quo—officials enmeshed in the day-to-day struggle with a host of complex projects and unable to reflect on what they are doing and devise better ways of doing it.

The New York City housing and development administrator, to illustrate this point, told our committee that when we demanded a report from HHFA several years ago on what the agency was doing to cut redtape, responsible officials found it the most encouraging thing that had happened in years—and those are his words.

He said, and I quote, "the most important single goad to action to clean up the red tape that I know of."

If Mr. Nathan was right, and I have every reason to believe he was, then the very simple amendment I am offering can trigger a great deal of cost-cutting, time-saving, and problem-solving activity both here in Washington and throughout the country.

If we are genuinely concerned about making greater progress in solving our urban problems, if we mean what we say about economy and efficiency in Government, then we must make a start here and now. I submit to our colleagues that approval of my amendment would be a very good start indeed.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DWYER. I am very happy to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I have consulted the Members on our side of the aisle on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman, and we have no objection to it if it is agreeable to the minority side. I do want to say that I am very sure that the gentlewoman knows we must recognize HUD has many, many agencies and many, many programs. I do not think we should oppose the amendment offered by the gentlewoman requiring an annual report to the Committee on Banking and Currency. Therefore, I ask our side to support your amendment, and I know your side is agreeable and will accept it.

Mrs. DWYER. I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the distinguished gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DWYER. I shall be glad to yield to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I would like to compliment the distinguished genltewoman from New Jersey on the amendment that she has offered. She has worked very hard within the committee in order to bring to the attention of our committee and also to the attention of the entire country the red tape delays in administering many of the present programs. This amendment should pinpoint the difficulties.

Mr. Chairman, in my opinion it is a significant amendment and provides that the housing programs may be expedited. This is a major goal for all. We want to achieve results.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New Jersey [Mrs. DWYER].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OTTINGER

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. OTTINGER: On page 2, at line 17, insert the following:

"The Congress declares that the program of the President as expressed in his annual message to the Congress shall include statements and recommendations concerning a residential construction goal. In furtherance of the relaization of this goal the President shall transmit to the Senate and the House of Representatives, after the beginning of each session of the Congress, but not later than January 20, a report which shall include the following: (1) a statement indicating the minimum number of housing units which should be started during the then calendar year, or such year and the next following calendar year, in order to be consistent with the program of the President; (2) an indication of the manner in which fiscal and monetary policies will be administered by the executive agencies to achieve the number of housing units specified under clause (1); and (3) any recommendations for legislative action that the President determines is necessary or desirable in order that the construction of such specified number of housing units may be started."

(Mr. OTTINGER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I wish to congratulate the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, on which I have had the privilege to serve, for the fine job which he has done on this bill, as well as the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], and the ranking minority member, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

I hope they will accept this amendment.

This amendment is comparable to legislation which I and a number of colleagues on both sides of the aisle have introduced since the 89th Congress.

Mr. Chairman, I am sure every one of our colleagues recalls vividly the financial turmoil in 1966 when interest rates reached record levels and the housing industry was plunged into a depression.

At this time last year, signs were pointing ominously to another tightening of credit and further setbacks for the housing market, just as it was on the verge of recovery. Today again astronomical interest rates threaten our savings and housing industries.

On no less than three occasions since 1950, the housing industry has been severely constricted as the Federal Reserve tightened credit to ward off inflation. In 1966 the cost of mortgage loans rose to the highest levels in 40 years, and the construction rate of new homes and apartments dropped 909,000 units for the year.

Mr. Chairman, this boom-and-bust cycle in the housing industry is intolerable. The Congress has an obligation to take positive steps to encourage stability in this vital sector of the economy. Before the year 2000, the increase in population and income will create a demand for new housing greater than all the housing built since this Nation was first colonized. In light of this, recurrence of the 1966 fiasco would be disastrous.

Unfortunately, Mr. Chairman, the effect of fiscal and monetary policies on the homebuilding and related industries is never discussed until they have been carried out and their impact is being felt. Decisions made by the Federal Reserve Board, the Bureau of the Budget, the Treasury Department, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board can turn the volume of homebuilding up full blast, or reduce it to a mere trickle. But the Congress never debates these decisions until it is to late, until savings banks and savings and loan associations are teetering on the brink of insolvency, construction workers are laid off their jobs, and would-be homeowners are unable to find credit.

Fluctuations in the homebuilding industry do not occur by accident. They are the result of policies that have been planned and implemented, and as such, they can be anticipated. We can plan and anticipate far better than we have been doing, and the amendment I have offered will enable the administration and the Congress to do the kind of planning that is necessary to achieve stability in homebuilding.

The thrust of this amendment is simple and straightforward. It is taken directly from legislation introduced by me in the 89th and 90th Congresses—House Joint Resolution 757—and joined in by my colleagues, Messrs, HANNA, DOW, ULLMAN, and WALKER. It directs the President to set an annual housing goal; to advise Congress how fiscal and monetary policies will be carried out to achieve that goal; and to recommend any additional legislation which may be necessary.

It gives the President a little leverage over the Federal Reserve Board to require it to publicly consider the consequences to homebuilding of its monetary policies. It also requires the administration to consider monetary and fiscal policies together in arriving at a homebuilding goal. Clearly use of interest rate adjustments alone to battle inflation is unsound and inequitable.

Had this legislation been in effect in 1966, Congress would not have been faced with taking emergency steps to bring the homebuilding industry out of a depression. We would already have deliberated and debated the administration's economic plans and outlook, and taken appropriate action to maintain stability.

It is late, but not too late to act, and I urge the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I wish that we could accept the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York, and the reason we cannot is not because it is not a good amendment, and not because the gentleman from New York [Mr. OTTINGER] has not labored long and hard this year and in years gone by to support the principle of this amendment. The reason we cannot accept the amendment is that it is already in the bill.

If the gentleman from New York will turn to pages 260 and 261, he will find the requirement of an annual housing report by the President by January 20 of each year in almost exactly the same language as that used by the gentleman from New York.

To have a slightly out-of-phase duplicate amendment back on page 2 would obviously create legislative confusion. Also, the section which the gentleman from New Work has sought to amend is a declaration of policy, and I believe would not be the proper repository for the excellent amendment which the gentleman has offered, and I am wondering therefore, if in view of what the committee has done, the gentleman from New York might see fit to not press forward with his amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I will have to admit to have been unaware of this provision the committee adopted.

Mr. REUSS. The gentleman need not reproach himself, since pages 260 and 261 are very far along in the bill, but it is there, and I do believe it meets the point raised by the gentleman in his amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Reading this over, do I correctly assume that it is the intent of the committee that the President, after receiving the report of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, would set the monetary and fiscal requirements for achieving the annual housing objectives as well as just the number of units required? I think it is important that the President should be required to set monetary and fiscal objectives that would be beyond the scope of the Secretary of HUD.

Mr. REUSS. In reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from New York, I would say "Yes," and what the committee has done, specifically, is to ask for the recommendations of the President—and here I quote—"of the legislative and administrative actions necessary to achieve the 10-year goal."

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for his explanation, and I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. CHARLES H. WILSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

(Mr. CHARLES H. WILSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CHARLES H. WILSON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the legislation.

Mr. Chairman, first of all, I want to commend the distinguished chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], and the very able and distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT] and the able members of the committee for bringing forth what I consider a landmark bill.

The bill has many significant and worthwhile parts, but I think the most important aspect is that for the first time we are really facing up to the magnitude of the housing and urban problem. I know that much important legislation has been enacted in the past and it has been sound legislation. It has also been valuable for the people it has helped and the experience it has given, but it has been inadequate to stop the spread of blight and slums in our cities and rural areas and to provide the housing needed to meet the national housing goal enunciated by the Congress in 1949 of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family."

Now I do not know whether 10 years hence will see the eradication of slums replaced by decent housing for all American families, but at least here is a sincere and realistic effort in that direction. As the distinguished gentleman from Texas indicated, this bill is part of a 10-year program to make available 6 million additional dwelling units, with various kinds of Federal assistance, for those low and moderate income families who cannot now afford decent housing. The Federal Government has been trying to help these people house themselves for over 30 years, but this program represents a vast increase over all previous efforts.

In the previous decade, less than 600,000 units were constructed or rehabilitated with public assistance, and most of these units were assisted under the low-rent public housing program. This is about 4 percent of total housing starts and rehabilitation over the same period, which exceeded 14 million units. That this is not enough is plain from the fact that almost 6 million substandard units are in the housing supply, that millions more are overcrowded, that 15 million American families have incomes so low as to make it very difficult and in many cases impossible for them to find decent housing they can afford.

I am heartened by the President's 10-year housing goals, which call for nearly double the total number of housing starts and more than a tenfold increase in the number of assisted units and fivefold increase in the proportion of assisted units to total units. These goals are set out in title XIII of this bill, thus giving a statutory mandate to carrying out this most urgent task.

The able members of the committee have care fully weighed such key factors as the availability of mortgage credit, the capacity of the construction industry, and the impact on the economy, in devising the maximum practicable housing goals. I think, all things considered, that these are splendid goals, and if we we went so far in other areas to help the disadvantaged, a great deal of our urban decay would be eliminated.

The specific provisions and programs in the bill appear to be carefully drawn and well balanced. The new emphasis on homeownership is a real breakthrough which I fully endorse, along with the many other features of this excellent bill. It is my sincere hope we can pass this great piece of legislation as it came from the committee and without curtailing its effectiveness with unnecessary and crippling amendments.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDERSON OF ILLINOIS

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois: On page 17, following line 3 add a new subsection (1) as follows:

"(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no assistance payments authorized to be contracted under this section shall be made on behalf of any family whose income exceeds 130 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings."

(Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, we have traveled a long road since passage of the Housing Act of 1949 with its brave goals of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American. As the road to perdition is paved with broken promises, it seems that the road to better housing has been littered with unfulfilled expectations and disappointed dreams. For there are those who estimate that one-fifth of our people are still ill housed.

Fifteen years after a Presidential advisory committee announced a need for replacement or rehabilitation of 6.8 million units, we hear a current estimate of some 6 million substandard housing units. In the last 15 years the sum total of urban renewal has been the completion of 148,468 new once rehabilitated dwelling units completed in designated urban renewal areas. Instead of completing 810,000 public housing units as was authorized almost 20 years ago, as of February of this year less than 700,000 or 681,020 public housing units were occupied and under management with an additional 49,417 under construction.

So when we hear the bold new targets of 26 million housing units in total over the next decade, almost double the actual figure reached in the preceding decade, of which 6 million units are to be for low- and moderate-income families we have a right to be wary.

If we have not attained our goals in the past what new magic formula has been devised. And I remind you that when you dash the aroused hopes of an ill-housed segment of our population that their dream of adequate housing is finally going to be established you do far more than trifle with their future political affections, you sow the seeds of disillusionment and despair that can erupt into what has become the agony of our cities. The revolution of rising expectations is not confined to the developing nations of the eastern and southern hemispheres. It is right here as well.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, we would like to see the gentleman's amendment. Do you have a copy available?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Yes; there is a copy available.

My criticisms therefore of sections 101 under title I and 201 under title II are that they promise too much to too many, and as a result we will simply see a repetition of the now monotonous pattern of dashed hopes and disappointed dreams. Why do I say that? Because it is only too clear that under the discretionary authority of the Department of Housing, Urban and Development to set maximum permissible income limits you are holding out the hope to about 70 percent of the American people that the U.S. Government is going to be able to subsidize its shelter costs.

The hearings make it abundantly clear that income limits are going to be established administratively as is presently done under the FHA section 221(d)(3) program. Let me quote from pages 863 and 864 of the hearings. Nowhere, I repeat. Nowhere, is "low and moderate income" defined.

I can quote to you from pages 863 and 864 of the hearings to that effect where Mr. McGrath said, and I quote:

> Let me add, Mr. Widnall, that I think we would expect the income maximums, of course, to be set by the Secretary under the bill; that is, there is no statutory limitation applied, but we would expect them to be either at the 221(d)(3) level, in some places, or at 70 percent of the 221(d)(3) level in other places.

In many communities 221(d)(3) limits extend well beyond $8,000 per year for families with one minor child. For example in Rockford, Ill., in my congressional district, a family with one child earning $7,950—which is well above the median income in the State of Illinois—is entitled to admission in 221(d)(3) projects. Therefore, it is a perfectly valid assumption that this family would be eligible for the new programs provided in the bill.

There are many communities, and if I had the time—and I will later—put into the RECORD the lists that I have from the Department of Housing and Urban Development showing what the 221(d)(3) maximum permissible income limits are.

There are many communities where this extends well beyond the $8,000 a year even for a family with one minor child.

Yet, there are 13 million poor families earning less than $5,000 per year looking for assistance in obtaining decent housing. Yes, 13 million families. Should they not be our first concern? Should we not see the absolute essentiality of establishing some priorities within our housing programs? Oh, yes; I am familiar with all the counterarguments. We must have flexibility. Let the income limits be the function of the mortgage and such regulations as the Secretary may administratively determine.

Oh, yes; Secretary Weaver in his testimony talks about limiting the homeownership provisions of new section 235 to families in an income range of $3,000 to $5,000 or $6,000 a year:

> These are the limits where we believe most of the families to be served would be concentrated. (Page 184 of the hearings.)

And the estimate of Mr. Ross of Secretary Weaver's staff was that in 1966 you had about 11 million families that fell between $3,000 and $6,000 income, and another 4½ million families between $6,000 and $7,000. This is our target, not families above the median income.

Mr. Chairman, if these poor families are not going to be reached it is cruel and dishonest to masquerade behind a label. If the housing units to be produced under these programs are not going to be marketable unless we boost maximum permissible income limits to $8,000, $9,000, $10,000, let us say so. Do not call it a program for poor people. To suffer this delusion is to merely court a repetition of the failures of the past.

So what do I propose to do with my amendments to new sections 235 and 236 to the National Housing Act? I merely propose to discharge our proper legislative responsibility of setting maximum permissible income limits at 130 percent of the income limits prevailing in a community for the occupancy of public housing. This permits both geographic and administrative flexibility, but it does blanket in 70 percent of our population. It rifles in on the poor. They should be our target.

I refuse to believe that this House, that this Committee wants to shut off the dreams and the hopes of the truly underprivileged people of this country.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois was allowed to proceed for 5 additional minutes.)

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I refuse to believe that we want to dash the hopes and the dreams of these families making less than $6,000 a year that this bill is not for them. You know, there are so many examples that I could give you this afternoon of some of the deception that I think has been practiced under some of the housing programs that we have already on the books. I brought with me this afternoon a clipping that I took from a Washington newspaper only a few days ago with the headline "569-Unit Low-Income Housing Project Planned Here in the District of Columbia."

Well, now, that sounds mighty fine, does it not? It sounds like we are rushing down to get to the people that we ought to be helping. And yet if you read the fine print in the story, if you go past the headlines, this is what you find: That out of that 569-unit low-income housing project, exactly 92 families now in an income bracket that qualifies them for public housing will be eligible for that project—92 families out of 569 are going to reap the benefits of low-cost housing.

So the trouble is that when we talk in general and ill-defined terms, as we do in this bill, about low-income and moderate-income housing, we are not talking about very much low-income housing. We are talking about a lot of moderate-income housing.

I read the testimony of the National Association of Home Builders, about how the amount of the subsidy ought to be the function of the mortgage and let us give administrative flexibility to the Secretary, and all of that. But this is a bill that ought to be written for the poor people of this country, not the Home Builders Association or any other group.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. CAHILL. As I read the bill, I am disturbed that there is no limit on the amount of interest that could be charged. I am wondering if this subsidy of what really amounts over all to 1 percent would not put pressures on to increase interest rates, and would not therefore make it more difficult for the middle-income purchaser who was not eligible for subsidies to obtain a mortgage.

So, therefore, as the gentleman has well pointed out, unless we do establish priorities, and unless we limit the subsidy, we are going to find that the people who really want to go out and mortgage their homes on their own would find it almost impossible to get mortgages.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I thank the gentleman from Illinois for his contribution. I think he has made a valid point.

Let me hurry on to tell you exactly what I propose to do with the amendment I have offered to section 235. In that amendment I merely propose to discharge what I think is the proper legislative responsibility of this Congress to set the maximum permissible income limit for the families that will be eligible for this new home ownership program at 130 percent, the 130-percent-income limit that now prevails in the community for the occupancy of public housing.

You can make that much more than the occupant of public housing and still be eligible for the program under section 235. This, I believe, would give administrative flexibility to the Secretary. There are variations, as you all know, from area to area in the country in the maximum permissible income limits for public housing occupants. So there is not just one figure across the board. We take into consideration that there are differences in various geographic areas of our country.

And yet I think rather than leaving this term "moderate low and moderate income" completely undefined, we should put into the bill a formula. I would remind you that the other body put into the legislation that they passed a different formula. They would peg the maximum permissible limit at 70 percent of the 221(d)(3) limit. I think the formula I am suggesting in the amendment is superior. I think we know on the basis of long experience just what these public housing ceilings are, and I think certainly if we give this a flexibility of 130 percent to the Administrator, that this is a program that can work.

Let me remind those who say this would destroy the great purpose of this program, if this program is not really going to help the low income people of this country, then let us not be out here on the floor today trying to fool them and make them believe it is going to work. Let us not put a label of "low and moderate income" on a program, when we really mean moderate income with maybe a few crumbs off the table for the truly low income people of this country. That is unfair. It is dishonest.

I would suggest only if we adopt this clarifying amendment will we really put some meaning and teeth into this particular provision of the bill.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. FRASER. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Ninety Members are present, not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 236]

Bell	Hansen, Idaho	Passman
Brademas	Hardy	Pepper
Brown, Calif.	Hawkins	Rarick
Cederberg	Heckler, Mass.	Resnick
Corman	Jones, Mo.	Satterfield
Evans, Colo.	Karsten	Stafford
Evins, Tenn.	Landrum	Tunney
Foley	McCulloch	Van Deerlin
Gardner	McMillan	Waggonner
Halleck	O'Hara, Ill.	Willis

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself without a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 402 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] is recognized.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Anderson amendment.

Let us just see what this amendment does. The Anderson amendment is attached to the Percy-Widnall-Patman-Barrett-Sullivan homeownership provision. That is the provision which is designed to see that low- and near-low-income people should not be condemned to the one alternative of public housing, but should have an opportunity to acquire the dream of American homeownership.

The Anderson amendment seeks to place a limitation on that. It in effect says that the only people who can take advantage of this section are paupers plus 30 percent. The people who live in public housing have an income level of $3,000 to $3,500. If you take 30 percent of that, that is another $1,000 or so, an income of around $4,000.

If you adopt the Anderson amendment, you will be taking the Percy-Widnall bill, which I believe every Republican Senator in the Senate cosponsored, and which 114 Republican Members in this body cosponsored, and throwing it out of the window. You will be doing that because this homeownership program is aimed at the family with an income around $5,000, $6,000, or possibly $7,000 a year. Unless you beam it at moderate-income people like that, you are beaming it at nobody, because a pauper cannot own a home. It does not make economic sense. He cannot pay off his mortgage. He cannot pay his taxes. He cannot pay for the repairs. He cannot pay the insurance.

This is designed to help the larger family, the family displaced by an urban renewal project or by a freeway or by a park, the family in a larger city where construction costs are high. However, well intentioned the Anderson amendment may be, it would have the effect of telling Senator PERCY and Congressman WIDNALL and the leadership on the majority side that their homeownership program is out the window, because the only people the Anderson amendment is willing to give homeownership to are those paupers plus 30 percent who should not be owning a home because they cannot maintain the payments.

The gentleman from Illinois has talked about cruel hoaxes, about unfulfilled expectations, broken dreams, fractured bubbles, and so on. The greatest broken dream of all history would be the Percy-Widnall homeownership provision if it is clobbered by a Republican amendment.

So, while I have no fears that on the majority side we will vote down this amendment, I urge the 114 Republicans who are cosponsoring the Percy-Widnall amendment to think twice before they ruin a really excellent bipartisan, truly American homeownership program to help the moderate-income guy own a home for a change.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Does not the gentleman think it is necessary in our housing programs to assign priorities, and that it would be better to start to help the 13 million families in this country who make $5,000 a year or less first before we go to the $9,000- or $10,000-a-year families? Does that not make some sense?

Mr. REUSS. We are not going to the $9,000- or $10,000-a-year group. We want to take into account the need of the moderate-income people, the $5,000- or $6,000-a-year people, for housing, and we on this side, and I assume the 114 Republicans who support the Widnall amendment, believe in homeownership. We think a man who owns a home is not likely to burn it down. We want to help worthy people to develop their own equity in their own home, and that means we have to put some substance in this bill for those who are somewhat beyond the pauper level, and that is why this is not just a low-income housing bill but a moderate-income housing bill, and the gentleman would make a mockery of the homeownership provision, unintentionally, I grant you, by saying you have got to be a pauper plus 30 percent or you cannot come in.

(Mr. BROCK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I never cease to be amazed at the argument of people who talk so much in their districts about helping the poor only to come on the floor and oppose an amendment which would require that Federal funds go to the people we are supposed to be helping.

The whole thrust of the Anderson amendment is to require HUD to put the money where their mouth is and give assistance to the low- and low-moderate-income families.

The gentleman from Wisconsin talks about incomes of $5,000, $6,000, and maybe even $7,000, but he cannot deny that under the existing HUD authorization program, families in New York can have an income of $10,000—or $10,050 to be specific.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is talking about the 221(d)(3) program, which does provide rental units largely in high-cost cities like New York. That has nothing to do with the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] which goes to homeownership. We cannot own a home in a high rise apartment under normal circumstances. What we are talking about is some people who can carry homeownership by making monthly payments on principal and interest, making repairs, paying insurance, and keeping up a home. That is what homeownership is.

We have to have moderate-income people in order to do that. That is what the bill is all about.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me the gentleman is missing one of the most pertinent points. From year to year to year this Congress has tried to design programs to help the low-income family with public housing or with rent supplements, and so on and on and on. Each year we review the programs and find out that HUD has given the help to moderate-income families. Then we try to write restrictions into the legislation, and each year they find a way to go around the intent of the Congress.

We are not trying to say there is a $5,000 ceiling on income. The gentleman did not suggest it, and I do not think I would support it either, because there are varying costs and varying problems in each locality. But the gentleman does say it should be at 130 percent of the public housing standard, which gives a varying standard by area according to the cost in the area.

That to me is a pretty sensible approach. I do not understand why we cannot tell HUD once and for all to orient their program to help the people who need the help. That is all we are trying to do. It does seem rather amazing to me that every time we get into one of these fights, the gentlemen on the other side of the aisle seem to be opposed to Congress accepting the responsibility of a legislative branch and writing in specific standards. You always seem to want to oppose any restriction of HUD's authority.

But the fact of the matter is that HUD has failed and failed and failed again. The fact is that they apparently do not have either the desire or the competence to help these people. It is about time Congress asserted a little bit of responsibility and said, "This is where we are going to spend the money, because this is where the need is."

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, I suppose it is fair to lambaste the Department of Housing and Urban Development under some circumstances, but when we say that they have miserably failed in their efforts to assist the low-income families, I wonder if this is entirely fair? After all, it is this body and the Senate which authorize the housing programs, and if we go back through the years, we will find very substantial opposition, not just to subsidized housing, but to public housing and every single housing program that has been advanced. The 221(d)(3) did not come in as a lower-than-market interest rate program. It came in as a market rate program because that was all we could get through the Congress. So I do not think it is entirely fair to place the onus of responsibility and burden of failure entirely on HUD. We do have Members of this body who vote against every single housing program that has been advanced. So let us look to ourselves a little bit for the burden of responsibility.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Tennessee has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. BROCK was allowed to proceed for 5 additional minutes.)

Mr. BROCK. Let me make this one point. The program we are talking about is a Republican program, the Percy-Widnall homeownership program. Better than 60 percent of the Members of the minority in this body have cosponsored that bill.

All we are trying to do is to see that it is not perverted or prostituted by people in HUD who would like very much, I am sure, to say, "We have so many units constructed."

It is easy to present large figures of construction for moderate-income families, because they do not cost as much, and they do not require as much work.

The point is that the very people we are trying to help require a little extra effort, and that is where we are trying to point the program.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. I want to point out, as the gentleman from Ohio said a few moments ago, this has nothing to do with homeownership. The gentleman is talking about the Percy-Widnall program, in the Homeownership Foundation. We are talking about homeownership in title I.

I am quite sure the gentleman from Illinois would not want to do this any more than I want to do it. This bill is to cover a broad spectrum of everybody who needs housing. There are 6 million people living in substandard housing. We are asking to move forward on this in the next 5 years, so that we can put at least 2.5 million of those people in standard housing.

Mr. BROCK. The gentleman's figures are not entirely correct. There are more than 8 million families living in substandard housing. Six million have less than $4,000 income a year.

These are the people we are trying to help. That is all the amendment tries to do.

Mr. BARRETT. Will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. BROCK. Very briefly.

Mr. BARRETT. If the gentleman's amendment were to carry, we would deny to some 2.5 million people the opportunity to be homeowners under this bill.

Mr. BROCK. I am absolutely amazed. I do not yield any further, because I am amazed by that statement. It is simply not true. I will not argue the point further.

Mr. BARRETT. Let me explain, so that the gentleman will not be amazed.

Mr. BROCK. On the substandard units, there are 6 million families who have incomes of less than $4,000, and 1.8 million families under $8,000. That covers 90 percent of all substandard housing.

This amendment would not take away one prospective unit from those families, and the gentleman knows it full well, if he has read the amendment.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONAS. I am puzzled by the inconsistency of the argument advanced by the gentleman from Pennsylvania when compared to the statement made by the gentleman from Wisconsin. Is this the Percy-Widnall approach or not? The gentleman from Wisconsin said it was, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania says it is not.

Mr. BROCK. The gentleman from Pennsylvania, along with a lot of other gentlemen in the Congress, have decided they like this homeownership concept and have adopted it, but it is a Republican program.

I am delighted that they support the concept. I do not care whether it is called the Percy-Widnall approach or title I. The fact is it is a proposal which emanated from the minority, and I hope the gentleman will give the credit where credit is due.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. I do not want to take credit away from the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL], nor do I want to take credit away from Senator PERCY, but I do have to point out that the gentlewoman from Missouri inaugurated this amendment to give homeownership to those people.

Mr. BROCK. Let me finish by saying, quite simply, I do not care who offered the bill. I do care where the bill goes. I do care who benefits from it.

It seems to me to be of paramount importance that we talk about directing this bill toward the purpose of helping those people who have no prospects for helping themselves. That is the thrust, the purpose, and the objective of the amendment.

Mr. ASHLEY. I know that the gentleman is motivated by a desire to establish a system of priorities which will result in providing shelter for those who need it the most, but does it not strike you that there is a bit of discrimination involved in this amendment? We say, or the amendment says, that we shall limit the program to families having an income equivalent to that of $3,000 a year plus 30 percent or $3,900.

Mr. BROCK. No. Let me give you the figures. In Baltimore, Md., it would be $4,700; in Los Angeles it is $5,600; for Minneapolis it is $5,600; and for New York it is $7,500. That is not an inordinate restriction.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has again expired.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the sponsor of the amendment several questions. I am curious about whether or not we are, in an effort to establish priorities, in effect denying the opportunity for decent shelter to a very substantial segment of our society that has an income of more than 30 percent above public housing but below what is necessary in order to obtain decent shelter on the private market.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ASHLEY. Yes. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I think I can answer the gentleman's question by referring to the statements on page 343 of the report where it says that 75 percent of the substandard homes are occupied by families with incomes of $4,000 or less. Thus this indicates that those families with incomes of $5,000 and under occupy most of the necessary substandard housing. That is where the problem is. This is why we are trying to impose a maximum income ceilin that puts HUD and whoever is in charge of administering the program in a position rather than going out to play the numbers game and saying, "Look, we built so many units of housing without respect to whether they are for the people who need them most," where they are forced to pay attention to the fact that substandard housing is occupied by families making $5,000 or $6,000 a year.

Mr. ASHLEY. I wonder who is playing the numbers game here. Your amendment suggests that maybe you are, because what you are saying is that in a community if the public housing income limit is $3,000 a year——

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ASHLEY. Not yet.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. This is not in accord with the facts. You talk about $3,000. I have a table here which shows in some cities it is as high as $7,500 a year for a man and his wife.

Mr. ASHLEY. I appreciate the fact that public housing incomes vary. My hypothetical was based upon a community in which the public housing maximum income is $3,000 a year. The effect of your amendment would say that homeownership shall be allowed only to those families earnings $3,900; that is 100 percent of the public housing income plus 30 percent or $3,900. Query: What about the family earning $4,200 a year?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. It was just called to my attention, if the gentleman will yield further, that in the gentleman's own home community of Toledo, Ohio, you can occupy public housing and have an income of $5,500 a year. My amendment simply says you can make 30 percent more than that and still be eligible under this program under section 235. I am not talking about just paupers.

Mr. ASHLEY. But you are excluding where exclusion, it seems to me, is unnecessary. You are excluding families who are just beyond the public housing limit plus 30 percent. You are excluding them, and I say——

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ASHLEY. No; I will not yield.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. We will not rifle in on the target if we do not do that. If we start spreading our shot all over the landscape and guarantee shelter subsidies to 70 percent of the people of this country, we will not be able to furnish it to those who need it the most.

Mr. ASHLEY. You say exclusion is necessary and hence the reason for your amendment. I say it is not necessary for two reasons. The first is that annually this program will be funded through the appropriation process so that there will be direct control. Second, preference is given to large families, families displaced by urban renewal and other governmental activities, and families in public housing.

So clearly a priority or preference is established for these categories of families. And we do have the ability each year through the appropriations process to determine who we are providing shelter for and at what cost.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, the time to determine that is now. We are writing the basic authorizing legislation. It is there where the standard ought to be imposed. We are operating in the field of the never, never land if we do not look at this problem in this perspective.

Mr. ASHLEY. But I say the standard has been imposed in the basic statute in the order of preference, and the appropriation process. Your amendment would exclude millions of American citizens who are hard working but who are above the 130 percent income level of public housing but who are excluded from access to decent housing on the private market.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Ohio has expired.

Mr. HARVEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. HARVEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HARVEY. Mr. Chairman, I have been very reluctant to get into this discussion here. I do not pretend to have the knowledge of the housing bill which is now pending before us that I perhaps had a few years ago when I did serve on this particular committee.

But, Mr. Chairman, I have heard bandied about this afternoon the word "pauper" and discussion of the limitations of low-income public housing. I think that there has been considerable inaccuracy in this regard.

Mr. Chairman, I have in my hand here the public housing income limitations for areas all across the United States.

With reference to public housing units in the city of New York, a family of six people—a mother, father, and four children—could have an income just under $7,500, and comply with the income limitations. The amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON], would add 30 percent to that.

Mr. Chairman, this means that the income limitation would be even higher for this program, to the extent of almost $2,500 for a total of $10,000 a year.

Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that this is a reasonable degree of flexibility that we are giving here to the Secretary in this instance.

There are many other areas which I could cite, such as Syracuse, N.Y. The limit there for a family of six persons is $6,500 a year, and there again you can add 30 percent to that and still be eligible for this homeownership program. This is reasonable flexibility.

I have to differ with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who are so fearful of the new limitation to be imposed. And I would say to the Members of the House this: I have a very vivid memory with regard to the subject of income limitations in connection with the rent supplement program which came before us in 1965. At that time you will recall that the administration had no income limitation and they had no real asset limitation in the regulations. This body on that day defeated that bill. We said "We do not want the rent supplement program unless there is written into it some limitation so that it will be directed to the poor people of America."

Mr. Chairman, this body rejected the rent supplement program on that occasion. Finally, after the regulations were revised, and it was limited to the poor, they came back and passed it later on.

I saw my good friend a few moments ago, who served on the committee with me at that time, BOB STEPHENS of Georgia. I can remember when he had written in the law, on the floor of this House, a limitation that the rent supplement program itself could not exceed the limit of public housing.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois is not that harsh. He recognizes that here we are talking about homeownership, and he says we will give them an additional 30 percent over and above the limits of public housing. It just seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that this is a very reasonable area of flexibility. For that reason, Mr. Chairman, I certainly want to urge the Members on my side of the aisle, and on the other side of the aisle, who are truly concerned with endorsing a program that will help those who really need it, the truly low-income groups, to vote for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARVEY. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I have just located that portion of the testimony of Secretary Weaver before the Committee on Banking and Currency when this program was being discussed, and he was asked this question:

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Secretary, in the homeownership provision under section 235 and so on, you have mentioned the term "low and moderate income."

What range are you talking about there?

Secretary WEAVER. Primarily I am talking about a range from $3,000 to $5,000 or $6,000 a year. Obviously these figures vary from locality to locality. In certain localities, they become somewhat higher. In other localities, they are somewhat lower.

Mr. BROWN. Then basically you are saying between three and six. Three is the bottom and six is the top?

Secretary WEAVER. These are the limits where we believe most of the families to be served would be concentrated.

That is all we are seeking to do with this amendment, that is all we would do with this income ceiling of 130 percent of the public housing standards.

Mr. HARVEY. Let me say briefly to the gentleman from Illinois that this was precisely the case when the rent supplement program was before us as well. I have the greatest admiration for Dr. Weaver, but he came in at that time and very honestly said that the rent supplement program then was directed at moderate income groups. This House decided not to accept a program so directed. Mr. Chairman, I have supported low-income housing, the rent supplement program, and I expect to support this bill but the gentleman from Illinois has a good point, that this program of homeownership should also be directed at the poor.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we can agree upon a limitation of debate? It seems to me like a good many Members have spoken on this.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2:15 p.m.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. ERLENBORN. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I ask that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2:30 p.m.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2:20 p.m.

The motion was rejected.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, while I am not a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, I do have an abiding interest in housing, and I could not help but question what the distingiushed gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] said when he indicated that this was the Percy-Widnall bill, because if I underestand the Percy-Widnall bill correctly, this legislation is a far cry from the Percy-Widnall bill.

That bill created a quasi-public corporation with debentures sold to raise the money and the bonds were guaranteed by the Government. This bill returns the funding to the private banking interests of the country. There are many other differences in the two bills.

Now, the name of this bill is the housing bill. It is not the bankers' bill; it is not the savings and loan bill; it is not the builders' bill—but it is the housing bill, Mr. Chairman, the object of this bill is to build houses where they are most needed for our fellow citizens who need them the most.

And do all of us fully understand that we are subsidizing this housing to the tune of $100 million in 1 year? And that we are paying interest for the borrower of the mortgage money in excess of 1 percent of the amount of interest charged? Considering that interest rates in my State and perhaps in every State of this Union today is 7 percent, we can readily conclude that we are subsidizing 6 percent of the amount of the mortgage.

I have been in this Congress for 10 years and I voted, I think, for practically every housing bill. I still find people in all parts of the country that really need the housing and cannot buy it—they cannot get it—it is not available.

Who are those people? You know who they are. They are the minority groups and the low-income groups who do not buy an existing house because nobody will sell to them. They cannot borrow the money to build a house because nobody will lend it to them. They desperately need a home and the pride that goes with homeownership.

They are people who are living in the three-story row houses and the substandard houses and apartments where three, four, and five families are living together and whose kids are sleeping five in a room. We wonder why they are dropping out of school. We wonder why they have problems. We wonder why they cannot do better.

Yet what we are going to do is to insure that the builders can build more houses the needy cannot afford, that the banks can lend more mortgage funds, and that suburbia, USA, will have more $15,000 and $20,000 homes but no houses will be built in the cities.

I think it is about time that we recognized that if we want a housing bill that is subsidized by the U.S. Government, we had better start where the need is the greatest.

That is what we did in health insurance. In the field of health insurance, we did not give health insurance to everybody. We did not give health insurance to those who were over 50 years of age. We started where the need was the greatest. If we can afford to do better than the limitation provided in the Anderson amendment, certainly we should do it. But let us start where the need is greatest.

I think we have to start where the houses are needed. We must go in the cities where houses are not being built and where the need is absolutely essential.

The most important thing in any man's life is his home. If we do not provide a way in this bill under this subsidy to let the minority and needy groups in this country get housing, we should not subsidize housing with Federal funds.

I say to you—this is the way to start.

I certainly want to support the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CAHILL. I am delighted to yield to the very distinguished and able chairman of the subcommittee whose contribution to housing in this country is monumental.

Mr. BARRETT. I just want to ask the gentleman a question.

I know that he does not want to be harsh with anybody. But he certainly does not want to deprive 2½ million families—those families who have five, six, and seven and eight children, from getting an opportunity to buy their own home. If we should adopt the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois, this is what is going to happen. It will exclude that many people and I want to say to the gentleman, it will destroy this bill. I do not think the gentleman from New Jersey wants to do that.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired.

(By unanimous consent (at the request of Mr. BARRETT) Mr. CAHILL was granted 1 additional minute.)

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman's argument is sound, and if we are depriving 2 million people by reducing the income, then why do we not increase the income and add 5 million more?

Mr. BARRETT. It is very hard even to get to the level that we are after—rather than ask for an increase. That is a very hypothetical question.

Mr. CAHILL. I think the gentleman has answered the question. I think if we are going to get housing for the low-income people who need it most, we ought to spend our money for that group first and then come back.

Mr. BARRETT. Let me tell the gentleman what we are aiming for in this bill and particularly in title I.

It is to give the low- and moderate-income people and those families who have a large number of children an opportunity to buy homes. That is simply what it does.

Mr. CAHILL. Under this amendment, 28 percent of families in the United States will be eligible. That is a reasonable and logical start in the field of housing.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. the gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois is a very sound and practical amendment.

We have heard some talk here that perhaps the amendment will discriminate against someone. Let me say to you that this amendment is going to discriminate in favor of the people in this country who need assistance. We are not talking here about the National Home Ownership Foundation, because that is covered later in title I. What we are talking about here is mortgage assistance. What HUD is going to do under this mortgage assistance program is to pay the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage, and the monthly payment for the same purposes if the principal were to carry interest of only 1 percent.

I want to tell you that this title, the way it is written, is not designed to help the poor people, because under this title mortgage assistance can be given on mortgages up to $20,000. Certainly I do not know of any poor people who are going to be able to get a downpayment together and buy a home and come up with a mortgage of $20,000. That is the maximum mortgage permitted in this bill.

When you are talking about the income level a family may have and still occupy public housing, you are talking about a sliding scale. For every child they are permitted to earn an additional $200 annually. The sliding scale in various parts of the country applies so that in some parts of the country you can occupy public housing if you have an income of $5,000; in other parts of the country you are entitled to occupy public housing if you have an income of $8,000.

The only thing that the gentleman from Illinois is proposing in his amendment is that in order for the Federal Government to make it possible for someone to have a mortgage at 1-percent interest, he cannot earn more than 30 percent above the income limit for the occupancy of public housing in that area.

If you want to help the people who need help, if you want to make certain that the money is being spent beneficially by the Federal Government in underwriting interest rates for commercial banks, for savings and loans, and for other lending institutions, the thing to do is to adopt this amendment.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT] has referred repeatedly to 2½ million families that would be excluded if my amendment were to be adopted. As I have read and studied the hearings and report on this bill, and under both sections 235 and 236, that is, the homeownership and the rental housing and the cooperative housing sections of this bill, the goal is the production of 900,000 units over the next 3 years.

So I am totally unable to understand where the gentleman has ever come up with the figure of 2½ million, unless he just pulled it out of the air, which I suspect he has.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. The fact of the matter is that most of the people in substandard housing are below the median income in this country, which is approximately $7,500 a year. Your amendment, which would permit them to earn 130 percent of the maximum allowable income under which they could live in low-cost housing, would help those people who really need the assistance, and we would get to the heart of the problem.

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from Missouri is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to set a few things straight about this program of homeownership for low-income families. This is not a brand new proposal or idea. This program originated in St. Louis about 3½ years ago, as a local experiment initiated without any Federal support of any kind, and it was so successful on a small scale that it is now a part of our housing laws and is beginning to operate throughout the country. We enacted it 2 years ago as an amendment of mine to the Housing Act of 1966. It is now operating as section 22(h) of the National Housing Act and is based on the experience gained in the St. Louis project undertaken and pioneered by the Bicentennial Civic Development Corp.; a nonprofit organization of businessmen and civic leaders. The idea originated with Father John Shocklee and Father Joseph Kohler, but it is a community enterprise with help from many different groups and individuals of all faiths.

It was from the work that has been done in St. Louis and the success of that program that the gentleman in the other body also got his idea for a greatly expanded home ownership program—and it is a worthwhile proposal. But we have already had some experience in operating this kind of program. Our experience has shown that people in the very, very low-income bracket of approximately $3,000 a year cannot manage the expenses of owning their own homes, even with a mortgage subsidy.

We have a sliding scale in St. Louis for those who are able to live in public housing. It depends upon the size of the family, as it does in every other place, but we have found that the home ownership program—and there are now more than 90 units which have been rehabilitated in St. Louis and sold to low income families under this program—is attracting mostly large families, with maybe six, eight, or 10 children, plus a mother and father. So, of course, the top income limitation has to be a great deal more than this $3,000 limitation some of the Members are talking about. If we were to impose a $3,000 limitation, I doubt if that kind of family would be able to buy a home, no matter how much help they might get on the mortgage interest rate subsidy.

Remember that we are not talking about a program that is entirely new and untried. I think the program now has spread, since this amendment was made under 221(h) of the 1966 Housing Act, to some 62 cities which have put it into effect, or are in the process of doing so. The experience shows that we have to have a sliding scale for the low- and moderate-income families, so we can be sure that those who receive this help in buying a home have the ability to pay for it. We do not want foreclosures and evictions resulting from trying to include families which could not meet the costs of owning a home. We can subsidize the mortgage interest rate, but if you limit this only to the lowest income levels, such families would not be able to meet the amortization costs and the upkeep, even if the mortgage carried no interest whatsoever. We have to have flexibility in the income limitations.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. SULLIVAN. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that in St. Louis, in the gentlewoman's own hometown, under this provision the limit would not be $3,000; it would be over $6,000, so this is a sliding scale.

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say to the gentleman, there are very few families who are looking for homeownership who are now in public housing, who do not have children. So there has to be a sliding scale and the limitations should not be set too low.

The other thing I want to bring out is that in cities like St. Louis we cannot build new homes at a price the lowest income families could amortize. We have to rehabilitate older houses—work with what we have. When we think of a family in the $3,000 or $5,000 income level paying $10,000 or more for a home—and it would cost that much for a new house in the city—we can see they cannot very well afford to buy that house, and meet the monthly payments, and the maintenance costs, even if no interest were charged at all.

(Mr. DERWINSKI asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DERWINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, it was my privilege to serve on the Banking and Currency Committee in the first 4 years I was in the House, and I found the committee interesting, challenging, but quite frustrating. I see it has not changed since I left 5 years ago, because we are back here with another housing bill full of promises and full of vague figures, and here we are, confronted in the basic debate with a question as to whom we may be helping under this bill.

The gentleman from Tennessee a half hour ago questioned whether the impact of whether this section of the bill and the Anderson amendment was aimed at the middle class or the low-income people. If we look about us in the District of Columbia, we notice the great southwest area redevelopment, which is typical of the bureaucratic efforts that have come out of the Housing Department. One of the great residences of that southwest area is the one owned by Vice President HUMPHREY. That southwest area, when I first came to Washington 10 years ago was the most blighted in the city area—if not in America.

But where are the poor people today who were living there then? They are scattered all over the District of Columbia, and that area has been rehabilitated at great cost to the taxpayer for not only the middle-income people but for the upper-income people. I presume the Vice President does not qualify as a middle-income person.

If this is how we are to help the poor people, by passing glamorous programs with wonderful slogans and facades, and then we find more ghettos building because the builders and bureaucrats divert the funds into the upper- and middle-income housing, then we can repeat it all here, I suppose.

I was also thinking of the figures that have been kicked about. I looked at Chicago, where a family of three to four persons in public housing would have a maximum income of $8,750. Taking the Anderson of Illinois amendment, that would permit them, under this program, to earn $11,000 and still be subsidized in homeownership.

If, in the Chicago area, there is a family of four persons, with an income of $11,000, any bank or savings and loan institution will give them a mortgage in FHA, VA, or even conventional loan procedures today.

The 130-percent figure, instead of perhaps "gutting" the program, is, if anything, too liberal. If a person could earn $10,000 or $11,000 in Chicago, or in any major metropolitan area, and has shown he has limited credit and a legitimate record of repayment, he could qualify under an existing Federal program and would be subsidized under the current FHA and VA practices.

Basically what we are facing—and this bill does not touch it at all—is horrible administration by the Housing Agency. In most banks and savings and loan associations across the country they reason why they do not use more Federal programs is because it takes too long to process the documents. One can work with a conventional loan, under normal circumstances, in 3 or 4 weeks. It might be necessary to wait for 3 or 4 months to have the FHA or the VA process approval.

If we did not have people in the administration killing existing programs, we might not have a need for some of these new programs.

The very least we owe to the poor people of the country is not to again resort to promises of a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, which will not be produced by this program. We need some effort in this bill or in some other approach in the leadership in the Congress to require at least a practical administration of the program.

If anyone could show me how this program would be administered in the light of previous experience and could show it would actually help the poor people of the country, then he is either an optimist or a dreamer, or else he has discovered a clue to the killing bureaucrats in HUD.

I would suggest that the gentleman from Illinois has offered a practical amendment, because it would put the administrator under some legitimate guidelines.

This will, I reemphasize, permit people who are earning $10,000 or $11,000 or $12,000 a year to get financing which is available now. They do not need anything beyond this 130 percent. It will, as I say, inject direction which is otherwise lacking.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DERWINSKI. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I should like to call the gentleman's attention to the fact that rehabilitation loans and rehabilitation grants are covered in title II of this same bill. Again, there is no income limit on the amount of money a person could be making to get such a rehabilitation loan.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we can get an agreement on time?

I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment be limited to 10 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alaska [Mr. POLLOCK].

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. POLLOCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I believe that again the point which ought to be made when we go into the closing minutes of this debate is, that disillusionment is dangerous. If we are going to spell out further disillusionment for the poor people of this country in the program we enact on this floor today, we do them a great disservice.

I would suggest, therefore, that we adopt this amendment and impose a realistic limit with respect to who the participants under the homeownership program—section 236—are going to be. That will signal to the people in the Government who are in charge of this program that it is in fact and in name a program for poor people.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. TAFT].

(Mr. TAFT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TAFT. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to put this question, in the very short time I have here, to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY].

If you are not going to help these people in the 30 percent above public housing level in this section 235, are you going to go along with a similar amendment which will probably be offered on section 236, or are you against setting out any particular area to help these people, who are in great need of help in this housing program?

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TAFT. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. I am all for giving them tremendous help. No one is for cutting them out. We have a very large public housing program.

Mr. TAFT. What about those who are over the public housing limits? Will you go along with them on section 236?

Mr. REUSS. That is right. They are in this and they will stay in.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. Chairman, a serious shortcoming of the bill in section 236, should be corrected. As noted in the minority views, the program is not directed toward those who need it most, and it should be amended to this end. It may be easier, more attractive, and more economic to build for higher income families with incomes over $5,000 per year. But it is not where the greatest need lies, and it is not oriented toward the equality of opportunity and minimum standards precepts that are the very heart of our Federal housing program and have motivated it from the start.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I take this time to point out something that has not been mentioned, as far as I know, by the gentleman from Pennsylvania; namely, that the Senate bill does have a limitation of this type. It puts a limit of 70 percent of the funds available under 221(d)(3), which is effectively what this amendment does. I do not think the gentleman would wish to accuse the other body of trying to destroy the bill. Both amendments are intended to direct the use of this money to the people who need the help.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York [Mr. ROSENTHAL].

(Mr. ROSENTHAL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROSENTHAL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment and in strongest possible support for the housing bill we consider today. This is an omnibus bill in the best sense. The need for ambitious and creative legislation to gain adequate housing for all Americans can no longer be questioned whether we speak for our cities, our suburbs or our rural communities. This bill, as reported out by the Committee on Banking and Currency, represents exactly the far-ranging kind of legislative policy planning that millions of ill-housed Americans require.

When we address ourselves to questions of housing and urban development, we do nothing less than to confront the very quality of life in the United States. All human activity apart from work, and in many cases even including work, occurs within the domicile environment. Nurturance, family raising, sleep, recreation, and religious training are all at-home activities for us.

Educators agree that upwards of 90 percent of all childhood education takes place at home. Social scientists have long known that nothing tells as much about individual life styles as does a man's home.

If this is so, if housing is so determinative of the way men live, we cannot tolerate the continued existence of more than 6 million substandard dwelling units in our Nation. Nor can we tolerate a social condition of inequity where we must build 26 million new housing units by the end of this century—merely to keep pace with our present housing shortage.

This bill incorporates several hundred housing ideas into the only kind of comprehensive program that can meet the heterogeneous needs of 200 million dwellers.

Many of the bill's provisions continue the imaginative proposals first passed in earlier housing acts. Among these are the model cities and rent supplement programs, which have now begun to partially fulfill their promise. The comprehensive urban planning fostered by model cities is urgently needed to meet the interlocking problems of modern urban life.

Rent supplement programs serve admirably to break the cost barriers to adequate housing that are now faced by many residents of our high-rental urban areas. Both of these programs have shown that they merit expanded support by Congress; and efforts to cut these programs back would be simply unconscionable.

The many exciting new proposals in this bill should also be approved by this House today. Title I of this bill, which lends Federal support of homeownership programs must be seen as especially valuable in securing a pleasant environment for those millions of our fellow citizens now trapped in noisome tenements.

I represent a district in New York that contains many single-family homes, as well as 83,000 apartment units. I know how strong the desire for homeownership is, even in New York. I am also pleased to see that H.R. 17989 would insure that at least half of all subsidized housing within residential urban renewal areas will be low- or middle-income housing.

As a former member of the Committee on Agriculture, I am gratified to see that the impoverished quality of rural housing has not been overlooked in this bill. Other features of this bill, including new mass transit support, new Federal aid for the construction of college dormitories, and increased stress on urban renewal through rehabilitation, and added Federal support for mortgages and home insurance all deserve warm endorsement.

The jobs through housing provision of H.R. 17090 merits special commendation. This section calls for new housing construction at the rate of 600,000 units per year for the next 10 years, thus yielding a new housing total of 6 million units by 1980. This last figure is not irrelevant; it represents the number of dilapidated dwelling units now extant in this Nation. But this provision does not merely authorize this ambitious program. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is specifically obliged to "require, to the greatest extent feasible, that opportunities for employment arising in connection with other provisions of H.R. 17989 be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing and, thereby, provide not only housing but also jobs for these persons." Thus, our cities are to derive double benefits from the new housing construction that is so crucially needed.

Special efforts are to be made by Housing and Urban Development to guarantee that highly desirable construction jobs be allotted to inner city residents. A Housing and Urban Development study done at my request several months ago indicates that our building of 600,000 new housing units would generate a half-million new jobs for inner-city residents. I trust that the phrase "to the greatest extent feasible" will be interpreted by Housing and Urban Development as a spur to full enforcement and not as a dodge.

What a perfect, felicitous solution this is for many of our urban blight problems. This bill employs a great variety of devices for building pleasant environments in our cities, and it will also create hundreds of thousands of new jobs. Credit for this feature of H.R. 17989 should be given to the Confrontation With Congress group that has worked diligently for this imaginative proposal for many months. James Haughton, Timothy Cooney, and the other leaders of the CWC whose dedicated support of the jobs through housing, first in H.R. 16266 and now in H.R. 17989, should bear fruit today deserve our warmest thanks.

In closing, I would like to reiterate my warm support for this omnibus bill, and my opposition to today's efforts to reduce our commitment to urban needs. We are accustomed in this body, especially of late, to hear impassioned pleas for economic retrenchment. I insist that we can simply not afford any pennypinching in our housing and urban renewal programs. The very quality of our lives is directly at stake, not only for the 6 million of us who must endure obvious dilapidation, but for all of us who reside in cities, who love them, and who see in our cities those centers of production and creativity upon which our entire country depends.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. FINDLEY].

Mr. FINDLEY. Mr. Chairman, to me this limitation amendment makes a lot of sense. I hope it is accepted by the House, and when the day comes, as it may, that the farm bill hits the House floor, I hope a similar sentiment will prevail, because we have the ridiculous situation of farmers getting as much as $1 million a year in payments out of the U.S. Treasury. A limitation is badly needed there, too.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. WYLIE].

(Mr. WYLIE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WYLIE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. I rise in support of the very significant strides forward in housing assistance which are being taken by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. But, as the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] just pointed out, the other body has adopted an amendment imposing an income limitation on eligibility for assistance to persons whose incomes are not in excess of 70 percent of the prescribed limits of those in projects under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act. We are phasing out this program in this bill, and therefore I believe that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois is better. We have to rifle shot in on these low-income family problems. I think we need some leeway to take into account different standards of living in different communities. But, we want to express our intent that low-income families be provided for, first. The amendment makes good sense.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. MATHIAS].

(Mr. MATHIAS of Maryland asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MATHIAS of Maryland. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] to comment very briefly on the situation in which this bill finds the family which has had increased income but cannot find better housing. For instance, a family in low-income public housing which cannot move because no other housing is available, yet it has to pay premium rent in that housing facility.

Mr. REUSS. This action of the bill is aimed at accommodating that sort of person and enabling him to achieve homeownership. If the Anderson amendment prevails, he will be cheated and will not be able to do this. His income will be too high.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MATHIAS of Maryland. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. The gentleman should point out in all fairness that there is a section now, section 10(g)(3) of the U.S. Housing Act which gives a tenant in a public housing project who has an income which has exceeded the ceiling the right to pay for it as long as he maintains adequate rent.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. CAHILL].

(Mr. CAHILL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to point out to the Members that this bill will absolutely build houses in this country, because you can be sure the builders can sell houses with mortgages on which only 1 percent interest is charged, to the purchasers. We can be equally sure that they will build the $15,000 to $20,000 house which the needy of this country cannot afford.

So, Mr. Chairman, I say if we are to encourage the builders to build the houses that we need in this country and that the people need in this country, we had better support the Anderson amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. FRASER].

(Mr. FRASER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FRASER. Mr. Chairman, in following this debate it seems to me that the bill already has effective income limitations. By putting a ceiling on the size of the mortgage and by saying that 20 percent of the persons income must be devoted toward paying that mortgage there is an effective ceiling. If the income of a particular family rises, and if we adopt the amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON], instead of phasing out this subsidy it will end abruptly. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment is defeated.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], to close the debate on the amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask for a vote on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois) there were ayes 79, noes 75.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 118, noes 101.

So the amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: On page 4, line 21, after "acquiring", insert "or retaining".

On page 4, line 22, after "acquiring", insert "or retaining".

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would permit persons, particularly those who are elderly such as widows and persons on a pension, who have already undertaken the risks and burdens of home ownership, to retain their hard won rights of home ownership despite changes in their economic status, through refinancing of their present high risk mortgages if they fall within the low income limits set forth under this bill. The minority wants this bill to be of help to the people that need it most, whether they presently are homeowners or whether they hope to be. Particularly, they want deserving individuals and families to have the best opportunity for preserving their equity in their homes. This simple amendment would permit this.

Mr. Chairman, I find a number of cases of very fine citizens, elderly persons, such as widows and people on a pension, who are unable to keep their homes because of increased costs today. If they do not get the benefit of what is in title I of this bill, they will not be able to retain their homes and be able to live in the home where they have put their hard-earned savings for many, many years.

I think they deserve the same opportunity that is to be given to the new homeowners in order to enable them to retain their present homes. They would be able to do so, if they had the same type of financing made available for them.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The amendment offered by the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey has been offered by the gentleman with the very best of intentions, I know. I wish the Congress could authorize the vast amount of money and the funds that the amendment would require.

There is no estimate as to how much would be required and, obviously, there is no way to get an estimate.

This amendment would include or take in existing homes. The bill, as written, provides for new homes for people who never have had the benefits of homeownership in this country.

Now if we are to divert it and permit them to use the money for existing homes, there will not be enough money for anything except the existing homes—and there will not be enough for new homes.

There is only $300 million authorized to be appropriated in title I. Obviously, if you permit people who have their own homes now to come into the program, it will defeat the purpose of the bill. Therefore, the amendment should be defeated.

The basic purpose of section 101 is to offer homeownership for the first time to families for whom, up to now, homeownership has been a financial impossibility and an unrealizable dream. Since this would permit existing homes to come in, it is an entirely different approach, and the amount of money is practically nothing in comparison to what we would need. It would defeat the purposes of the bill. If the amendment were adopted, no new housing could be constructed, and all the funds would undoubtedly be dissipated without creating a single new home just by letting people who have existing homes use the money for rehabilitation, refinancing, or any other purpose.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment of the gentleman from New Jersey would really open a very broad, new field, and more properly should be considered in the context of future studies and new hearings. I would be perfectly willing to have hearings on the gentleman's proposal if he desires them.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PATMAN. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WIDNALL. The purpose of the amendment is to enable those who now own their homes and who find themselves in reduced circumstances to save their homes by giving them the same opportunity that we are giving for new homeownership.

Mr. PATMAN. In order to accommodate the few that the gentleman mentions, you would have to open up an entirely different field. Certainly old or existing homes would be eligible. You have got to say they are all eligible or not eligible. If they are eligible, it would defeat the purpose of the bill.

I hope that the gentleman will not insist on his amendment but will agree to hearings before the committee of which he is the ranking member, and very influential, from the minority side, and one who has had a great deal to do with this bill. The gentleman from New Jersey is entitled to great credit for his work. But I hope he will not press his amendment, which would defeat one of the main purposes of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment is defeated.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from New Jersey a question with respect to the amendment. What moneys would be provided to carry out the purposes of your amendment?

Mr. WIDNALL. The money would come out of the same general fund under the purposes of the bill as presently written.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Then no new funds would be required to carry out the purposes of the bill?

Mr. WIDNALL. No new funds are provided under this amendment.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Would the gentleman accept an amendment to his amendment to provide an authorization of $50 million to implement the amendment?

Mr. WIDNALL. I believe that those covered by the amendment should have the same opportunity to participate in the bill that is being given to others under the bill.

Mr. GONZALEZ. I still am not clear in my mind just how your amendment and the purposes of the bill, in the case of your amendment, would be carried out if you do not provide for some authorization other than the old authorization, which more or less has been anticipated in the pending bill. Do you not believe that in order to be realistic and to make the purpose of the bill meaningful, as you state, we ought to provide for some new authorization, some new money?

Mr. WIDNALL. I believe the amendment is realistic in considering the problems of those in reduced circumstances as well as those in low-income status.

Mr. GONZALEZ. The gentleman from New Jersey would not have any objection, then, to an offer of an amendment to the amendment providing for a $50 million authorization?

Mr. MIZE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GONZALEZ. I want to know from the gentleman from New Jersey if he would have any objection to an authorization of $50 million.

Mr. WIDNALL. Yes, I do have an objection. There is a billion dollar carryover in HUD, FHA funds, that could be used for that purpose.

Mr. GONZALEZ. There is nothing in the record that I know about to indicate that. Would it be in order to offer an amendment to the amendment, Mr. Chairman?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas may offer an amendment to the amendment.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GONZALEZ TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GONZALEZ to the amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: On page 9, line 8, after the period, insert the following new sentence: "In addition to the amount authorized by the preceding sentence, contracts aggregative $50,000,000 may be entered into with respect to the retention by the persons assisted of existing housing."

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Chairman, essentially we have been having a very interesting discussion this afternoon, and very interesting remarks, from protagonists in the debate this afternoon who, if my memory does not serve me wrong, have been stanchly against any new appropriations or any real funding for existing programs. They have talked glibly about being for the poor and the unhoused and about the need to help the poor and the moderate-income people, and yet consistently, in the committee and out of the committee, they have fought against any real meaningful attempt to solve the aching problems confronting us—which require money.

The amendment proposed by the gentleman from New Jersey is a typical example. It just has a good intention—and I give full benefit of doubt to the intention and the motive. Even assuming that it would do what it intends to do, it would still take money to give it meaningful and purposeful intent. Therefore, there should be no objection to my amendment to give it some realism by providing the authorization to carry out even a modicum of a beginning of this program.

I notice in the bill the funding authorized is pretty well earmarked, and there have been some anticipatory earmarkings I am sure. Therefore, if there is seriousness of intent in this amendment, then it should be acceptable to provide at least a modicum of resources to carry it out. Therefore, I think my amendment, which would have a very, very modest beginning of $50 million, would be a realistic attempt to give this life and meaning.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last two words.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to remind my friend from Texas that the amount involved here is not $300 million. That is only the first year's cost. This title grants the Department of Housing and Urban Development contract authorization amounting to $300 million a year for 40 years. So it should be understood that the total exposure of the Government under this title alone is $300 million a year for 40 years or $12 billion instead of $300 million.

What the gentleman from Texas would do by his amendment is to add another $2 billion to that. We cannot just throw in $50 million and forget about it. These are contract authorizations that will run for 40 years. It will be $50 million a year for 40 years, or $2 billion added to the $12 billion cost of title I, and we have a $14 billion item instead of $350 million for consideration if the amendment of the gentleman from Texas is adopted.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment to the amendment, and in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

I think there has been some degree of misrepresentation as to the purpose of this bill, which is not necessarily to build new housing. The purpose of this bill is to provide standard housing, to provide housing of substantial quality to people of low incomes. We have to decide what we can do within the context of the financing available—and we have learned in recent weeks that overwhelming financing for every program we would like to pass is not available. We have had to add additional taxes onto our citizens and we have had to ask the Executive to cut back spending.

What the gentleman from New Jersey is proposing is that existing housing can be brought up to standard quality and maintained at far less cost than if we start from scratch and build new housing. In order to spread the most good to the most families at the least cost, I support the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey, but I do oppose the amendment offered to that by the gentleman from Texas.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. GONZALEZ] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. PATMAN) there were—ayes 45, noes 62.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. WIDNALL and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 74, noes 85.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 7, line 7, strike out "20 per centum" and insert "25 per centum".

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is to raise the percentage of income which is calculated to apply against the housing payment for an individual family from 20 to 25 percent. I offered this in the committee, and I believe the chairmen of the subcommittee and the full committee are both familiar with the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, there are two reasons for offering this amendment. One is that it seems to me fairly logical that when we are going away now from rental units either in public housing or in rent supplement programs, when we go toward a homeownership program in which families are acquiring some degree of equity, that they should be willing to make perhaps a slightly larger sacrifice.

In the past years under the rent supplement program we have used the figure of 25 percent as our normal figure. By going to 20 percent in this bill both for rent supplements and for home ownership, it seems to me we are not putting sufficient emphasis upon the contribution that an individual and his family should make in the interest of achieving the self-respect and the pride that goes with equity.

The argument for raising this percentage is that it does something that the proponents of this legislation have been saying they are trying to do, that is, it brings an income level down. By going to 25 percent we can reduce the income level of a family participating in the program by some $500 to $700 or $800 depending on their income level. If a family that makes $3,500 a year wants to make this kind of a sacrifice, it seems to me we should give them every possible inducement to do so.

I would think it should be the better part of wisdom on the part of this body to encourage those whose income is slightly below today's floor to make that extra effort to achieve the self-respect that goes with owning a home.

Mr. Chairman, I ask support of my amendment.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Brock amendment.

(Mr. REUSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would, like an earlier one, seriously impair the homeownership program. What this amendment says is that a family must spend 25 percent of its income, rather than 20 percent of its income, as the bill provides, if it is to acquire homeownership.

If we are going to raise the ante from 20 to 25 percent we will, in effect, shortchange the other elements contained in the family budget. You will shortchange food purchases, you will shotrchange clothing purchases and medical requirements.

Mr. Chairman, the 20-percent figure is precisely what the FHA observes in section 203 has indicating the proper figure.

For example, in 1966, FHA records show, a median of 19.6 percent of income was spent for other items than housing under that program. If we raise the requirement to 25 percent of their income, we are either going to vitiate the entire program or bankrupt the families that operate under it.

We will be particularly unjust to the larger families. Of course the 25 percent of their income requirement detracts from the global total of the family which has to feed more children and it would make it just that much more onerous on the large families that I thought this bill was designed to help.

So I would hope that the Brock amendment would be voted down.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I wish to associate myself with the remarks which have just been made by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS]. It is my opinion that he was given a detailed outline of the matter which is certainly helpful toward defeating this amendment, because if the amendment were to carry, there would be over 500,000 families who deserve an opportunity to meet the requirements under this program at the 20-percent level.

Mr. REUSS. I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for his contribution, and would point out further the fact that over and above the family's 20-percent housing payment, it has to pay extra for repairs on the house; if the roof leaks, or if the plumbing does not work.

Mr. Chairman, the surest way to defeat the purpose of this particular provision is to raise the ante from 20 to 25 percent.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I am just fascinated by the remarks of the gentleman from Wisconsin. He pointed out the analogy with reference to the rent supplement program to which he contributed much. But here you have equity which will go to the persons involved, equity which does not now exist.

Mr. REUSS. The difference between this and the rent supplement program is this: In the rent supplement program the landlord fixes the roof, the landlord fixes the electrical system, as well as the plumbing. However, here the poor homeowner has to do it himself and you are going to put him out of business by raising the ante.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

(Mr. BINGHAM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BINGHAM. The archdiocese in New York has done a great deal of work in the housing field and it has been very constructive work. They sent representatives to Washington during the course of the hearings and during the period of time in which this bill was being considered. They made it clear that the 25-percent rate simply would wreck the program in New York City. However, they stated that they could not go ahead with this program which would involve ownership on a 25-percent standard in an area such as New York City. In other words, it would mean that the program could not move forward.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for yielding.

I concur with the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS], but not necessarily for all his reasons. I believe that his explanation of additional costs that the homeowner is required to pay from that of a renter justifies the lower percentage. As the gentleman from Wisconsin knows, however, I do support the 25-percent figure on the rent supplement program.

Mr. REUSS. I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

Mr. KUYKENDALL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, there is a project in my district in Memphis, Tenn., called HOME—Housing Opportunity Memphis Enterprise—which I understand is the only nonprofit foundation already functioning building owner-occupied housing.

When we start to talk about the difference between 20 and 25 percent allowable—now, I believe the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] does not make the 25 percent mandatory, but makes it allowable, if the family wishes to spend up to 25 percent they may spend up to 25 percent.

Is that correct?

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUYKENDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. REUSS. I believe that under the present law, if the family wishes to spend up to 25 percent, they may. The Brock amendment would make it mandatory.

Mr. KUYKENDALL. May we get this clarified?

Mr. REUSS. I would ask the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] if that is not so?

Mr. BROCK. I am not sure from which way the questions are coming.

Mr. REUSS. If the gentleman will yield further, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] would make it mandatory to apply 25 percent of the income toward the house.

Mr. BROCK. In order to affect the subsidy you could not receive it with an amount which was in excess of 25 percent, which effectively lowers the income of families that can participate, it allows more families to participate in the program.

Mr. KUYKENDALL. I thank the gentleman for that information.

But the difference between the 20 percent and the 25-percent payment is about like, on a $75-per-week family, this family may very well have only one child or two children—granted a family with five or six children should certainly not spend more than 20 percent; in fact, sometimes 16 or 17 percent for rent—but a family with one or two children can certainly spend 25 percent for rent.

This, however, would mean that the 25 percent is only $64.75 on a $75-a-week employee, while at 25 percent it is $80. I believe we are here to encourage this family to get into a better home and to accumulate more equity. And that is what we have found in our experimental program in Memphis; that if we give the family an opportunity and encourage them to homeownership, we are quite surprised at what levels they can reach for if we leave it up to them.

So I am supporting the Brock amendment, because I believe this leeway should be allowable.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee, Mr. BROCK.

The amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MAILLIARD

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MAILLIARD: On page 37, after line 24, insert the following:

"(c) Section 306 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after subsection (g) (as added by section 704(b) of this Act) the following new subsection:

"'(h) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on bonds, debentures, notes, or other obligations issued by any public or private nonprofit organization to help finance any project for the rehabilitation or construction of housing (including the acquisition of land, or interests in land, needed in connection with such housing) for low-income families. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any obligation guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the rights satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any property securing the guaranteed obligations; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed obligations, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the property constituting such security shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatisfied rights of the holders of the obligations. The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection.'"

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state the point of order.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it is not germane to section 106, which it apparently seeks to amend.

Section 106 relates to assistance by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to nonprofit sponsors of low and middle income housing.

The amendment which I have now heard read apparently has nothing to do with that and, therefore, while there may be an appropriate place for it in the bill, and I would have no objection to it then, it is not germane to section 106.

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, the amendment simply adds a new authority in the present law to authorities that now exist for Fanny May.

I cannot quite see why it would not be germane simply to add another device by which housing can be sponsored by Fanny May or financed by Fanny May.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. PRICE of Illinois). The Chair is ready to rule.

The Chair notes after reading the amendment that the substance of it is to amend section 306 of the National Housing Act.

In title I of the pending bill there are numerous amendments to the National Housing Act. Therefore, the Chair holds that the amendment is germane and the point of order against the amendment is overruled.

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would authorize the U.S. Government to guarantee the bonds or debentures issued by any public or private nonprofit organization to help finance projects for the rehabilitation or construction of housing for low-income families.

This is entirely compatible with the other things that are done in this bill. It simply is another device.

I want to call the attention of the committee to the fact that there is a bill in the State legislature in California which has been passed by the assembly and which, I am told, will probably pass the State senate today or tomorrow and which the Governor has agreed to sign which would authorize public corporations to be established for the purpose of financing low-cost housing.

In order to finance the program adequately, some kind of Federal guarantee would obviously be required, because otherwise interest rates would be excessive.

I do not know whether other States in the Union have undertaken this kind of program, but if they have not, I would certainly recommend that they look into it. It would permit States and localities to get into the act to attract more money from private money markets in an attempt to meet housing requirements.

If the new communities section that is in the Senate bill had been included in the bill before the House, which it is not, I had intended to offer my amendment as an amendment to that section. But since I understand there is probably not going to be an amendment offered to reinstate that section in the bill, I offered my amendment to that part of the bill which appeared to be the most logical, and since the Chair has overruled the point of order, I ask support of the amendment.

Mr. BURTON of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BURTON of California. Mr. Chairman, I associate myself with the remarks of my distinguished colleague from San Francisco [Mr. MAILLIARD] and join with him in urging that the committee accept the amendment. This amendment is a product of a good deal of time and thoughtful effort on behalf of some of the leading citizens of our area, and I am quite convinced, as I am sure Mr. MAILLIARD is, that this additional tool will make it much more likely that the low-income people of our area will be able to receive more adequate housing than they would in the absence of the adoption of this amendment.

So I join with my colleague in urging my fellow Members on this side of the aisle to support the amendment.

Mr. FARBSTEIN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. FARBSTEIN. As I understand, there would be a guarantee of bonds and mortgages under the gentleman's amendment. Is that correct?

Mr. MAILLIARD. Under the provisions of the amendment FNMA would be authorized to guarantee the bonds, debentures, and obligations of public or nonprofit corporations, the purpose of which is to finance public low-cost housing.

Mr. FARBSTEIN. Therefore, the interest rate could be 7 percent, and we would guarantee 7 percent?

Mr. MAILLIARD. They would have to guarantee whatever the rate was, but with the Federal guarantee, I would anticipate the interest would be considerably below that figure. Without it, I think the figure the gentleman has mentioned might be correct.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. The amendment would create a situation in which the Federal Government would guarantee bonds issued by a local entity, say an entity in California. The State Legislature of the gentleman's State is about to pass a law which would permit the issuance of such bonds. Does the gentleman know about how much the cost would be? Does he know what exposure we would have under the amendment? It loaks like an open-end guarantee by the Federal Government.

Mr. MAILLIARD. It has whatever general limitations there are. But the point is, as I explained originally, the concept of the amendment is embodied in the new community section of the Senate bill which, for some reason, was not included in the House bill. Since I could not amend that section, I offered the same setup under FNMA because we do not have in this bill any community section.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Hearings on the bill were commenced by the subcommittee of which the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT] is chairman, along in February. We have been going on almost continuously since then. Either through the subcommittee or through the full committee, did the gentleman submit his amendment at any time?

Mr. MAILLIARD. No, I did not; I will say to the gentleman, because I was unaware of the progress of this bill through my State Legislature, and my interest was aroused in it comparatively recently. Had the committee then been considering the bill, I would have then offered it, but it was too late at that point.

Mr. PATMAN. Does not the gentleman believe it is a little late to ask us to adopt an amendment such as the one offered by the gentleman from California?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I can say to the gentleman that it is perhaps better late than never.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

(On request of Mr. PATMAN, and by unanimous consent, Mr. MAILLIARD was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. PATMAN. Does not the gentleman think under the circumstances he would be justified in asking for a study of this subject, and the committee would certainly be glad to give you a hearing on it?

Mr. MAILLIARD. If the committee in its wisdom rejects my amendment, I certainly do not intend to let it lie there. But if, as I expect, the bill to which I have referred becomes law in my own State, then perhaps I would rather not wait if I could get this proposal accepted now.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, even though it becomes law in the State of the gentleman, that is not this law. The gentleman is anticipating a law to be passed in his State which, if enacted into law, would permit under this bill the guaranteeing of local obligations.

Mr. MAILLIARD. That is correct.

Mr. PATMAN. That is asking a great deal.

Mr. MAILLIARD. I am asking for it.

Mr. HOSMER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOSMER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that the blind criticism of the gentleman from Texas about the alleged tardiness of this amendment certainly does not seem to me to be consonant with the operation being conducted in the House today. Committees do not rule, committees do not dictate, and committees do not lay down the final language. Otherwise we would not have debate here in the House and the amendatory procedure.

I think it should be thoroughly understood by all Members that when something of this nature arises, if it arises at a time that is not at the time of genesis of a piece of legislation, it certainly should not be called tardy. Certainly those who are alert enough to the changing situation to bring it up when a matter comes to the floor are to be congratulated for their intelligence and are to be encouraged in their desire to do what is right in this piece of legislation.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California has expired.

(On request of Mr. PATMAN, and by unanimous consent, Mr. MAILLIARD was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, may I suggest that this is a responsibility for the Federal Government, and it is an open-ended proposition as written. We do not know how much it could be. It could be as much as the national debt. If all the States took advantage of it, it could be be as much as the national debt.

What I meant about presenting it to the committee was only for the purpose of studying and obtaining facts and making a recommendation to the House of Representatives. We do not propose to dictate. We could not, if we wanted to, and we do not want to.

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, if the committee in its good judgment thinks this is not opportune, I will be back again, but I would like the committee to pass judgment on whether the States and localities should get into this act and solve it at that level instead of doing it all from Washington. I think we should have an opportunity to vote on it, and I do not believe it is an improper request.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, may I say to my distinguished colleague from California that I agree with him in his statement that we ought to bring in the States and the local communities and the private sector. I thoroughly support that concept.

My only trouble with the amendment offered by the gentleman is that there is no dollar limitation involved. It is open ended. As I have already pointed out a previous occasion this afternoon, this bill is glibly referred to as involving some $5 to $6 billion, when, as a matter of fact, there are some five or six 40-year programs in this bill—and they are funded through contract authorizations which will bind the taxpayers of the United States for substantial expenditures over a 40-year period.

If we want to relate this only to title I, it will bind the taxpayers of the country to continue to put up $300 million a year for 40 years. That is $12 billion that we today are being asked to obligate future generations to pay. The best I can figure, this bill will involve in these five or six 40-year programs about $50 billion in obligations which we are incurring today by authorizing HUD to enter into contracts that will require the taxpayers of the United States to put up about $50 billion over a period of 40 years.

I emphasize these figures because they have largely been ignored by the press and during the debate. Most of the comment refers to the price tag on this bill being $5.3 billion. But that is just the first year's cost. The price tag on this bill will be closer to $50 billion than to $5. This fact should be understood by all Members before the time comes for a vote on final passage.

In view of the very substantial sums involved in the bill as it came from the committee, I frankly cannot justify voting for a brandnew section which will authorize an agency of the Federal Government, with the full faith and credit of the United States involved, to guarantee an additional number of mortgages in an undetermined amount.

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I believe I can straighten out that point.

Mr. JONAS. One reason why I asked to have the amendment read was I did not hear any figure authorized, or any limitation.

Mr. MAILLIARD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MAILLIARD. I am not a technician in this field, but the people who did the draftsmanship did assure me this was limited to the total Fannie Mae authorization.

Mr. JONAS. How much is that?

Mr. MAILLIARD. I do not know. Whatever it is, it would not change it. The total authorization would be as it is now. This adds nothing to the obligations of the Federal Government.

Mr. JONAS. It is in the nature of a contract, and we will have to put up some money for it eventually, and there is no information before the Committee today indicating how much exposure the Government will have under the guarantee.

I wish I could support the amendment, because I like the concept of bringing in the States and local communities into the picture, but I cannot vote to add another open-ended section to this bill when the taxpayers are being obligated when the bill is adopted, to at least $50 billion in new spending over the next 40 years.

Mr. HOSMER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I rise to ask the author of the amendment a question relating to the cost in this context. As I understand it, the guarantee would be in the nature of the usual guarantee, or similar to the usual guarantee of the FHA in an insurance type of thing, for which certain premiums are charged. As a consequence, the Government would come out even, or perhaps a little ahead.

I yield to the gentleman for an explanation.

Mr. MAILLIARD. It says in the amendment:

The Association—

Which means Fannie Mae—

shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable—

And so forth. It is the usual language.

Mr. HOSMER. In other words, they have to buy this kind of guaranty from the Government on essentially the same financial basis as Fannie Mae now extends guaranties in other areas, which in truth and in fact is on an actuarial basis.

Mr. MAILLIARD. It operates in the standard way.

The point the gentleman from North Carolina was making is that all these are contingent liabilities of the Federal Government. But I do not add any by my amendment.

Mr. HOSMER. I have one further question for the author of the amendment. As I understand the amendment, it is an authorization to Fannie Mae to proceed in this direction, but it does not require Fannie Mae to get into any of it. They can get into it or can not get into it according to the usual rules of business as they see it and carry it on; is that correct?

Mr. MAILLIARD. That is correct. The amendment says, "The Association is authorized". It does not say "directed."

Mr. HOSMER. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOSMER. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONAS. While we are on this subject, though we hear very little about it, it might be well to point out that even FHA has substantial losses already. Of course, it has tremendous reserves, but FHA has already had to foreclose many mortgages, and substantial losses have been sustained. These losses have been very substantial.

Before we go into another open-ended program there ought to be at least some hearings to try to project the amount of the total exposure that would be involved for the Federal Government.

Mr. HOSMER. I merely want to say to the gentleman, the name of this game insurance or guaranty, as one may call it, is to take some losses and collect some revenues and come out even. That is what the people in this business seem to have been able to do.

I do not regard this particular amendment with fear, and I urge its passage.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GROSS. Do not the rules of the House require that a Member stand while addressing the House?

The CHAIRMAN. Members usually stand when they do.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GUBSER TO THE THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MAILLIARD

Mr. GUBSER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GUBSER to the amendment offered by Mr. MAILLIARD: Add a new subsection:

"(i) The guarantees referred to in subsection (a) shall be limited to $100,000,000."

Mr. GUBSER. Mr. Chairman, I shall not take anywhere near the 5-minute period, but I think that the idea and the new concept presented by the gentleman from California [Mr. MAILLIARD], is so unique and so important that I would not like to see it defeated possibly due to a misunderstanding about any limitation and any question of open endedness. So that we can consider it with a definite limitation of a very modest $100 million, I have on the spur of the moment offered this amendment. I only urge the House please do not reject this novel concept out of hand. We have now a limitation in it. Let us vote for the amendment and then vote the Mailliard amendment. All through this debate we have heard of the serious shortage of low-income housing throughout this country. If we do not pass the Mailliard amendment, we will then be limiting the number of houses which can be made available to low-income people. If we have a shortage and a crisis—and we all admit it is here—let us broaden this base and get as many people into it as we possibly can.

The Mailliard amendment, Mr. Chairman, with the limitation that I have proposed will do just this.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, this is intended, really, for California. If California is entitled to it, then the other States are entitled to it. Would this not be an exposure of about $50 billion, then, for 50 States?

Mr. GUBSER. I did not get the gentleman's question.

Mr. PATMAN. The gentleman has a limitation in the amendment of $100 million.

Mr. GUBSER. That is right.

Mr. PATMAN. Does that mean for a State, such as, in this case, California, which it is intended to help?

Mr. GUBSER. It is an overall limitation for the entire Nation.

Mr. PATMAN. You want to help that State. Do you not think we ought to study this first and find out what all of the problems are?

Mr. GUBSER. I think the gentleman will agree that it is a very, very modest limitation. It is certainly not a far-reaching program, as it is limited, but this gives us a trial of the concept. If we have a housing shortage, let us get the State and local governments and nonprofit corporations involved. I think the gentleman from California [Mr. MAILLIARD] has performed a great service in offering this amendment, and I hope it will be voted out.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. GUBSER] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MAILLIARD].

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. MAILLIARD].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. MAILLIARD) there were—ayes 29, noes 44.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. JONAS

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JONAS: On page 29, in line 4, after the period add the following sentence: "An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly owned Government corporations."

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, if I may have the attention of the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, I believe he will accept this amendment. It is one of three similar amendments I propose to offer where revolving funds are set up in the bill.

Mr. Chairman, this is similar to the way the revolving fund is handled in the Small Business Administration. The gentleman from Texas is perfectly familiar with that operation. The amendment will merely require that an annual business-type budget be submitted to the Congress so we will have an opportunity to check up on how this revolving fund is being operated. This is the only way Congress will have any opportunity to discuss the operation of the revolving fund and check up on what the Department is doing under the widespread authority granted in this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the gentleman from Texas will agree to the amendment because I think it helps the bill.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Will the gentleman from North Carolina state what the other two amendments are?

Mr. JONAS. They are on subsequent pages of the bill. One appears at page 206 in line 22 which deals with another revolving fund and is in substance the same amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, they are all in substance similar to this particular amendment?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct and I shall offer those amendments when the titles to which they apply are read.

Mr. PATMAN. Then those are all the amendments which the gentleman from North Carolina has to offer?

Mr. JONAS. There are these three amendments, but there is a fourth amendment on another subject which will receive a little more attention and perhaps involve more debate than I anticipate on the three amendments we are now discussing.

Mr. PATMAN. If we agree to take these three, then you will not propose to offer the other?

Mr. JONAS. No, I would not agree to that trade. I must offer the fourth amendment at the appropriate time.

Mr. PATMAN. Personally, I am not advocating the three amendments. They have an appeal. They are comparable to other things which are being done by the Small Business Administration and I would ask the House if the Members of the Committee will, to accept the amendments and then we shall take them to conference, put them into the bill and see if we can agree upon them in conference.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all three of my amendments be considered together, if that is permissible. I understand we are only reading title I. The other amendments apply to other titles.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the other two amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. JONAS: On page 206, after line 22, insert the following new subsection:

"(d) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations."

On page 227, after line 9, insert the following new subsection:

"(e) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JONAS].

The amendments were agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title I, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

PART A—PRIVATE HOUSING

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 201. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 235 (as added by section 101 of this Act) the following new section:

"RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 236. (a) For the purpose of reducing rentals for low and moderate income families, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by low and moderate income families which shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) Interest reduction payments with respect to a project shall only be made during such time as the project is operated as a rental housing project and is subject to a mortgage which meets the requirements of, and is insured under, subsection (j) of this section: Provided, That interest reduction payments may be made with respect to a rental or cooperative housing project owned by a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, and which, prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation, is approved for receiving the benefits of this section.

"(c) The interest reduction payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a project owner shall be in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the project owner as a mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such project owner would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(e) As a condition for receiving the benefits of interest reduction payments, the project owner shall operate the project in accordance with such requirements with respect to tenant eligibility and rents as the Secretary may prescribe. Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for review of tenant incomes at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable).

"(f) For each dwelling unit there shall be established with the approval of the Secretary (1) a basic rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal and interest due under a mortgage bearing interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum; and (2) a fair market rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage covering the project. The rental for each dwelling unit shall be at the basic rental charge or such greater amount, not exceeding the fair market rental charge, as represents 20 per centum of the tenant's income.

"(g) The project owner shall, as required by the Secretary, accumulate, safeguard, and periodically pay to the Secretary all rental charges collected in excess of the basic rental charges. Such excess charges shall be deposited by the Secretary in a fund which may be used by him as a revolving fund for the purpose of making interest reduction payments with respect to any rental housing project covered by a mortgage insured under this section, subject to limits approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (i). Moneys in such fund not needed for current operations may be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

"(h) In addition to establishing the requirements specified in subsection (e), the Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section.

"(i) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make interest reduction payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,00 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) which meets the requirements of this subsection. Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(2) As used in this subsection—

"(A) the terms 'family' and 'families' shall have the same meaning as in section 221;

"(B) the term 'elderly or handicapped families' shall have the same meaning as in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; and

"(C) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortgagee', and 'mortgagor' shall have the same meaning as in section 201.

"(3) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements specified in subsections (d)(1) and (d)(3) of section 221, except as such requirements are modified by this subsection. In the case of a project financed with a mortgage insured under this subsection which involves a mortgagor other than a cooperative or a private nonprofit corporation or association and which is sold to a cooperative or a nonprofit corporation or association, the Secretary is further authorized to insure under this subsection a mortgage given by such purchaser in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves.

"(4) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) be executed by a private mortgagor eligible under subsection (d)(3) or (e) of section 221;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market; and

"(C) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(5) The property or project shall—

"(A) comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of the property for mortgage insurance and may include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deems adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants and the surrounding neighborhood: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Secretary to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Secretary shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community: Provided further, That, in the case of a project designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicapped families, the project may include related facilities for use by elderly or handicapped families, including cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms, workshops, infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, and other essential service facilities;

"(B) include five or more dwelling units; and

"(C) be designed primarily for use as a rental project to be occupied by low and moderate income families or by elderly or handicapped families: Provided, That low and moderate income persons who are less than sixty-two years of age shall be eligible for occupancy in such a project, but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

"(6) With the approval of the Secretary, the mortgagor may sell the individual dwelling units to low and moderate income or elderly or handicapped purchasers. The Secretary may consent to the release of the mortgagor from his liability under the mortgage and the credit instrument secured thereby, or consent to the release of parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, and the mortgage may provide for such release.

"(k) As used in this section the term 'tenant' includes a member of a cooperative; the term 'rental housing project' includes a cooperative housing project; and the terms 'rental' and 'rental charge' mean, with respect to members of a cooperative, the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

"(l) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make periodic interest reduction payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (i)."

(b) (1) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "or 232" in the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof ", 232, or 236".

(2) Section 227(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "or (viii) under section 234(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(viii) under section 234(d), or (ix) under section 236".

(3) Section 227(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233(b)(2)" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 236".

(c) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to transfer to section 236(j) of the National Housing Act the insurance of a mortgage which has not been finally endorsed for insurance under section 221(d)(3) of such Act and which has been approved for the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of section 221(d)(5) of such Act.

(d) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to insure under section 236(j) of the National Housing Act a mortgage meeting the requirements of such section which is given to refinance a mortgage loan made under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959: Provided, That the application for such insurance is filed with the Secretary on or before the date of project completion, or within such reasonable time thereafter as the Secretary may permit.

(e)(1) Section 101(d) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "one-fourth" and inserting in lieu thereof "one-fifth".

(2) Section 101(g) of such Act is amended by striking out "or 231(c)(3)" and inserting in lieu thereof ", 231(c)(3), or 236".

(3) Section 101(j)(1) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (B);

(B) by striking out the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(C) by inserting after subparagraph (C) a new subparagraph as follows:

"(D) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited divided legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 236(j) of the National Housing Act which has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed."

(f) Section 207 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 is amended—

(1) by inserting in the heading "AND SECTION 236" immediately after "SECTION 221";

(2) by inserting "or section 236" after "section 221" each place it appears;

(3) by inserting "or 'section 236'" after "'section 221'" in subsection (a); and

(4) by inserting ", Government National Mortgage Association," immediately after "Federal Housing Administration" in subsection (c).

(g) The first sentence of section 305(i) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "or (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(3)", and

(2) by inserting after "221(e)" the following: ", or (4) a mortgage insured under section 236".

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

SEC. 202. (a) Section 101(a) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out everything after the word "exceed" the second time the word appears in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$150,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1970."

(b) Section 101(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following: "Such term also includes a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is the owner of a rental or cooperative housing project financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatement and which prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation is approved for receiving the benefits of this section."

PART B—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

INCREASED LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 203. (a) Section 10(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "$366,250,000 per annum which limit shall be increased by $47,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively," in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$554,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and by further amounts of $150,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970,".

(b) Section 20 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "not to exceed $1,500,000,000" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "which shall not, unless authorized by the President, exceed $1,500,000,000"; and

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "For the purpose of determining obligations incurred to make loans pursuant to this Act against any limitation otherwise applicable with respect to such loans, the Secretary shall estimate the maximum amount to be loaned at any one time pursuant to loan agreements then outstanding with public housing agencies."

UPGRADING MANAGEMENT AND SERVICES IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

SEC. 204. Section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(10) The Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to public housing agencies to assist, where necessary, in financing tenant services for families living in low-rent housing projects. In making such contracts and grants, the Secretary shall give preference to programs providing for the maximum feasible participation of the tenants in the development and operation of such tenant services. For purposes of this paragraph the term 'tenant services' includes (without being limited to) the following services and activities for families living in low-rent housing projects: counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters; advice as to resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other community services; services which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment, including intertenant activities; and referral to appropriate agencies when necessary for the provision of such services. To the maximum extent available and appropriate, existing public and private agencies in the community shall be used for the provision of such services. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this paragraph not to exceed $20,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $40,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970."

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

SEC. 205. Section 15(9) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction" and inserting in lieu thereof ", if the property to be acquired is sufficiently separable from other property retained by the public housing agency to make it suitable".

PUBLIC HOUSING IN INDIAN AREAS

SEC 206. (a) Section 1 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "urban and rural nonfarm" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "urban, rural nonfarm, and Indian".

(b) Section 10(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or Indian" after "nonfarm" in the fourth proviso.

LIMITATION ON HIGH-RISE STRUCTURES IN LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

SEC. 207. Section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 204 of this Act) the following new paragraph:

"(11) Except in the case of housing predominantly for the elderly, upon enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall not approve high-rise elevator projects for families with children unless he makes a determination that there is no practical alternative."

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON TYPES OR CATEGORIES OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 208. The first sentence of section 23(d) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "(and no limitation not specifically provided for in this section shall be imposed by regulations of the Authority on the types or categories of structures or dwelling units, qualifying under subsection (a)(3) and approved under subsection (c), which may be so used in any community)".

LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF UNITS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS PER STRUCTURE

SEC. 209. The first sentence of section 23(c) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "not exceeding, in the case of any single structure, the lesser of (i) ten units or 10 per centum of the units of the structure, whichever is greater, or (ii) 50 per centum of the units in the structure, with such lesser number being increased (if it is not a whole number) to the next higher whole number; except".

SALE TO TENANTS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 210. (a) Section 23(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting "(1)" after "shall not apply to", and by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", or (2) housing purchased (or in the process of purchase) by the public housing agency for reseale to tenants as provided in subsection (g)".

(b) Section 23 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) To the extent authorized in contracts entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency, such agency may purchase any structure containing one or more dwelling units leased to provide low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants of the structure or to a group of such tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 per centum of the structure's total value. Any such resale shall be made subject to such terms and conditions (including provision for deferment of the required downpayment and for elimination of or adjustments in the required interest payments during a temporary period) as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship."

ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY FOR LARGE FAMILIES AND FAMILIES OF UNUSUALLY LOW INCOME

SEC. 211. (a) Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentences: "The term 'large families' means families which include four or more minors. The term 'families of unusually low income' means families with incomes below the income level established by the public housing agency, as approved by the Authority, who could not be housed without the additional subsidy authorized under section 10(a)."

(b) The first proviso in section 10(a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after "an elderly family," the following: "or a large family, or a family of unusually low income,";

(2) by striking out "to lease the dwelling unit to an elderly or displaced family at a rental it could afford and"; and

(3) by striking out ". and, in the case of displaced families, if and to the extent that the average or estimated average rental for units so occupied by such families was less than the rental which the Authority determines, on the basis of the average or estimated average project rentals, would have been established in leasing the units to families which were neither elderly nor similarly displaced".

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title II be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 56, line 21, strike out "20 per centum" and insert "25 per centum."

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, the rent supplement program has been operating for 2 or 3 years now. It has been operating at the level where a family would receive assistance payments when the rental they are paying exceeds 25 percent of their income. The committee adopted an amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin reducing this figure to 20 percent, and it then became comparable to the figure which was used on homeownership.

I offered an amendment to change homeownership to 25 percent, and that failed.

I would like to offer the same amendment on rent supplements with this one additional argument: It seems to me that the whole thrust of this bill is to change the course and direction of the housing program that exists in this country. It is designed to encourage the maximum opportunity for the acquisition of a home as opposed to the rental of a home in either low rent or public housing. If we are going to put a subsidy on the low- to moderate-income families then under what possible degree of logic can we offer the same subsidy for a family in rental units that we do in ownership, because the homeowner has to pay property taxes, he has to do the renovation, he has to do the maintenance, and it does seem to me that there should be a differential between the two amounts.

Secondly, I believe it has become very patently clear that the rent supplement program is not achieving its objectives. It has not done an adequate job. I would hope that, rather than going the wrong way with the program, at least we could try to encourage HUD to do a better job of administering the program that exists rather than going the wrong way and encourage a considerable increase to the degree of the problem.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I would like to concur with the gentleman completely, for the reasons stated earlier this afternoon on the floor with respect to the homeownership program. I would think, consistent with the logic that went with the level of income that is applicable to payments for homeownership that the gentleman from Wisconsin and others who supported that level of income payment, should support the gentleman from Tennessee in his efforts at this time.

Mr. ECKHARDT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ECKHARDT. If the gentleman from Tennessee's first amendment had been passed, would he offer this amendment at 30 percent to maintain that differential?

Mr. BROCK. I think that probably I would—and maybe 40 percent. I am not for rent supplements, as the gentleman probably knows, and I honestly would hope that we could reduce this program and expand the concept of homeownership and the rent certificate program, both of which seem to offer to me a much greater potential for helping the people we are trying to help.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I will be very brief, because this Committee just a few minutes ago voted down a somewhat similar amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] with respect, in that case, to homeownership, which would have raised the housing expense payment from 20 percent to 25 percent of income.

The current Brock amendment would do the same thing for rental housing.

As the bill is set up, a family with a $4,000 annual income would not be asked to pay more than 20 percent; that is, $800 a year for rental.

The Brock amendment would require an extra $200 a year, for a total of $1,000.

That difference, small though it may seem, of $200 a year is the difference between whether that very marginal family is able to find enough to feed the children and clothe the children, pay for medical expenses, and to have a little left over for some of the other essential budgetary items.

If you start raising the rental from $800 to $1,000 a year, or as you go upwards by a larger amount, you simply mean that you impose a greater hardship upon the family with a lot of children because those children want to eat and to have clothes and that costs money. If you are going to require that it be taken out of the rental budget amount, you are going to require that it be taken out of the mouths of the rest of the family.

As I said before, the uniform FHA experience is that 20 percent is right and proper. If you go any higher than that, you are simply putting into a financial bind the family that you are trying to help. So I hope, and no further words of mine I am sure are necessary, that the Brock amendment will be defeated.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I am somewhat amazed at the inconsistency of the gentleman's arguments.

Furthermore, I am somewhat amazed to see that he is opposing the administration position with respect to this measure. The gentleman will recall that the bill, as introduced by the administration, provided for the very thing that the Brock amendment will accomplish.

Mr. REUSS. I would remind the gentleman that inconsistency is the hallmark of great minds. I never fear to oppose the administration when it is wrong. Furthermore, here the overwhelming majority of the House Committee on Banking and Currency felt that 20 percent is the right figure. I hope that that figure will be maintained and that the pending amendment is voted down.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I would just remind the gentleman that the statement which he quoted starts out with something to the effect that "foolish inconsistency" and I would not charge the gentleman from Wisconsin with foolish inconsistency.

Mr. REUSS. That is why I changed the wording.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BROCK) there were—ayes 40, noes 42.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. BROCK and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 81, noes 75.

So the amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GROSS

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GROSS: On page 66, strike all of lines 16 through 23, and on page 67, strike all of lines 1 through 22, and renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would strike all of section 204, beginning on page 66 and ending at the bottom of page 67. It would strike out the authorization for a total of $60 million—$20 million of it in the fiscal year, 1969, and $40 million, doubling the amount, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970, or a total of $60 million.

This money is for what purpose? It is for so-called tenant services. I wonder how long it took the bureaucrats to dream up this one. There are literally hundreds of different Government bulletins and publications issued each year dealing with most of the items which are specified in the bill as "tenant services."

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, let me see if I can set the gentleman straight on this. We are dealing here with a bill of $5.3 billion, and we are certainly dealing in titles I and II with $300 million, and we are asking in this bill only for $16 million for management and counseling of tenants. We are hoping we can teach the tenants, who have never had the opportunity to learn it, how to budget their money and how to pay their rent.

Mr. GROSS. Let us stop right there. I can read the bill. What I need the gentleman to tell me is who will teach these people, for instance, how to budget their money?

Mr. BARRETT. This is a very good point. I am glad the gentleman brought it up. There are contracts to be given to people knowledgeable in this field who will go to the people when they purchase a home.

Mr. GROSS. Then it is proposed to go out and hire consultants to tell the people how to budget?

Mr. BARRETT. The gentleman knows there is no individual in HUD who can do this alone.

Mr. GROSS. No individual in what?

Mr. BARRETT. In Housing and Urban Development.

Mr. GROSS. Does the gentleman mean to say they are so short-staffed down there or that they do not have the knowledge?

Mr. BARRETT. I am not talking on that point. I am talking on the point as to how we can indoctrinate these people to live so they can pay their bills and save the government money, so we do not have to backtrack over what we are doing today, and teach them how to get 100 pennies out of every dollar.

Mr. GROSS. I think we are doing a good job with all the low-cost and low-rent housing we are giving these people. I think we are doing a pretty good job of taking care of them. It seems to me they could write to a Member of Congress or to the various Government agencies and get the publications which are put out, many of them free, telling them how to take care of their children. We have bulletins and publications dealing with how they should live, and how they should cut their toenails and fingernails. We do not have to spend $60 million in 2 years for that purpose.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I will yield to anybody who can help explain the necessity for this kind of indoctrination.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I wanted to ask the gentleman a question. Does the amendment offered by the gentleman strike all the management and tenant services in the housing projects, listed from line 16 on page 66 down through line 22 on page 67?

Mr. GROSS. It will do just exactly that.

May I have the gentleman's support?

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Perhaps we should have the Federal Government advise these folks on how to balance their budgets and spend their money, since we do such a wonderful job in the Federal Government of balancing our budget and spending our money. Perhaps we should counsel them.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman is right. We need some help here. Perhaps we need a consulting firm to tell us. Seriously, if I have my way, we will not be bothered with it in this bill.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. I will join with the gentleman. I will be happy to discard the section.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. HALL. I would agree that we do a good job under the MDTA, the Technical Training Service Act, and the Vocational Rehabilitation and Education Act in job training. Certainly, under the education provisions, we advise 67 different ways how they can get educational grants and further education.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. GROSS was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. HALL. Let me ask the gentleman a question. Since these are all services—and, parenthetically, they apply only to rental housing, and not homeownership, if I read the bill correctly—what are the "intertenant activities"? I thought at first it was entertainment, but it is not; it is "intertenant activities and services."

Mr. GROSS. That is probably one tenant activating across the hall or something. I do not know. That could be almost anything; communicating across the hall, or from one floor to the next.

Mr. HALL. It would involve elevators, too; would it not?

Mr. GROSS. Yes; it could.

Mr. HALL. Elevators are not precluded in this rental housing.

Mr. GROSS. No. I say to my friend from Missouri, we might take a look at this household management provision. Here we have Betty Furness, who is paid a fancy Government salary. Before she came forth to grace all of us with her presence all she did was open television refrigerator doors. She did not even buy her own food. She said she had a housekeeper who shopped for her. She is an expert now on consumer- and home-management problems. What more do they need?

It seems to me that Betty Furness, with all the publications she has at her disposal, and based on the salary she is paid and the staff she has, could counsel these people on household management and how to budget food bills.

Mr. HALL. And perhaps on "intertenant" activities, up and down the hall.

Mr. GROSS. Surely, on intertenant activities. Why not?

I hope that somebody in this group of gentlemen representing the Committee on Banking and Currency will be good enough to stand up here this afternoon and go into detail about the services, the interactivities and all the rest of this stuff, for which you want the taxpayers to cough up $60 million in the next 2 years.

Better still, adopt my amendment and forget about it.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the Gross amendment seeks to strike the entire section entitled, "Upgrading Management and Services in Public Housing Projects."

That section, in a nutshell, recognizes that the people who live in public housing projects are human beings, with human aspirations, and tries to help them help themselves by giving them a variety of services: counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, to mention several.

The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS], has asked who it was who stayed up late at night thinking that one up.

Mr. GROSS. "Dreaming," if the gentleman will yield.

Mr. REUSS. I will tell the gentleman the person who stayed up late at night dreaming that one up. He is a distinguished Republican, a loyal 100-percent Republican, and a very valuable member of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. GARRY BROWN], who literally stayed up late at night working out those words on the intertenant activities and everything else. We on our side supported him, and so did many on the minority side of the committee, because it is sound.

If the gentlemen in the minority would spend less time devouring their own young on the floor this afternoon, we would have a better bill.

I urge that the amendment be voted down.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a quick observation?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GROSS. I only hope that I have been successful in making a contribution to "devouring the young" that ought not to have been produced by this bill.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, in defense of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BROWN], I would like to point out that his amendment was offered to write in some specific language because there was not any language at all in the bill as it was submitted by the administration. It was a total carte blanche, and the gentleman from Michigan felt if we are going to have some language in there for tenant services, at least we should spell out some of the areas that we are concerned with so that HUD will not be going into far-off fields. That is the thrust of the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. The gentleman from Michigan needs no defense. He did a magnificent job on this section. I am confident that the House will endorse his handiwork.

Mr. BROCK. In my opinion, the whole section needs some handiwork, because it is a terrible misfortune, in my opinion, to have something like this in housing legislation. This particular section, even with the gentleman from Michigan's amendment in it, has this particular flaw. It says, "and other related services." So there is still an unlimited function available to these people to get into local activities.

Let me give you an example. In my own State, as in yours in most cases, we provide extension services which go out and provide counseling to these families in the fields of budgeting, home management, home economics, food planning, and all the rest. When you put in this particular thing you are telling the University of Tennessee or any other university that cares about the people of its State to go fly a kite. You tell them, "We are going to take over your functions. You do not need to be responsible on the local level any more."

The gentleman from Pennsylvania said that we are going to indoctrinate these people. Well, it is about time we stopped indoctrinating the American people and let them live their own lives for a change.

I do not like this, and I will not participate in supporting a section which allows an agency of this Government to indoctrinate the American people. They do not need it, my friends. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BARRETT. I thank the gentleman.

It is necessary to help these people.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I decline to yield any further.

Mr. BARRETT. We have to try to help them——

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I refuse to yield further.

I want to say without any qualification whatsoever that I deeply resent such criticism of the people of Tennessee or any other State and particularly resent the word "indoctrinate." It is a foreign word—foreign in implication and in effect.

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. KYL. How will these services contemplated here differ from the services of the OEO, and those being offered by welfare departments and other agencies?

Mr. BROCK. They would be directly parallel or compete with the same services. There is no difference between them.

Mr. BELCHER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BELCHER. I am wondering if all those people in Pennsylvania are on relief, because they have the greatest relief rolls in the United States, and I wonder if they all came from the South.

Mr. BROCK. They did not, and if they think they are going to be "indoctrinated" in Pennsylvania, they would not go.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. MOORHEAD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, it is easy to ridicule this section of the bill, but if you have worked in the public housing field, you will know the necessity for the type of services that are proposed in section 204.

Before coming to the Congress I served on the board of a housing authority. There were two frustrating situations that I found.

The first was that the people who moved in did not move out. In other words, they did not upgrade their skills and obtain new jobs and equip themselves to earn more income which would permit them to go out into the free market and buy or rent houses.

Mr. Chairman, this section is designed to help with job counseling.

There was a second frustration, Mr. Chairman, and that was this: We knew that there were living in the slums, poor people with many problems—multiple problem families—we had to turn them down because we did not have the kind of people on the staff of the housing authority who could give them the counseling and the guidance that would qualify them to live with their neighbors in public housing.

So, Mr. Chairman, I would say that this section is one of the most important sections that is contained in this bill, because it is doing what the conservatives like—upgrading the tenants—and having them move out into the free enterprise housing market.

There is also another aspect to this section of the bill which would help to provide space to the problem family and the family that has the problem of dealing with alcohol and so forth. We are proposing that they hire a local man, it could include a man from the university of Tennessee, for instance, to identify the problem families and guide them to such programs as are now being carried on under the Office of Economic Opportunity or Manpower Training. These are people who know the problems and know the manner in which it should be dealt with and undertake to arrive at a solution to the problem. Then, we could upgrade these tenants and move them out.

One of the past difficulties of public housing was lack of concern for people. We have been doing little more than warehousing people.

This section is the people's section of this bill, and I believe of all sections which are contained in the bill, this one should be passed.

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. KYL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I rise simply to ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania who just finished speaking, a question or two. It was my understanding that the Office of Economic Opportunity was supposed to provide family services, and that it was also to provide counseling of the kind described here.

May I ask the gentleman to respond to this brief question? Is it his opinion that the Office of Economic Opportunity has failed in this function—in this counseling function which was given to it?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, no. I think that the Office of Economic Opportunity is doing a good job in counseling. But I think there has got to be someone who is trained in this field and who can identify these people who need counseling and refer them to OEO.

Mr. KYL. Just a moment. In the CAP area closest to my own home the Office of Economic Opportunity has always indicated that its basic function is to go out to show these people what helps are available, and counsel with them, and guide them and try to acquaint them with the jobs that are available. And, not only that, but also to help in the matter of training and retraining.

Mr. Chairman, if we have to support a new section like the one which is now contained in this bill, it would seem to me that we are in effect condemning the Office of Economic Opportunity because it is not responding to the functions assigned to it.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KYL. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. BINGHAM. I would suggest to the gentleman that there are many cases where the OEO operates, and where it is functioning and that we have to rely upon the people in the community to show some initiative and capacity to carry on the program.

I know of projects which are conducted in my district where this kind of service is not available from the Office of Economic Opportunity, not because the Office of Economic Opportunity is not functioning, but simply because it has been left primarily up to local initiative in that district to help these people move forward in the community. It is my opinion that a program of this type would be enormously helpful.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, the local housing authority has a project with an adviser which is supervised to the extent they can tell exactly what services are available, either through the housing authority or the local community. I think you will find that almost all these agencies are capable of providing this work without this section.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KYL. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MOORHEAD. If the proper services can be financed out of the rental income, this would be fine, but where you have got to have a higher rent, you would run into rather difficult circumstances, but God bless them. However, I do not think they have done enough. I know we have never had a project officer in our projects, and we were just barely making ends meet with the income rental and breaking even.

Really, just barely make do with the income record on expenses. I think we will find we will save more money by a small investment of this type that can move tenants out of public housing than we can by any other section of this bill.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. If the gentleman will yield further, I would just like to point out—and I believe that this would be true in Pennsylvania. Every local housing authority has an item in their budget for project services. I would be happy to review such a budget so that the gentleman will see that it does provide for it.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I do not believe that would be sufficient.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KYL. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. CAHILL. I am just wondering if the gentleman from Pennsylvania can explain to me the difference between this section of the bill and that section providing for the National Homeownership Foundation. As I read this section and that section, one of the principal functions is to counsel the poor and to establish for them incentives to develop in them an interest in public housing or private housing.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

(On request of Mr. MOORHEAD, and by unanimous consent, Mr. KYL was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. CAHILL. If the gentleman will yield further, will the gentleman from Pennsylvania tell me whether there is a duplication or whether this is a separate method of counseling?

Mr. MOORHEAD. If the gentleman will yield further, no, the homeownership counseling is counseling people who want to own their homes. This section is aimed only at the rental program, that of public housing, and it covers a lot wider range of counseling than homeownership. It could include the problems of alcoholism, drug addiction, job training, family planning, and many things like that.

Mr. CAHILL. If the gentleman from Iowa will yield further, I will state to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that I thought the counseling actually was to encourage the people to leave the public housing and to get them into the private segment of our economy.

Mr. MOORHEAD. The private sector could include units.

Mr. CAHILL. If the gentleman from Iowa will still yield further, I would ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania if there is proposed to be a separate counseling for rentals and a separate counseling for homeownership.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Not just that we would have separate counseling, but we would have broader counseling insofar as it concerns the tenants in public housing, because almost by definition they have a problem in their incomes or they would not be in public housing.

Mr. CAHILL. Then as I understand there is $10 million allocated for the furthering of the National Homeownership Foundation, is that right?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Yes, but they would have no contact with the tenants in the public housing, and we must have someone who has close contact with the tenants in public housing.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has again expired.

Mr. FARBSTEIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. FARBSTEIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FARBSTEIN. Mr. Chairman, I do not know whether the gentleman from Iowa has had any experience with the operation of public housing projects. There happen to be a number of them in my district. I called HUD several months ago and told them that the public housing projects not only one, but all of them, did not have sufficient police protection. These public housing projects are not serviced by the local police, or by the city police, and that the city housing authority that runs the projects has to provide police protection.

It so happens the cities do not have sufficient funds with which to hire police to safeguard and protect the housing developments. As a result, legislation has been introduced—and I can speak only for the city of New York—to provide for police to protect these housing developments.

I read in the daily press only a day or so ago that the City of New York has increased the number of police to service all these low cost housing projects to 1,500. I further read yesterday in one of the New York papers that one member of the State legislature is going to introduce a bill for 5,000 police.

It so happens that these housing developments need police protection.

When I called the housing authority and complained about the fact that there was no police protection for these developments, they said that in the bill that is to come up—speaking about this bill—special services could be interpreted to mean police protection.

It is my hope that when this provision is adopted, there will be a contribution by the Federal Government to assist the various municipalities in providing police protection for the various housing projects.

As I say, this is the result of a conversation I had with somebody up at the Department of Housing and Urban Development. That is one phase of the services asked for by this bill. Another phase of it is that there are women who live in these public housing projects who go to work. They need people to take care of their children while they are at work. They have day care centers and these funds would be used for those purposes.

There is no point or constructive purpose to be served in treating this provision of the bill with the levity that it has been treated here today.

There are important functions that would be fulfilled by this paragraph and I say to you, the funds that have been appropriated are insufficient and that for the various low-cost housing projects throughout the country the sum of $20 million the first year will be insufficient and that there should be at least twice as much.

I say to you, gentlemen, it is in the interest of assisting the cities and to keep them cool instead of hot for this summer and for the coming summers that you provide the necessary moneys to aid the people in the cities who live in low-cost housing projects for the purpose of providing, among other things, police protection.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. YATES. The gentleman is raising some very important points.

In reading this section now under consideration, I find no reference either to the point of protection, which I think is of very great importance, in the public housing section and, secondly, I see no reference to the day care which I think is of equal importance.

Will the gentleman yield to a member of the committee to discuss that point?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. If the gentleman will look at page 67, line 6, he will find this language "without being limited to"—that is the bill as written provides that the term "tenant services" includes certain services and activities "without being limited to" such service activities.

I believe we are making legislative history today with reference to this paragraph as a result of this debate and as a result of my statement that police protection in these public housing projects can be accorded. Further, that centers to take care of children while the mothers are working would be covered by the language of the bill.

Mr. YATES. Would the gentleman from New York yield to some member of the committee and get some legislative history on this?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. The point is that I answered the gentleman.

Mr. YATES. May I say to the gentleman that neither of us is a member of the committee.

Mr. REUSS. That is correct.

Mr. YATES. I think it would be well if the gentleman would yield to a member of the committee to find out whether it is intended that this section include the provision of services for protection, that is the provision of police protection for public housing projects and for the provision for the creation of the establishment of day care centers as well.

Mr. FARBSTEIN. I am satisfied to yield to a member of the committee. The reason that I took the floor and made the statement I have is because of my own personal experience in situations in the city of New York in public housing projects.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

(By unanimous consent, at the request of Mr. YATES, Mr. FARBSTEIN was granted 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. I think the interpretation suggested by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. YATES] is a reasonable one, that the statutory phrase "services which are directly related to meeting the tenant needs" would include both protective and day care services, if appropriate, and if approved by the administrator.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. YATES. When the gentleman from Wisconsin mentions the provision of day care services, does this mean to include the use of these funds for the purpose of establishing day care centers within the public housing projects?

Mr. REUSS. Certainly, that seems to be a good place to have them. There are those who want mothers to work and where better to have a day care center than in the housing project?

Mr. FARBSTEIN. May I say to the gentleman, there are presently various centers where children are taken care of during the day when the mothers are out working.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, we have heard some very interesting things here this afternoon on this particular amendment. I for one never knew that a city could deny its responsibility of policing a public housing project. If public housing projects are located in New York, I would suggest that they follow exactly the same procedure as is followed in Pennsylvania, and in most other States that I know of, and give to that public housing project exactly the same police protection that is given to the rest of the city or to the rest of the municipality.

The statement has been made that child day care centers are maintained, and I think child day care centers are maintained in virtually every municipality of this great country of ours, maintained to a large degree through United Fund, Community Chest, or other similar charitable organizations.

In relation to the type of activity which is provided for in this section—counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters, and I could go on and read the whole gamut—I believe every one of those functions is being performed today by an existing agency in every community.

Today we have heard a great deal about the Office of Economic Opportunity. They are providing many of these same services in many places.

Furthermore, we have heard from the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MOORHEAD] about the people in these public housing units being improved so that they could get out of their environment. Speaking for Pennsylvania, I do not believe that there is one major metropolitan area in Pennsylvania that does not have good Vo-Tech high schools. In most of these Vo-Tech high schools, even though you only have the equivalent of a second-grade education, you can go to the Vo-Tech high schools in the evening and take courses in carpentry, machine shop work, and any of the skills that the Vo-Tech schools teach. I think right now that everything that is called for in this section is being provided, and it is being improved upon constantly by the local communities.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I would say to the gentleman that in those communities where there are the proper kinds of services, the main problem of the Public Housing Authority would be to acquaint the tenants with the services available, and also to know what services the tenants need. A great many tenants do not know there is a day care center down here; they do not know there is free legal service out there. At times they do not even know they need legal services.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I am quite sure they do know. As I said in my earlier comments, these people should be upgraded so that they could get out of public housing and get into better housing. I have pointed out that in places like Philadelphia, Chester, Harrisburg, and the other metropolitan areas where we find public housing there are vo-tech high schools which have evening courses available in all the subjects the schools teach, without the necessity of those attending the schools meeting any academic requirements to start with.

Mr. MOORHEAD. This is where I repectfully differ with the gentleman.

There are tenants in public housing who have not been reached by these programs. Often the programs are downtown and the housing provided is in another section of the town. There is no one to bridge that gap or to inspire those people by saying, "You are paying this much rent. If you go to a vocational education school, you will be able to do better." It would stimulate the program as we have done in the past.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I am sure they do know about those programs. At one time I was asked the question, "Perhaps people do not know where the Employment Security Office is. Maybe that is why they do not go and apply for jobs." But when I asked the question, "How come they know where the welfare office is to get their welfare checks," there was no answer forthcoming. The people do know, and I think all we are going to be doing here is wasting $60 million when we are only spending $10 million on a National Home Ownership Foundation. We are wasting $60 million in duplicate services.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Is is not simple enough for the project manager to send out a notice as frequently as necessary, whether to five or 5,000 units, to tell them of these project and tenant services?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I know a bulletin board in a housing project is an easy way to let them know of these projects, and some housing projects have their own publications.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I had originally not intended to participate in the debate, but as the debate has gone along, I have become convinced I probably should actively oppose the amendment and support the proposal.

I originally participated in this provision of the legislation, because there was some need for draftsmanship, I thought, rather than leave the language so open ended that any service could be provided under the language of the bill as it was originally drafted. So I was acting as a draftsman rather than a participant in the merits or demerits of the proposal itself.

I hold no brief for the money amount that is expressed in this section. Maybe it is too much, but I think the section itself is desirable. If I could direct the attention of my colleagues to the language for a minute, I would like to have them look at page 67, and particularly I would like to have the genteleman from Iowa look at that language. In connection with the definition of "tenant services," it provides that these services include "counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters."

I would ask the gentleman from Iowa, as well as anyone else who serves on the Committee on Agriculture or possibly on the Committee on Education and Labor, if those items are not included in the services that are required to be performed by the extension services of every land-grant college in this Nation? Having served in the Michigan Legislature, I am very familiar with that. The only thing this language does not include was a service that was provided by the extension service of Michigan, and that was training in the arranging of funeral sprays. I think if we follow on with the last of the language, we will see other things mentioned which are presently provided by extension services.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, the extension service in Iowa has not yet provided babysitters. They may some day, but I have not heard of them providing babysitters.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I do not see, if I can respond to the gentleman, where this legislation says anything about babysitters.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman's provision provides for childcare.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. The gentleman is not reading the language correctly. The language says "counseling" on child care. Is the gentleman saying child care counseling and child care is the same thing?

Mr. GROSS. Then it is proposed to use Federal funds to teach people how to be babysitters?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I think it is teaching them how to take care of their children. Is the gentleman saying the extension service does not provide that?

Mr. GROSS. Not that I know of.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Then I think the gentleman should become better acquainted with the extension services.

The concluding sentence, that follows this recitation of services, should be read rather carefully, because it is very important, it says:

> To the maximum extent available and appropriate, existing public and private agencies in the community shall be used for the provision of such services.

In that language we clearly pinpoint that whenever possible we intend the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall use the extension services and other nonprofit agencies for the providing of these services to these people.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, what does the gentleman mean by "intertenant activities"?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I think "intertenant activities," if I may respond to the gentleman from Iowa, is very comparable to "interfarmer activities" when we are talking about the rural electrification and all other cooperative activities which have been so successful in the agricultural areas.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman would contradict the statement that it would provide for the hiring of additional policemen and the establishment of day care centers?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I do not feel I can speak for the chairman of the subcommittee, but certainly that was not contemplated as included in my interpretation of the language.

Mr. DEL CLAWSON. The gentleman has stressed the word "counseling". Is not this the area where all these activities are applicable, as far as the services are concerned—that is, counseling only, and not for the establishment of child care centers or the hiring of patrolmen?

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. That is correct.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GROSS) there were—ayes 66, noes 69.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. GROSS and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 84, noes 84.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WILLIAMS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

> Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania: On page 55, line 22, strike out "1 per centum" and insert "3 per centum" and on page 56, line 14, strike out "1 per centum" and insert "3 per centum".

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment.

(Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, you will recall that under the mortgage assistance which is designed to help low- and moderate-income families to obtain homeownership, we have a 1 percent annual interest with the Federal Government paying the difference between the actual interest rate and the 1-percent interest rate.

Now, on this title II, rental housing for low- and moderate-income families, it is incumbent upon us to try to get as many of these units built as possible, and to get them built as quickly as possible.

Mr. Chairman, as all of us are aware, mortgage money on the money market which is loaned by private institutions, is running at least 7 percent or 8 percent. Thereby, if the Federal Government offered to pay the difference between the going mortgage rate of 7 and 8 percent, and 3 percent, I believe we will offer a great incentive for our people to get into this market of providing low rental housing for low- and moderate-income families. But by changing the rate, and based upon the money appropriated under this section, I believe we will got more people interested in building low rental housing units and the money will go further, and we will come up with a great number of housing units.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. YATES. But is not the gentleman destroying the incentive by increasing the 1 percent interest rate to 3 percent? Is there not a greater incentive for building such units if it remains at 1 percent, instead of raising the rate to 3 percent?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvana. But do not forget that the money appropriated under this section will only go so far. Therefore if we can have more housing units built at 3 percent, even though we are reducing incentive—we are not destroying it—actually we will bring more people into building housing units of this type. We are not destroying the incentive. We are making it attractive if they can borrow the money at 3 percent.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, in the cities such as the city of Chicago they are not really in the homebuilding market. The only ones who are building units for people of low and moderate income are apartment dwellers. Therefore, it is important that the 1 percent remain in the bill instead of raising the figure to 3 percent in my opinion.

The greatest incentive, I think, will get the job done faster.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. However, by the savings of 5 percent as represented by the differential of the going rate of 8 percent and the 3 percent which is proposed by my amendment, the interest rate would be effective enough to attract people into this field, and at the same time the money appropriated for this purpose will go further and it will attract more people and get more low rental housing units built in a shorter period of time.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, why should not the homebuilding section have the 3 percent differential too?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Because in the mortgage assistance program to which I believe the gentleman is referring, we are trying to get these same low- and moderate-income families into homeownership. What they want to do is to give them an incentive to do this. We have these State and local financial institutions coming in and building low- and moderate-income housing units and they are still doing this. In other words, the incentive would still be be there at the rate of 3 percent. We would not be destroying the incentive, but we will be getting greater use of this money appropriated under this section which will mean that we will be able to get more low- and moderate-income housing units built in a shorter period of time.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, then your opinion is that the opportunity for low- and moderate-income families to own their own homes is through the cooperative process? Why should not they be allowed the same differential of 1 percent?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman wants to talk about a tenant purchasing a unit, then the mortgage assistance program should apply and they should get 1 percent.

But so far as an incentive for having more of these low-rent housing units built, then I believe that the 3 percent is adequate.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman if it is not true in the section to which the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania refers, particularly on page 56, that we are talking about the establishment of a basic rental charge, and it is my view of what the gentleman suggests that it will affect very substantially the market for rentals. Because if the rental is established on 1 percent, the amount that the tenant pays is less, if it is 3 percent then the tenant will have to pay more.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. In reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA], I would state that what he is saying is really this: that with the 3-percent interest rate the rentals would be slightly higher. I agree with that. On the other hand, I have heard that we have to build 6 million new housing units, and I believe the impact on the rentals to be built between the difference in 1 percent and 3 percent interest charge would be negligible, and I believe our overall goal of building the required number of units would be facilitated.

Mr. HANNA. If the gentleman will yield further, I would merely point out to the gentleman that what the gentleman is referring to is a market to build. The incentive is built upon the market, and if it is a market where the tenant pays the 1 percent, then it is a different market than if the tenant has to pay 3 percent.

Now, I am not exactly sure what a 1-percent difference on the money for an apartment is, but I believe, if you would assume, that it costs—or the basic figure is about $12,000 to build an apartment unit, we could quickly determine in our minds what this would mean in monthly rental increase to the tenant, and what it will then do will be to reduce the number of individual tenants and reduce the number of units.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I would say to the gentleman from California that with today's tight mortgage money, and with today's high interest rates, that a 3-percent market will be something that will be astoundingly good.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. This proposal was raised in the committee and rejected. It was argued that by limiting the subsidy in this way the Federal aid could be stretched out over more families. We who opposed it pointed out that it would do so only at the expense of families in greatest need by cutting them out of the program entirely. I share the hope that this program will be expanded further but in the right way through additional authorizations of funds rather than at the expense of the poor who we are trying to help. I hope the amendment will be defeated, in order that we may give an adequate number of safe and sanitary units to the appropriate people who meet the requirements through this program.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time, and I hope that we can vote on the amendment immediately.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I want to speak very quickly in order that we can expedite the vote on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, it does seem to me that we should make every effort to expand the program as broadly as possible, and raising our interest rate from 1 to 3 percent does give the Secretary the ability to have this program cover a much broader spectrum of America, both in geographical and in economic terms.

Mr. Chairman, I would hope that the amendment is adopted.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, this is a very important provision of this vital and far-reaching and important bill. We are faced in America today with many challenges.

We are all acquainted with them. We are all aware of them.

One of the challenges is in connection with the persons of millions of Americans who are economically depressed, so to speak, or who are not in a good economic position.

This relates to rental housing for low- and moderate-income families. This is one of the great challenges that confronts us, particularly in this field.

I know what it is, as a youngster, to live under the conditions that most of these people live. There are many Members of the House who have had the same experience during their journey of life.

It seems to me that the provisions recommended, of 1 percent interest, recommended by the committee, in the light of existing conditions and in view of the problems that confront us and the challenges with which we are faced is a fair and equitable provision.

I realize that my friend who has offered the amendment does so with the highest of motives. But on the other hand, if this amendment is adopted, it is going to have a very limiting effect upon the successful operation of this program in a field of vital importance not only to countless of millions of Americans today and in the years to come but in the life of our country.

I hope that my friends in both parties will get the spirit of the challenges that confront us and realize the situation of those who are among the havenots. Those of us who are fortunate to have a dollar in our pocket see life one way. But what about the other side of the coin—those persons who do not have a dollar in their pockets, so to speak, and who look at life another way.

This is a matter of vital importance in connection with the successful operation of this bill.

I hope that the amendment will be defeated.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. I want to associate myself with the remarks of the distinguished Speaker of the House of Representatives.

I simply want to say that if we pass this amendment, you will knock out of consideration those people who cannot pay the extra $20 a month as a minimum this amendment requires. You are not going to provide any more housing, as the gentleman from Tennessee has suggested, you are just going to provide housing for strictly moderate incomes.

I certainly want to associate myself with the position taken by the Speaker of the House.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. With pleasure and some trepidation, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. I am sure the Speaker need have no fear or trepidation whatever.

I wonder when someone is going to start feeling sorry for the taxpayers who are going to make up the deficit between 1 percent and at least 5 percent interest. Somewhere, somehow this money has to be raised and there is only one source and that is the taxpayers of this country. It is inconsistent to raise taxes by 10 percent and then provide an interest rate of 1 percent.

Mr. McCORMACK. The gentleman from Iowa in good faith, with his philosophy of life and philosophy of government, is talking in terms of dollars—I am trying to talk in terms of human beings.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania), there were—ayes 37, noes 80.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDERSON OF ILLINOIS

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois: On page 61, following line 22 add a new subsection (m) as follows:

"(m) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no interest reduction payments authorized to be contracted under this section shall be made with respect to families, occupying rental housing projects insured under this section, whose incomes at the time of the initial renting of the projects are in excess of 130 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings."

(Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, the hour is late. Those of you who were here in the Chamber when we had an extended discussion earlier on a similar amendment which I offered to section 101 will perceive I think very quickly what I am trying to do with this simple amendment, and that is to tie down this new rental subsidy program here in section 201 of the bill which is referred to as new section 236, the National Housing Act, to tie it down so that the income limits for the families who will be participating under this new program will be truly low-income families.

Now, a minute ago I supported your side of the aisle in an amendment that was offered to increase the interest rate to 3 percent and voted against that amendment. I think it ought to be held at 1 percent, in computing this interest reduction payment, so that we can really, as the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA] said, keep this a low-income program. But for that reason I hope you will join me now in setting the limits for eligibility under this new program to 130 percent of income ceilings for occupancy of public housing.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. Would the limitation proposed by the gentleman work regionally, or would it be one limitation across the whole United States?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. It would work regionally. Just as in different areas and in different cities of the country there are different levels of eligibility for public housing, the 130 percent would apply to those different levels. You who come from the great city of New York might be tempted to vote against this amendment. Let me show you mathematically what it would accomplish. As was said earlier, the other body in acting upon this bill provided for an income test of 70 percent of the 221(d)(3) limits. For New York City that would mean that under this new program the maximum limit for a family of three, the income limit, would be $5,125. Under the amendment which I am offering the maximum income limit for a family of three would be $7,488. I have not got time to go through the list of cities, but I shall cite some.

For Baltimore, Md., the figure is virtually the same under the Senate amendment and under the amendment which I am now offering.

I offer the amendment in good faith, and I think for a very substantial reason. This bill makes a great point of setting some very ambitious goals of 6 million new low- and moderate-income housing units over the next decade, and I do not think it takes much arguing to convince you that it obviously costs a great deal more in the way of subsidy to house a family making only $3,500 a year than it does to subsidize under this new program a family making twice that amount. In other words, a given amount of dollars would subsidize far more moderate-income families than it would low-income families. I do not think it is unreasonable, therefore, to suggest that the administrators of this program might be tempted just a little bit to play the numbers game again with this Congress to make it look good, to make it sound as if they were fulfilling goals under this program, to go into the business of providing rental housing and cooperative housing under section 236 for those of moderate income.

And again the crumbs from the table will be left for those making an income of from $5,000 to $6,000 a year. I suggest it would be the better part of discretion here this afternoon to tie into this program the very same kind of tests that the committee had the wisdom to include a little earlier this afternoon in the 101 section of this bill under title I by providing that 130 percent of income eligibility limits for occupancy of public housing, shall be the test under this new rental and cooperative housing program.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has indicated that he supported us on the last amendment. I intend to support the gentleman on this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I know homeownership is dynamic, but we have to move people up along the line before we can go from low income to moderate income, but I will support the gentleman on rentals, because I do not think that applies here.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, we are talking now about the new program section 236. It will be better able to serve the low- and moderate-income tenants because rents attainable under it will be lower than under the other programs—and they are talking about the 221(d)(3), so it makes sense to tie this down, to families which are really low income families. That is what we are seeking to do by this amendment. I hope the gentleman will support it.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I am sure the gentleman is very kind and generous and wants to be very helpful. This amendment to title II—in the new section 236—would cripple the program. If we are to give people the housing they need, we must not accept the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I will not prolong this debate, but I certainly hope the human aspects, as the Speaker said here, will be considered, and therefore I do hope this amendment will be voted down.

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, the kind of amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Illinois is an absolute necessity lest we again subdue the human interest, of which we have been hearing, in favor of something else which might be more expedient.

Let us see what has been attempted under 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act. This section, Members will remember, is designed to assist private industry in providing housing for low- and moderate-income families, and we give priority to displaced families, to persons over 62 years of age, and to handicapped persons. But what has happened? The National Council of the Arts bought a $750,000 apartment building in New York City and got $9.5 million in Government mortgage to finance rehabilitation of the building under 221(d)(3). Was it to help the low- and moderate-income families, those who needed the humanitarian consideration? No. Was it to take care of the poor? No. Was it to take care of the elderly? No. It was to provide housing for artists and sculptors and architects, and so on, in the city of New York.

If this kind of procedure can take place under the earlier provisions of the act, we need some kind of provision like this amendment to guarantee that the money will go, with compassion, to those who need it the most.

We have to have a check in this legislation to prevent the misuse of funds, and I hope the amendment will be adopted.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. PATMAN) there were—ayes 77, noes 60.

So the amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 65, beginning in line 23, strike out "by $100,000,000" and all that follows through the end of line 3 on page 66, and insert the following: "by $50,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and by further amounts of $75,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970,".

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, it seems to me this whole housing bill, whether it is supported by the minority or the majority, is tacit recognition of the rather crashing failure for the last many years in this country of the so-called public housing program, and is an effort to redress the grievance of the people who have not received what they have been promised.

If I can recapitulate very briefly what is in this particular bill before us: we have a subsidy to provide assistance for the homeowner in the form of mortgage assistance payments of all over 20 percent of his income for interest rates in excess of 1 percent; we have a program to subsidize the builders of low-income rental housing; we have a proposal which will subsidize not just the builder of that housing but also the tenant, with a rent supplement program; and we have $60 million in the bill to provide tenant services.

Later on in the bill Members will find, since we have covered the new homeowner and the new renter, that we have a program to take care of everybody who is left in the country, with rehabilitation grants and loans of $3,000 and $10,000 respectively to any family the Secretary determines is qualified to receive the money.

The whole thrust of the program seems to be directed at the fact—and it is a fact—that public housing in this country has failed: and it has failed miserably because its concept is wrong.

If we are going to admit that there have been failures in the housing program in the past, then it seems to me the height of responsibility to try the new programs but try them within a reasonable and responsible fiscal framework, not simply adding hundreds of millions of dollars to everything that has gone on in the past and adding on new programs and adding hundreds of millions of dollars to them because we want to try everything all at once just to be sure that some pellet in the shotgun shell will hit on a decent target. All I am suggesting is we limit the increase in public housing funds. Rather than going to $400 million, we ought to limit it to $200 million. That is all this amendment does, and I think it is very consistent with the philosophy of this bill. I would appreciate its support.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I think the committee has done a splendid job on this. We originally asked for $800 million for public housing. The committee cut it down to $400 million. Now the gentleman from Tennessee comes in and wants to cut that in half.

The applications for public housing are increasing rapidly. Public housing has been criticized by many of the gentlemen here today who are now advocating public housing over rent supplement and 221(d)(3) type housing.

We are hopeful, Mr. Chairman, that we can acquire the number of standard homes to replace the 6 million substandard homes. If we are going to cut down the necessary moneys needed to build and carry out the commitments made by the Public Housing Authority, we are certainly going to limit the opportunity to acquire the number of units which are necessary to satisfy the people living in substandard homes at present.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is time in this program to touch on the human element. These gentlemen who are opposing all of these human type programs that we have in this bill today ought to look at it from the standpoint of the righteousness in their hearts. Certainly, if they have righteousness in their hearts, they ought to expose that in their character. If they expose it in their character, we can do something for this country and for the world. Because when there is righteousness in the heart there is beauty in the character, and when there is beauty in the character there is harmony in the home. That is what we are aiming for, Mr. Chairman. We are trying to establish harmony in the home. When there is harmony in the home there is order in the neighborhood and in the community and in the Nation. These are the things, Mr. Chairman, that it is very important we give adequate consideration to. We must supply the money to build the necessary units to keep ourselves strong from within, if we are to be strong from without. We must build up these communities and give the people who need this type of home, this standard home, the money with which to build it.

Mr. Chairman, I say if we are to be strong from within, we must primarily be strong from without, and when we are strong from within we can certainly have order in this Nation and can lead to peace in the world. If we are going to cut the essentials, as we have been doing here for the last few hours, we will continue to have destruction in all of the communities throughout this great country.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers, Mr. BROCK and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee divided, and tellers reported that there were—ayes 69, noes 92.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WILLIAMS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania: On page 64, strike out "$150,000,000" in line 23 and all that follows down through line 2 on page 65, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "$150,000,000 per annum, and no contract shall be entered into under this section after July 31, 1968."

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, this amendment pertains to the rent supplement program. Under the original 1965 housing and urban development bill $150 million was authorized for rent supplements. Today it is my understanding that only $42 million of that money has been committed. All contracts under the rent supplement program are for a period of 40 years. This bill, the way it is presently written, authorizes increases in rent supplement money to a total of $290 million.

If all of this money is committed to 40-year programs, it would mean approximately $11.6 billion. And out of all the housing programs that have been attempted in this country, I believe that the rent supplement program has produced the lowest number of low-rent housing units of any program that has been tried.

I believe that with all of the additional new programs that are being offered in this bill, we should take this program, which obviously has been proven to be a failure, and remove the money from this bill and concentrate on the other new approaches that are set forth in this bill.

Mr. RUESS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Chairman, I shall be very brief. This amendment would give the rent supplement program the generous period of 20 days in which to live. It would abandon the program after July 30, 1968.

We have been over this year after year. The rent supplement program plays a useful role in the totality of Federal programs, and particularly is it necessary after some of the action that has been taken here on the floor this afternoon. If you are going to build rental projects at all, you have got to find some rent supplement cases in order to bring the assured income of the nonprofit sponsor of the project up to the point where he can afford to build in the first place.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Is it not a fact that most of the housing units that were built under this so-called rent supplement program were in some form of apartment building, including high-rise apartments?

Mr. REUSS. In reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, I will say that some of them have been, and to the extent that they are high rise, the committee has spoken out that we do not believe that high-rise apartments, except where absolutely essential, are suitable for families with children. Therefore I would look toward the increased use of rent supplements in the garden-type apartments, in projects made up of adjacent but individual homes, including what we in my hometown of Milwaukee know as duplexes. It is, however, an essential part of the program if that element of our society which has aroused so many tears from the minority side this afternoon, the very poor, are going to be given a chance to live somewhere in decent surroundings.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield further, this $42 million that has been committed to 40-year contracts, you have got to multiply the $42 million by 40 to get the sum of money that has been committed so far under this program.

What is the approximate number of low-rent housing units that have been provided?

Mr. REUSS. The gentleman from Pennsylvania simply points out some elementary arithmetic that 40 times 1 is 40. Over a program that long, of course, it requires a 40-year contract.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for a vote on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania) there were—ayes 54, noes 74.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 79, noes 94.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I take this time to ask a question or two of the chairman of the committee or some member of the subcommittee. Does the Ramseyer print in the report conform to the language in the bill? May we rely on the Ramseyer print to show the changes in the law and in the bill?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Certainly you may. There is more care and caution taken to get the Ramseyer rule exactly correct, because it would be subject to a point of order if it were incorrect. That is the reason we asked for a waiver of points of order. There are 180 pages in that report under the Ramseyer rule, and one major mistake, or one mistake, would invalidate the whole proceeding, and the bill would have to go back to the committee.

Mr. GROSS. Which is the gentleman saying is defective, the bill or the report?

Mr. PATMAN. If the report is defective, it would be subject to a point of order.

Mr. GROSS. What is subject to a point of order?

Mr. PATMAN. The 180 pages under the Ramseyer rule, which points out differences in what we propose and what is in existing law.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman says there is no defect to be found in the Ramseyer print in the report accompanying the bill?

Mr. PATMAN. Not to our knowledge.

Mr. GROSS. I see. While the gentleman is on his feet, let me ask him a question in reference to the language to be found on page 242 of the report wherein you have apparently written into the bill—"or to a group of such tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 per centum of the structure's total value."

What are you talking about? Are you talking about values in terms of monetary values, or are you talking about values in terms of the occupancy of apartments or public housing?

Mr. PATMAN. I beg your pardon. I am attempting to find the gentleman's reference.

Mr. GROSS. I am talking about the language to be found toward the bottom of page 242 of the report. Are you talking there about values in terms of monetary values, or are you talking about the value of population or occupancy in public housing? I do not understand this language.

Mr. PATMAN. "Eighty per centum of the structure's total value." That is what it is talking about.

Mr. GROSS. Eighty percent of the occupancy or 80 percent of the value of the structure?

Mr. PATMAN. The report uses the word "structure."

Mr. GROSS. Then how do you relate warm bodies in terms of occupancy and use an 80 percent of structure?

Mr. PATMAN. Well, that is the way it is. Is there anything incorrect about it?

Mr. GROSS. You certainly come up with some beautiful formulas in this committee. I am still way out in left field as far as this is concerned. I would like to ask you about the last sentence on that page: "as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship."

What is "undue financial hardship"?

Mr. PATMAN. Someone in authority would have to make a judgment on that.

Mr. GROSS. There is no criteria or formulas at all in the bill? Is that correct?

Mr. PATMAN. Incidentally, that is an amendment by the minority to the bill.

Mr. GROSS. I could not care less whether it is an amendment by the minority or not. I sometimes agree with the minority, and I sometimes disagree with the minority.

Mr. PATMAN. Sometimes the minority is right.

Mr. GROSS I am not interested in any answer as to where this language originated. I am interested in who in the bureaucracy is going to determine "undue hardship" in this bill that is eventually going to cost $50 billion.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. DAVIS OF WISCONSIN

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin: On page 66, line 3, change the period to a colon and add the following proviso: "Provided, That the aggregate amount of contracts to make annual contributions executed subsequent to the enactment of this Act shall not exceed amounts approved in Appropriation Acts."

(Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is to make the payments of the contract authority under the Public Housing program subject to the same Appropriations Committee review as is true with respect to all of the other programs involved in this bill. All of the others, with this single exception, public housing, have amounts under the contract authority limited to the amounts approved in appropriation bills. For instance, in the new section 235, homeownership subsidy program, there appears this language on page 9:

The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts . . .

So now we look at the rent supplement program and all of the other programs, and, with this single exception, we find the language limiting them to the annual review that would be available under the Appropriations Committee process.

When we look at the possible commitments in this program as contemplated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, I think it becomes at least as important—if not more so—that these amounts of contract authority be limited to Appropriations Committee review. In this bill, for instance, there is an aggregate new authority for $954 million by 1972. But that involves only one-third of the contemplated level by 1978.

In these times when we find ourselves in fiscal difficulty so often because of built-in commitments by contract authority—just as we found ourselves in trouble this year when we had to pass a law on deficit and expenditure control and placing a limitation on expenditures as well as providing a surtax—unless we provide this kind of annual review under the appropriation bills each year, we will find ourselves with commitments over which this Congress will have no control and we might very well, by 1978, if not sooner, find ourselves in the position of having to repeal some of this legislation because of the vast number of commitments that could well be made.

In my opinion this amendment would put public housing on exactly the same basis as far as the limitation on contract authority, as are each and every one of the other programs that are involved in this bill. I see no reason why public housing should not be limited to the same contract authority control as any other program, and because of its size and its potential of spending for the future, it probably is more important that this particular phase of the overall housing program be limited in this manner. It is consistent with all the other provisions of the bill, and I think it is necessary that it be included in that review.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I am glad the gentleman from Wisconsin has offered this amendment. I believe it is necessary for this amendment to be adopted if Congress is to maintain any control whatsoever over future commitments on spending. I support the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin, and think it should be adopted by the Committee this afternoon.

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman, as the ranking minority member on the subcommittee which handles these housing programs, is in a position to be well informed. If there were any practical difficulties in connection with this, I am sure the gentleman would be aware of them and would make his colleagues on the committee aware of them.

I see no such difficulty. I believe it is a fair amendment. It ought to be adopted, consistent with the need for fiscal control.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would take a long step backward and would seriously cripple the low rent public housing program. The program is now controlled through annual authorizations acted on by Congress as we have in the bill today. Placing another hurdle in the way of the program could only serve to cut the program down further. Even more than that though, the uncertainties and delays which the amendment would impose would make it impossible for the local housing authority to meet the needs of our lowest income families. This is particularly true in the case of section 23, leased housing, where volume has been rising rapidly and which offers local authorities great flexibiilty in planning and the ability to act promptly as the need arises. This amendment would strangle that program.

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. I fail to understand from the gentleman's remarks his allegation that this would destroy this program, when in effect it would place exactly the same limitations on contract authority for this program as have already been written into this bill with respect to low and moderate housing ownership and rent supplement programs. If it is not going to kill them, how is it going to kill the public housing program?

Mr. BARRETT. I hope the gentleman will agree with me. He voted for it, as I did, year after year, on the same type of authorization that is in the bill today.

Certainly we do not want to change this, because commitments have been made for construction in the public housing category.

Because of the conditions today, I do not believe we ought to attempt to change this. In other times, perhaps in the future, when we have peace and contentment in this country, we can take a look at it and talk about changing it, but not today.

We should not change the present process when it is so successful, especially at the time of its greatest need.

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin, Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. BARRETT. Yes. I will be glad to yield.

Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin. In the newer programs about which we are talking, the low- and moderate-income programs, and in the rent supplement program which came on the scene much later, this Congress did see fit to write in limitations on contract authority. All I am asking is that we update that authority with regard to public housing consistent with what we are doing in our newer housing programs. How is that ruining the program?

Mr. BARRETT. I certainly do not agree with the gentleman on the new programs. I am talking about a program that has been operating under an authorization since 1938. You just do not change successful programs.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. DAVIS].

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers, Mr. DAVIS of Wisconsin and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 88, noes 95.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title II of the bill, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE III—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURANCE OPERATIONS

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUMS FOR SERVICEMEN AND THEIR WIDOWS

SEC. 301. Section 222 of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "Secretary of the Treasury" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretary of Transportation"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(f) The Secretary is authorized to transfer to this section the insurance on any mortgage covering a single-family dwelling or a one-family unit in a condominium project insured under this Act, if the mortgage indebtedness thereof has been assumed by a serviceman who at the time of assumption is the owner of the property and either occupies the property or certifies that his failure to do so is the result of his military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

"(g) Where a serviceman dies while on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States or in the United States Coast Guard, leaving a surviving widow as owner of the property, the period of ownership by the serviceman (within the meaning of subsection (c) of this section) shall extend for two years beyond the date of the serviceman's death or until the date the widow disposes of the property, whichever date occurs first. The Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation, as the case may be, shall notify such widow promptly following the serviceman's death of the additional costs to be borne by the mortgagor following termination of the two-year period."

MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

SEC. 302. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 238 (as added by section 104 of this Act) the following new section:

"MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 239. (a) The Secretary shall not consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, as defined in the regulations of the Secretary, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, except in conformity with regulations prescribed by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this section. Such regulations shall require, as a condition to the granting of any such request, that, during the period of such extension or modification, any part of the rents or other funds derived by the mortgagor from the property covered by the mortgage which is not required to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with the operation of such property, including amortization charges under the mortgage, be held in trust by the mortgagor and distributed only with the consent of the Secretary; except that the Secretary may provide for the granting of consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, without regard to the foregoing requirement, in any case or class of cases in which an exemption from such requirement does not (as determined by the Secretary) jeopardize the interests of the United States.

"(b) Whoever, as an owner of a property which is security for a mortgage described in subsection (a), or as a stockholder of a corporation owning such property, or as a beneficial owner under any business organization or trust owning such property, or as an officer, director, or agent of any such owner, (1) willfully uses or authorizes the use of any part of the rents or other funds derived from property covered by such mortgage in violation of a regulation prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (a), or (2) if such mortgage is determined, as provided in subsection (a), to be exempt from the requirement of any such regulation or is not otherwise covered by such regulation, willfully and knowingly uses or authorizes the use, while such mortgage is in default, of any part of the rents or other funds derived from the property covered by such mortgage for any purpose other than to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with such property (including amortization charges under the mortgage), shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both."

CONDOMINIUMS

SEC. 303. (a) Section 234(c) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "rental housing, and (3)" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "rental housing: Provided, That a one-family unit in a multifamily project involving eleven or less units shall be eligible for insurance without having been covered by a project mortgage, and (3)".

(b) Section 234(c) of such Act is further amended by striking out "(iii) 75 per centum" in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "(iii) 80 per centum".

(c) Section 234(f) of such Act is amended by striking "five" and inserting in lieu thereof "four".

INSURANCE OF LOANS FOR PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

SEC. 304. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 239 (as added by section 302 of this Act) the following new section:

"PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

"SEC. 240. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure loans made by financial institutions for the purpose of financing purchases by homeowners of the fee simple title to property on which their homes are located.

"(b) As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'financial institution' means a lender approved by the Secretary as eligible for insurance under section 2 or a mortgagee approved under section 203(b)(1); and

"(2) the term 'homeowner' means a lessee under a long-term ground lease.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a loan shall—

"(1) relate to property on which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-, two-, three-, or four-family residence;

"(2) not exceed the cost of purchasing the fee simple title, or $10,000 per family unit, whichever is the lesser;

"(3) be limited to an amount which when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property (as determined by the Secretary) creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the applicable mortgage limit prescribed in section 203(b);

"(4) bear interest at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not to exceed 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions, and such other charges (including service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees) as may be approved by the Secretary;

"(5) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed twenty years from the beginning of amortization of the loan or three-quarters of the remaining economic life of the home, whichever is the lesser; and

"(6) comply with such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(d) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (5), (6), (7), (8), and (10) of section 220(h) shall be applicable to loans insured under this section and, as applied to loans insured under this section, references in those paragraphs to 'home improvement loans' and 'this subsection' shall be construed to refer to loans under this section."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464(c)) is amended by adding immediately before the last paragraph the following new paragraph:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under section 240 of the National Housing Act, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

EXTENSION OF SECTION 221(d)(2) SALES HOUSING PROGRAM FOR TWO-, THREE-, AND FOUR-FAMILY RESIDENCE TO ALL LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 305. Section 221(d)(2) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "a displaced family" at the end of the first proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "the mortgagor".

REMOVAL OF DIVIDEND RESTRICTION FOR NONDWELLING FACILITIES IN SECTION 221 PROJECTS

SEC. 306. Section 221(f) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out in the first sentence all that follows the word "mortgage" in the proviso and inserting in lieu thereof ": Provided further, That, in the case of a mortgage which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), the provisions of section 220(d)(3)(B)(iv) shall only apply if the mortgagor waives the right to receive dividends on its equity investment in the portion thereof devoted to commercial facilities."

SUPPLEMENTAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR PROJECTS FINANCED WITH FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 307. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 240 (as added by section 304 of this Act) the following new section:

"SUPPLEMENTAL LOANS FOR MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 241. (a) With respect to a multifamily project or group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure, and to insure, supplemental loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. As used in this section, 'supplemental loan' means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing improvements or additions to such project or facility: Provided, That a loan involving a nursing home covered by a mortgage insured under section 232 or a loan involving a group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under title XI may also be made for the purpose of financing equipment to be used in the operation of such nursing home or facility.

"(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a supplemental loan shall—

"(1) be limited to 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements, additions, and equipment, except that such amount, when added to the outstanding balance of the mortgage covering the project or facility, shall not exceed the maximum mortgage amount insurable under the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering such project or facility is insured;

"(2) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage;

"(3) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions;

"(4) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

"(5) be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 that are applicable to the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured; and

"(6) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions the Secretary may prescribe.

"(c) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, except that (1) all references to the term 'mortgage' shall be construed to refer to the term 'loan' as used in this section, (2) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 213 that is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of such fund, and (3) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit corporation or association, approved by the Secretary, for financing the purchase and rehabilitation (with the intention of subsequent resale) of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous upon which there is located deteriorating or substandard housing consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established;".

(b) Section 221(h) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 101(c)(3) of this Act) two new paragraphs as follows:

"(7) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(8) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (7)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner."

HOUSING IN OUTLYING AREAS

SEC. 317. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "not in excess of $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not in excess of $15,000".

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that this title of the bill be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and subject to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MACHEN

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MACHEN: On page 90, after line 4, add the following new section:

"COOPERATION WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENTS IN CONNECTION WITH MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR HIGH-DENSITY HOUSING

"SEC. 318. Title V of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"'COOPERATION WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENTS IN CONNECTION WITH MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR HIGH-DENSITY HOUSING

"'SEC. 524. (a) Upon receiving an application for the insurance, under any provision of this Act, of a mortgage covering housing which will produce an average density on the property involved of more than five dwelling units per acre, the Secretary shall notify the governing body of the locality where such housing is or will be situated, requesting that such governing body submit a statement of the impact which the housing will have on public services provided by the local government and its agencies together with a statement of the relationship of the housing and its related facilities to any locally adopted master plans.

"'(b) After receiving and considering the statement submitted by the local governing body (or after the expiration of a reasonable period of time if no such statement is submitted), the Secretary may tentatively approve the mortgage for insurance in accordance with the provision of this Act under which the insurance was sought if he finds that the housing and its related facilities will be consistent with any comprehensive planning which may have been developed for the area and with any locally-adopted master plans, and shall promptly notify the local governing body of such tentative approval.

"'(c) At any time within 90 days after notification of the Secretary's tentative approval under subsection (b), the local governing body may approve or disapprove the Secretary's tentative action, including, in the case of disapproval, a comprehensive statement of its reasons therefor. After receiving the approval of the local governing body, or after receiving and considering its disapproval and the statement of reasons therefor, or (if the local governing body has neither approved nor disapproved his tentative action) upon the expiration of the 90-day period, the Secretary may finally approve the mortgage for insurance in accordance with the provision of this Act which the insurance was sought if he finds that the housing and its related facilities will be consistent with any comprehensive planning which may have been developed for the area and with any locally-adopted master plans, and that such housing and facilities will not cause an unreasonable burden on public services provided by the local government and its agencies.'"

Mr. MACHEN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD. It is my opinion that I can explain the amendment in very short order.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

(Mr. MACHEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment that I propose is one that I hope the House will adopt. It deals with the requirement that the Federal Government, through the housing development people, would have to consult with local authorities in connection with approval of the loan insurance for high density housing, particularly under section 221(d)(3). I know they say that will be phased out, but with the many, many programs supervised by HUD I want to make certain that there are adequate local facilities, schools, roads, et cetera, under section 221(d)(3). A good example happened right in my district here just in the last 2 weeks: a 10-acre tract of land where commitments were issued for a 500-unit apartment house to house 2,000 people, and where the schools in the area there now are taxed beyond their capacity and there is no other land in the area, and there is no additional land for recreation. This is to be one of those housing projects that will include the low- and moderate-income people.

When that land was originally zoned some 4 or 5 years ago the plans were that there would be no more than 30 or 40 children there. It is now estimated that will increase to 300 children.

We are not opposed to these type projects, but we are when they are forced on the people, and when those who move into them become disillusioned because there are no schools available.

This project will be completed in 2 years.

In the amendment I am offering I am not prohibiting, but I am only asking that HUD contact the local authorities, submit their plans to them, and the local authorities can in turn advise HUD as to just what schools there are, what roads there are, and whether they can take care of them.

In the event of any arbitrariness on the part of the local authorities, HUD can still, after a reasonable period of time, and after reviewing comprehensive and master plans for the area, still approve the project.

This amendment is not to stop them, but is just to make it an orderly procedure in order that there not be a tremendous impact upon the local communities when the local community services have to be paid for locally. We are speaking in terms of roads, recreational areas, and schools.

Certainly where projects are insured by the Federal Government such as these are they should be concerned whether these facilities are available, and not create another problem after everyone has moved in and then they want to undo what was done.

Mr. Chairman, I certainly hope the committee will accept this amendment. It is a safeguard. It is not to stop development under section 221(d)(3), or any of the other Government-insured programs.

So, Mr. Chairman, I would urge the adoption of this amendment for the protection of the local communities.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I shall be brief. We must vigorously oppose the amendment because it would markedly interfere with the very good private enterprise multifamily housing projects approach of the bill before us. It would do so by requiring a 90-day holdup of everything while the local community looked at the proposed private enterprise project.

There is no reason why a local community should have any need to hold up a project insured under this bill. The projects under this bill are of course subject to all zoning requirements, master plans and other requirements of the communities.

Mr. Chairman, the arbitrary insertion of a 90-day holdup would simply mean that the massive private enterprise attack on our housing problem would never get off the ground. Therefore the amendment should be voted down.

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I am sure the gentleman shares my concern that whether it is private enterprise or otherwise, that there should be adequate school facilities available, and that there are adequate recreational facilities available in those areas where these projects are to be put.

Does the gentleman not share that view?

Mr. REUSS. Entirely, and fortunately HUD under existing legislation has the power and the duty of requiring adequate recreational, education, religious, employment, and other facilities in the general area of these multifamily housing projects. It would be undesirable, however, to impose an arbitrary, automatic, and unyielding requirement that the whole thing be held up for 90 days. That is why we must oppose the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MACHEN. Do you not think it is just as important that there be adequate school facilities in connection with these housing projects?

Mr. REUSS. Absolutely, whether the housing be a luxury project or whether it be a low- or moderate-income project, adequate schooling is necessary. But that is in the present HUD requirements and the 90-day stop order that the gentleman's amendment would enact would seriously interfere with just the kind of provision or moderate-income housing that this bill is aimed to bring about.

Mr. MACHEN. If, as you say, HUD was as concerned, then I do not think I would have to ask for this amendment. But, certainly, if it occurs, such as has occurred here within the last 2 weeks, in the approval of a 500-unit on a 10-acre tract of land, with the schools in the area now overcrowded, even if they start tomorrow to try to find land to build the schools, there would not be adequate school facilities for those 2,000 people where it is estimated that between 200 and 300 children are coming in with them.

Mr. REUSS. Was this the suburban apartments where the planners had in mind——

Mr. MACHEN. The 221(d)(3)—that is the very project. That is the thing, I think, we need protection on.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. MACHEN].

The amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 88, line 3, strike "and".

On page 88, line 10, strike out the period and insert "; and".

On page 88, after line 10, insert the following:

"(4) by inserting before the semicolon at the end of subsection (d)(3)(A) the following: "(except that in the case of a mortgage which covers equipment the maturity may not exceed the reasonable use expectancy of such equipment)".

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, the Committee put in a section of the bill which allows the financing of nursing home equipment. It is an excellent section.

Mr. Chairman, this would require that a mortgage which covers the equipment in a nursing home and uses that equipment as security cannot be for a longer period of time than the reasonable use expectancy of the equipment.

If the mortgage was for a longer period than the useful life of the equipment, the equipment would be of no security against default after this useful life had elapsed.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, of course, I am sure the gentleman knows they have reserves for the replacement of this type of equipment. Therefore, it is always up to date.

You are asking for two maturity dates—one on the structure and one on the equipment. Certainly, we want to cooperate with the gentleman. I am going to ask our side to accept the amendment and, of course, give us a chance to look it over further in conference.

Mr. BROCK. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FRASER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. FRASER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FRASER. Mr. Chairman, the passage of the omnibus housing bill will rank among the most significant social welfare efforts of the 90th Congress. This legislation represents the first step in the President's plan to eliminate all substandard housing in our country within 10 years. Under this bill, we will start creating housing of all types at a rate 10 times faster than we have been able to do up to now.

Probably the most innovative feature of the housing bill is the new homeownership plan provided for in title 1. Until recently, Government-assisted housing for the poor meant traditional public housing. In the 1966 housing bill, Congress initiated the 221(h) program which enabled nonprofit groups to purchase, moderate cost private housing, renovate it and resell it to low-income families. This year we are expanding the homeownership principle set forth in the 1966 bill by authorizing interest subsidies to low-income families to enable them to become homeowners. This new subsidy plan will make homeownership possible for an estimated half million low- and moderate-income families.

In addition to this new homeownership plan, the 1968 bill attempts to meet the housing needs of the poor by increasing the authorization for public housing and by expanding recent efforts to encourage nonprofit sponsorship of rental housing.

Title IV of the bill recognizes that good housing can only survive in a good environment. Under this title, improvements are made in programs to prevent and eliminate urban blight. My district, Minneapolis, was an early leader in the effective use of these urban development tools and I know that this bill will enable my city to continue to make progress in its effort to create a healthful and pleasant environment for all our residents.

Certain deficiencies in current urban renewal programs are corrected through the new neighborhood development and interim assistance programs. Neighborhood development reduces the delays between the approval and implementation of renewal plans while interim assistance provides grants to deal with immediate problems in areas that are eventually slated for full scale urban development projects.

The ability of the individual homeowners to conserve and improve their own property is also strengthened in title IV. I am pleased to see that the Banking and Currency Committee saw merit in my suggestion to liberalize rehabilitation loans available to property owners in project areas. Section 409 makes these rehabilitation loans available for general home improvements after the loans have been used to bring the property up to urban renewal or code enforcement standards.

Direct home improvement grants to low income families are increased in title IV from the current level of $1,500 to $3,000. These grants and the rehabilitation loans are also made available to property owners outside the bounds of federally funded projects, but who live in potentially blighted neighborhoods.

Time does not permit me to discuss the many other important features of this bill—the model neighborhoods authorization, the new riot reinsurance program and the urban mass transit grants, to name just a few. This bill contains scores of new features each of which would qualify as major pieces of legislation in themselves. The Banking and Currency Committee is to be commended for its careful preparation of this most comprehensive legislation to come before us during the current session.

By approving the omnibus housing bill, we will be making a major impact on the future growth of our American cities. I am pleased to give my enthusiastic support to this bill.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MACHEN

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MACHEN: On page 90, after line 4, add the following new section:

"COOPERATION WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN CONNECTION WITH SECTION 221(D)(3) PROJECTS

"SEC. 318. Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new subsections added by section 105 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"'(k) Upon receiving any applications for the insurance of a mortgage under subsection (d)(3), the Secretary shall notify the governing body of the locality where the project involved is or will be situated, requesting that such governing body submit a statement of the impact which such project will have on public services provided by the local government and its agencies together with a statement of the relationship of such project to any locally-adopted master plans. After receiving and considering the statement submitted by the local governing body (or after the expiration of a reasonable period of time if no such statement is submitted), the Secretary may approve the mortgage for insurance in accordance with the provisions of this section if he finds that the project involved is consistent with any comprehensive planning which may have been developed for the area and with any locally-adopted master plans.'"

Mr. MACHEN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The Clerk concluded the reading of the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Maryland is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MACHEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, I know the hour is getting late. I hate to continue to take the time of the House. The amendment is somewhat similar to the amendment that was offered earlier, but is much more restrictive in order, perhaps, to take care of the objections that were raised by the committee. This particular amendment is limited specifically to approval of loan applications under 221(d)(3). It merely provides that the Secretary shall notify the local governing body of the locality where projects are located or are proposed to be built, requesting that such governing bodies submit a statement of the impact which such project will have on public services provided; namely, your roads, your schools, and your recreational areas.

I can say to you, as was mentioned earlier in connection with low-rent housing, Members spoke out against having high-rise use for low-rent housing projects.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACHEN. I yield to the distinguished chairman.

Mr. PATMAN. We have discussed the amendment of the gentleman from Maryland. He has kindly provided us with a copy, and it meets with our approval. If it meets the approval of the minority, we would be willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. WIDNALL. We will accept it, too.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. MACHEN].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to title III? If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE IV—URBAN RENEWAL

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 401. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after the title heading the following new subheading:

"PART A—URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS, DEMOLITION PROGRAMS, AND CODE ENFORCEMENT PROGRAMS"

(b) Title I of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"PART B—NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

"PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

"SEC. 131. (a) To facilitate more rapid renewal and development of urban areas on an effective scale, and to encourage more efficient and flexible utilization of public and private development opportunities by local communities in such areas, the Secretary is authorized to make financial assistance available under this title to local public agencies for undertakings and activities which are carried out under a neighborhood development program approved by him pursuant to this part.

"(b) A neighborhood development program shall consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas which are planned and carried, out on the basis of annual increments in accordance with the provisions of this title for planning and carrying out urban renewal projects, except as modified by the provisions of this part.

"(c) No application for financial assistance in planning and carrying out a neighborhood development program shall be approved by the Secretary unless—

"(1) the governing body of the locality has, by resolution or ordinance, approved the proposed program and the annual increment covered by the application and authorized the filing of the application for financial assistance; and

"(2) the Secretary has concluded that there is the necessary capacity to carry out the undertakings and activities included under the program.

"FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 132. (a) Upon the approval of a neighborhood development program by the Secretary, the cost of any undertakings and activities authorized as part of the program shall be financed in accordance with the loan, capital grant, and project cost provisions of part A, except that—

"(1) net project cost may be calculated on the basis of costs incurred and proceeds derived for the account of the program during a specified twelve-month period, and may be recalculated for succeeding periods of twelve months to reflect additional costs and additional proceeds since the date of the last computation or recomputation; and

"(2) if property has been acquired but not disposed of prior to the computation or recomputation of net project cost, temporary loans made or secured under this title to finance undertakings or activities included in the program may remain outstanding until the property has been disposed of and the proceeds thereof, together with additional funds becoming available to the program, are sufficient to permit repayment of the loans.

"(b) In the event that gross project cost as computed for a specified twelve-month period is exceeded, with respect to that period, by the sum of (1) the sales price of land or other property sold, and (2) the imputed capital value of land or other property leased or retained by the local public agency in accordance with the provisions of the urban renewal plan, the local public agency shall pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess (or three-fourths in the case of a program on a three-fourths grant basis), which amount shall be available to the Secretary for grant payments under section 103.

"LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

"SEC. 133. (a) For the purpose of determining the eligibility of local grants-in-aid in connection with undertakings and activities carried out under a neighborhood development program, the three-year period referred to in the second paragraph of section 110(d) shall be deemed to be a period of three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; and the seven-year period referred to in clause (1) of section 112(b) shall be deemed to be a period of seven years prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed.

"(b) No portion of the cost of a public improvement or public facility (to the extent otherwise eligible) may be included as a local grant-in-aid in computing the gross project cost of an approved program for any twelve-month period—

"(1) prior to commencement of construction of the improvement or facility, or

"(2) in excess of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

"(c) The provisions of section 104 with respect to the pooling of local grants-in-aid among the various projects undertaken by a local public agency shall not be applicable with respect to any excess local grants-in-aid resulting from the urban renewal projects contained in a neighborhood development program.

"GENERAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 134. (a) For purposes of this part—

"(1) the workable program requirement in section 101(c) shall apply to the authorization, rather than the execution, of any contract for loans or capital grants;

"(2) capital grants on a three-fourths basis may only be made under section 103(a)(2)(B);

"(3) the relocation requirements specified in section 105(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program;

"(4) section 106(g) (relating to transient housing) shall apply to activities undertaken under approved programs, except that the determination as to need for transient housing shall be made with respect to any sale or lease of land for construction of such housing prior to such sale or lease; and

"(5) the requirement concerning demolition and removal of buildings and improvements stated in clause (A) of the sentence following paragraph (10) of section 110(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program.

"(b) The approval by the Secretary of financial assistance for one or more annual increments of a neighborhood development program shall not be considered as obligating him to provide financial assistance for any subsequent annual increments.

"(c) The urban renewal plan referred to in section 110(b) may cover one or more of the urban renewal areas covered by a neighborhood development program and such plan may be modified from time to time to cover additional urban renewal areas added to the program. The Secretary may establish such requirements as he deems appropriate proscribing the scope and content of such plan, taking into consideration, among other matters, the degree of detail needed in the plan to properly and expeditiously carry out the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment of a neighborhood development program."

(c) Notwithstanding any requirement or condition to the contrary in section 6 or 20(i) of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945 or in any other provision of law, the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency may plan and undertake neighborhood development programs under part B of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 (as added by this section), subject to all of the provisions of such Act of 1945 to the extent not inconsistent with such part B, and any such program shall be regarded as complying with the requirements of such sections 6 and 20(i) and of such other provision of law if it meets the applicable requirements established under such part B.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 402. (a) Section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out everything in the first sentence after "exceed" and inserting in lieu thereof "$7,600,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969".

(b) Section 103(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "$250,000,000" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "$600,000,000".

REHABILITATION GRANTS

SEC. 403. (a) The second sentence of section 115(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the words "a structure" and "such structure" and inserting in lieu thereof "real property" and "such real property," respectively.

(b) Section 115(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$3,000".

(c) Section 115(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(a)", and by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"(2) In addition to the authority conferred by paragraph (1), and notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make real property owned and occupied by such individual or family conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes. No grants shall be made under this paragraph in the case of any property unless such property is in an area within a locality (other than an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement is being carried out pursuant to section 117) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation.

(d) Section 115 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection (b) as follows:

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)), through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), who owns and occupies real property which has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National House Act. Such grants may only be made to rehabilitate such property to the extent which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by such plan and only where the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines (1) is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (2) is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created."; and

(2) by striking out "subsection (b)" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (c)".

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 404. Section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out (1) "guidance purposes, and", and (2) the proviso at the end thereof.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 405. Section 107(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting "or other approved purchaser or lessee," after "public body or agency,";

(2) by inserting ", section 221(h)(1), section 235(j)(1), or section 236" after "or (d)(4)";

(3) by inserting "or lessee" after "a purchaser" and after "such purchaser", and "or lease" after "purchase";

(4) by striking out "rental or cooperative"; and

(5) by striking out "moderate" and inserting in lieu thereof "low or moderate".

CAPITAL GRANTS FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN OPEN LAND PROJECTS

SEC. 406. Section 103(a)(1) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", except that he may contract for such a grant in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of pursuant to section 107 and the fair value of the land without regard to such section".

URBAN RENEWAL LOAN CONTRACTS

SEC. 407. (a) Section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "at interest rates lower than provided in the loan contract" in the first sentence; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ": Provided, That, if at any time during the undertaking of the project, the interest rate on such a loan from a source other than the Federal Government is greater than the rate at which funds could be made available under the Federal loan contract, the Secretary may make a supplemental grant to the local public agency in the amount of the difference between the interest cost from such sources and the interest cost at the contract rate, and no part of the amount of any such grant shall be required to be contributed as a part of the local grant-in-aid".

(b) Loan contracts outstanding on the date of enactment of this section may be amended to incorporate the provisions authorized by the amendment contained in subsection (a) without regard to the proviso in section 110(g) of the Housing Act of 1949.

PROJECT COMPLETION PRIOR TO DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

SEC. 408. (a) Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) Upon a determination by the Secretary that (1) not more than 5 per centum of the total area of land acquired as part of an urban renewal project remains to be disposed of, (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of such land in the near future, (3) all other project activities are completed, and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan, the urban renewal project may be deemed completed, and the net project cost may be computed and the capital grant paid."

(b) Section 110(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "or for subsequent disposition or retention as provided under section 106(i)".

REHABILTATION LOANS

SEC. 409. (a) The first sentence of section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended to read as follows: "There is authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year such amounts as may be necessary which shall constitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section."

(b) Section 312(h) of such Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1969" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1973".

(c) Section 312(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners and tenants of property to finance the rehabilitation of such property. No loan shall be made under this section unless—

"(1)(A) the property is situated in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activity is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949, and the rehabilitation is required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area and, in addition, to generally improve the condition of the property; or

"(B)(i) the property is in an area (other than an area described in subparagraph (A)) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation and (ii) the property is residential, owner-occupied, and in need of substantial rehabilitation;

"(2) the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions; and

"(3) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan."

(d) Section 312 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1)(B) in subsection (a) (as amended by subsection (c) of this section), and by inserting after such paragraph (1)(B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C)(i) the property has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act, (ii) the loan is made to the owner or tenant of the property to finance rehabilitation which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards, and (iii) the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created;"; and

(2) by striking out "or" after "applicable codes" in subsection (b)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof a comma, and by inserting after "urban renewal plan" in such subsection ", or a Statewide property insurance plan".

DEMOLITION GRANTS

SEC. 410. (a) The first sentence of section 116(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "unsound" the following: ", a harborage or potential harborage of rats,".

(b) Section 116(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the comma at the end of clause (2) the following: "or will be consistent with a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood,".

AIR RIGHTS SITES IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 411. (a) Section 110(c)(1)(iv) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "for use for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for use for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

(b) Section 110(c)(7) of such Act is amended by striking out for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

SEC. 412. Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 117 a new section as follows:

"INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

"SEC. 118. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts (in an aggregate amount not to exceed $40,000,000 in any fiscal year) to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs to alleviate harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas which are planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation, or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future but in which some immediate public action is needed until clearance, rehabilitation, or code enforcement activities can be undertaken. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out programs which may include (1) the repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings to meet needs consistent with the short-term continued use of the area prior to the undertaking of the contemplated clearance or upgrading activities, (2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to public health and safety, (3) the demolition of structures determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation and which constitute a public nuisance and serious hazard to the public health and safety, (4) the establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land within the area, and (5) the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning and similar activities. The Secretary shall encourage, wherever feasible, the employment of otherwise unemployed or underemployed residents of the area in carrying out the activities and undertakings assisted under this section. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, and 114 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project."

LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN RESIDENTIAL URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 413. Section 105(f) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(f) A majority of the housing units provided in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects as will be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals: Provided, That the units in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects which are for low income families or individuals shall constitute at least 20 per centum of the units in such projects."

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF INDIAN TRIBES

SEC. 414. Section 101 (c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "1964" in the second proviso the following: "or, in the case of an Indian tribe, band, or nation, commencing January 1, 1969".

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title IV be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED BY MR. HALPERN

Mr. HALPERN. Mr. Chairman, I offer two amendments to title IV, both of which are pertinent to the identical subject matter. I ask unanimous consent that they be read and be considered together.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. HALPERN: On page 98, strike out lines 11 through 16 and insert the following: "governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation.'; and".

On page 104, strike out lines 2 through 8 and insert the following:

"(iii) the property is located in an area which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation;'; and".

Mr. HALPERN. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would clarify what I believe is the intent of the rehabilitation aid section of title IV of H.R. 17989. Surely it is the intent of the legislation to make rehabilitation funds available in those areas where they are most needed. But under the existing language of the title, such funds could actually be denied in precisely those areas which are most in need. That is why I offer this amendment, which would guarantee that those areas most in need of rehabilitation assistance would be eligible for funds under this program.

The program of rehabilitation grants and loans contained in title IV of this act, which is applicable to property found uninsurable under title X, is an imaginative and valuable addition to the Senate version of the Housing and Urban Development Act. Rehabilitation of existing structures must accompany construction of new buildings if urban renewal is to be truly effective. However, it should be pointed out that the present phrasing of the rehabilitation program included in title IV contains an inconsistency which might cause rehabilitation grants and loans to be denied in those areas where they are most desperately needed.

Section 403, subsection (c) and section 409, subsection (c) in title IV of the act each lay down flexible standards for assistance, stating that grants and loans may be provided for any area "which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation." According to these provisions, any area in need of rehabilitation funds would be eligible for funds.

Two other provisions in title IV, however, seem to negate the flexibility of the criterion just mentioned. Section 403, subsection (d), and section 409, subsection (d), as now written, state that loans and grants can be provided to owners of property which is currently uninsurable only when such property "is located in an area which the Secretary determines, first, is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values; or, second, is one in which public or private actions are being carried out or are proposed to be carried out of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created." These clauses clearly deny aid to those property owners most in need of rehabilitation assistance.

An example would serve to illustrate this. Consider an elderly low-income homeowner, living in an unstable section of an urban community. The urban insurance program, included in title X of this act, would make his home eligible for insurance for the first time. However, since the home, in this hypothetical case, has a faulty electrical system, considered to be a fire hazard, it does not measure up to insurance standards, and private insurance companies will not issue property insurance. Clearly, this is an instance where it is the purpose of this legislation to assist the homeowner in rehabilitating his electrical system to the point where his home will meet insurance standards. But under present wording, since the neighborhood is unstable, the homeowner is not eligible for any rehabilitation assistance at all.

In short, while title X of this act assures that sound property in unstable areas can now be insured, and title IV provides funds so that owners of rundown property in stable neighborhoods can receive funds to bring the property up to insurance standards, present wording excludes owners of rundown property in unstable neighborhoods from receiving rehabilitation assistance and thus excludes them from obtaining necessary property insurance.

The amendment I am offering will make the language of the act consistent by using the same criteria for assistance throughout, and stressing the need for rehabilitation, rather than the stability of the area. By virtue of this amendment owners of rundown property in unstable areas would become eligible for rehabilitation grants and loans in order to bring their property up to insurance standards and improve the condition of their community.

This focus on the needs in high-risk areas, rather than limitations based on existing or potential stability, seems more appropriate to the intent and spirit of the act.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALPERN. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, we have studied the amendment the gentleman is offering and, if it is agreeable with the minority side, I believe our side will accept the amendment.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALPERN. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, the amendment being offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. HALPERN] is agreeable to the minority.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from New York.

The amendments were agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WINN

Mr. WINN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WINN: On page 107, after line 22, add the following new section:

"RULE FOR DETERMINING ACQUISITION PRICE OF PROPERTY DAMAGED BY LIMESTONE QUARRY SUBSIDENCE

"SEC. 415. (a) the last paragraph of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out 'underlying coal mines, or' and inserting in lieu thereof 'underlying coal mines, because of limestone quarry subsidence, or because of'.

"(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for payment of the increased amounts authorized under subsection (a) with respect to any uncompleted project if the project included acquisitions which, under any State or local law in effect on such date, would involve expenditures by local public agencies that could not otherwise be included in the cost of such project."

Mr. WINN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

There was no objection.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman furnish us a copy of the amendment?

Mr. WINN. I am sorry, Mr. Chairman, I thought I had furnished enough copies, but I will furnish a copy.

Mr. Chairman, I am privileged to submit for your consideration a proposed amendment to the Housing Act of 1949. I will outline briefly the facts that have prompted me to offer the amendment.

I represent the Third Congressional District of Kansas which includes a portion of Kansas City, Kans. During the spring of 1965 a subdivision of Kansas City, Kans., known as the Hilltop area experienced severe surface instability. This was evidenced by several serious cave-ins which resulted in extensive damage to residences located over the affected area. The bottom literally fell out of 48 houses. Fortunately no one was seriously injured, although the cave-in threatened the lives of persons residing in each of the damaged houses.

Following the cave-ins, the Renewal Assistance Division of the Department of Housing and Urban Development authorized the consulting engineering firm of Howard, Needles, Tamen & Bergendoff, of Kansas City, Mo., to conduct a feasibility study of the Hilltop area. The firm's report was submitted to Mr. Chris N. Vedros, Director of Urban Renewal Agency, Kansas City, Kans., on May 3, 1967. I am herewith offering the report to the Committee for its reference in considering the amendment which I propose. I direct the Committee's attention to the conclusion in the report that the affected portions of Hilltop be acquired by urban renewal. The report suggests that the area be cleared and developed in the most economically feasible manner as a public use area: First, public golf course; second, public park; third, wildlife area or zoo; or, fourth, sewage disposal area.

The report recognized existing legislative authority is too narrow to provide a satisfactory response to the needs of the Hilltop residents. It recommends the amendment which I have proposed in H.R. 8354 to resolve the present limitation. The effect of my bill would amend title I of the Housing Act of 1949 to extend compensation to property owners who sustain damage to their property from mine subsidence without limitation to coal mines subsidence. The injured persons would be paid the value of their property immediately prior to the occurrence which caused their loss.

I am further offering a copy of the letter which I received from the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, dated March 11, 1968, wherein it is observed that there is no existing authority for assistance to persons sustaining losses similar to those experienced by the residents of the Hilltop area. The letter expresses sympathy for the plight of such persons and recommends legislative action identical to that which I have proposed to establish authority for resolving the difficulties caused when property owners are the innocent victims of mine subsidence.

Mr. Chairman, the residents of the Hilltop were indeed innocent victims of an act of nature over which they had no control. They had purchased their homes and had anticipated the quiet enjoyment of their premises. However, because of an incident completely beyond their control, they found themselves homeless. I am not suggesting that they are deserving of relief similar to that extended to the victims of a flood or tornado. Their case can be distinguished because the redevelopment of the affected area and the relocation of the residents is clearly within the expressed purpose and spirit of urban renewal. As is pointed out in the consulting engineers' report, there are several economically feasible ways to utilize the area once it has become public property. Further, the residents of the area are valuable contributors to the economic growth of the community. It is important that their talents and energies be retained.

Mr. Chairman, I thank you for the opportunity to address you on this most important subject, and I am confident that you will favorably report any amendment for enactment into law.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, this amendment is the same type amendment that was offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Congressman McDADE, in a previous session of Congress, covering instances where property has been greatly damaged from coal mine subsidence. As I understand this amendment, it would do the same thing for those who suffer in connection with limestone quarries.

Mr. WINN. That is exactly correct. It is the same as the McDade amendment.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I think our side is willing to take this amendment. It covers subsidence, and we have taken a similar amendment on this side. We are familiar with it and have no objection.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, this side will accept the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. WINN].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. RYAN

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. RYAN: On page 107, after line 22, add the following:

"SEC. 415. Section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting the following before the period at the end of that section: ': Provided, That the Secretary may, in addition to authorizing a local public agency to make grants as prescribed in Section 115, make such grants through the utilization of local private non-profit agencies'."

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this amendment is very simple. It is to permit section 115 rehabilitation grants to be made through the utilization of private nonprofit agencies as well as through local public agencies.

The rehabilitation grant program can be an important instrument in the rehabilitation of entire neighborhoods. With the increase to $3,000 afforded in H.R. 17979, it can enable low-income homeowners to repair their homes, and it can provide the seed money for more extensive rehabilitation efforts.

Private nonprofit agencies are a logical conduit for channeling these funds if they possess the technical expertise. Often they can be moved to action more speedily than the local public agency. My amendment would simply permit them, as well as public agencies, to be the medium for these grants. I believe this option should be available, and I hope my amendment will be adopted.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RYAN. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. I have discussed this with other members of the committee and with the staff. The gentleman furnished us with a copy of the amendment. We are willing on this side to accept it, if the minority is willing to accept it.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. PATMAN) there were—ayes 64, noes 47.

So the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. O'HARA of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, from Joseph D. Keenan, international secretary of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and for many years outstanding among the Nation's leaders in all movements for the advancement of the welfare of the American people, I have received the following telegram:

DEAR CONGRESSMAN: The Omnibus Housing Bill (H.R. 17989) now before the House will test whether America intends to begin meeting our national goal of bringing decent housing within reach of every American family. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers strongly supports this bill especially the homeownership and rental provisions. We urge your support for the Omnibus Housing Bill as reported by the Committee and ask that you vote against any crippling amendments that are offered on the House floor.

Mr. Chairman, I am in complete agreement with Mr. Keenan and the many, many others who have wired and written me in support of one of the most comprehensive housing bills of all times.

Six million American families still live in substandard housing. The good bill before us, the enactment of which is urged by Mr. Keenan, places the emphasis upon the need of this segment of our forgotten countrymen and provides the means of meeting the need. I would say that this is the most important legislation to come before the 90th Congress and if we should adjourn before its enactment we would be derelict in the performance of our duty. If by crippling amendments we should weaken the effectiveness of the bill in bringing decent housing within the means of the 6 million American families now unhappily condemned to the dirt and misery of the slums and worse we would stand shameless and dishonored before our own constituents.

We cannot have a happy nation with 6 million families huddled under roofs that leak, 6 million families living in filth, little children and their elders cramped together in misery in housing that by even the lowest standards is unfit for human habitation. We cannot have a safe nation under such conditions. I think the disturbances of recent years have brought us all to that realization.

Mr. Chairman, when I came to the Congress in the 81st Congress, housing was the overriding problem of many of my constituents and I felt fortunate indeed when the late Thomas J. O'Brien, then a power on the Ways and Means Committee, secured a place for me on the Banking and Currency Committee. One of the happiest moments of my 18 years in the Congress was when after a long and hard fight the Housing Act of 1949 passed the House and Senate and became the law of the land. At long, long last we had started to make come true the American dream of "a decent roof over every American family."

We have come a long way since 1949. But with 6 million American families still unhappily and inadequately housed there is still a long, long way to go.

It was my privilege and certainly my pleasure to serve on the first housing subcommittee with the present chairman of the subcommittee, the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT]. Working and associating with him I came to know his great ability, his wide understanding and the drive with which he executed his task. To him go my congratulations on a good job superbly handled. My congratulations too, to one of the great legislators of our times, the distinguished gentleman from Texas, my beloved friend [Mr. PATMAN]. Also to the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey, the able ranking minority member of the committee [Mr. WIDNALL], whom I hold in warm affection and deep esteem.

Mr. Chairman, I am sure I voice the sentiment of the House when I say that on the Democratic side and on the Republican side we are proud of the membership of the great Banking and Currency Committee. And, we from the State of Lincoln are especially proud of the only member of the committee from Illinois, the able and hard-working Mr. ANNUNZIO.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the 1968 Housing and Urban Development Act. This legislation embodies some of the most enlightened and far-reaching proposals of this decade.

Two of the provisions of the act give me special pleasure. The section of this act, as reported by the Banking and Currency Committee, establishes a national program of federally assisted insurance protection in areas with high crime rates or potential riots.

Such insurance protection in riot-prone areas is absolutely essential to the future of our cities. Unless we provide a means for property owners in areas of potential civil disorder to gain the protection that only adequate insurance provides, the areas of our great cities that most need to attract new and expanded investments will be strangled. New businesses cannot come into areas where a degree of financial protection is not available and established businesses cannot long stand the risk of losing everything. This legislation, which I have advocated and sponsored for 2 years, is aimed at creating a climate for rapid and unrestricted progress and restoration of the blighted ghettos that exist in our great cities. The regeneration of our central cities is directly tied to the guarantee of full and certain insurance protection.

Second, this legislation revives the dormant National Flood Insurance Act which has been stalled in conference since late last year. The crippling amendments adopted by the House, precluding participation by the private insurance industry, have been responsible for the delay in providing this long overdue protection. Only last month, the State of New Jersey suffered disastrous and costly floods which resulted in certain of the hardest hit areas, including Union County which I represent, being declared Federal disaster areas. Certainly a great deal of the economic hardship brought by these floods would have been avoided had flood insurance been available. Unfortunately, in the hardest hit areas, particularly in Elizabeth and Linden, flood insurance coverage is simply not obtainable.

Mr. Chairman, the 1968 Housing and Urban Development Act is a significant and long step toward the goal of a decent, safe, and sanitary home for every American. I ask full support for this legislation as reported by the Banking and Currency Committee.

Mr. DONOHUE. Mr. Chairman, our late, beloved President, John F. Kennedy, once said:

> The cities—their needs, their future, their financing—these are the great unspoken, overlooked, underplayed problems of our times.

Many of us here fully agreed with his pronouncement then and have steadfastly exerted our efforts over these past few years for the legislative attainment of his recommended goals, including the elimination of substandard housing, for the rebirth of our cities and the regeneration of great numbers of their inhabitants. In this measure before us today we have a near culmination of President Kennedy's, and his successor's, long-made and long-sought recommendations and objectives in the domestic area.

Mr. Chairman, this bill now before us, H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, is practically universally acclaimed as a measure representing, in its entirety, the most creative, comprehensive, and prudent legislative response in the history of the Congress to the imperatively urgent national problem of providing decent housing for low- and middle-income families.

It has been rightly termed landmark legislation in the national interest and I most earnestly urge and hope it will be overwhelmingly adopted by this House today without any seriously crippling amendments.

On past occasions when we have dealt with the subject of housing here, I have repeatedly expressed my very deep conviction that our civilized society will rise or fall in proportion to the wholesomeness of our family life. Unquestionably one of the fundamentally essential ingredients in the promotion of wholesome family existence and development is decent housing and substandard housing conditions in the cities of our country are of increasing major concern to the Nation.

Mr. Chairman, this measure is designed to create housing in all forms throughout this country at a rate 10 times faster than has ever been attempted in the past and its approval will mark the beginning of the massive upgrading in standards of living so urgently required throughout the whole country and particularly in our cities.

The bill's major homeownership and improvement environment programs project a new and unique financing arrangement by which the Government would subsidize interest payments rather than entire mortgages. Those benefitting from the programs would pay, on a sliding-scale basis, a certain percentage of their income for housing. Thus, as a low-income family's earnings increase, their share in the Federal program increases proportionately. By providing Federal subsidy at established market interest rates instead of the below-market rates of the present system, the programs should entice private enterprise to participate to a far more significant degree than under current mortgage operations.

It also encompasses expanded programs for riot reinsurance, for flood insurance, for urban mass transport, for urban planning activities, for mortgage insurance on nonprofit hospitals, and for a private consortium to bring new involvement in the housing market from areas of private enterprise not traditionally involved.

Section 3 of the bill, the "jobs-in-housing" provision will be of enormous benefit to low- and moderate-income urban families. This provision contains the instruction that the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that, to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction or rehabilitation of projects assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such projects.

A similar requirement is already in force with respect to model cities programs.

In substance this measure provides a goal of 6 million low- and moderate-income housing units over the next 10 years; during the next 3 years it would authorize 375,000 units of low-rent public housing.

It would provide an urban renewal authorization of $1.4 billion for fiscal year 1970, greatly reducing the backlog of applications now pending.

It would increase mass transit authorizations by $190 million, a sum which is minimal when compared with our national mass transportation needs as exemplified in my own community and commonwealth.

It would increase model cities authorization by $362 million in fiscal year 1969 and $1 billion in fiscal year 1970.

The first two programs above together with the model cities program enacted in 1966 provides the basis for the overall regeneration of entire communities but they are suffering from a serious lack of funds.

Seventy-five American cities, including my own home city of Worcester, Mass., have already been approved for Federal planning funds for massive rehabilitation and another 75 are expected to qualify before the billion dollars are to be spent in fiscal year 1970.

I believe that in order to fulfill our pledges of 1949, in housing and in 1966 for model cities, it is essential that we approve the full funding for these basic programs and strengthen their effectiveness by the adoption of the other supplemental provisions in this pending bill.

Mr. Chairman, it is not pretended that this proposal is perfect in every detail but it is, as I stated at the outset, commended by nearly every accepted authority as the most responsible by-and-large legislative effort to constructively eliminate one of the fundamental causes for the great social unrest and despair afflicting this country, substandard housing. By all reasonable rules of analysis and judgment of what should be a priority expenditure and investment for the good of all Americans, I believe this bill merits and I hope it will receive the overwhelming approval of this House.

Mr. NIX. Mr. Chairman, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 before us today is an extension and expansion of legislation that began with the Housing Act of 1949. With that act we set up a national goal—a decent home for every American. With this act we can travel a long way along the road to realizing that goal. The cost is relatively modest, considering the complexity of the task. And the need is unmistakable.

President Johnson outlined that need in his message on housing and cities a few months ago. He spoke of recapturing the promise of the American city by surmounting the problems of obsolescence and despair. Obsolescence because our cities are growing faster in population than our ability to build enough decent housing, while older buildings sink into decay. Despair because squalid surroundings breed misery and hopelessness—a hopelessness almost beyond the comprehension of those of us who have never had to come home to sagging floors, falling plaster, and plumbing that would not work.

For the poor, the elderly, the handicapped, the displaced, and families with moderate incomes, owning or renting a good house or apartment at a reasonable price is the first step on the road out of hopelessness. This legislation for the first time offers a chance for American families with low incomes to know the pride and responsibility of homeownership.

For those unable to own their homes, public housing that is pleasant and convenient to live in can bring new dignity. This legislation will more than double the supply of low-rent public housing in the next 5 years.

These are only two aspects of the housing bill that merit our endorsement. Taken as a total program for easing the mounting pressures on our urban areas, this bill represents the best hope of our cities, and a chance to make that hope a reality.

Mr. ROONEY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, H.R. 17989 represents a comprehensive effort to meet the critical and urgent needs of the Nation's cities spelled out so eloquently by President Johnson. Never has the recognition of the urban crisis been so great, and never has the legislative response, exemplified by the bill before us, been so far-reaching. The Committee on Banking and Currency has performed a valuable service for the House and for the Nation by writing this historic housing and urban development legislation.

I direct my remarks to a section of the bill that has not received a great deal of publicity but which offers great promise toward solving the problems of slums and blight in our cities. I refer to the creation of a neighborhood development program in the urban renewal legislation as provided by section 401 of the bill. During the course of the hearings there was widespread support for this provision. Mayors and urban development professionals praised this new program.

To appreciate what the neighborhood development program is, and how it differs from the present urban renewal program, it is necessary to have an understanding of the existing renewal program.

Normally, a locality designates a blighted area and applies to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for funds to prepare the necessary urban renewal plan and other pertinent data. The separate planning period usually takes about 2 years, although it is often 3 years from the time an area is designated to the time the project actually begins to acquire land, rehabilitate homes, install improvements, and undertake other activities. The project is financed in its entirety through a grant reservation that is initially based on estimates made prior to planning and which are refined when planning is completed.

Consequently, the present program requires that an urban renewal plan and a financing plan be prepared to cover a broad range of activities that will be carried out over a period of several years. Once the plans are approved and activities begin, changing circumstances over a period of time often call for revisions of the urban renewal plan and adjustments in the financing plan. Very often the changes require grant increases. This is to be expected, and properly so, in a complex program that has significant impact and which necessarily takes several years to complete. Given the dynamics of urban development processes, the program has worked well.

However, the urban renewal program has its limitations. A project must be big enough to have an impact but small enough so that the whole project can be planned in detail in advance of project execution. This includes financial considerations as well as physical planning. The system poses difficulties for communities seeking renewal activities in large areas of critical need.

Moreover, cities have found that it is often difficult to develop plans for large areas when it is known that conditions will change over a period of time. Particularly, in rehabilitation there is a need to begin quickly without lengthy planning delays during which properties may further deteriorate—even to a point where the intended rehabilitation becomes infeasible.

In many cities it is essential that some activities begin immediately upon designation of an area. This often precludes utilization of urban renewal because of its detailed planning requirements. While the present urban renewal program successfully meets the needs for which it was designed, our years of experience and the pressing needs of our cities require improvements to increase the flexibility of renewal mechanisms.

The neighborhod development program is the response to these needs. It has been designed to permit flexibility in dealing with changing conditions and to achieve the most effective and efficient utilization of available funds. It is an optional program inasmuch as localities have the choice of using it or continuing with the traditional program. Its most positive feature is its focus on flexibility of operation, permitting early action and early results.

A neighborhood development program may consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas that are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments. The requirements would be similar to those for the existing urban renewal program with a few major differences. They are:

First. Many activities not requiring detailed planning could begin immediately, while more detailed planning of future activities proceeds concurrently. For example, rehabilitation activities could begin immediately, assisted by Federal rehabilitation loans and grants.

Second. Only those activities that can be completed in a year will be initially funded, rather than entire projects that may take many years to complete. However, localities can anticipate receiving funds for subsequent annual increments as the work proceeds. The Congress customarily appropriates urban renewal funds on a 1-year forward funding basis, making it possible for HUD reserve funds for 1 additional year at the time an annual program is approved. This can be repeated as third year funds are reserved at the time the second year funds are committed; and the same pattern can be followed in future years as progress continues.

For example, let us assume that an area of 1,000 acres is covered by a neighborhood development program. During the first year a vacant site could be developed for low- and moderate-income housing; another area could see the construction of a new school; and in a third, rehabilitation could begin. During the second year a dilapidated area could be acquired and cleared while its residents are relocated into the housing developed during the first year; a commercial shopping area could undergo rehabilitation; and several neighborhood parks could be developed. This process could continue annually until the entire area is totally renewed.

The neighborhood development program would permit cities to adjust their programs to changing conditions. It would create greater opportunities for citizen involvement, since the planning process is a continuing one. Relocation would be more successful because the amount would mtach available housing resources. The new program will substantially increase the opportunities for neighborhood residents to remain in the area if they wish.

I believe this legislation recognizes the vital necessity of local public investment in improvements and facilities in renewal areas. Just as in the existing urban renewal program, the local share of costs may be provided in cash or through investments recognized as noncash local grants-in-aid.

In the new program a facility would be eligible for this kind of assistance if its construction began within 3 years prior to the date of the first contract covering the urban renewal area to be served by the facility.

Another change tightens the eligibility for noncash credit by requiring that a facility must actually be constructed or be under contract during the annual period for which credit is claimed. This change is desirable. It will provide an incentive to localities to install needed public facilities, such as schools, sewers, streets, and other improvements, early in the renewal process.

The amount of noncash credits to be allowed in any year will be limited to that amount required to meet the local share of renewal costs. Excess credits that have been deemed eligible would be applied to subsequent annual increments. In addition, pooling credit from existing urban renewal projects may be counted toward the local share of a neighborhood development program. However, excess credits from an annual increment may only be applied to subsequent annual increments of that neighborhood development program.

The neighborhood development program offers communities an opportunity to meet head-on the forces of blight in large areas. It offers new tools that have the flexibility to meet problems and opportunities. It will permit cities to make better use of capital improvement programing. Finally, it will enable the renewal process to respond to the initiatives of private enterprise to revitalize our cities.

It is a timely program. It is an action program. It merits the support of all of us in the Congress.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT] and the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] for the excellent job they have done in developing this legislation and in presenting it to the House.

I want to address myself at this time to the provisions of title X, the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968. Title X is a simple and feasible answer to two nationwide problems in property insurance requiring urgent attention.

One of these problems is the result of the practice of some insurance companies "red-lining" entire neighborhoods, which means almost automatic denial of insurance solely because of location regardless of the condition of the individual properties.

Such neighborhoods frequently are congested and economically depressed and blighted urban areas, characterized by structures in need of repairs and by vacant homes and stores.

Despite these conditions, large numbers of well maintained properties are also to be found in these areas. However, good properties as well as bad ones are denied insurance.

In these instances, good properties become bad properties and the blight spreads. Repairs and improvements cannot be financed if property insurance is not available, and businesses cannot be operated without credit, and credit is difficult, if not impossible, to come by without property insurance.

Title X would operate to end such "red-lining" by providing for physical inspection of properties to determine if they are insurable. In addition, such inspections would also establish what work must be done to make them insurable.

The title would also provide for a placement facility which would operate to help agents and brokers place policies on insurable properties with private companies.

This system of inspections and placement would function under statewide plans which the State commissioners of insurance would develop in cooperation with the private property insurance industry doing business in a State.

The States and the industry would be given an inducement to operate such statewide plans for making property insurance more readily available. That inducement is Federal reinsurance against property losses from riot and civil commotion.

This brings me to the second and less familiar nationwide problem in insurance, which, despite its importance, has received only scant attention. This is a problem of the unavailability of reinsurance.

Unlike the problem of the availability of property insurance for homeowners and businessmen, which is an old problem of seriously growing proportions, the reinsurance problem is relatively new. It was precipitated by the recent riots which have been striking cities across the Nation.

Insured losses from property damage by riots have already reached catastrophic levels. The record of losses since the Watts riot, and the threat of future riots has "dried-up" the reinsurance market.

This is where the private insurance companies buy reinsurance to cover catastrophe losses from hurricanes, industrial disasters, and riots. Reinsurers have made the conditions of reinsurance against losses from riots so restrictive as to be ineffective.

Private companies cannot afford to risk exposing the reserves they have for the ordinary perils. To protect these reserves, they may have to cancel, as some companies have already done, policies in force which have endorsements for coverage against riot losses.

All standard lines of property insurance, such as fire and extended coverage, homeowners' and commercial multiple peril, burglary and theft, inland marine, boiler and machinery, aircraft physical damage, among others, carry endorsements against losses from riots and civil commotion.

If cancellations of policies in force should become widespread, as is threatened, unless some measure is taken, a serious crisis could develop. Without insurance the flow of credit so essential to homeowners and businessmen would slow down and economic activity would falter.

To meet the impairment of this market for riot-loss reinsurance, the Federal Government would offer the private insurance companies reinsurance and would charge them a premium.

Riot losses would be shared three ways. The insurance companies themselves would take the first layer, in addition to paying a premium. The second layer would be taken by the States themselves. The balance of the riot losses would be the liability of the Federal Government.

Title X would remain operative for only a 5-year period after enactment. It is a temporary measure, but President Johnson has said it is essential to meeting the insurance crisis of our cities. I sincerely urge the House to enact this provision.

Mr. THOMPSON of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I rise to continue the dialog on H.R. 17989, with specific reference to the approach this bill adopts toward solving our Nation's severe housing shortage.

Since Jacob Riis awakened America to the squalid conditions in its slums, this Nation has mounted program upon program to expunge this urban blight. In its 1949 Housing Act, Congress affirmed the national goal of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family." Yet today, 19 years later, this goal has not been realized. The 1960 housing census informed us that 4 million urban dwelling units were completely dilapidated, 3 million were badly dilapidated, and another 2 million had serious code violations or were seriously overcrowded. Recent census studies indicate that these 1960 figures may have been underestimated by as much as one-third. These statistics were updated by the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, which observed:

> Housing grievances were found in almost all of the cities studied and appeared to be one of the most serious complaints in a majority of them.

It thus appears that the problem is still acute, and that a new and massive commitment to national action in housing is needed.

In order to meet the immediate and pressing need for decent, safe, well-constructed housing in which our Nation's citizens can live with a sense of pride and self-respect, I endorse H.R. 17989. But in supporting this bill we must not think that it alone can revitalize our urban areas. H.R. 17989 is but one approach toward resolving this country's immense housing shortage. And it is, for the most part, a strengthened version of the approach toward housing rehabilitation that this Congress has employed in its previous housing legislation. The increased allocations of funds and the more exact language of the 1968 Housing and Urban Development Act will greatly help to boost these programs' usefulness. But we must not forget to continue our search for other possible approaches toward lessening the housing shortage, alternatives which emphasize the involvement of private enterprise and individual initiative.

I call the Members' attention to section 107 of H.R. 17989; this section creates a National Homeownership Foundation which will provide technical and financial assistance to private and public groups organized to develop housing for lower income families. One of the bill's major new features, aid for homeownership, can do much to restore the urban dweller's commitment to his city. The individual who owns his home recognizes the worth of private property. Possessing a tangible stake in society, he has strong motivation to preserve and protect it. Investigations of the Commission on Civil Disorders showed that citizens who owned their own homes were not among those participating in riots. Clearly, then, the bill's provisions for homeownership provide important incentive for responsibility and stability.

The Homeownership Foundation could be a vehicle for trying out new methods of providing housing, a testing ground for new ideas which, if found successful, can then be implemented on the national level. Paul N. Ylvisaker, commissioner of the department of community affairs in my own State of New Jersey, in a statement submitted to the House Banking and Currency Subcommittee on Housing, said:

> Radical departures are called for, both in reshaping our old communities and in designing the new, if we are to break loose from the "deadend" we may have reached.

Section 107 would allow innovative departures to be made on a community basis where their functioning could be observed and their significance appraised. Through research with local projects, we can search for new ideas both for increasing the volume and beautifying the design of the low-cost housing this Nation so badly needs.

The authorization in H.R. 17989 for additional funds for the model cities program is an essential part of the legislation. The model cities program, designed to coordinate action for a comprehensive and concentrated approach to reverse the process of deterioration in our cities, is at a crucial stage. Planning which incorporates both neighborhood participation and technical expertise is now underway. But whether these plans can be implemented with impact great enough to thrust at the heart of the problems in the urban areas depends on the sufficiency of Federal funds allocated. The Federal Government has made a promise through the model cities program which it must now keep. Should it fail to follow through with adequate authorizations, its initial concern will have been wasted. But, more importantly at this critical point in our Nation's history, our Government's total credibility in its fight to save our cities will suffer severely.

The cities' physical decay has reached alarming proportions. And the urban deterioration affects not only the ghetto dweller but every American citizen. Therefore, our support of the housing and urban development bill is not an act of charity but one of practical wisdom to save our Nation's cities.

Mr. CORMAN. Mr. Chairman, I wholeheartedly support title X, the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, and I want to stress the critical need for the provisions of title X.

As President Johnson said in his message last February, an insurance crisis faces most of our cities. The crisis is in the lack of property insurance to the homeowner and businessman and in reinsurance to the insurance companies themselves. Owners of private and business properties in certain sections of the cities have been unable to buy necessary property insurance, like fire and extended coverage, despite the fact that their properties met underwirting standards of insurability. Location alone was the barrier to insurance. Insurance companies themselves have found it increasingly difficult to buy reinsurance against catastrophe losses from riots because of the recent history of such losses. The threat of future losses of this kind has impaired the market for reinsurance.

The problem for the property owner has been in the making for some years. Property deteriorates with age. Unless it is maintained, insurers will not write standard policies for fire and extended coverage and other lines of property coverage. As the areas of property deterioration grows, insurance companies have in the interest of economical operation, blocked out whole neighborhoods from property coverage.

Owners of well-maintained properties are denied coverage as well as others. Property deterioration and urban blight grow when owners of residential and business properties cannot finance repairs. Without property insurance to protect their interest, lenders will not extend credit. The problem of the availability of insurance thus becomes aggravated because of the importance of insurance to credit.

The other problem, the lack of availability of reinsurance to the insurance companies, was brought on by the succession of riots and civil disturbances in urban areas across the Nation. Insured property losses from catastrophe perils like hurricanes and riots are usually reinsured by private insurance organizations specializing in reinsurance. All standard lines of property insurance—fire, homeowners, and commercial multiple peril, burglary and theft, inland marine, boiler and machinery, to mention a few—usually carry extended coverage endorsements to protect the owner from catastrophe losses.

The riot losses which reinsurers have had to pay to primary insurers for the benefit of their policyholders has in recent months made them wary of writing that type of reinsurance. Without reinsurance, primary insurers cannot continue to assume the liabilities from their regular risks as well as catastrophe risks. There are few options to the primary insurers. They can refuse to write new business. They can refuse to renew old business. They can cancel old business. Indeed some companies in some areas of the country have been doing one or more of these already to protect themselves against the threat if insolvency in the event of riots involving very large losses.

Without the protection from policies in these many standard lines of property insurance, homeowners and businessmen again are confronted with a credit problem. Only here, it must be recognized that the geographic area of concern is not only the inner-city area but the whole-city area.

Title X of H.R. 17651 meets these two problems through a cooperative Federal-State-industry program. This title in effect says to the States and the private insurance industry, which is regulated by the States, that if they will cooperate in developing plans for making essential property insurance available to homeowners and businessmen, the Federal Government will offer a reinsurance program for the private insurance companies.

The plans which the State insurance commissioners and the private property insurance industry are expected to develop must meet the criteria which are spelled out in considerable detail in the title. Among the important provisions of this plan is that no insurance risk will be written at a surcharged rate or will be denied essential property insurance unless there is first an inspection of the property by an inspection facility, without cost to the owner of the property, and a determination made that the risk is not insurable at the applicable premium rate. Another provision is that in addition to an inspection facility, the statewide plan will include an all-industry placement facility to help agents and brokers place insurance up to the full insurable value of a property among companies participating in the plan.

To all insurance companies participating in these statewide plans, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to offer reinsurance against loss from riots and civil disorders in standard lines of property insurance. The companies would be expected to pay a premium for such reinsurance and would also be expected to assume liability for a share of the riot losses that might be incurred. The respective States would also be expected to share in the insured riot losses. The Federal Government through its reinsurance fund would be expected to assume the cost for the balance of insured losses after the private companies and the States have met their share.

If insured riot losses do not exceed the level which was incurred by private companies during the 1967 riots, the reinsurance program of the Federal Government could, with good participation by the industry, be self-supporting from premiums.

Title X is thus in several ways a cooperative effort between the Federal Government, the separate States and the insurance industry to meet and solve the insurance crisis of our cities. In meeting this challenge, the title will help meet the overall crisis in housing to which the other titles of the bill address themselves.

I strongly urge my colleagues to enact title X, and support all of the provisions of H.R. 17989.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I should like to speak briefly on the full scope and operation of the important legislation before the Committee today.

The problems of America's cities today are certainly among the most serious and complicated in the history of our society. The lack of everything tangible—from employment to food—and the presence of everything intangible—from apathy to rebellion—is clearly seen in every large city in this Nation. The housing and urban development bill of 1968 makes an effort to deal with these problems in a solid and constructive way by attempting to improve living conditions within the ghetto and urban areas, by attempting to give their inhabitants a material stake in the areas they now only inhabit, and thus bring a sense of concern to the city dwellers. For only when those who live in the cities care about the cities will there be any real progress in alleviating the indifference and unrest that pervades the intercity.

EARLY PROGRAMS INADEQUATE TO HOUSING NEEDS

Nearly all estimates agree that 6 million housing units must be completed in the next decade, if we are to realize progress toward the goal of providing every American family the opportunity to live in decent housing. This bill launches a far-reaching 10-year program of rehabilitation and construction of housing for low- and moderate-income families which will attain this goal. Its general aim is to provide, in the words of the Housing Act of 1949, for "a decent home and suitable living environment for every American family." Furthermore, it attempts to foster both homeownership and private participation in housing programs. It therefore places a great deal more responsibility upon the residents of the intercity. It is in this latter area that I believe the 1968 bill makes its most important contributions.

There have been other efforts in the past to improve urban housing conditions, but all have left much undone. Beginning as early as 1892 Congress authorized a study of slum conditions in urban areas. It was not until 1933, however, that any real legislation took place. At that time loans were authorized and programs begun, but little advantage was taken of the opportunities. Later in the thirties Federal aid was begun in the areas of public housing and low-rent housing, which were financed, constructed and managed by public housing authorities and rented to tenants at reduced rates. Although somewhat successful these proved inadequate.

Hence, in 1949 legislation was passed which purported to provide for a "comprehensive attack" on slums. Slum clearance and redevelopment was to be a cooperative effort by local agencies and private developers. The former would plan and purchase the necessary land and private builders would develop it.

In 1952 it was found that 6.8 million dwellings still had to be replaced or rehabilitated. Since that time there have been many programs enacted which have attempted to provide those 6.8 million dwellings. Among the most important was the 1954 Slum Clearance and Urban Renewal Act. This act began to provide many of the ideas which are still in use today including programs of FHA mortgage insurance for loans to finance urban development, grants for long-range planning and general increase in emphasis on making private enterprise a more important part of housing programs.

Another important step forward came with the rent supplement program which was enacted in 1965. It provides payments to tenants to help pay rents to private lessors. Its theory, which is expanded in this bill, is that private housing is at least equal in importance with public housing programs, and that the two must be combined to achieve the most effective range of responses. It aims to reduce Federal involvement to that amount of assistance required to obtain private involvement—no more, no less.

In addition to these two major programs there has been a large-scale program of FHA insurance below-market loans backed by FNMA to aid low- and moderate-income families to secure adequate housing. The 1968 bill continues and enlarges this program.

Let us sum up the results of all housing programs since 1949. FHA insurance for below-market interest rate mortgages has assisted 5.3 million families. The rent supplement program has assisted 2,526 families, with funds available for about 40,000 more. The urban redevelopment programs have completed 150,000 new or rehabilitated units, and 680,000 public housing units have been provided. Finally, there has been assistance provided for some 26,500 elderly people.

Thus, since 1949 assistance has been provided for a total of over 6 million dwelling units. In other words we have in the last 20 years produced as many units of housing as this bill proposes to see created in the next 10 years. Otherwise stated, this bill seeks to establish a framework for doubling the federally assisted production of housing to meet our country's needs.

PRIVATE INVOLVEMENT STRESSED

Viewing the 1968 housing bill in an overall historic framework we note major changes from the policies begun in the thirties. These changes, which are actually extensions of some of the principles enacted in the housing bill of 1965, provide for a greater emphasis to be placed upon private and local participation with the Federal Government in connection with projected programs.

This new direction is the result of a realization that deep Government involvement in housing programs—involvement which includes planning, building, and managing—simply does not produce a sufficient quantity and quality of response.

Thus, this bill turns to private involvement in three new ways. First, it is a recognition that in the planning and building stages, if one stays within the familiar pattern of behavior of contractors and designers he will be far more successful than if he attempts to set up a new system. Operation "Turnkey" which we shall discuss later, is an outstanding example of the success that has been had in this new approach. Second, there has been a realization that homeownership is an important element in causing persons to acquire a feeling of concern about their home and neighborhood. Third, we believe that by limited subsidies—both of mortgages and rents—local, private companies can be attracted to assume primary roles in redevelopment. To encourage this kind of private involvement, the Homeownership Foundation and the national housing partnership have been provided for in this bill. These two are perhaps the most important general contributions of this bill. We shall return to them shortly.

The bill itself may be broken down into four general areas: First, insurance in urban areas; second, aids to orderly urban development; third, housing assistance for low- and moderate-income families; and, fourth, strengthening institutions which furnish conventional home finance. Let us consider each of these areas individually.

INSURANCE IN URBAN AREAS

One of the most important sections of the present bill in that which establishes the National Insurance Development Corporation. This organization would provide reinsurance for those companies which insure businesses or residences in slum areas. Due to the higher risks of insuring within a ghetto area most insurance companies are, at present, either unwilling or unable to provide such insurance. Thus, the reinsurance is particularly aimed at areas which may have been or may be torn by riot and violence. Its purpose is to provide the security necessary to encourage individuals and businesses to build or improve in the intercity.

It has been the finding of this committee that increased deterioration in ghetto areas often stems from the lack of sufficient insurance. Existing businesses are unable to obtain credit from banks or other loan agencies in order to make additions or even necessary repairs. Thus there is deterioration of present facilities. Furthermore, the inability to acquire insurance often prevents new businesses from entering the area. Because they cannot secure insurance they are unable to obtain the necessary credit and are unwilling or unable to become self-insurors. Hence there is neither influx of investment nor improvement of existing businesses. If this is allowed to continue one can only expect that deterioration will be the rule, not the exception.

In a riot-torn area the problems are compounded even further. Uninsured businesses are unable to rebuild; businessmen with some but inadequate insurance are inclined to take what little they can salvage and if possible move to another area; and new businessmen refuse to build in a place where riot may again obliterate any investment made. The riot-torn area becomes an area unable to rebuild. Its deterioration, of course, can easily spread to adjacent sections of a city and thus cause even further blight. And all this is to say nothing of the personal losses suffered by owners and residents who may have had nothing to do with a riot but who are the victims of its destruction.

Hence, the importance of insurance to slum areas and in particular to riot-torn areas, cannot be overestimated. If one goal of the present urban programs is the redevelopment and rehabilitation of the intercity, another equally important one must be the prevention of further deterioration and blight during the interim period between the planning and the execution of new programs. By providing the necessary encouragement to improve existing conditions and to bring in new investment, the National Insurance Development Corporation can help to accomplish this second goal.

THE NIDC AND FAIR PLANS

The National Insurance Development Corporation, as authorized by this bill, will act as a reinsurance corporation designed to protect participating insurance companies from sizable losses in areas torn by riot. The participating companies will pay premiums to the corporation. The corporation will then use this capital together with funds provided by the States, to supplement funds provided by the insurance companies themselves to pay claims in riot areas. Thus a particular company will be required to pay only a certain percentage—for example 10 percent—of the claims of a riot-torn area; the remaining percentage will be paid by the NIDC and the States out of their funds. There is a $150 million ceiling on the amount the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development can borrow to pay reinsurance claims.

Closely tied to the National Insurance Development Corporation is a proposal which will encourage the private property insurance industry, in cooperation with State insurance authorities, to develop statewide plans to assure all property owners fair access to property insurance. These plans would be known as fair access to insurance plans—FAIR plans—and would make the acquisition more difficult than it is in other areas. To provide that the majority of insurance companies will cooperate with these FAIR plans, the bill states that all those companies which are provided with reinsurance by the NIDC must agree to the criteria set down in the FAIR plans.

Most of these plans deal with the area of inspection of properties requesting insurance. All properties applying for insurance must be inspected by an inspection facility and determined to be an uninsurable risk before a participating company can deny them coverage. This will insure that no one is denied insurance simply on the basis of the area in which he is located. Thus, in exchange for the service of reinsurance by the NIDC, an insurance company is required to equalize its criteria for acceptance and rejection of insurance requests.

The NIDC and FAIR plans, then, will accomplish two main ends. First they will serve to secure and thereby encourage commercial investment in riot-torn areas, and second they will stimulate residential rebuilding within these blighted areas. But more than this, they will make certain of the availability of insurance in all slum areas, regardless of riot. This will encourage new investment, will permit businesses to remain in good condition or to make additions, and will stop deterioration of large city areas.

AIDS TO ORDERLY URBAN DEVELOPMENT

In the past years there have been many projects which one might term urban redevelopment. One of the major drawbacks of these programs has been a lack of total design, a lack of a kind of overall scheme into which each program could fit, and from which each could understand its relationships to other, supposedly sister, programs. The present bill, I feel, represents an effort to try and create a "total design." It has brought to each participating program the same general goals and suggests the same general methods to be used. There has been a real attempt to eliminate duplication of efforts, and to encourage local and private participation and to start now. There is a total design for these programs, and that in itself is a great step forward from the completely independent project days of the past.

This bill expands authorization for three major urban improvement programs: The urban renewal, the mass transportation, and the model cities.

URBAN RENEWAL—THE NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

By authorizing the creation of neighborhood development program this bill has begun a new thrust in the urban renewal program. It has been found that the strong neighborhoods are the most successful in resisting deterioration and blight. This bill begins a program of working through these neighborhoods, centering more of the planning and constructing at the local level, with the aim of opening the door to more private involvement in housing programs. Instead of completely leveling a neighborhood and then beginning a full-scale housing project, thereby losing any sense of unity an area may have developed, the new bill will stress a more gradual development of a neighborhood. In this way the sense of community will hopefully be maintained and capitalized upon, while the neighborhood itself is improved.

In this vein there are several significant changes which differentiate this present urban renewal program from similar projects of the past. The first frees the flow of urban renewal funds for use on an annual basis rather than a long-term program. Under present law the execution of a loan and grant contract depends upon approval of a detailed urban renewal plan which might cover some 4 or 5 years' work. Experts feel that in many instances changing urban conditions may invalidate the plan before work is accomplished. Furthermore, an area is often left untouched while lengthy plans are being drawn up, and then is left in shambles—often for years—while building is proceeding. Under the new scheme, detailed plans could be limited to the year ahead, thus leaving greater flexibility for future work. Programs could also be opened up on a wider scale, not limited to small areas of complete renewal, and include several contiguous or noncontiguous areas. Thus it "has the advantage of utilizing urban renewal funds to meet current activities in many areas" rather than storing them for another day.

A second improvement in the urban program concerns rehabilitation. At present there is a limitation on the number of units a renewal agency can purchase and rehabilitate. This restriction would be dropped and greater emphasis placed on rehabilitation. Furthermore, there has been a change in the approach to rehabilitation. No longer will a public agency purchase a property and attempt to sell it to a bidder who would then rehabilitate it and sell it on the market. It has often been difficult to find buyers who are willing to undertake such rehabilitation, and thus the property must be scrapped. Under the new program a property would be purchased, rehabilitated by the agency subcontractors, and then sold on the market. Hopefully by these two changes, rehabilitation will be both extended and improved, and more usable units will be salvaged.

A third area of change concerns an interim program to take place during the period between the announcement of intended renewal and the commencement of that renewal. It is during this period that all improvement often stops in an area, and widespread deterioration sets in. In order to curb this deterioration Federal funds have been authorized to be used in the repair of streets, private property and playgrounds, the collection of trash and the demolition of dangerous areas. A further factor here is the intent to use the unemployed of a particular area to help during this interim period.

A fourth consequence of the present bill would require that the majority—50 pecent—of housing units in renewal areas be constructed to meet the ends of low- or moderate-income families. In addition it is suggested that the majority of renewal work and funds be spent in residential housing, thus providing decent homes for more families.

The present bill would also increase the amount of grant funds available for urban renewal by $1.4 billion on July 1, 1969. An increase of $350 million is also provided for urban renewal projects in model cities. These funds show an increased confidence in the renewal programs. I feel that the changes in the concepts of the projects—changes which give the program a more realistic approach to problems faced in developing neighborhoods—warrant this increased confidence.

MASS TRANSPORTATION AND MODEL CITIES

In two other areas of general concern to urban problems, this bill makes significant statements. In the model cities and mass transportation sections, additional funds have been appropriated to continue both research and development. For the model cities program an additional $1 billion for 1970 has been appropriated for actual programs with another $12 million for planning and research. In the transportation program there has been a new appropriation of $190 million. The fact to note here is that the committee considers both these programs worthy enough to be continued, and it considers funds appropriated for research and for present programs equally important.

ASSISTS TO LOW- AND MODERATE-INCOME FAMILIES

The third major area to which we turn concerns housing assistance for low- and moderate-income families. It has long been known that the most urgent and serious problems in our slum areas stem from the lack of decent housing for intercity residents. Many types of programs have been tried in the past, and as we have seen all have left much undone. Nonetheless, we have learned from the shortcomings of past projects, and this knowledge has been put to use in planning the new bill.

As I have already stated, the present bill attempts to emphasize two new areas of housing for individual families: homeownership and private participation. It has been found that one of the major shortcomings of the public housing programs has been that a majority of tenants do not take an interest in the residences in which they live. They feel no stake in the community. It does not belong to them, and likewise they feel that they do not belong to it. Homeownership, it is hoped, will remedy this situation. It will give to the individual homeowner a sense of concern for his home and its surrounding; it will encourage him to participate in community action which might affect his home; and it will also give him a personal satisfaction and sense of importance that can only come with owning a home.

Private participation will work toward many of the same ends. By private participation I mean programs such as the use of a private mortgage market, the use of private contractors and management, and the encouragement of private initiative in beginning and continuing housing programs. Such private initiative and involvement will shift from the Federal Government the primary burden of furnishing funds and manpower. The housing projects which have made use of private involvement in the past—projects such as Turnkey and the rent supplement program—have been the programs which have been most successful. Their success is measured not only in their material gains. Not only have they accomplished a great deal in terms of the number of homes provided, they have also instilled in builders and developers a heightened concern by making them the principle agents in the restoration of their cities.

HOMEOWNERSHIP

An important feature of the bill is that it will require far less public assistance than previous projects. Thus it appears that the homeownership program appears will be less costly and, in all probability, far more successful than past programs.

Another facet of the proposed program would be to authorize the FHA to qualify home buyers for the benefits of mortgage insurance despite financial inability of the purchaser to carry the full amount of monthly payments at the FHA established market rate of interest. In these cases the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be authorized to make up the deficiency through monthly mortgage assistance payments. These assistance payments would be the difference between the monthly payment due and 20 percent of the mortgagor's income, with the limitation that in no case could the payments exceed the actual payment due and a hypothetical payment computed at an interest rate assumed to be 1 percent. To limit the program to lower income families it would be required that 80 percent of all subsidies would go to those having incomes lower than an established limit. In the computation of income a deduction of $300 would be allowed for each minor, and in the computation of assistance needed the amount would be determined from the standard of living in a particular neighborhood. Every 2 years the mortgagor's income would be checked and assistance payments adjusted if necessary; this will permit the mortgagor to assume full payments if possible, thus in the end purchasing his own home.

In addition to the subsidies there is a further effort to help those families who, because of poor credit histories, have been unable to obtain mortgage financing to purchase homes. There would be an attempt to search behind these histories and to determine whether delinquent accounts were ultimately paid, or whether extenuating circumstances were involved. In short, the committee reports that more flexible rules for FHA credit approval should be applied.

THE NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

One of the most important sections of the bill is that which authorizes the creation of the National Homeownership Foundation. The purpose of this foundation is to encourage private and public organizations at the national and local levels to provide increased homeownership for low- and moderate-income families. The bill recognizes that there are many private organizations which not only wish to provide help in the housing area, but which in many ways can be far more effective than can Federal agencies. Thus, the creation of the Homeownership Foundation is a move to provide a central agency other than the Federal Government to which other organizations can turn for help. Its board of directors would be chosen from men in fields which would be of particular importance to housing problems: finance, business, organized labor, nonprofit housing agencies, and others. It would thus be in a position to be not only of financial help but also of technical assistance.

The Foundation, then, would be a nonprofit organization whose major purpose would be to provide technical and financial advice to private organizations concerned with housing problems. It would also provide short-term loans to cover the cost of preconstruction engineering, and legal and architectural expense in connection with proposed housing projects. A third area of concern would be to attempt to encourage the organizaton of additional private bodies for housing work. Loans would be available to such bodies to cover organizational expenses. Another interest of the Foundation would be the promotion of research and innovation of new ideas and techniques in the field of low-cost housing.

In all these activities the Foundation would coordinate with the Federal, State, and local programs, but would have authority to extend its power beyond the private sector. It would depend largely upon private donations but at the outset a $10 million appropriation would be authorized.

THE RENTAL PROGRAM

The rental program proposed here is a close relative, to the homeownership program in that both make use of private financing and ownership with Government subsidies, rather than providing for total public ownership. The procedure used is analogous to the homeownership program. HUD would be authorized to make, on behalf of a project owner, a substantial part of each payment due on the mortgage, thus providing for related reduction of rents. Assistance payments would again be the difference between payments due on the mortgage at FHA market rate and a hypothetical mortgage at the rate of interest assumed to be 1 percent. Rents reduced in proportion to such assistance would be considered basic rents and tenants would pay such rents or an amount equal to 25 percent of their adjusted income, whichever is greater. Again, the program would be limited primarily to lower income families, and would be reviewed every 2 years. Funds provided would be an additional $75 million in 1968, $175 million more in 1970, and $200 million more in 1971.

Public housing will also be increased under the present bill, to make up the gap left by the other programs. There are at present, or will be in the near future, a little over 730,000 public housign units. This bill would authorize the construction of some 375,000 more in the next 3 years.

However, an important shift of emphasis in the public housing program is seen on the Turnkey method of construction. Whereas under the old program a housing agency would first acquire property, have construction plans made up, and seek separate contracts with a number of firms to provide separate parts of the building, the Turnkey method does just the reverse. Private developers who own or have an option to buy land can contract to build housing on the land or rehabilitate the property for eventual sale to the agency. This means that private enterprise is being called upon to take larger and larger roles in solving urban housing problems. It also means, however, that they will be given a great deal more freedom to be imaginative and creative in design and construction. Again, there is a desire by the Federal Government to leave to private operations the functions they can best handle with autonomy. And this, perhaps, is the key idea of the entire bill.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

One final section of this bill which serves to strengthen the Federal-private partnership we have discussed is that which provides for the creation of the national housing partnerships. These partnerships would be federally chartered, private funded corporations whose purpose it would be to mobilize private investment and application of business skills in the job of creating low and moderate housing in substantial volume. The committee report states that no single housing entity accounts for more than one-third of 1 percent of the total market. It also states that few firms operate on a national level, and that public subsidy cannot provide the amount of housing called for in the next few years. Therefore this bill creates the nationwide private organization which is now lacking. National in scope, its sole purpose would be to produce low and modrate income housing; thus it could concentrate on this one field. With nationwide market power it could overcome many of the problems inherent in volume construction and purchasing. It would act as a partner with private parties interested in providing low cost housing, and would reduce liability and expense for them. Thus it would encourage private participation in the housing field. Further, it would provide first class personnel to act as advisers to housing projects undertaken by private firms. It therefore brings together private and Federal resources to garner the most useful effects from both.

I feel it is important to reemphasize the two foundations which this bill authorizes—the Homeownership Foundation and the national housing partnerships. For in these two areas comes the major new thrust of the 1968 act. No longer are we working through a single, enormously complicated agency which cannot hope to understand or cope with the small but important problems that make every housing project different from every other. By working toward homeownership this bill immediately takes the emphasis off public housing and places it on individual families—the ones who are most concerned. And by working through partnerships which will encourage private participation in the low-income housing market, emphasis is placed upon local and individual planning and control, an approach which will reduce waste, encourage creativity and open the door to more realistic and livable communities.

ASSISTANCE TO INSTITUTIONS PROVIDING MORTGAGE FINANCING

The housing bill before us provides for the strengthening the two institutions which have been the bulwarks of the mortgage finance. The measure provides some assistance to the savings and loan industry. This institution which allocates about four-fifths of its $125 billion in savings and investments to mortgage finance has suffered badly as a consequence of tight money, a condition which has plagued, in varying degrees, our economy for the last 28 months.

Basically the bill does four things to strengthen the standing of the savings and loan industry. First, it enables savings and loans to raise capital through the use of modern instruments. Second, it authorizes savings and loans to make loans for home and equipment. Third, it empowers savings and loans to make mobile home loans. Finally it adopts the sound approach taken by the Senate in its version of the housing bill by granting very limited added powers in four other areas.

This bill also provides for a fundamental reform in the organization and structure of the Federal National Mortgage Association—FNMA. This institution has been a primary source of liquidity in the mortgage market through its important secondary market operations. However, in the last 2 years it has become apparent that FNMA's secondary market operations could not serve its two masters; the Bureau of the Budget which sought to restrict FNMA purchases of mortgages in order to hold down budget expenditures was directly at odds with the organizations and individuals who looked to FNMA to furnish them with a reliable secondary market in which they could sell their mortgages.

Title VIII of the pending housing bill would partition FNMA. The secondary market operations of the existing operation would come under a privately owned and controlled FNMA. The remaining functions would be placed under a new Government National Mortgage Association—GNMA.

The privately owned FNMA would differ from the existing organization in three important aspects:

First. Its level of purchases and expenditures would not be included in the Federal budget.

Second. It would be empowered to issue and market PC's backed by pools of Government-insured mortgages.

Third. It would be empowered to issue subordinate obligations similar to "capital notes" issued by banks in an amount equal to two times the sum of capital, surplus, and retained earnings.

These alterations would free FNMA from the restraints which have prevented fully effective operation. They will relieve FNMA's secondary market purchases from the restraint to which they, as part of the Federal budget, were subjected during times when Federal expenditures had to be cut. It is significant to note that such budget cuts were typically necessary during periods of money tightening—the very periods during which the housing and home finance industry most needed assistance.

It will also free FNMA from reliance on Treasury borrowing as the major source for financing secondary market purchases. Although the pending bill does not empower FNMA to purchase conventional mortgages, if it passes I look for a follow-up action to enable FNMA to purchase such instruments, pool them, and sell participations in them secured by a guarantee from the FNMA that the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government stands behind the payment of these obligations.

In fiscal 1966, a portion of which was during the period of utmost stress, FNMA purchased about 86,000 mortgages under its secondary market activities. If this legislation passes we estimate that in fiscal 1969 FNMA will purchase over 200,000 mortgages valued at over $3 billion.

Once this legislation is passed the only real limits on FNMA's activity will be its ability to raise money through the sale of its instrumentalities and, of course, the volume of mortgages offered it for purchase.

Mr. Chairman, the history of support in the House of Representatives for constructive and continued improvement in shelter and homeownership dictates our affirmative vote and strong support for this measure. I hope for and expect the addition of this bill as a new chapter in our history of housing.

Mr. FRIEDEL. Mr. Chairman, each of us today faces a test—a test of our true concern over the crisis that grips practically every urban area of our country. H.R. 17989 offers us a realistic set of tools for attacking the most serious problems of our cities. New programs, like homeownership, rental housing, and the housing partnership to enlist the support of the private sector give the cities new help for curing ills. Extension of recent imaginative efforts like the model cities program would continue the progress already begun.

I have followed the model cities program closely. The cities' early response and interest was encouraging. A new sense of hope, excitement and commitment is present in the 75 cities now planning model cities programs. Citizens, city governments, and private groups are planning together. For the first time, deep-seated problems like hard-core unemployment, poor education, run-down housing, and poor transportation are being considered as an entity. New relationships are being formed, a willingness to change old ways of doing business is apparent.

Today, we have the opportunity to affirm our faith in the progress that has begun with model cities. This bill would authorize $1 billion in funds for an additional year of the program, and provide $350 million in essential urban renewal funds for these cities. For the 75 cities now planning, and the others that will be chosen this year, our action today is crucial. Congress' support for the model cities program in the past has been less than adequate.

As President Johnson said in requesting model cities authorization this year:

> In the cities' struggle for survival, we dare not disappoint them again. We must demonstrate that they can rely on continued Federal support.

I ask you to demonstrate that support today by voting for this legislation. I know from personal experience how much this program will mean to my own city of Baltimore and I think it would be even better if we could expand this program.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, are there any other amendments to title IV? I ask unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of title V.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title IV?

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, had come to no resolution thereon.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may be allowed the privilege of revising and extending their remarks and including therein extraneous matter.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION TO FILE CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 16703, CONSTRUCTION AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS

Mr. PRICE of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the managers on the part of the House have until midnight tonight to file a conference report on H.R. 16703, to authorize certain construction at military intallations, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 1658)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 16703) to authorize certain construction at military installations, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

HIGHLIGHTS: House received conference report on Interior appropriation bill. House committee reported co-op tax exemption bill. House passed housing bill. House Rules Committee cleared supergrades and pine-gum price support bills. Senate passed dairy indemnity bill. Senate passed wilderness bills. Senate committee voted to report farm bill. Senate committee voted to report measure to establish commission on hunger.

HOUSE

1. APPROPRIATIONS. Received the conference report on H. R. 17354, the Interior and related agencies appropriation bill (H. Rept. 1664). A table reflecting conferees' action on items relating to Forest Service is attached to this Digest.

2. HOUSING. Passed with amendment S. 3497, the housing bill (pp. H6198-302, H6197-8). Agreed to an amendment by Rep. Stephens to establish the Self-Help Housing Land Development Fund to be used as a revolving fund. Rep. Stephens stated the purpose of the amendment "is to provide some guidance through the Farmers Home Administration for the people who are planning to provide self-help housing for themselves" and the amount of money involved is $1 million for the first year, $2 million for the second year" (pp. H6223-5). A motion by Rep. Brock to recommit the bill was rejected by a vote of 217-193 (pp. H6265-6). Conferees were appointed (p. H6302). A similar bill, H. R. 17989, passed earlier with amendments by a vote of 295-114, was tabled.

3. COOPERATIVES. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee reported without amendment S. 752, to amend the Interstate Commerce Act to clarify exemptions with respect to transportation performed by agricultural cooperative associations for nonmembers (H. Rept. 1667). p. H6320

4. HONEY. A subcommittee of the Agriculture Committee "considered and passed over without prejudice H. R. 16455," the honey promotion and research bill. pp. D658-9

5. INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT. The Banking and Currency Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 16775, to provide for increased participation by the U. S. in the International Development Association. p. D659

6. LANDS. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 4530, amended, relating to the issuance of patents for lands held under color of title to liberalize the requirements for the conveyance of the mineral estate; and H. R. 13797, amended, to authorize the sale of public land not exceeding 120 acres which contains some land which may be cultivated. p. D659

7. PERSONNEL; VEHICLES; PINE-GUM. The Rules Committee reported resolutions for the consideration of H. R. 15890, to provide for additional positions in certain executive agencies; S. 2658, relating to vehicle weight and width limitations on the Interstate System, in order to make certain increases in such limitations; and S. 2511, to maintain and improve the income of producers of crude pine gum, to stabilize production of crude pine gum. p. H6321

8. PUBLIC WORKS. The Public Works Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) S. 3710, to authorize the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control. p. D660

9. WATERSHEDS. Received from this Department plans for works of improvement on various watershed projects; to Agriculture and Public Works Committees. p. H6320

CORRECTION OF THE RECORD

Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of Monday, July 8, the last sentence of a statement made by me on page H6110 is incorrectly recorded. I ask unanimous consent that this sentence be corrected in the permanent RECORD, as stated below:

For Inez, who has stood by me, so steadfastly and helped me so much, and for me, let me thank each of you with all sincerity, from the bottom of a grateful heart.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

(Mr. JACOBS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend his remarks, and to include extraneous matter.)

[Mr. JACOBS' remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

BIAFRA—A HIDEOUS PROBLEM

(Mr. DOW asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOW. Mr. Speaker, an immense and monstrous situation exists in Biafra, where something like 2 million people are faced with immediate starvation. This is the principal problem spot in the world today.

I have written to Secretary Rusk urging that our delegation at the U.N. seek to enlist a U.N. effort directed at preventing starvation in Biafra. It seems to me that here is a place where the Nations of both the Communist and free worlds could join together in a united endeavor to relieve this most hideous manifestation of human misery.

Such cooperation would restore the prestige of the U.N. It would prove that cooperation between the worlds is more effective than rivalry.

Were the two worlds to join in the endeavor to relieve starvation in Biafra, I believe that the technical excuses which are now offered for not helping would instantly disappear.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 12120, JUVENILE DELINQUENCY PREVENTION AND CONTROL ACT OF 1967

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker. I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 12120) to assist courts, correctional systems, and community agencies to prevent, treat, and control juvenile delinquency; to support research and training efforts in the prevention, treatment, and control of juvenile delinquency, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky? The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. PERKINS, PUCINSKI, BRADEMAS, CAREY, WILLIAM D. FORD, MEEDS, AYRES, ASHBROOK, QUIE, and GOODELL.

SERMON: "I CANNOT CONDONE CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE"

(Mr. JONES of Missouri asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JONES of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I listened to my colleague, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HULL] when he asked permission to extend in the RECORD a sermon delivered by Reverend Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in St. Joseph, Mo., who was formerly a minister in the district that I represent. He pastored two churches there and I learned to respect Dr. Fulbright and to enjoy his sermons, expressing views with which I generally concurred.

I am urging all Members to read this sermon that Representative HULL has asked to be inserted in the RECORD today.

The text of that sermon was taken from the third chapter of Titus in which it is recorded:

Remind them to be submissive to rulers and authorities, to be obedient, to be ready for any honest work, to speak evil of no one, to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and to show perfect courtesy toward all men.

The subject of his sermon was "I Cannot Condone Civil Disobedience." I would like to read just one short paragraph from that sermon which Dr. Fulbright delivered.

He said:

I cannot believe any person has the right to determine which civil laws he will obey and which he will not obey—even if he believes certain laws are unjust or unconstitutional!!

We need more ministers and more preachers like Dr. Fulbright who believes in law and order and who preaches it from his pulpit. He says the church is losing its tradition by thinking the Kingdom of God can come about by spreading social and economic pacification. The main purpose of the church is to try to win souls for our Lord, Jesus Christ.

More power to preachers like Dr. Fulbright.

MEMBERSHIP AND SENIORITY ON THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON INTERNAL SECURITY

(Mr. ICHORD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ICHORD. Mr. Speaker, several Members have directed inquiries to me as the author of House Resolution 148, and to my office inquiring as to the effect of the resolution upon seniority and membership of the new House Committee on Internal Security, which House Resolution 148 creates. First, I would note that the procedural effects of the resolution are made very clear by section 4 of the resolution.

As to membership and seniority, these, of course, are matters to be decided by the House and the two parties respectively at the beginning of each session. This is true in the case of all committee assignments. But I do wish to make it clear that there is no intent on the part of the author to affect seniority and membership on the committee in any respect.

STRICT GUN LAWS ARE INVASION OF THE RICHTS OF SELF-PROTECTION

(Mr. CARTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER. Mr. Speaker, during the past 2 years terrifying riots have racked the cities of our land; and crime during the past 8 years has increased 88 percent. Lurid scenes of rioting, looting, and arson have been viewed on television screens throughout our country. Looters brazenly breaking store windows and carrying away merchandise, while police stand helplessly by, have been shown many times. As a result, fear stalks our land. The breakdown in law enforcement has become clearly evident to our citizens. Our people are convinced that protection of their persons, their property and their homes depends upon themselves. For this purpose, they have bought firearms by the hundreds of thousands during the past year.

Mr. Speaker, until we convince our people by appropriate governmental action that laws to protect people and property are going to be enforced, our citizens will view strict gun laws as an invasion of their rights of self-protection, as well as a breach of their constitutional right to "keep and bear arms."

PROTESTS DISCRIMINATION AGAINST RURAL AMERICA

(Mr. ZION asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ZION. Mr. Speaker, I have been concerned, since the release of the Kerner Commission report, about the increasing emphasis on urban blight and the need for urban housing. I have fully concurred with many recommendations in this report, especially as they relate to the need for job opportunities and the development of job skills through which individuals and families can escape the confinement of ghetto life. But, I am more concerned over the failure of the Kerner report or any responsible Federal agency to spotlight the rising and critical problems of rural poverty and blight.

Congress is now considering a multi-billion-dollar housing and urban development bill which is preoccupied with the cities and minimizes the plight of the small community and the farm. Some time ago, in order that I might better understand the housing needs of America, I attempted to put together some information on substandard or dilapidated housing. In the course of my research I requested current statistics from the logical source, the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This agency is charged with coordinating housing efforts in our country, analyzing needs, and supplying recommendations to the Congress. Their efforts along this line are embodied in the current major omnibus housing legislation we are now considering.

I was somewhat appalled to learn that the Department's major analysis of all housing in America carried a 1960 date. The statistics of this 8-year-old report are being utilized as a basis for current proposals and current operating guidelines. It is inconceivable to me that this vital agency, the recipient of many billions of dollars of taxpayer-supplied appropriations, could not supply me with more current information. Even so, the figures were startling.

I learned, for example, that of 58 billion housing units in America, 10 million of these were considered substandard. I was even more surprised to learn that 60 percent of these substandard or dilapidated units were not part of urban blight but were located in rural America. Of these 6.3 million substandard rural housing units, 4.8 were considered nonfarm, while 1.5 million constituted occupied farm dwellings.

This problem has not changed since 1960. Although the Department cannot supply me with accurate and current figures, I suggest that the ratio of rural to urban dilapidated housing has increased. Rural poverty is on the increase, rural unemployment is mounting. Reckless and disastrous administration farm policies are closing down the small farm. Job opportunities in small communities are becoming severely limited. Private enterprise has not been furnished many incentives to locate in rural America.

In the meantime, the cost of developing better housing in America, when undertaken by the Federal bureaucracy, continues to skyrocket. Figures supplied to me by HUD itself indicate that, through June of 1944, the average cost of developing a housing unit in America was $4,649. This increased to $12,660 for units begun under the Housing Act of 1949. A total of only 685,000 units had been developed by June of this year.

Costs are skyrocketing. Results have been meager. And now, immediately following an ill-considered emergency tax increase measure which contained a promise to reduce Government spending levels, Congress is handed a superambitious housing package calling for vast expenditures and a huge expansion of the power of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Rural America, which carries the bulk of America's substandard housing, will be asked to finance this further placation of the unrest and disorders that have run rampant in our major cities.

The bill does not limit itself to attacking America's housing needs. It launches a host of welfare and social service proposals formerly conceived to be in the domain of the community government and the private sector of the economy. The bill determines that families with incomes of $7,000 are entitled to housing assistance. It is even possible, under one interpretation of the language of the bill, to aid families with incomes of $10,000. The bill involves considerable competition with the private sector of the economy for financing, labor, and materials. The bill proposes to complete 6 million housing units in a fraction of the time our existing housing program has produced little over 10 percent of this figure.

The results will be chaotic. The inflationary pressures generated by this program will strike hardest at rural America. There are simply not enough tax dollars to carry out the long-range aims of this ill-devised program. It has been estimated that overall costs necessary to implement the Kerner Commission recommendations might exceed a trillion dollars. Most adding machines will not even record that many zeros.

I continue to emphasize that the solution to housing problems must lie with upgrading the lot of individual Americans. Our economy must be strengthened to meet new challenges. It must not be weakened by inflationary Federal spending programs. The full cooperation and resources of the private sector must be utilized effectively and efficiently. Job training programs must be developed under private industry's leadership. Job opportunities must be created, cataloged, publicized, and filled. Proposed administration programs offer little incentive to the individual to better his own lot. If opportunities are upgraded, families begin to prosper and can do much for themselves which the Federal Government now proposes to do for them.

(Mr. BERRY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

[Mr. BERRY'S remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. WYDLER. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently a quorum is not present.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 237]

Bell	Hansen, Idaho	MacGregor
Brademas	Hardy	Minshall
Brown, Calif.	Hawkins	Moore
Cederberg	Huil	Pickle
Cramer	Karsten	Resnick
Edwards, La.	Landrum	Rivers
Everett	Leggett	Tunney
Evins, Tenn.	McCulloch	Van Deerlin
Halleck	McMillan	Waggonner

The SPEAKER. On this rollcall, 406 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON RULES TO FILE CERTAIN PRIVILEGED REPORTS

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Rules may have until midnight tonight to file certain privileged reports.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

There was no objection.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 17989, with Mr. PRICE of Illinois in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Before rising on yesterday the Committee agreed that title IV, ending on page 107, line 22, of the bill would be considered as read and open to amendment at any point. Are there further amendments to title IV?

Mr. FINO. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that we revert to title III.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman requests unanimous consent to revert to title III. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FINO

Mr. FINO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. FINO: On page 81, line 2, delete the words "that are applicable" and substitute therefor "without regard."

Mr. FINO. Mr. Chairman, I will not take the time to go into great detail about this amendment. It is a technical and perfecting amendment. Its sole purpose is to strengthen the prevailing wage provisions applicable to the new supplemental insurance program. The new language with this technical change will make sure that the prevailing wage requirements of section 212 are not bypassed, as the old language would permit.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, we have no objection to the amendment and it is agreeable to this side.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. FINO].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. REUSS

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. REUSS: On page 107, after line 22 add the following:

"RELOCATION PAYMENTS

"SEC. 415. Section 114(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

"(1) by striking out the first sentence of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may pay to or on behalf of any displaced family, displaced individual sixty-two years of age or over, or displaced handicapped individual, monthly payments over a period not to exceed twenty-four months in an amount not to exceed $500 in the first twelve months and $500 in the second twelve months to assist such displaced family or individual to secure a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling.'

"(2) by striking out 'relocation adjustment' in the second sentence of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof 'additional'.

"(3) by striking out the second proviso in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: 'Provided further, That additional payments under this pargarph may be paid on a lump sum or other than monthly basis in cases in which the small size of the payments that would otherwise be required do not warrant a number of separate payments or in other cases in which other than monthly payments are determined warranted by the Secretary: And provided further, That no payment received under this paragraph shall be considered as income for the purpose of determining the eligibility or the extent of eligibility of any person for assistance under the Social Security Act or any other Federal Act.'

"(4) by inserting a new paragraph (3) as follows:

"'(3) In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may make a payment to a displaced family or individual, who does not receive the additional payment authorized under paragraph (2) and who is the owner of real property which is acquired for a project assisted under this title and which is improved by a single- or two-family dwelling occupied by the owner for a period of not less than one year prior to the initiation of negotiations for the acquition of such property. Such payment, not to exceed $5,000, shall be an amount which, when added to the acquisition payment, equals the average price required for a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling of modest standards adequate to size to accommodate the displaced owner, reasonably accessible to public services and places of employment and available on the private market: Provided, That such payment may be made only to a displaced owner who purchases and occupies a dwelling within one year subsequent to the date on which he is required to move from the dwelling acquired for the project: Provided further, That no such payment may be made if the owner-occupant receives a payment required by the State law of eminent domain which is determined by the Secretary to have substantially the same purpose and effect as this paragraph and to be part of the cost of the project for which Federal financial assistance is available.'."

Mr. REUSS (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, the minority has been supplied with copies of this amendment, and I ask unanimous consent that the amendment may be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

(Mr. REUSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I can quickly explain this amendment. It relates to relocation payments and would do for relocation caused by urban renewal and public housing what this body and the other body did earlier this month with respect to relocation payments for relocation caused by the Federal-aid highway program.

It does this in two particulars.

For homeowners, it provides that when a homeowner is displaced by an urban renewal or public housing program, a payment of up to but not exceeding $5,000 may be made which when added to the acquisition price paid for his home equals the average price for an adequate replacement home in his community.

Its purpose is to alleviate the very real hardship suffered by lower income homeowners who are displaced as a result of acquisition activities. Frequently they are elderly or have very limited incomes, and they are unable to buy or anywhere near buy a replacement home for that from which they have been displaced.

The amendment, which has the approval of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, would permit the payment of up to $5,000 if that is what is needed to enable the person to buy a replacement home. For example, if the old home was sold or condemned for $5,000 and if a comparable replacement home costs $12,000, the one displaced would be reimbursed to the extent of an additional $5,000, so that his out-of-pocket costs would be $2,000. That is precisely what was done in the case of the highway and expressway program.

The other provision has to do with those occupants who are displaced and who are renters. The present law gives them $500 for 1 year to meet the housing payments on a new rental structure. Under the amendment they would be given $500 each year for 2 years, or an additional $500 if that is what is needed, so that when added to 20 percent of their annual income it equals the average annual rental for adequate replacement housing.

This is less generous than the provision we adopted for highway displacement, where we provided $1,500 for a 2-year period. This provides only $500 a year for 2 years, or $1,000.

The two amendments are needed to assure that the benefits provided for displaced families and individuals under HUD programs will be consistent with those to be provided under the Federal highway program.

The minority has been furnished with a copy of this amendment. I have the impression that there is no objection to it.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WIDNALL. I should like to clear the record. I believe the gentleman said that this is less generous than the Federal highway program. It is more generous than the Federal highway program, is it not?

Mr. REUSS. Would the gentleman restate the question?

Mr. WIDNALL. I believe the gentleman said the amounts involved are less generous than those given under the Federal highway program; is that true?

Mr. REUSS. That is what I said. As for homeownership they are identical, $5,000 in either case. As for rental, they are less generous, in that the highway relocation program adopted by this body and the other body earlier this month provides for $1,500 payment over a 2-year period, whereas my amendment provides for only a $1,000 relocation payment over a 2-year period.

Mr. WIDNALL. I thank the gentleman. This is satisfactory so far as the minority is concerned.

Mr. TIERNAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

Mr. TIERNAN. I thank the gentleman for presenting the amendment. I believe it is needed.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

A slum has many elements, part of which is to be found in its physical appearance. Certainly this legislation before us today will not by itself solve the problem of slums in this country, but I do believe that it will assist in the effort to change our slums of despair into neighborhoods of hope.

Can we afford to offer hope in the fields of education and job opportunities and disregard the decay of spirit and life itself in the rat-infested ghetto? I think not. The problem which we are dealing with has no bounds. It is not restricted to one area or one color. It involves white people as well as black people, rural people as well as urban people.

The common characteristic of all slums is that it directly affects children more than anyone else. One-half of the poor are 21 or younger; 71 percent of all poor families have four or more children. How can we expect the youth of today to grow up respecting the law and its institutions when we seemingly disregard the jungle in which too many are forced to live? It is something to think about.

I would like to comment on a few of the excellent features of the bill. First and foremost, this bill is aimed at helping the poor to help themselves. It allows for the slum dwellers to rebuild their own neighborhood. H.R. 17989 contains provisions which call for increased employment opportunities for lower income persons in connection with these projects. The pride of accomplishment and the dignity which accompanies homeownership and its proper maintenance can eventually be transferred into a desire for accomplishment in other fields.

What we need is a renovation of slum areas, not just a removal of slum houses. But renovation all too often puts rental fees out of the reach of the poor. This is why the homeownership interest subsidies, the rental and cooperative housing interest subsidies, and the rent supplement programs which are contained in this bill are so important. What good does it do to help the poor clean up the physical aspect of their surroundings if it raises the rental fees so that the poor can no longer afford to live there? We are trying to help eliminate slums, not shuffle them around or transfer them to another neighborhood.

One of the basic goals of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 is to encourage the involvement of private industries in financing the proposed housing projects. It continues the emphasis of the past few years of increased reliance on private sponsorship and the participation of private enterprises in the financing and construction of housing. The Federal Government is seen as a last resort, following private and State contributions. This puts the seat of control on the local level. By involving private and State organizations first, it is also hoped that some of the redtape and cumbersome procedural requirements will be eliminated.

H.R. 17989 also provides Federal reinsurance programs in areas affected by floods and civil disturbances. Reinsurance losses would be shared by the insurance companies, the States, and the Federal Government. First of all, this bill provides that persons with property which is uninsurable because of physical hazards would be able to receive grants to bring their property up to reasonable underwriting standards. This would encourage local firms to insure these houses. Secondly, the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development would provide reinsurance to insurance companies for losses paid by them on claims resulting from riots or other civil disorders.

I do not believe that it is fair to punish a person who lives in the only area which he can afford by refusing to insure his home and his belongings. To deprive residents of the ghettos of proper insurance for small neighborhood business firms and retail outlets will only aggravate our problem of social unrest. To also deprive those who own or occupy well-maintained homes the insurance necessary for proper coverage will invite additional disturbances and the gravest of consequences. The insurance industry, as provided in this legislation, will pay premiums into a special national fund for the purpose of reinsurance in civil disorder areas.

This bill presents Congress with the opportunity to lead and to act in solving one of the greatest social problems that has ever confronted our Nation. The reinsurance feature of this bill is a positive step forward and I urge its acceptance.

(Mr. TIERNAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WILLIAMS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania: On page 96, line 10, make the comma after "$7,600,000,000" into a period and strike everything thereafter on lines 10 and 11.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, the way the particular section reads right now is:

Section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out everything in the first sentence after "exceed" and inserting in lieu thereof "$7,600,000,000, — which amount shall be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969".

The part which I want to delete continues—

Out of this $7.6 billion, it is my understanding that for low rental housing units only something a little more than $5 billion has been expended. That means for fiscal year 1969, the year we are in at the present time, we have over $2 billion to spend.

I believe it behooves us to take another look at this program next year before we do any appropriating of money for fiscal year 1970. The fact of the matter is that most of this $2 billion which is available for expenditure right now has been authorized for quite some time. If we had been moving ahead with the development of low rental housing units as we should have been, we would have spent more than $5 billion.

My whole point is that we have more than $2 billion to spend this fiscal year on low rent housing units. Let us take another look at this program 1 year from now, to see what kind of progress has been made by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Let us provide some incentive for them to get the job done. If results are obtained, then we can appropriate the $1.4 billion for fiscal year 1970.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the full urban renewal authorization provided in this bill is urgently needed. At the present time we have a backlog of 780 applications totaling $2.2 billion for the urban renewal program. Even with the funds becoming available this year, the applications will continue to come in. Hopefully the new neighborhood development programs will enable us to take care of a larger part of the backlog, but the full amount is still needed, particularly for use in connection with the model cities program.

Mr. Chairman, an amendment like this certainly is not in the best interests of the rehabilitation of these blighted and slum areas—areas which they call ghettos. Certainly nobody in this House would favor cutting out the urban renewal program in its entirety. That is exactly what this would do. I certainly hope that the Members will realize the harm this amendment would do if it were accepted. I hope the amendment will be defeated overwhelmingly.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. Yes. I will be glad to yield.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I would like to state that my amendment does not take one penny out of the urban renewal program. You just keep the full authorization in there through fiscal year 1969. The gentleman just made the statement that HUD has a backlog of applications which when financed will require the total amount of $2.2 billion. I am saying to you that, if we have that kind of a backlog in HUD, they are not doing their job because there are over $2 billion available now to fund these urban renewal programs. That is why my amendment will not take one penny out of this program, but, rather, will provide an incentive so that HUD can get busy and do this job and not have this tremendous backlog of funds. If they do the job, then we can authorize the $1.4 billion for fiscal year 1970.

Mr. BARRETT. I want to say this to the gentleman: I certainly respect him; he comes from the great State of Pennsylvania, but I do think that we should look into these amendments. The $200 million that the gentleman is speaking about is already committed. You would delay these programs no end. We are hopeful that we can move these programs along expeditiously. The longer you delay them the more costly they get.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. ASHLEY. I would like to ask the gentleman a question. We have had in the last day or so all kinds of statements about hopes, aspirations, and the necessity of not exciting false expectations. What does the gentleman's amendment do? Does it not in effect say to the cities, "Yes, we have authorized the model cities program, we have authorized urban renewal, but do not look too far ahead, do not look to or plan for 1970, because, as a matter of fact, the action taken by the House has eliminated $500 million for model cities in 1970?" How are they supposed to take this kind of action? Are they meant to have confidence in the Federal establishment for the ongoing model cities program and are they supposed to use their planning abilities for urban renewal when we take this kind of action as proposed by the amendment of the gentleman? I just do not understand it.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. Of course; I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I believe you know as well as I do that not one grant has been made under model cities or demonstration cities for other than planning purposes. Now, the amendment that I am proposing does not take one penny out of this program. This bill calls for $7.6 billion to be spent through fiscal year 1969. I am saying let us authorize that. Fine. Let us appropriate it, also. All I am saying is that HUD has had over $2 billion unexpended for the purposes for which Congress authorized this money. I am saying to you we have an agency that cannot move ahead with urban renewal. If they cannot move ahead with demonstration cities, let us give them something that will give them an incentive and which will produce results.

Mr. ASHLEY. The gentleman wants to be fair, I am sure, but——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chariman, I shall not consume the entire 5 minutes. However, before we close the debate on title IV of the bill I would like to have the attention of the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], and if possible the attention of the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS], as well as the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

Mr. Chairman, one of the most far-reaching provisions is contained in section 413, a section that deals with low- and moderate-income housing in residential urban renewal areas.

Section 413 amends and, in effect, repeals section 105(f) that the House enacted in 1949 to provide that, of the total number of housing units provided in all of the approved urban renewal projects in any community which are to be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses, a majority must be standard housing units for low- and moderate-income families or individuals with at least 20 percent of such total number being for low-income families or individuals only.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to establish a little legislative history on this very important section of the bill.

Would the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] and the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] who worked with me on this section, agree that section 413 represents the clear and unmistakeable intent of the committee to insist that hereafter far more low- and moderate-cost housing be produced in residential urban renewal areas than has been the experience to date.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I would like to say that in my opinion that is my understanding of the matter as it was considered in the committee.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. REUSS. I, too, absolutely confirm the interpretation of the gentleman from New Jersey, and commend him on his initiative in getting this very clear provision in the statute, so that the Department of Housing and Urban Development may have no misapprehensions about it.

Mr. WIDNALL. Would the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the distinguished chairman of the Housing Subcommittee, agree that with enactment of section 413 the Congress will be on record that future residential urban renewal projects must concentrate on producing low- and moderate-cost housing, as opposed to continued concentration on high-income residential luxury high-rise apartments?

Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania agree on that?

Mr. BARRETT. Yes, I do.

Mr. WIDNALL. Does the gentleman from Wisconsin agree that section 413 further represents the disappointment of the committee in the administration and administrative definition of the word "substantial" in my amendment 2 years ago, where "substantial" was defined as being as little as 20 percent?

Mr. REUSS. I would agree with the gentleman.

Mr. WIDNALL. Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania agree to that?

Mr. BARRETT. Yes.

Mr. WIDNALL. Would the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the distinguished chairman of the Housing Subcommittee, agree that with enactment of section 413 the Congress will be on record that future residential urban renewal projects must concentrate on producing low- and moderate-income cost housing, as opposed to continued concentration on high-income residential luxury high-rise apartments?

Mr. BARRETT. I certainly agree with the gentleman from New Jersey on that, and I want to say this also. I want to say there has been no harder worker to achieve this goal than the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey. The gentleman has worked exhaustively for years on this bill, hoping to get a number of the houses in the urban areas for the low- and moderate-income families, and still accomplish this objective, that the majority of the housing should go to the low- and moderate-income families. He has established that 20 percent of this money would go to the low-income families. I think the gentleman has done a good job along this line and it is my opinion that we have worked harmoniously in this committee to accomplish this purpose.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, would the chairman of the subcommittee agree that, based on past experience, the Congress and particularly our committee, should be supplied with annual reports on the experience and implementation of section 413 and given that assurance I shall not have to offer an amendment to section 413 along those lines before we finish work on title IV?

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I agree with the gentleman.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I certainly believe that the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey has made some very valid points, but the very fact that a request has to be made for updated information in order to determine whether or not Housing and Urban Development is living up to the intent of Congress bears out my contention that since HUD has over $2 billion to spend for the very purposes we are talking about here, during fiscal 1969, that we should certainly defer the 1970 authorization until we receive the necessary reports to see whether or not they are doing the job.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were refused.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to title IV?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 101, beginning in line 24, strike out "for each fiscal year such amounts as may be necessary" and insert in lieu thereof "not to exceed $100,000,000 for each fiscal year."

(Mr. BROCK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, the language in this bill represents one of the real problems that this Congress faces in its continuing desire to accept its responsibilities as a legislative body, because we are authorizing in the language, as it is written, the appropriation of "such amounts as may be necessary."

I would like to find out how much money that is. I do not believe any Member of this body can give me an accurate figure, nor do I believe any House of Representatives can live up to its responsibilities by making such an open-end authorization.

Therefore I am suggesting that we put a specific dollar limit of $100 million on this program on an annual basis for rehabilitation loans.

Specifically, in this particular section it allows the Secretary, after he has gone in and found that a particular home can receive a grant of $3,000, if that is not enough money, he can make an additional loan of up to $10,000 for a private home.

Mr. Chairman, I do believe that there should be some limit on the quantity of Federal funds that we involve in this particular program, and I very simply suggest a $100 million ceiling.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Tennessee, a very distinguished and able member of our committee—and we appreciate his services—presented this amendment to the Banking and Currency Committee, and we considered it thoroughly and defeated the amendment because we did not think it was in the public interest.

We have four Members opposing this bill in committee, and two of those Members are taking up a lot of time now going over the same things that they did in the committee—which is perfectly all right—they have a right to do that and their views are entitled to be heard and this House should consider it.

But I just want to say I feel like those who are opposed to the bill anyway and who are trying to defeat it will possibly be in the position of wanting to weaken the bill if they cannot defeat the purpose of it and we will have many efforts made to weaken this bill and to make it ineffective.

Mr. Chairman, this is a good housing bill. If we are for shelter in this country—shelter is just as important as food and clothing and for family life it is very, very important.

In order to have shelter in this bill for the people who are entitled to decent housing, this bill is absolutely necessary and any time we begin to weaken it here and there and in other ways, we are just making it impossible for the administrator of this good law, if it were to become a law, to do a good job and provide housing for the people who are entitled to decent housing in the United States.

I do not say that we should not consider everything that the opponents of the housing legislation claim or contend. But I think it is well to remember that the surgeon who wields a knife should want the patient to live. We have some surgeons on this bill who are attempting to wield the knife but who do not want the patient to live.

I just hope that the House will keep in mind and consider that the committee has done a hard job on this bill. They have worked over a period of weeks—a period of months. The gentleman from Pennsylvania, the distinguished gentleman [Mr. BARRETT], chairman of the Housing Subcommittee of the Committee on Banking and Currency, had hearings lasting weeks—4 weeks. Then after that the full committee had hearings as we normally do on a bill of this importance, and we had 14 long days and we discussed every part of this bill, every paragraph, every comma, every semicolon and every period. We went over it thoroughly.

I just regret very much that those who are opposed to the housing bill and who are opposed to housing legislation continue to delay the passage of this bill which is so vital and so important to our economy at this particular time.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PATMAN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BROCK. I just would like to ask the chairman of the committee how much money was spent in the past on this particular program?

Mr. PATMAN. I do not have those figures, but if the gentleman has them, I will accept it.

Mr. BROCK. If I am correct, I believe it is less than $50 million.

Mr. PATMAN. Well, anyway, this is just a matter of writing restrictions and limitations that are not necessary. In other words, we are giving a good program to the administrator but we would be hog-tying him all the way through.

Mr. BROCK. If the gentleman will yield further, if that philosophy were to apply, then what reason is there for our existence as a legislative body? Why do we not just turn over our functions to the Executive and he can get rid of the taxpayers' money?

Mr. PATMAN. No, there were only four Members who opposed this bill, and you happen to be one of them.

Mr. BROCK. Yes, I am opposed to this bill and this section illustrates one basic reason.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to say to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the gentleman from Texas, that he certainly is entitled to his opinion.

Yesterday I was quite amazed to hear some of the intemperate remarks made about the State of Tennessee.

I was very much surprised this afternoon to hear the distinguished gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] being described as someone who is trying to kill this bill. In the year and a half that I have had the pleasure of serving on the Banking and Currency Committee I think that Mr. BROCK has made some very fine contributions to all the bills and all the measures that have been considered by that committee. I do want to say that the only thing Mr. BROCK's amendment does is place a ceiling on expenditures. On many occasions this Congress has indicated clearly that they are against open-ended expenditures without any ceiling or any limitation. I think the only logical thing to do is to adopt Mr. BROCK's amendment.

We have already heard testimony on this same program that we have been spending only $50 million a year. The amendment would permit $100 million a year to be spent, or double the outlay. I think it is a very good amendment.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ST GERMAIN TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ST GERMAIN to the amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: Substitute the figure of "$150 million" for "$100 million."

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Rhode Island is recognized.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, in the present legislation we are expanding the scope of loans as well as grants, and, as has been pointed out in the debate on the amendment, $150 million would seem adequate at the present time in view of the amounts that have been utilized up to the present time. Nevertheless, this is a 4-year situation. There are those of us on the committee who feel that we would no doubt require a change within the next few years if we would go to $100 million, and I am asking the gentleman from Tennessee if he would at this time agree to the $150 million figure.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ST GERMAIN. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. I would like to point out that this is a revolving fund made available to the Secretary for use at his discretion, and a 4-year input of $150 million a year amounts to $600 million. It seems to me that that is, given the present level of program development and the present capacity of HUD to administer this program, considerably in excess of need. I wonder why the $100 million is not acceptable on the simple premise that it is certainly more than adequate for this year and the following year.

If 2 years hence this program comes up for renewal and we see an additional need, we could at that time provide what is needed. I wonder why we need to put $150 million in the bill when there is no obvious or current need. There is no stated need, according to the Secretary.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. I think the need is obvious. The need is apparent. If this legislation goes forawrd as we hope it will, we will be expanding our activities, and certainly I think the gentleman would agree with me that this in actuality is the best program we have and one of the most beneficial ones because it will avoid the necessity for replacing a great many homes in the future.

Certainly, as opposed to an open end as written—"such sums as may be required"—we are putting a ceiling on. If it is not used, fine. But if it is needed, let us have it ready and waiting for this purpose.

Mr. BROCK. If the gentleman will yield further, I am very grateful for his endorsement of the concept, and I appreciate that very much. I simply question whether or not we need to put this amount of money in at the present time, but, if $150 million is the best I can get in opposition to the very open end appropriation, obviously I would prefer some limit. I appreciate the gentleman's suggestion on that very much.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. ST GERMAIN] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I would like to address a question to the distinguished gentleman from Tennessee with respect to the cost of this bill. Yesterday, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JONAS] projected a 40-year cost of, I believe, $50 billion. What is the immediate fiscal year cost of this bill? I do not seem to be able to find it in the report.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, we have a total authorization in the bill of $6,400,000,000, and the budget estimate for 1969 is $900 million in authority. To be perfectly honest, I cannot answer the question of the gentleman, because the bill is very loose. I do not know if there is any way to give the gentleman a specific figure with the bill as written.

Mr. GROSS. Is that because this is an open end, come-and-get-it bill?

Mr. BROCK. There is a great deal of open end in the bill, and there is also a question as to when the money is going to be spent, and the number of years for which we are obligating ourselves in the various contract authorizations.

Mr. GROSS. This huge expenditure will entail the employment of additional personnel, I assume?

Mr. BROCK. There is no question about that, and as a matter of fact, in the bill itself there is a provision for additional employees for the Secretary.

Mr. GROSS. I thank the gentleman for his response. I was afraid that would be the answer I would get, that no one seems to know what the cost of this monstrosity is going to be. And that is not to reflect on the gentleman from Tennessee, who has been doing yoeman work in trying to put some sanity in this bill.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I am certainly going to yield to the gentleman from Texas in just a minute; but first I want to point out that yesterday I raised some question about the defective nature of the report that accompanies this bill. If the gentleman will wait just a minute, he will get his chance to answer.

The gentleman ought to be aware of Public Law 801 from which I will quote briefly. Section 11 of Public Law 801 says:

Each report, recommendation, or other communication, of an official nature, of any department, agency, or independent establishment of the executive branch of the Federal Government (including any corporation wholly owned by the United States) which—shall contain a statement, with respect to such department, agency, independent establishment, or corporation, for each of the first five fiscal years during which each such additional or expanded function, activity, or authority so proposed or recommended is to be in effect, disclosing the following information:

"(1) relates to pending or proposed legislation which, if enacted, will entail an estimated annual expenditure of appropriated funds in excess of $1,000,000 * * *

"(A) the estimated maximum additional—

"(i) man-years of civilian employment, by general categories of positions,

"(ii) expenditures for personal services, and

"(iii) expenditures for all purposes other than personal services * * *

I have read this report to the best of my ability, and I find not one scintilla of evidence that the Banking and Currency Committee made the slightest effort to conform to the requirements of Public Law 801. If there is any such evidence in the report, will the gentleman please point it out to me? The gentleman now has his opportunity to do it.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much. I cannot tell the gentleman anything he does not know, because the gentleman is a very able Member of this House and well informed.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. PATMAN. That is the truth. But now remember, on this bill the House has plenty of protection in this for the reason that this is not appropriating money, as the gentleman knows. It is not appropriating money. Not a dollar of money can be spent when this bill is passed by reason of the passage of this bill.

It will require an appropriation by the Committee on Appropriations. The Committee on Appropriations will take it up.

Mr. GROSS. Let me interrupt the gentleman right there to read the first sentence of Public Law 801, section 11: "Each report, recommendation, or other communication, of an official nature, of any department, agency, or independent establishment of the executive branch of the Federal Government," and so forth.

Where in the committee report is there any report or communication from the executive branch of Government?

Mr. PATMAN. The point is we are merely authorizing the appropriation. The Appropriations Committee will have hearings, and it will determine the need and the desirability.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. GROSS was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. GROSS. I do not seem to be able to get through to the gentleman that the agencies downtown are mandated by law to provide him with an estimate of manpower needs, but no such estimate from any agency or Department of Government is provided in the report.

Mr. PATMAN. Since you are not willing to be patient enough for me to give you a full answer, I will give you a brief answer.

Mr. GROSS. That will be the day, when you give me a brief answer.

Mr. PATMAN. You are a Member of the House of Representatives here, right here and now, and you are protected. If that report is not correct, you can make a point of order on this whole bill and send it back to the committee. The Ramseyer rule is a very fair rule.

Mr. GROSS. Does the gentleman remember that he went to the Rules Committee and got points of order waived for the consideration of this bill? What are you talking about?

Mr. PATMAN. Of course, that would be if we did not have the points of order waived. We had the points of order waived for the reason that oftentimes, in 180 pages of an Ramseyer rule presentation, there might be a period left out, or a comma, or a word misspelled or something like that and, of course, a point of order should not prevail. There is too much of a risk on a 340-page bill, including 180 pages of the Ramseyer rule.

Mr. GROSS. You had points of order waived on this bill because, among other things, you knew you were not conforming to Public Law 801.

Mr. PATMAN. No, we did not have that in mind.

Mr. GROSS. Just a minute. You received a communication from the chairman of the Manpower Subcommittee of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee last November reminding you that there is in existence Public Law 801, and you paid not the slightest attention to the fact that there is such a statute.

Mr. PATMAN. That is the first information I have had that he communicated with me. I have no recollection of it. If he did, I certainly did not receive it.

Mr. GROSS. It is convenient to forget somethings.

Mr. PATMAN. This House is protected, because the appropriation has yet to be made.

Mr. GROSS. This is not confined to appropriations. This says "each report," and pertains to any bill involving an expenditure of more than $1,000,000. It absolutely is not limited to appropriation bills.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. The gentleman does not contend that Public Law 801 prevents the House from considering a bill the report on which does not contain the information referred to in Public Law 801?

Mr. GROSS. Certainly a point of order could have been lodged against the consideration of the bill if the chairman had not gone to the Rules Committee and gotten all points of order waived. Of course any Member could have made a point of order in the absence of that rule.

Mr. PATMAN. The gentleman wants the House to pass the bill, I assume. If he does, why noto expedite the bill?

Mr. GROSS. No; I do not want this monstrosity. But that is beside the point.

I say to you that you deliberately went before the Rules Committee to get points of order waived for this and other reasons.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK], as amended.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BROCK) there were—ayes 48, noes 34.

So the amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK. On page 104, after line 13, add the following new subsection:

"(e) Section 312(a) of such Act (as amended by the preceding provisions of this section) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, no loan shall be made under this section to any person whose annual income, as determined pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Secretary, exceeds $7,500.'"

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I can explain this very briefly. Yesterday this body put a ceiling on the amount of income that people could have in order to receive help under the homeownership program and the rent supplement program of 130 percent of the level, in the given area, of low-income housing or public housing. This particular section deals with a rehabilitation program which has done in some areas a great deal of good. It works like this: If an area is defined by the Secretary as being qualified, an individual in that area can receive a $3,000 grant to rehabilitate his home. If that is not adequate and if he is qualified, he can receive up to a $10,000 loan.

The problem is that this bill places no strictures on the Secretary whatsoever in granting a loan. He can define a geographical area and give loans to virtually everybody in that area. I would suggest again, in the interests of rifle shooting this bill into the area of need, into the low-income families, that we need to preclude high-income participation, just to require and enforce the intent of this body that the bill be designed to benefit those who need the help.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield

Mr. BROCK. Yes. I am glad to yield to the chairman.

Mr. PATMAN. I am in sympathy with what the gentleman has in mind, but I can conceive of cases of extra large families in high-priced, high-rent, and high-ownership districts where it is possible it could be more than that. Why not leave things like that again to the administrator? You just cannot put all of these restrictions and limitations in this bill and have a law that can be enforced equally and justly. Do you not think that is something that should certainly be in the hands of the administrator and not have us require him to engage in a lot of redtape?

Mr. BROCK. I am sympathetic with the chairman's point of view and hesitate to remind him of the performance, or the lack of it, of the Secretary in the last several years. This Congress, as was pointed out yesterday, year after year has imposed restrictions on the Secretary to force him to put money through urban renewal and other programs into the low-income areas. He has consistently refused to accept the leadership or the instructions of the Congress.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, in the interest of trying to get through today, I am willing to accept this amendment and let it go to conference.

Mr. BROCK. The chairman is very gracious, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee a question with respect to the last amendment. Do these rehabilitation loans go to the tenants or the landlords?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. PATMAN. I do not know about that. That is not involved in this. Obviously it has to go to the landlord.

Mr. OTTINGER. Therefore, a restriction on the landlord does not make much sense.

Mr. PATMAN. Anyway, we will put this together in conference.

Mr. OTTINGER. I think that we should oppose the amendment.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite numer of words.

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

As the original author of section 312, rehabilitation loans, I can say without hesitation that the program never was intended to supply loan capital to those who otherwise could well afford to borrow money through normal commercial lending channels. On page 155 of the printed hearings on this year's bill, I inserted a letter dated October 25, 1967, to me from the deputy coordinator from the city of Philadelphia. The letter stated:

I have checked the key paragraphs concerning the definition of persons eligible to receive direct loans under Section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964. You will note that the change in policy which permits the extension of these loans to any one unable to procure such a loan on the private market at comparable terms (i.e., 3%) was not a matter of administrative policy. It was rather the result of a change in the legislation passed in 1965. The directive letter makes it very clear, however, that on this basis the direct loans will be made available to anyone within the area, without regard to income.

The letter further stated:

These loans are now available to investor owners of residential properties who are non residents and to the owners of commercial property. For non residential rehabilitation, the loans can go up as high as $50,000.

Secretary Weaver when asked for the charteristics of section 312 rehabilitation loans, indicated that through January 31, 1968, there were 2,948 loans on residential properties totaling $15,704,850 for the rehabilitation of 4,667 dwelling units. A sample group of 361 loans indicated that the annual income of recipients of these loans in nearly half the cases exceeded $7,500.

While I continue to strongly believe in the purposes of the program—namely, to upgrade existing residential structures in urban renewal or code enforcement areas, I certainly agree that an effort should be made to insure that some limit be placed on the income of the recipients of these subsidized loans. I think $7,500 per year is a fair figure and one that the House should adopt.

I urge support for the Brock amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. The gentleman from New Jersey is in sympathy with the amount of $7,500. I am in sympathy with it too. We went up to these limits in order to provide for such conditions where they are absolutely necessary. I can conceive of exceptional cases where it would be necessary, possibly. That is the only reason I have suggested that the administration pass upon it and I respectfully request the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] to help us with this amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

(Mr. OTTINGER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I have the highest respect for the ranking minority member on the Committee on Banking and Currency but we just do not understand this. The recipients of these loans would be some housing corporation or some individual or landlord who because of economic conditions or because of his recalcitrance to rehabilitate these housing units, did not perform those duties. I do not see the connection between the income level and what we are trying to do here. The people who can well afford to assume the existing obligation are people whose income is such that they really should not participate in this type of operation at all.

Mr. BARRETT. I think this side has agreed to adopt the amendment and I hope the House will accept it.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. REUSS TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. REUSS to the amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: Strike out "$7,500" and insert: "the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with below-market interest-rate mortgages involved (in the area involved) under section 221(d) of the National Housing Act".

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I can explain my amendment to the Brock amendment briefly—and I may say that I have just shown it to Mr. BROCK, and I believe it is satisfactory to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The original Brock amendment of a $7,500 limitation is a step in the right direction—there should be some limit on these 3-percent loans with regard to the income of the person who receives them. But $7,500 is an inflexible figure, inflexible in terms of costs and inflexible in terms of regions of the country.

The amendment which I have just offered to the Brock amendment would use the existing section 221(d)(3) limits, which are also related to a 3-percent subsidy. It enables the Administrator to exercise some regional discretion.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to point out that I believe his amendment is constructive in that it does put specific income ceilings in, and it also allows the flexibility as to areas and various interest costs. I am happy to accept the amendment to my amendment. In many cases the amendment would result in less than $7,500, and in other areas it could be more than $7,500. I believe this is a reasonable solution.

Mr. REUSS. I thank the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. Chairman, I intend to vote for my amendment, and if my amendment is adopted then I will vote for the Brock amendment as amended.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS] to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee, as amended.

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to title IV?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WILLIAMS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania: Strike all of the "INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS" from line 7 on page 105 through line 2 on page 107.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I would like to call the attention of the Members, of course, to the fact that this section deals with the low rental housing units. Here on page 105 the statement is made:

Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts (in an aggregate amount not to exceed $40,000,000 in any fiscal year)—

For the following purposes—and let me read to the Members these purposes:

The repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities and public buildings, and then it goes on to permit the establishment of temporary public playgrounds, the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning, and similar activities.

Mr. Chairman, I submit to you that everyone of the purposes for which this $40 million can be used is a direct responsibility of local government.

In virtually every municipality in this country the property owner is required to maintain the sidewalks. If the property owner does not do it, the municipal government does it and liens the property.

Furthermore, the maintenance of streets, parks, playgrounds, public utilities, and public buildings as well as the collection of trash and garbage and street cleaning are all functions of the local government.

If we appropriate this $40 million to be used for this purpose, all we are doing is encouraging inefficiency on the part of the local government or the municipal government. If they do not do the job that they are supposed to do and if they fail to meet their responsibility, then they are going to be coming here to the Federal Government asking for grants and I do not believe that this is the sort of thing that should be encouraged.

I think any money we have could much better be used for low rental housing units rather than to encourage inefficiency on the part of the municipal governments.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment was defeated in the full committee.

This section of the bill was accepted in the Housing Subcommittee.

I do not think the gentleman really understands the benefit of this section known as the Interim Assistance for Blighted Areas. This section would authorize the Secretary to contract to make grants aggregating up to $40 million a year to cities or counties to assist them in taking interim steps to alleviate harmful conditions in slums or blighted areas of communities which are planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future, but which need some immediate public action until permanent action can be taken.

Mr. Chairman, this section, for example, would do away with the rat infested areas and do away with rat harborages.

We explained this to the gentleman in the subcommittee. It would rehabilitate the blighted areas to the extent that it would influence people who are living either contiguous or reasonably contiguous thereto from moving away from this area—thinking that this area is going to become a slum area. Rehabilitating the area through this approach would keep those people who are living contiguous or reasonably contiguous thereto, and would encourage them to rebuild and rehabilitate their homes in the areas in which they live.

This in the long run would save many, many dollars for the American taxpayers.

Mr. Chairman, this is the reason for this section of the bill, and I certainly think the Members of the House should sustain this section of the bill and so bring about a lesser expense in the future.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I am glad to yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. In the gentleman's comment, he mentioned rat harborages. That is not covered in the section that I am trying to strike from this bill. Rather it is covered under demolition grants.

I want to say to you, there is no reason for any local government to permit the streets and sidewalks and playgrounds to fall into a deplorable condition.

There is no reason why every municipal government cannot tax so that they can have adequate garbage and trash collection and adequate street cleaning.

All we are trying to do is to place a premium on local government looking the other way and condoning inefficiency.

It can be done much cheaper at the local level than we can finance it at the Federal level. The gentleman's own city is a fine example of well maintained streets and sidewalks in every area of Philadelphia.

Mr. BARRETT. It does not have the money to rehabilitate the blighted areas.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. We are not talking about rehabilitation. We are talking about municipal services.

Mr. BARRETT. Municipalities alone cannot undertake to rehabilitate these blighted areas. That is the purpose of having this provision in the bill. If they could, they would prevent these areas from deteriorating.

Mr. Chairman, I hope that we vote down the amendment. It is a very crippling amendment.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, in my humble opinion the only thing that this section would eliminate is $40 million a year from the Federal Treasury. I have a great fondness and respect for the chairman of the subcommittee, but I must confess that I was somewhat shocked at the broad ranging implications of his statement. To pretend to the American public that an expenditure of $40 million would rehabilitate the cities, eradicate rats, eliminate slums, and reslove other problems in our cities, is a grave delusion.

Furthermore, as my colleague from Pennsylvania has pointed out, there is no criteria as to which city would receive the $40 million or any part of that sum. I do not know that my city would receive any of it. There is no criteria as to what conditions have to exist to enable a city to receive one of these gifts of Federal money.

But even more dangerous in my mind is the precedent of allowing Federal funds to be used to pay the costs of continuing local services such as street cleaning and garbage collection. If local government is so impecunious or so inefficient that they are unable to establish a budget and a tax base upon which they can provide for these continuing needs, then local government needs drastic revision. Certainly we in Washington are not in a position to carry those loads for local governments.

Mr. HARSHA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HARSHA. Can the gentleman tell me whether there would be any restriction on this proposed authorization, or is the $40 million authorization ad infinitum?

Mr. BLACKBURN. This is a $40 million authorization, which I suspect will be in every housing bill that comes up as long as the Congress exists. There is no limitation as to where it goes to or how much would go to a particular city.

Mr. HARSHA. Is it restricted to fiscal 1969?

Mr. BLACKBURN. No, it is not so restricted.

Mr. HARSHA. You mean that if we authorize this expenditure, we would authorize the expenditure for the next 20, 30, 40, or 50 years?

Mr. BLACKBURN. That is the case, yes.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on title IV and all amendments thereto expire in 15 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, how many more amendments are there to title IV?

The CHAIRMAN. At the desk there are two additional amendments, but there may be other amendments.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas that all debate on title IV and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York [Mr. FARBSTEIN].

Mr. FARBSTEIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, for the information of the gentleman on the other side of the aisle, the residents of New York City are not responsible for Federal income tax alone. They are responsible for State income tax, they are responsible for a sales tax, and they are also responsible for a New York City income tax of 5 percent. The gentleman must, therefore, realize that the various municipalities, who are practically bankrupt and are compelled to pay 5½ and 5¾ percent for money, are in pretty bad shape and need Federal assistance.

What happens in these situations? Buildings are demolished, and we have all sorts of breakage as a result of the demolition. Sidewalks are broken. All sorts of debris are located in the demolition area, and some assistance is needed to clear it up.

I suggest the Federal assistance is required in order that new low-cost housing can be built in this area, and, unless there is assistance by the Federal Government, the various municipalities, who are perhaps not even in as bad shape as New York City, will require this assistance. We will be doing great disservice to the various municipalities if we deprive them of this assistance.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. KYL].

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, the situation as just described by the gentleman from New York in the clearing of an area for low-rent housing units contemplates that the cost of such a project includes everything that goes with the project, including sidewalks and removal of debris and so on.

What I am saying to the Members of this House is this: All this section does is provide $40 million a year for what are truly municipal services. I submit for the consideration of Members the fact that 99 percent of our local governments today are doing the very things which are spelled out in this bill and are doing them adequately without Federal assistance.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KYL. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to call to the attention of the committee that the mayor of New York has testified that he alone would need $50 billion the first year to rehabilitate his city. In view of such testimony I am somewhat shocked at the implication that $40 million to be spread throughout the entire United States is going to be sufficient to have an impact.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GIBBONS].

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Chairman, this section we are talking about, section 118, has some very broad provisions in it. It would allow the Secretary to make grants for the improvement of private properties under subsection 2, line 8, on page 106, and then, in the section which has already been pointed out, it would allow the Secretary to make grants for garbage and trash collection and for street cleaning and similar activities. I do not know what "similar activities" mean, but I guess it means whatever the imagination of the Secretary could arrive at.

Mr. Chairman, I think this section is too broadly drawn, and I certainly intend to vote for the amendment to strike this section when it is called up.

The CHAIRMAN. The chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. BOLAND].

Mr. BOLAND. Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Appropriations Committee that sits on the funding of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, I looked a little askance at this section when I first read it. But after giving it some thought, I feel this is a good section. It is an important section in the housing bill. It does provide for keeping structures in an area intended for urban renewal in better shape than they would be if this assistance were not granted.

This is interim assistance given to a community to protect and preserve the area that is planned for urban renewal or rehabilitation. In my judgment it would really save money in the long run.

There is an authorization contained in this section for $40 million, and the Appropriations Committee can take a look at this program.

This is interim assistance for programs planned for urban renewal, and some other programs in this bill. It would appear to me, on the basis of commonsense and good judgment, this section ought to be maintained in the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, this particular section says that "notwithstanding any other provision of this title" the Secretary is authorized to enter into a contract to provide two-thirds of the money for—and then you name it. There is absolutely no limit to the functions he can perform under this so-called interim emergency assistance program.

What concerns me is that we are back on another Public Works program, and every city in the United States is going to believe it can get "a piece of the action," and we have $40 million involved. Again you are creating a sense of frustration and failure at the local level.

I believe it is dog-goned well time this Congress stopped putting the carrot out, if it is not going to back it up.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I should also like to say that if municipal and local governments are doing the job there is no reason for any condition to develop which should require interim assistance.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. I would inform the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that the mayor of Chester, in Delaware County, does his job. He is a Republican mayor. I think he does a splendid job down there. He is constantly calling for help such as this.

The city of Chester, according to the mayor, needs all the urban renewal financial aid it can get. I believe the gentleman comes from Delaware County. I am sure he wants to help people in his own party.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I should like to say in reply to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania that the mayor of Chester or the mayor of any other city never applied for any funds under this program, because this is a brandnew program.

I can also tell the gentleman that the city of Chester, as well as his own city, is doing a good job of maintaining its services.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] to close debate on this amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, the committee worked long hours and faithfully, for the equivalent of 4 weeks in the subcommittee and the equivalent of 3 weeks in the full committee.

The members who want a good housing bill have presented this bill to the House. Four members of the Banking and Currency Committee are not in favor of the bill. They are against it.

If the Members here who favor a good housing bill will stay by the committee, we will get through with this bill in a reasonable time, but if we are going to have to go through every amendment that was presented to the subcommittee and to the full committee over a period of weeks, we will not get through with this bill for weeks. We would just have an impossible job.

I hope the Members of the House who favor a good housing bill will listen to the majority of the Committee on Banking and Currency and vote for this bill, and not feel compelled to vote with the Members who are against any housing bill. They are just against the bill.

In other words, it goes back to what I said a while ago, we are listening to the surgeon who wields a knife who does not want the patient to live.

Those of us who voted for this bill, all of us except four, want the patient to live. We want the housing bill to live. So please vote with us if you see your way clear and believe that you should have a good housing bill, because this is a good housing bill.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS] will be defeated.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BROCK) there were—ayes 51, noes 61.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 88, noes 98.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title IV, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE V—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

SEC. 501. Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

"SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems, including those resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas and the outmigration from and lack of coordinated development of resources and services in rural areas; to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban and rural development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs and techniques on an areawide basis, and to engage private consultants where their professional services are deemed appropriate by the assisted governments, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

"(1) State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more, according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after September 2, 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection, and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

"(2) State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies for metropolitan or regional planning, and to cities within metropolitan areas for planning which is part of comprehensive metropolitan planning and which shall supplement and be coordinated with State, metropolitan, and regional planning;

"(3) cities, other municipalities, and counties which (A) are situated in redevelopment areas or economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, or (B) have suffered substantial damage as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes', approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855a), has determined to be a major disaster;

"(4) official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act;

"(5) States for State and interstate comprehensive planning and for research and coordination activity related thereto, including technical and other assistance for the establishment and operation of intrastate and interstate planning agencies;

"(6) State planning agencies for assistance to district planning, or planning for areas within districts, carried on by or for district planning agencies;

"(7) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency exists) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

"(8) official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

"(9) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation;

"(10) the Appalachian Regional Commission, established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for the Appalachian region as defined by section 403 of such Act (or State agencies or instrumentalities participating in such planning); and

"(11) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire areas having common or related development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense. Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other areas and reducing transportation needs. Planning carried out with assistance under the section shall also include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans, and this consideration of the housing needs and land use requirements for housing in each comprehensive plan shall take into account all available evidence of the assumptions and statistical basis upon which the projection of zoning, community facilities, and population growth is based, so that the housing needs of both the region and the local communities studied in the planning will be adequately covered in terms of existing and prospective in-migrant population growth. Funds available under this section shall be in addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other federally aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Transportation under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

"(b) A planning grant made under subsection (a) shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be made for up to 75 per centum of such estimated cost when made for planning primarily for (1) redevelopment areas, local development districts, or economic development districts, or portions thereof, described in paragraphs (3) (A) and (11) of subsection (a), (2) areas described in subsection (a) (8), and (3) the Appalachian region, as described in subsection (a) (10). All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this section. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section not to exceed $265,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $390,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Of the amount available prior to July 1, 1969, $20,000,000 may be used only for district planning grants under subsection (a) (6), which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended: Provided, That of any funds appropriated under this section, not to exceed an aggregate of $10,000,000 plus 5 per centum of the funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects, undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified regional, district, or metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

"(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportation planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, districts, regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefor. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and public information on related problems.

"(e) In the exercise of his responsibilities under this section, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities and other comprehensively planned activities. He shall, particularly, consult with the Secretary of Agriculture prior to his approval of any district planning grants under subsections (a) (6) and (g). The Secretary of Agriculture may provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of such districts and the carrying out of such planning.

"(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

"(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials representative of the political jurisdictions within the metropolitan area, region, or district for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop metropolitan, regional, and district plans and programs, and engage in such other activities as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan, regional, or district problems in such areas, regions, or districts. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area, region, or district including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resource development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

"(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropriate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary or appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balanced and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable to those used in establishing the national register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (11) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.

"(i) As used in this section—

"(1) The term 'metropolitan area' means a standard metropolitan statistical area, as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject, however, to such modifications or extensions as the Secretary deems to be appropriate for the purposes of this section.

"(1) The term 'region' includes (A) all or part of the area of jurisdiction of one or more units of general local government, and (B) one or more metropolitan areas.

"(3) The term 'district' includes all or part of the area of jurisdiction of (A) one or more counties, and (B) one or more other units of general local government, but does not include any portion of a metropolitan area.

"(4) The term 'comprehensive planning' includes the following:

"(A) preparation, as a guide for governmental policies and action, of general plans with respect to (i) the pattern and intensity of land use, (ii) the provision of public facilities (including transportation facilities) and other government services, and (iii) the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources;

"(B) long-range physical and fiscal plans for such action;

"(C) programing of capital improvements and other major expenditures, based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for such expenditures in the earlier years of the program;

"(D) coordination of all related plans and activities of the State and local governments and agencies concerned; and

"(E) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Comprehensive planning for the purpose of districts shall not include planning for or assistance to establishments in relocating from one area to another or assist subcontractors whose purpose is to divest, or whose economic success is dependent upon divesting, other contractors or subcontractors of contracts theretofore customarily performed by them: Provided, That this limitation shall not be construed to prohibit assistance for the expansion of an existing business entity through the establishment of a new branch, affiliate, or subsidiary of such entity, if the Secretary finds that the establishment of such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary will not result in an increase in unemployment in the area of original location or in any other area where such entity conducts business operations, unless the Secretary has reason to believe that such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary is being established with the intention of closing down the operations of the existing business entity in the area of its original location or in any other area where it conducts such operations.

"(5) The term 'State planning agencies' includes official State planning agencies and (in States where no such planning agency exists) agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary.

"(6) The terms 'metropolitan planning agencies', 'regional planning agencies', and 'district planning agencies' mean official metropolitan, regional, and district planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning), and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local law or interstate compact to perform metropolitan, regional, or district planning, respectively: Provided, That such agencies and instrumentalities shall, to the greatest practicable extent be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to engage in planning."

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 502. (a) The heading of title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended to read as follows: "TITLE II—PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT".

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

"SEC. 201. (a) The Congress hereby finds that the welfare of the Nation and of its people is directly dependent upon the sound and orderly development and the effective organization and functioning of our State and local governments.

"It further finds that it is essential that our State and local governments prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.

"It further finds that our State and local governments are especially handicapped in this task by the complexity and scope of governmental services required, the multiplicity of political jurisdictions and agencies involved, and the inadequacy of the operational and administrative arrangements available for cooperation among them.

"It further finds that present requirements for areawide planning and programing in connection with various Federal programs have materially assisted in the solution of areawide problems, but that greater coordination of Federal programs and additional participation and cooperation are needed from the States and localities in perfecting and carrying out such efforts.

"(b) It is the purpose of this title to provide through greater coordination of Federal programs, and though supplementary grants for certain federally assisted development projects, additional encouragement and assistance to States and localities for making comprehensive areawide planning and programing effective."

(c) Section 202 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(d) (1) Section 205 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan development" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide development".

(2) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan areas" and "metropolitan area" and inserting in lieu thereof "areas" and "area", respectively.

(3) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitanwide" each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(4) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan planning" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide planning".

(5) Such section is further amended by inserting "where appropriate," after "(B)" in subsection (c) (1). subsection (c) (1).

(6) Such section is further amended by striking out "within the metropolitanwide area" in subsection (f).

(e) (1) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 208 of such Act are amended by striking out "Metropolitan" and inserting in lieu thereof "Areawide".

(2) Paragraph (7) of such section is amended—

(A) by striking out "or metropolitan or regional" and inserting in lieu thereof ", metropolitan, regional, or district"; and

(B) by striking out "metropolitan" in the parenthetical phrase.

(f) Section 206(b) of such Act is amended by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 503. (a) Section 701 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities" in clause (3) and inserting in lieu thereof "in the future for public purposes".

(b) Section 704 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

"SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loans or other financial obligations incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not in excess of the lesser of (1) five years from the date of acquisition of such land or (2) the period of time between the date on which the land was acquired and the date its use began for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That where all or any portion of the cost of such land is not financed through borrowings, the amount of the grant shall be computed on the basis of the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges that the Secretary determines would have been required.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the land will be utilized for a public purpose within a reasonable period of time and that such utilization will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area. The Secretary shall in all cases require that land acquired with the assistance of a grant under this section be utilized for a public purpose within five years after the date on which a contract to make such grant is entered into, unless the Secretary (1) determines that due to unusual circumstances a longer period of time is necessary and in the public interest, and (2) reports such determination promptly to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

"(d) No land acquired with assistance under this section shall, without approval of the Secretary, be diverted from the purpose originally approved. The Secretary shall approve no such diversion unless he finds that the diversion is in accord with the then applicable comprehensive plan for the area. In cases of a diversion of land to other than a public purpose, the Secretary may require repayment of the grant, or substitution of land of approximately equal fair market value, whichever he deems appropriate. An interim use of the land for a public or private purpose in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, or approved by him, shall not constitute a diversion within the meaning of this subsection.

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no project for which land is acquired with assistance under this section shall, solely as a result of such advance acquisition, be considered ineligible for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program, and the amount of the purchase price paid for the land by the recipient of a grant under this section may be considered an eligible cost for the purpose of such other Federal loan or grant program."

WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES PROGRAM

SEC. 504. (a) Section 702(c) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "July 1, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

(b) Section 702(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after "community" the first time it appears the following: ", or an unincorporated area served by a water district or improvement district,";

(2) by inserting after "community" each subsequent time it appears the following: "or area"; and

(3) by striking out "a basic public sewer facility" and inserting in lieu thereof "a basic public water or sewer facility".

(c) Section 702 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(d) In the administration of this section the Secretary shall require that, to the greatest extent practicable, new job opportunities be provided for unemployed or underemployed persons in connection with projects the financing of which is assisted under this section."

AUTHORIZATIONS FOR THE WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES, NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES, AND ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND PROGRAMS

SEC. 505. (a) Section 708(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "July 1, 1969" and inserting in lieu thereof "July 1, 1970".

(b) Section 708(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "$200,000,000 for grants under section 702" and inserting in lieu thereof "$200,000,000 (or $500,000,000 in the case of any such fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1967) for grants under section 702".

OPEN-SPACE LAND PROGRAM

SEC. 506. (a) Section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"(b) There are authorized to be appropriated, for the purpose of making grants under this title, not to exceed $310,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $460,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended."

(b) Section 708(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "$50,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$125,000".

AUTHORIZATION TO MAKE FEASIBILITY STUDIES IN THE PUBLIC WORKS PLANNING ADVANCES PROGRAM

SEC. 507. Section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended by inserting after "to aid in financing the cost of" the following: "feasibility studies,".

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title V be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MORRIS OF NEW MEXICO

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico: On page 109, strike out line 24, and insert the following:

"(3)(A) economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, and

"(B) cities, other municipalities, and counties which".

On page 110, lines 1 and 4, strike out "(A)" and "(B)" and insert "(i)" and "(ii)", respectively.

(Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. Mr. Chairman, I shall not take the entire 5 minutes. I have presented this amendment to the committee prior to offering it here today. However, I would like to take a moment or two to explain it.

Mr. Chairman, the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 authorized the Secretary of Commerce to designate appropriate "economic development districts" in order that projects designed to reduce unemployment and underemployment would be planned and carried out within the context of a broad geographic area. Twenty-four such districts were formally designated as of January 1, 1968. An additional 72 are in various stages of organization prior to formal designation.

The need for broader context in planning for economic development was recognized by the 89th Congress. I propose that the 90th Congress further implement this concept by amending the urban planning assistance program, section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954, to make economic development districts eligible for grants for comprehensive planning, as was done for local development districts in Appalachia in 1967.

I would expect that the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, in administering this amendment, would take steps to assure that this would not proliferate unnecessarily the areas and agencies eligible for section 701 assistance. Since economic development districts are generally composed of groups of rural counties, I would expect that they would have identical boundaries and the same policy organizations as any rural districts set up, under the new authority in section 601 of the bill. Thus, duplication in assistance, in these cases, would be avoided.

Mr. BLATNIK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. BLATNIK. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment serves to bring the language of this section into line with the stated intent of title V of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. On page 108, line 11, the purpose of this title is said to be in part, "to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban and rural development." The Department of Housing and Urban Development could certainly make its planning funds do a better job in rural areas if it were able to fund economic development districts. It could better respond to one well-staffed, well-financed district planning office than to a series of individual communities of varying capabilities each seeking to supplement its own meager finances with Federal funding.

There are also other reasons for amending the bill in this way. First, if HUD planning grants were made available to economic development districts, additional sources of funds would be available to the districts to support their planning activities and further the district planning concept. Joint HUD-EDA funding would be possible, thus reducing the total burden to each agency and avoiding possible duplication of planning efforts. Finally, the two agencies which would be acting in accordance with the Bureau of the Budget Circular A–80 which called for greater interagency cooperation on programs.

The bill as it stands now already makes HUD planning grants available to cities and other communities and counties within economic development districts. I feel that it would be a mistake not to include the districts themselves.

Mr. EDMONDSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. EDMONDSON. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend my good friend, the able gentleman from New Mexico, for offering this amendment. Many of these economic development districts have been laboring under limitations with regard to funds, and I believe his amendment will serve a worthwhile purpose in promoting better cooperation between the Federal agencies in this direction.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment will be adopted.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. I am delighted to yield to the distinguished chairman.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we have examined the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. MORRIS], and we have discussed with some of the Members on the minority side of the aisle, and on our side of the aisle we are willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, the amendment is acceptable on this side.

Mr. MORRIS of New Mexico. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. MORRIS].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I see that the distinguished gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] is on the floor, and I should like to ask the gentleman some questions pertaining to the two amendments he offered that were accepted in the Commitee yesterday.

Mr. Chairman, if I may have the attention of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON], it is my understanding that under the amendments the public housing limits to which the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON] referred yesterday, is that which is authorized for continued occupancy of a public housing family. This, as the gentleman knows, is somewhat in excess of the limits permissible for initial occupancy; is that correct?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. If the gentleman will yield, the answer is "Yes"; the gentleman from Illinois is correct.

The amendment which I offered yesterday would authorize occupancy for families whose incomes are 30 percent above the limits approved for continued occupancy by public housing families. That would pertain to the sales housing under section 235, and the rental housing and cooperative programs under section 236.

Mr. YATES. I would like to ask the gentleman a question about another part of the amendment which troubles me, and that is what happens when the family subsequently exceeds the income limitation which is authorized by the gentleman's amendments; namely, 130 percent?

Does the subsidy that is called for stop at that time? Must the family then start paying the entire mortgage payment or the full economic rent, even though this may be substantially in excess of the 20-percent formula provided for homeowners, or the 25-percent formula provided for tenants?

If that is the case, it would mean that there could be a most substantial increase in the mortgage payments required of the family. It might result in default and possible foreclosure. Similarly, in the case of a tenant, it could mean that the tenant could not pay the increased rental, and would have to move. And of course it might result also in the same criticism we now have with regard to public housing, namely, that the incentive to increase his income would be lost by the tenant in order to avoid disqualification as a public housing tenant.

It seems to me, may I say to the gentleman from Illinois, that once eligibility for initial occupancy is established, a homeowner or tenant should be permitted to continue paying the appropriate percentage of his income toward the mortgage payment or toward the rental or the payment under a co-op arrangement until this percentage equals the full economic rent or mortgage payment.

Does the gentleman agree with me?

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I agree completely with the statement the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. YATES] just made.

I would have no intention under either of those amendment of disqualifying any tenant or homeowner who was once eligible, but who then found that his income had increased beyond the original limits that would be fixed under those amendments.

Under the amendment that I offered in the case of homeownership, he would continue to pay 20 percent of his income until this amount was equal to the total amount due for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premiums.

In the case of a rental, he would continue paying 25 percent of his income until this amount equals the full economic rent.

To have any other interpretation, or to have this program operate differently than that, would certainly defeat the purpose of the program and it would destroy the incentive that we want to have to encourage both the homeowner and the tenant to do whatever he can to raise his income level.

So I repeat, once he is eligible under the program, he is not disqualified under either the sales program, the homeownership program or the rental program—even if his income increases.

Mr. YATES. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YATES. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. I would like to ask either of the gentlemen from Illinois, or anybody else, whether they believe that any appreciable amount of new housing, either for sale or for rental, is going to be built under the public housing plus 30 percent amendments adopted yesterday.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield so that I may respond to the gentleman?

Mr. YATES. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Certainly, I think so. Otherwise I would not have offered those amendments.

I would point out to the gentleman from Wisconsin that in operating under the income limitations you have now under the rent subsidy program, surely you are not going to tell me we are not making progress in that program; the rent supplement program?

Mr. REUSS. I would tell the gentleman exactly that. The rent supplement program has been so niggardly funded that it has not made any progress.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Are you blaming that on the income limit? Surely, you are not doing that.

(Mr. YATES asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: On page 128, after line 18, insert the following new section:

"REPEAL OF 1966 PROVISION FOR COORDINATION OF FEDERAL AIDS IN METROPOLITAN AREAS

"SEC. 508. Section 204 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is repealed."

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of my amendment is very easily explained. It would repeal section 204 of the 1966 Housing Act.

Section 204 has been the cause of much controversy and funds for administering it were denied a year ago by the House in connection with an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill for fiscal year 1968.

Stated in its simplest terms, section 204 of the 1966 Housing Act provided that all Federal-aid applications by local, county, or State jurisdictions for the planning or construction of hospitals, airports, libraries, water supply and distribution facilities, sewage facilities and waste treatment works, highways, transportation facilities, and water development and land conservation projects within any metropolitan area must be submitted for review to an areawide agency which is designated to perform metropolitan or regional planning for the area within which the Federal assistance is to be used and which meets the standards of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Stated quite simply, section 204 created the statutory basis for placing the Department of Housing and Urban Development in a super departmental role over several multibillion-dollar Federal-aid programs over which it otherwise has no control whatsoever.

While I agree with the need for far more metropolitan areawide planning than exists today, section 204 carries a threat which could set back the trend toward such planning. While many metropolitan areas in the Nation today lack the coordinated planning which is essential for our Nation's orderly growth, in my mind section 204 was drafted by those in Washington who have become too impatient with the pace of metropolitan planning. Nearly as an act of frustration, these Federal planners conceived statutory language which would hold the club of Federal denial of a wide range of multibillion-dollar programs to metropolitan areas which did not meet the standards of long-range planning established by HUD. The approach of section 204 is virtually 180 degrees different from that of the established section 701 planning program where the Federal Government encourages metropolitan regional planning by assisting with Federal funds the establishment of comprehensive areawide planning agencies.

Mr. Chairman, most of us realize that "Metro" is a very controversial issue in most metropolitan areas. It is a concept that requires a great deal of public understanding and support before it can achieve its goals. Contrary to those in the Department of Housing and Urban Development who drafted section 204, I am relatively optimistic on the outlook for greater coordination of local jurisdictions in the years ahead in our metropolitan areas. Already a very high degree of areawide planning has been achieved on a voluntary basis in connection with water and air pollution, long-range transit planning, educational and recreational planning, and in some cases even fiscal planning. I have the utmost confidence that the American people living in metropolitan areas are arriving at the collective judgment that orderly growth can only be attained with a greater measure of coordinated planning between local jurisdictions of government. The biggest threat toward continuing in this direction would be distrust and misunderstanding created by those who might impose their concepts by the use of massive denial of most of our largest Federal-aid programs.

Mr. Chairman, I think title V of the bill before us today increases the already wide ranging authority of the Department of Housing and Urban Development over areawide planning agencies to a sufficient degree to insure continuation of Federal support for the concept of a coordinated approach to the massive problems of our metropolitan areas. Repeal of section 204 would in no way deter us from this objective. Instead, it would remove the cause for a great deal of misunderstanding and distrust associated with the term "Metro."

Mr. Chairman, I urge support for my amendment.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. ASHLEY. I am a little surprised at the amendment. I do not recall that the gentleman offered the amendment during the housing hearings or the markup of the bill. Has the gentleman received some information that communities are unhappy with the provisions of section 204? Quite the contrary has been my understanding. I know a number of communities have formed their council of government as a requirement for participation in various Federal programs. Is this not the gentleman's understanding also?

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ASHLEY. I would ask the gentleman from New Jersey what his views are with respect to that point.

Mr. WIDNALL. There have been a number of complaints along this line. The power that is there, the power of denial of funds in every direction if there is not complete coordination with the HUD operation here in Washington, is far more power that I believe we want them to have at this time. I think we are making great strides towards voluntary participation in this respect, and what is provided in the present bill, added to what we already have on the books, I think will do the job sufficiently well without the threat that is present in section 204 of the bill.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, I do not like to disagree with my friend from New Jersey, but I am constrained to do so in this case. The question is not voluntary versus compulsory acceptance of metropolitan planning. Participation in any event is voluntary. The issue, it seems to me, is whether we are going to take a long step backward and away from metropolitanwide planning, which is so obviously and desperately needed at this time.

Are we to turn our backs on a section of the Housing Act that we adopted years ago? It seems to me with the tremendous growth and the need for managing metropolitan services in a coherent and effective and efficient way, this is the worst kind of amendment that could be adopted at this time.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge the amendment be voted down.

(Mr. CRAMER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY] a moment ago suggested that this was perhaps a new matter. This matter was considered 2 years ago and the House voted in the model cities appropriation bill for my amendment not to implement section 204. The House could not say it any more plainly. The House said overwhelmingly that the Department of Housing and Urban Development should not be dictating to the local government authorities as to what their policies should be relating to this broad scope of basically public works activities including hospitals.

What right does one city have to say to another city where that city is going to build a hospital? Airports—there might be some justification. Libraries, water supply, and distribution, streets and highways—good gracious, if there is any public works program which is just about being planned out of business already, it is the highway program. We have a comprehensive areawide "highway development planning" process underway and in effect in every metropolitan area today pursuant to the present highway laws in title 23 relating to transportation and, lo and behold, if section 204 remains we are going to put another strata of planning on top of that already in existence and already going forward. We will have another strata on top of that, with areawide planning under section 204.

So I say, if we want to plan ourselves out of business relating to public works programs and highways in particular, this is the way to do it: Leave 204 in its present status. I say we should adopt the Widnall amendment and stop planning ourselves out of business on these public works programs. It is a condition precedent under section 204 to every single one of these public works programs for every single project that the States and local authorities get clearance from the areawide planning agency determined by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to be the proper planning agency, even though that agency has no correlation and no elected official responsibility whatsoever with the local planning agency concerning highways, for instance, that is now in existence.

I say it does not make any sense.

Further, as section 204 is worded, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has complete discretion in reviewing the recommendations of these areawide planning agencies as to whether then he will give another agency, meaning the Highway Department, for instance, or the Transportation Department, the Bureau of Public Roads permission for them to give a grant or approve a project to go forward with highway construction within the State or local community. Does that make sense? It does not make sense to me. I think the only sensible thing to do is adopt the Widnall amendment.

Less than 2 years ago I opposed the adoption of section 204 as legislation that was detrimental to the best interests of the country and that would lead to irreversible damage to the workings of State and local governments. Section 204 hangs like a hatchet over the heads of all local governments. It says to them, "Comply with the Federal Government's view of what is to be required in other areas throughout the country. If you do not, I shall chop your Federal grant money off."

Mr. Chairman, at that time I spoke of the octopus of Federal control over local municipal decisions as they apply to hospitals, airports, libraries, water supply and distribution systems, sewage facilities, waste treatment plants, highways, transport facilities, and various other projects contained under grant and aid programs.

The concept by which local government and local decisions are to be replaced by metro government and areawide agencies is nothing more than a thinly disguised veil of Federal usurpation of State and municipal prerogatives. Not only does the Federal Government choose to inject itself into matters of local concern, but it makes arbitrary decisions as to which localities are to be wedded together for the proposed areawide planning. As a result, Mr. Chairman, cities about 20 miles apart, such as Tampa and St. Petersburg, which have definitely constituted local governments and inadequate legislative authority or funding and staffing to conform to Federal demands, are lumped together under the great umbrella of metro planning.

I pointed out then, Mr. Chairman, and

I point out again that section 204 is a dangerous thing, a very dangerous thing. It came about by the whim of a Member of the other body, and it subjects the entire Nation to the whims of guidelines promulgated by Dr. Weaver or his heirs.

Mr. Chairman, my district is not a metropolitan area. It does not want to be a metropolitan area. Moreover, it wishes to retain its own government and it wants no part of the effort to impose a new form of government on our local communities—a form of government controlled directly from Washington.

A little over a year ago, the House in its wisdom adopted an amendment that I offered to the HUD appropriation bill when it was before the House relating to the nonimplementation of section 204, title II, of the Model Cities Act, dealing with the requirement of areawide planning agencies as a condition precedent for receiving Federal money for any project in an area which has not conformed to areawide planning. This House then said by an overwhelming vote that such section 204 should not be put into effect on July 1 last. As a result, the Department did refrain from implementation of section 204 and as to other agencies has been admitted by some that that section is impractical. It appears to me, Mr. Chairman, that the time has come that we do directly that which we have been doing indirectly. We have prevented implementation of administration of section 204 by denying funds to the administering agency. The time has come to excise the root of the disease and to eliminate section 204 from the act once and for all.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the genteleman yield?

Mr. CRAMER. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, is the gentleman aware that section 204 can be implemented not only with respect to the programs listed by the gentleman, but equally as to future programs which may be adopted?

Mr. CRAMER. That is absolutely correct. It is my understanding, and I think it certainly was not the intent of Congress.

They are giving this too broad an application. The only way to solve the problem is to repeal it, and at some future date consider some amendatory language preserving local control and eliminating duplicating planning.

(Mr. BLACKBURN asked and was permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL]. A little over a year ago, I was pleased to take the House floor in support of an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CRAMER]. That amendment was more limited in scope than the one presently under discussion in that the parliamentary requirements were such that the Cramer amendment could only deny administrative funds for implementation of section 204. I was pleased that the House approved the Cramer amendment and I hope the House confirms its action of last year by supporting the Widnall amendment.

To be quite frank and with all due respect, I do not believe the House realized the power it granted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development in section 204 of the 1966 Housing Act. Although title II of that act was the subject of extensive dissent in the minority views accompanying that bill to the floor, the Congress never fully appreciated how far-reaching section 204 of that title really was. For a wide range of Federal-aid programs administered by other departments and agencies, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development was placed in the position of being able to deny billions of Federal aid to local jurisdictions each and every year if his concept of comprehensive areawide planning was not fulfilled. In fact, section 204 of the 1966 Housing Act, by itself, made HUD a super department, with powers over local jurisdictions of government unequaled in the history of our Nation.

I join with my colleague from New Jersey in agreeing that there is a need for greater coordinated planning between local jurisdictions in metropolitan areas. The worst way to achieve this goal, however, is by granting to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development a sledge hammer with which to influence virtually every decision of local government.

In recent months, declared presidential candidates in both parties, including the late Senator Kennedy, Senator McCARTHY, former Vice President Nixon, Governor Rockefeller, and former Governor Wallace, have agreed on one essential point—the great need facing our country today is revitalization of local government to bring government closer to the people. Section 204 is the antithesis of returning government to the people; instead it is aimed at vesting unprecedented power in appointed Federal officials whose views toward local, county, municipal, and State government, always have been and always will be condescending and based upon a complete lack of faith. Their view of local government in most cases was gained in the college classroom, without any of the firsthand experience which can only be gained through elective office.

While Congress has gone on record in support of the Cramer amendment denying appropriations for administration of section 204 by HUD, the Bureau of the Budget in a circular letter of December 18, 1967, has found many avenues available to executive departments for implementation of that section of Federal law. The Bureau of the Budget has officially requested all Federal departments and agencies administering programs covered by section 204 to administer its requirements without the need for administrative funds for this purpose being directly assigned to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. As a matter of fact, the Bureau of the Budget has greatly expanded the scope of section 204 in that on page 4 of its circular letter it is stated that the Bureau of the Budget will extend the coverage under the circular to such new or additional Federal-aid programs "as may be appropriate from time to time." In other words, instead of section 204 being restricted to open space, hospitals, airports, libraries, water supply and distribution facilities, sewage facilities and waste treatment works, highways, transportation facilities, and water development and land conservation projects, purely by administrative decision of the Bureau of the Budget any and all existing Federal-aid programs could be included within the requirements of section 204.

Mr. Chairman, section 204 poses one of the most potent threats to the future growth and responsibility of local government that has ever come to my attention.

I urge the House to support the Widnall amendment.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I am of the opinion that this amendment is acceptable. The program is in the individual appropriation bill. I think we should take it to the conference committee and see whether we could work together there.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, am I correct in assuming that this provision is in the Senate bill, so if we do not accept the Widnall amendment, it would not be in conference, so we must accept the Widnall amendment in order to have it subject to conference? Is that correct?

Mr. BARRETT. I think that is correct.

Mr. BROCK. May I assume that the gentleman is accepting the Widnall amendment?

Mr. BARRETT. Yes. We accept it.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. RANDALL

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. RANDALL: On page 116, line 25, after "activities", insert "including implementation of such plans".

(Mr. RANDALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Chairman, my amendment comes under title V which contains the planning provisions of the bill. For the first time we go beyond the metropolitan or urban areas and provide for planning in the unincorporated areas or rural areas.

At page 116 of H.R. 17989 it is interesting to note that it is specifically provided that in the exercise of his responsibilities under planning, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall consult with the Secretray of Agriculture prior to his approval of any housing grants under those sections having to do with counties of a population of less than 50,000 or a group of adjacent communities which may be unincorporated.

The purpose of my amendment is to add at the end of the last line of page 116, being line 25, following "other activities," the words "including implementation of such plans."

In my opinion there was an omission here which should be corrected. A metropolitan city or even a smaller city usually has an organizational setup which in most instances has existed for years and functioned smoothly. When planning has been completed, their staff proceeds to implement those plans by making the necessary applications. They actually use the engineering studies and make decisions as to when to apply for Federal assistance and in what amount. In the pursuit of grants and loans, a city is "geared up" and ready to move ahead when planning is completed.

On the other hand, in the rural areas, including the smaller counties and smaller cities, there is no such existing machinery for implementation. When planning is complete, what good are the plans and more plans and still more plans unless something comes from these plans? In the rural areas the board members of the planning commission are nearly always part-time men. One may be a local druggist. One may even be a grocer or perhaps a farmer or even a small-town banker, but in every instance these men devote only part time. It is difficult for them to take time from the job of earning their livelihood or working in their own business to implement those projects which have been through the planning stage. What would seem to be needed is what might be called a "grantsman" or a "local advocate."

My amendment is very simple and is offered purely as clarification and to make a legislative history by adding, following the words "other activities" the words "including implementation of such plans." I firmly believe that, while the planning provision of the new housing bill is a step in the right direction and, may I say, a giant step in such direction, it is in need of the clarification which my amendment will offer. I suppose planning might or could by implication include implementation, but the added words of my amendment are a safeguard to be certain that someone "down the street" or "downtown" in the executive branch does not conclude the word "planning" means only that, and might seek to stop the planning officials from working upon implementation of the plans.

I can think of no valid objections that could be raised against this amendment. If there are those who think such wording may not be needed, because it is the duty or the job of agency officials of the executive branch to assist in implementing projects once an application has been submitted, they should remember an agency official is limited in the amount of work that he can do for what might be described as the "other party." Housing Department employees and Farmers Home employees are in reality representatives sitting across the table from an applicant. It is not their job to perfect and polish the applications or to amend them. It is the job of the local applicant to do this work. Notwithstanding, applicants need help to implement the planning, and the rural areas do not have such help.

What is wrong with some assistance for those who would implement these programs? We do the very same thing in the agricultural extension service. These men working locally go about daily, seeking to implement existing Federal programs for the benefit of the farmers in the areas concerned. We are talking about the very same thing in terms of rural housing or local water districts or sewer districts or local industry.

Our comparison between the agricultural extension service and rural housing should be a realistic parallel, because the extension service is paid partly by the Federal Government, partly by the States, and partly by local funds or local Government in kind.

Any government employee would have a difficult, if not impossible, time performing the role of "grantsman" or "local advocate." He could be inhibited both by Department policies or in some instances by law. My amendment would clarify the situation. It should be adopted.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANDALL. I yield to the chairman of the committee.

Mr. PATMAN. I believe the gentleman's amendment is a good one. It is aimed toward the rural areas, because they are not in a position to do these things as the mayor of a city or a city manager is. Therefore, it will help.

I have talked with several members of the committee, and those on this side will accept the amendment. I hope the minority is willing to accept it.

Mr. WIDNALL. This is acceptable to the minority.

Mr. RANDALL. I thank the gentlemen.

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, at the conclusion of consideration of this bill I will offer an amendment which would apply to this title and to every title in the bill. I take this time to explain the amendment. I should like to get the views of the chairman of the committee on it. The amendment will simply state:

> No standard, rule, regulation, or requirement of general applicability prescribed by the Secretary under the authority of this Act may take effect (1) until 30 days after it is published in the Federal Register, and (2) unless interested persons are given an opportunity to participate in the formulation of such standard, rule, regulation, or requirement through the submission of views or arguments.

Simply stated, this is an antiguideline amendment.

Here is a bill before us which is 280 pages long. No legislative body could possibly foresee all the contingencies and all the problems that will come up in the administration of this bill.

That is why we have, through the Administrative Procedure Act, set up machinery whereby the administrators of these acts may promulgate rules and regulations to implement this legislation.

This amendment does not in any way interfere with the administration of this bill, but what it does is give all interested parties an opportunity to see what rules and regulations are being proposed by the administrator before they become effective.

I have seen in the past few years a new phenomenon develop in this Government, government by guidelines, where administrators of agencies publish guidelines, which no one ever sees before publication, and they become effective immediately upon distribution. There is no opportunity to comment on them. There is no opportunity to see whether or not the guidelines do in fact follow the spirit and intent of legislation passed by Congress.

These guidelines have now taken on the color of law. At least two judicial districts have already stated that guidelines, once they are issued by the administrator, take on the same full color of law as do other regulations. Yet no one has ever had an opportunity to comment on these guidelines before they have been issued.

Local community administrators mayors, and other interested parties can participate in the development of rules under this legislation or have an opportunity to discuss it and discuss the rules being promulgated by the administrator if we accept this provision.

Now, some will say that that is already the law, but you and I know the law is not being followed. We have the Administrative Procedures Act on the books now but obviously it is not being followed. You need only to study the tons of guidelines being issued by all agencies to see the truth of this statement. So. Mr. Chairman, I submit in a bill of 280 pages it is certainly not unreasonable to propose and to write into the law that all rules and regulations be promulgated by the administrator and the Secretary shall be first published in the Federal Register so that all interested parties may review and examine and see if they come within the purview and spirit of the act being debated here.

I have said time and time again that we have seen long and extensive debate on the floor of this House on what we think legislation ought to do and after it is enacted and the President signs it into law, administrators issue guidelines which go far afield of what Congress intended. I submit that very often any similarity between what the Congress intended and what the administrator published in his guidelines is purely coincidental. For that reason, Mr. Chairman, I submit in a bill as complicated as this, and as long as this, what we proposed to do here by this amendment is to bring some order into it so that interested parties will have a chance to see what the rules and regulations are that are being promulgated under this act.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PUCINSKI. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I would like to compliment the gentleman on the amendment. Both the intent and the effect are salutary, and I will support it.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PUCINSKI. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. That is quite an indictment the gentleman has just made of the operation of the Great Society. I am glad to have a Democrat confirm what many of us have suspected for a long time.

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I would like the gentleman from Iowa to know that the trend toward government by guidelines originated long before the present administration. We have seen administrators as early as the Eisenhower days take on the job of government by guidelines.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to have an expression from the chairman of the committee on the merits of the amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PUCINSKI. I am glad to yield.

Mr. PATMAN. Of course, if there is anything in this act which applies to the Administrative Procedure Act, the procedure that the gentleman outlined would be mandatory, anyway. As far as agreeing to that, I do not think I can agree to it. It would be too much like going back from the modern jet age to the horse-and-buggy days. There would be too much redtape involved and it would be too cumbersome.

Mr. PUCINSKI. The gentleman is suggesting it is all right for administrators of agencies to promulgate rules and regulations which in many instances are contrary to what the Congress intended? I do not believe Congress wants to delegate its responsibilities to administrators without some safeguards. We passed the Administrative Procedure Act because we realize that it is impossible for Congress to write legislation which would foresee every contingency in the implementation of the act. That is why, in the APA, Congress said that, when an administrator takes on the duty of implementing legislation passed by Congress, he must publish the proposed rules so that Members of Congress and other interested parties can ascertain that the proposed rules are consistent with the intent of Congress. If they are not, we have 30 days to make our views known before the rules become effective. My amendment would not be necessary if administrators would follow the provisions of the APA. But they do not and that is why the added protection of this amendment is needed.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. RANDALL].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WILLIAMS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania: On page 108, line 2, strike out all of sections 501 and 502 through line 6 on page 124.

(Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, the only thing this amendment would do is to leave the planning laws as they were written in the 1965 HUD bill stand as they are. We have heard some comments today about surgeons trying to operate on this bill. However, under the 1965 HUD requirements every standard metropolitan statistical unit or area was required to have a comprehensive continuing planning process in operation. This operation had to be approved by HUD. Most of the SMSA's around the country have just about now reached a point where they have a planning process in operation which is approved by HUD. They have to have this approved planning process on a regional basis or they are not eligible for HUD grants.

Mr. Chairman, take, for instance, the greater Philadelphia area where the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission was established which is taking care of the planning for nine counties, five counties in Pennsylvania and four counties in New Jersey.

It was only approximately the middle of 1967 that the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission was approved by HUD.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. No. The rural areas are still carrying out plans under this proposal.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I am for the requirements as set up in the 1965 Housing and Urban Development Act. And I want to say this to you, that right now many of the standard metropolitan statistical areas have just reached the point where they are able to comply with the 1965 requirements.

Now, Mr. Chairman, to change the guidelines and to permit the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to set up new guidelines in these various districts and regions would create national confusion. What we would really have is planning layer upon planning layer.

The only thing this amendment would do is continue the existing law and would permit the regional districts to continue the efforts which they have already undertaken under the old act, and there is $265 million available in this bill for continued planning grants.

Mr. RANDALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

(Mr. RANDALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANDALL. I want to make it very clear it was not the intention of my amendment to eliminate any assistance to the rural areas. On the other hand, my amendment was an effort to open the door for the unincorporated areas and rural areas to obtain assistance in the implementation of their plans. It is my opinion it does no good to plan and plan some more and then still more planning unless some action follows in terms of implementation of plans. That was the intention of my amendment, and I hope it may not be misunderstood.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. My intention is to leave the existing law in effect in most of the metropolitan and regional areas, and if this is not corrected by the House of Representatives, then they have tried in vain for at least a period of 3 years to comply therewith.

Mr. Chairman, we are coming in here trying to change the guidelines at this late date in the various regional areas and, therefore, these areas will not be approved for sewer and water grants, for instance, if this is done.

So, Mr. Chairman, it is the intent of my amendment to correct this situation.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, in the gentleman's generosity he strikes out both sections 501 and 502. This strikes out all the areawide district planning, all the comprehensive planning money.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman says he wants to go back to the existing law. We are moving rapidly in the field of housing planning, in the field of transportation, and in other fields. These are all adjuncts to this comprehensive planning.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the Members of the House will vote down this amendment without too much discussion.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that I believe this Congress knew what it was doing in 1965 when it passed the planning requirements for the 1965 HUD Act.

Mr. Chairman, right now in the major metropolitan regions and even in some of the minor metropolitan areas we have planning processes functioning today. They are doing an excellent job on planning for transportation, housing, for adequate sewer and water facilities and most everything else. But if we are going to change the guidelines at this late date as are contained in this bill, then all of these organizations will have to change their internal structures and, therefore, they will not be in a position to go into the planning of the type which is contemplated here in this bill and would further delay their efforts.

It has taking two and a half years in the Philadelphia area to set up an approved comprehensive continuous regional planning function approved by Housing and Urban Development.

Mr. BARRETT. I would tell the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that I too have had this experience, a gentleman came down from Harrisburg on community planning seeking help from the Congress both on the Democrat and Republican sides to get money for planning. I just cannot——

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. If the gentleman will yield further, is it not——

Mr. BARRETT. If the gentleman will excuse me, I have yielded most of my time.

I just cannot comprehend how the distinguished, lovable Member from Pennsylvania even goes against his own State administration. They need this money as well as New Jersey needs it. They need this money as well as every areawide and district area needs comprehensive planning. The gentleman now is asking to cut out every dollar in sections 501 and 502.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. That is totally inaccurate. My amendment leaves $265 million for planning plans in there. We are not taking a penny of the money out.

Mr. BARRETT. That is the money that is already committed that the gentleman is leaving in here.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. No. This is the increased authorization in the bill; my amendment does not remove that.

Mr. BARRETT. The gentleman is absolutely cutting it out of here; the gentleman wants to stand still. He does not want to go ahead.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Pennsylvania. I am not taking away planning grants.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a vote on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WILLIAMS].

The amendment was rejected.

[Mr. O'HARA of Michigan addressed the Committee. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

Mr. DOW. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of sections 504 and 505 which pertain to basic water and sewer facilities.

I am highly pleased that this bill offers the House an opportunity to increase the level of money authorized from the previous $200 million to $500 million annually. I was the first Member of this Congress to introduce a bill to that effect, and strongly support its purpose today.

Sewers under the program before the House today are lateral sewers and basic water facilities. Moneys authorized for this section 702 program have been woefully inadequate in the past.

When I came to Congress there was already a hue and cry about pollution. It was a subject of increasing national concern. These problems have not abated; they have only increased.

The established needs and demands for this program far exceed the amount which has been provided in the past, and even that amount which is before the House today; $500 million is the minimum necessary to do an adequate job and cannot be ignored at this time. I am glad that this amount is authorized for fiscal years 1969 and 1970.

At the time I introduced my bill I learned that the dollars applied for under the law provided for lateral sewers and basic water systems totaled 26 times the number of dollars appropriated. Many of the older communities in my District are suffering painfully in their antipollution programs as a result of the small amount of money available for lateral sewers.

Section 504 of the bill changes the date for a community's water and sewer program from July 1, 1968 to October 1, 1969. This amendment is necessary to insure continued eligibility. It extends the time under which a program must be under preparation, to October 1, 1969.

A committee report indicates that failure to extend the deadline date will require disapproval of projects for an estimated 50 to 60 percent of all urban areas. The additional time provided here should provide enough latitude for communities to reach a level of planning needed to meet the intent of the Housing and Urban Development Act.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are nor further amendments to title V, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE VI—URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION

GRANT AUTHORIZATIONS

SEC. 601. (a) Section 4(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended (1) by striking out the word "and" where it first appears in the first sentence, and (2) by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence "; and $190,000,000 for fiscal year 1970".

(b) Section 6(c) of such Act is amended (1) by striking out "$50,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$56,000,000", and (2) by inserting at the end thereof the following: "On or after July 1, 1969, the Secretary may make available to finance projects under this section such additional sums out of the grant authorization provided in section 4(b) as he deems appropriate."

DEFINITION OF MASS TRANSPORTATION

SEC. 602. Section 12(c)(5) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended to read as follows:

"(5) the term 'mass transportation' means transportation by bus, rail, or other conveyance, either publicly of privately owned, which provides to the public general or special service (but not including school buses or charter or sightseeing service) on a regular and continuing basis."

EXTENSION OF EMERGENCY PROGRAM UNDER THE URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION ACT

SEC. 603. Section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by striking out "November 1, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "October 1, 1969".

NON-FEDERAL SHARE OF NET PROJECT COST

SEC. 604. (a) Section 4(a) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by striking out the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds. Not more than 50 per centum of such remainder may be provided from other than public sources, and any public or private transit system funds shall be provided solely from undistributed cash surpluses, replacement or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital; except that in cases of demonstrated fiscal inability of an applicant actively engaged in preparing and effectuating a program for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area, such remainder may be provided from other than public sources No refund or reduction of the remainder of the net project cost shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant."

(b) Section 5 of such Act is amended by striking out the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds. Not more than 50 per centum of such remainder may be provided from other than public sources, and any public or private transit system funds shall be provided solely from undistributed cash surpluses, replacement or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital; except that in cases of demonstrated fiscal inability of an applicant actively engaged in preparing and effectuating a program for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area, such remainder may be provided from other than public sources. No refund or reduction of the remainder of the net project cost shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant."

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HALL

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HALL: On page 131, after line 9, insert the following new section:

"LABOR STANDARDS

"SEC. 605. Section 13(c) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'The specific provisions required by the second and third sentences of this subsection may be waived, in the case of a public transportation system which has been a public system continuously since before July 9, 1964, to the extent that the Secretary of Transportation find that the inclusion of s ch provisions in the protective arrangements is not feasible in the case of such system.' "

(Mr. HALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, the amendment I have offered is a very simple one which I hope the committee will see fit to accept. It provides that the Secretary of Transportation shall have the authority to waive the provisions of section 13(c) of the Mass Transit Act of 1964, in those cases where a public transportation system has been a public system continuously since before the enactment of the Mass Transit Act of 1964. It is permissive, only.

Members will recall that section 13(c) was a highly controversial amendment that was adopted as the price demanded by labor for its support of this act. Specifically the proponents wanted to be sure that no rights of union members would be jeopardized by the takeover of a privately owned system subsequent to passage of the act. They wanted to be sure that no union member might be displaced, his job lost, or his wages reduced as a result of a Federal grant improving or changing the nature of a local transportation system. To be sure that these rights were protected, section 13(c) in effect gave the Secretary of Labor the power to veto a Federal grant, if he felt these prior rights might be adversely affected in the event of a takeover. In practice it has not been the Secretary of Labor who has made this determination, but the officials of the International Amalgamated Transit Workers' Union. They are the ones who negotiate, who seek new contracts or changes in existing contracts. If they are satisfied, the Secretary of Labor is satisfied.

Nowhere has the intent of section 13(c) been more grossly violated than in the case of those cities, such as Springfield, Mo., where the transportation system has been municipally owned for more than 23 years, but yet where the Secretary of Labor has treated Springfield in the same facet as though it were a current or recent takeover situation. The Springfield story is aptly reflected on pages 791 through 824 of part II of the hearings before the Subcommittee on Housing.

Springfield City Utilities applied for a grant in January 1967. The sole purpose of the grant was to assist in the purchase of 16 new—replacement—35-passenger air-conditioned buses, and for the purchase and installation of six additional air-conditioning units on buses already owned. The application went through the usual procedure and there is ample evidence that the Urban Transportation Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was ready, willing and able to give its approval. But the representative of the International union tried to use this application as a blackjack to force the city to sign a collective bargaining agreement, something the city is prohibited from doing under Missouri State law, a prohibition upheld by a Missouri Supreme Court decision, Glidewell against Hughey.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALL. I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. If that is the case, why is it the city of St. Louis had a grant and qualified under section 13(c)?

Mr. HALL. The answer to the gentleman's question is very simple, and I am glad he asked it. The city of St. Louis and the city of East St. Louis, Ill., operate under a compact that does not come under the Missouri State law.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. St. Louis is in Missouri.

Mr. HALL. St. Louis is in Missouri and East St. Louis is in Illinois. They have a transportation compact, and this was brought out, as the gentlewoman from St. Louis on your committee will aver.

Nowhere was a serious case ever made that any employee of Springfield city utilities would be deprived of any rights he now possesses by the approval of this grant. In fact a strong case could be made that employees will suffer from the absence of these air-conditioned units. Springfield is asking for equipment which will permit them to hire more employees to operate equipment under more comfortable conditions than now exist. These units will encourage greater use of local mass transit by the public, and presumably help lift the transit system out of the red, thereby enhancing chances for improved pay and working conditions. Under Missouri law, employees of the municipally owned system do not now have collective bargaining rights, so how on earth could it be said that they may lose a right which does not now presently exist.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Missouri has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HALL was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. HALL. The fact is that terms of pay, working conditions, and so forth, are established by resolution of the board of city utilities and affirmed by resolution of the Springfield City Council. Even if an arbitration agreement were entered into it could be reversed the next day or the next week by a simple resolution. The fact is that Springfield City Utilities does bargain informally with representatives of the local union, and then the terms of that informal agreement are incorporated into working rules and pay schedules, which are adopted by resolution. But, it is not, and indeed under Missouri law cannot, be binding, because there is no formal contract. This is what the international union seeks and it has used the high office of the Secretary of Labor to try to accomplish by blackmail that which it cannot otherwise accomplish.

I know that some of my colleagues have had similar experiences in their districts and there are statements in the hearing record to that effect—page 792—as well as the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for October 14, 1966.

I think a good case could be made for eliminating section 13(c) altogether, but I recognize that this is not the time to open Pandora's box all over again. Mr. Chairman, I wish to affirm the cooperation and aid of the chairman and subcommittee chairman in the last 2 years in trying to work this paradoxical situation out. This is why we did not press the corrective amendment. But now even they admit no further replies or cooperation from the Secretary of Labor. Therefore, I have offered a simple and modified amendment to give the Secretary of HUD discretionary authority to act when it is clear that there is no takeover issue involved and that no rights should be guaranteed which did not previously exist before passage of the Mass Transit Act. There probably are very few cities where this situation exists. Springfield, Mo., is one of them; there may be others. I hope that justice will be done and I urge the adoption of my amendment.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, when I listened to this amendment it put me in mind of the general practitioner referring a patient with a heart condition to an obstetrician or a pediatrician, because here is an amendment which takes authority away from the Secretary of Labor under section 13(c), which is designed to protect the worker's rights.

Now, out of 139 applications for help under the Mass Transit Act, which was passed in 1964, there has been a problem in three instances, one in Springfield, Mo., one in the State of Washington, and one in the State of Texas. In the State of Texas and in the State of Washington and in the State of Missouri, other cities have qualified under the act and have qualified under section 13(c).

Certainly I think the Congress in its wisdom inserted and included section 13(c) to see to it that workers' rights would be protected.

If the community that has a transit system wants Federal help, I think the community should comply with the requirements of the Congress. I do not think the Congress should be required to comply with the desires of a single community in these United States of America.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I urge the Members to reject this amendment, which is a toehold, which is an opening, which is a beginning toward denying workers the rights they have earned over a long period of years.

It was not the labor unions, Mr. Chairman, who put this section 13(c) in. It was those of us Members of Congress who realized that it is not our function at any time under Federal legislation to deny workers rights they have earned over a long period of years. I do hope the House will reject the amendment.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ST GERMAIN. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, as I understand the amendment, it would apply to only the one community. Is that correct?

Mr. ST GERMAIN. This is the only community in the entire country that I am aware of that has this problem.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Presently the Secretary of Labor, as I recall the original legislation, has the authority to make these determinations. Is that correct?

Mr. ST GERMAIN. To make the determinations on whether or not there is this compliance with 13(c) which protects the workers' rights.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. The gentleman from Missouri would say, however, that with respect to those that have been continuously public systems since before July 9, 1964—and presumably only with respect to this kind of system—the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would make the determination?

Mr. ST GERMAIN. I do not know whether it is HUD or the Secretary of Transportation, but in either case, it is as I said in my earlier remarks.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, how does HUD get into this? I thought the Department of Transportation was now administering the program.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. That is correct. It is like referring the heart patient to the obstetrician or the pediatrician.

Mr. O'HARA of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I think it is compounding the bureaucracy, and it is not going to do any good. I hope the amendment is defeated.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HALL].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. HALL) there were—ayes 31, noes 40.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. HALL and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 82, noes 89.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to be offered to title VI? If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE VII—SECONDARY MORTGAGE MARKET

PURPOSE

SEC. 701. The purposes of this title include the partition of the Federal National Mortgage Association as heretofore existing into two separate and distinct corporations, each of which shall have continuity and corporate succession as a separated portion of the previously existing corporation. One of such corporations, to be known as Federal National Mortgage Association, will be a Government-sponsored private corporation, will retain the assets and liabilities of the previously existing corporation accounted for under section 304 of the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act, and will continue to operate the secondary market operations authorized by such section 304. The other, to be known as Government National Mortgage Association, will remain in the Government, will retain the assets and liabilities of the previously existing corporation accounted for under sections 305 and 306 of such Act, and will continue to operate the special assistance functions and management and liquidating functions authorized by such sections 305 and 306.

AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION CHARTER ACT

SEC. 702. (a) The heading of title III of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION" and inserting in lieu thereof "NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATIONS".

(b) Section 301 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "in the Federal Government a";

(2) by striking out "facility for" and inserting in lieu thereof "facilities for";

(3) by striking out "of such facility" and inserting in lieu thereof "thereof";

(4) by striking out "facility to" and inserting in lieu thereof "facilities to"; and

(5) by striking out "the existing mortgage portfolio of the Federal National Mortgage Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "federally owned mortgage potfolios".

(c) Section 302(a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" immediately following "(a)";

(2) by striking out "(hereinafter referred to as the 'Association')"; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) On the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, the body corporate described in the foregoing paragraph shall cease to exist in that form and is hereby partitioned into two separate and distinct bodies corporate, each of which shall have continuity and corporate succession as a separated portion of the previously existing body corporate, as follows:

"(A) One of such separated portions shall be a body corporate without capital stock to be known as Government National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the 'Association'), which shall be in the Department of Housing and Urban Development and which shall retain the assets and liabilities acquired and incurred under sections 305 and 306 prior to such effective date, including any and all liabilities incurred pursuant to section 302(c). The Association shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. It shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia and shall be deemed, for purposes of venue in civil actions, to be a resident thereof. Agencies or offices may be established by the Association in such other place or places as it may deem necessary or appropriate in the conduct of its business.

"(B) The other such separated portion shall be a body corporate to be known as Federal National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the 'corporation'), which shall retain the assets and liabilities acquired and incurred under sections 303 and 304 prior to such effective date. The corporation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. It shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia and shall be deemed, for purposes of venue in civil actions, to be a resident thereof.".

(d) Section 302(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Association is authorized" and inserting in lieu thereof "each of the bodies corporate named in subsection (a)(2) is authorized";

(2) by striking out "lend (under section 304) on the security of,";

(3) by inserting immediately before the colon in the first sentence "; and the corporation is authorized to lend on the security of any such mortgages and to purchase, sell, or otherwise deal in any securities guaranteed by the Association under section 306(g)"; and

(4) by striking out "no mortgage may be purchased" and inserting in lieu thereof "the Association may not purchase any mortgage".

(e) Section 302(c)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out ", consistent with section 307,".

(f) Section 302(c)(2)(C) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(C) The Department of Housing and Urban Development.".

(g) Section 302(c)(2) of such Act is amended by striking out "incurred by the Federal National Mortgage" and inserting in lieu thereof "incurred by the ".

(h) The heading of section 303 of such Act is amended to read as follows: "CAPITALIZATION—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION".

(i) Section 303 (a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "nonvoting common stock" and inserting in lieu thereof "common stock, without par value, which shall be vested with all voting rights, each share being entitled to one vote with rights of cumulative voting at all elections of directors";

(2) by striking out "nonvoting preferred stock" and inserting in lieu thereof "nonvoting preferred stock, with a par value of $100 per share,";

(3) by striking out the second and third sentences thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "The free transferability of the common stock at all times to any person, firm, corporation, or other entity shall not be restricted except that, as to the corporation, it shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation.";

(4) by striking out "of the capital surplus and the general surplus accounts";

(5) by striking out "retire" and inserting in lieu thereof "retire, at par,"; and

(6) by striking out "the Association shall deem feasible" and inserting in lieu thereof "possible subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

(j) Section 303(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "for its services" and inserting in lieu thereof ", which may be regarded as elements of pricing,"; and

(2) by striking out the last sentence.

(k) Section 303(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "(only in denominations of $100 or multiples thereof)";

(2) by inserting immediately after the first sentence the following: "In addition to the shares of common stock issued under the foregoing sentence, the corporation may issue additional shares in return for appropriate payments into capital or capital and surplus. The corporation shall at all times require each servicer of its mortgages to own a minimum amount of common stock of the corporation, measured by its stated value. Such minimum amount shall not exceed 2 per centum, as determined from time to time by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, of the aggregate outstanding principal balances of all mortgages of the corporation which have been purchased subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and which are then serviced by such servicer for the corporation."; and

(3) by striking out "the general surplus account of the Association shall not be reduced through the payment of dividends applicable to such common stock which exceed in the aggregate 5 per centum of the par value of the outstanding common stock of the Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "the aggregate amount of cash dividends paid on account of any share of such stock shall not exceed any rate which may be determined from time to time by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to be a fair rate of return after consideration of the current earnings and capital condition of the corporation".

(l) Section 303(d) of such Act is amended by striking out "$225,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$225,000,000; but no such stock may be issued subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

(m) Section 303(f) of such Act is amended by striking out "contributions, and" and inserting in lieu thereof "contributions, to purchase additional shares of such stock, and".

(n) Section 303(g) of such Act is repealed.

Appointments, promotions, and separations so made shall be based on merit and efficiency, and no political test or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration. Each officer and employee of the corporation who is employed by the corporation prior to the termination of the transitional period referred to in section 710(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and who on the day previous to the beginning of such employment will have been subject to the civil service retirement law (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, United States Code) shall, so long as his employment by the corporation continues without a break in continuity of service, continue to be subject to such law; and for the purpose of such law his employment by the corporation without a break in continuity of service shall be deemed to be employment by the Government of the United States. The corporation shall contribute to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund a sum as provided by section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code, except that such sum shall be determined by applying to the total basic pay (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 8331(3) and except as hereinafter provided) paid to the employees of the corporation who are covered by the civil service retirement law, the per centum rate determined annually by the United States Civil Service Commission to be the excess of the total normal cost per centum rate of the civil service retirement system over the employee deduction rate specified in section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code. The corporation shall also pay into the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund such portion of the cost of administration of the fund as is determined by the United States Civil Service Commission to be attributable to its employees. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, there shall not be considered for the purposes of the civil service retirement law that portion of the basic pay in any one year of any officer or employee of the corporation which exceeds the basic pay provided for in section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, on the last day of such year. Except as provided in this subsection, the corporation shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code."

(cc) Section 309(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "body corporate created by section 302" and inserting in lieu thereof "bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)";

(2) by inserting ", 'Government National Mortgage Association'," immediately following "'Federal National Mortgage Association'"; and

(3) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Violations of the foregoing sentence may be enjoined by any court of general jurisdiction at the suit of the proper body corporate. In any such suit, the plaintiff may recover any actual damages flowing from such violation, and, in addition, shall be entitled to punitive damages (regardless of the existence or nonexistence of actual damages) of not exceeding $100 for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated."

(dd) Section 309(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositaries, custodians, and fiscal agents for each of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2), for its own account or as fiduciary, and such banks shall be reimbursed for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon; and each of such bodies corporate may itself act in such capacities, for its own account or as fiduciary, and for the account of others."

(ee) Section 309 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have general regulatory power over the Federal National Mortgage Association and shall make such rules and regulations as shall be necessary and proper to insure that the purposes of this title are accomplished. No stock, obligation, security, or other instrument shall be issued by the corporation without the prior approval of the Secretary. The Secretary may require that a reasonable portion of the corporation's mortgage purchases be related to the national goal of providing adequate housing for low and moderate income families, but with reasonable economic return to the corporation. The Secretary may examine and audit the books and financial transactions of the corporation, and he may require the corporation to make such reports on its activities as he deems advisable."

(ff) Section 311 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "either of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following: "All stock, obligations, securities, participations, or other instruments issued pursuant to this title shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission; but all such issuances shall be made only with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development."

PARTICIPATIONS

SEC. 703. Section 302(c)(5) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following: "In the event that the insufficiency required by the trustee is on account of principal maturities of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection, or pursuant hereto, the trustee is authorized to elect to issue additional beneficial interests or participations for refinancing purposes in lieu of requiring any trustor or trustors to make payments to the trustee from appropriated funds or other sources. Each such issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be in an amount determined by the trustee but not in excess of the aggregate amount which the trustee would otherwise require the trustor or trustors to pay from appropriated funds or other sources, and may be issued without regard to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection. All refinancing issues of beneficial interests or participations shall be deemed to have been issued pursuant to the authority contained in the appropriation Act or Acts under which the beneficial interests or participations were originally issued."

MORTGAGE-BACKED SECURITIES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d) To provide a greater degree of liquidity to the mortgage investment market and an additional means of financing its operations under this section, the corporation is authorized to set aside any mortgages held by it under this section, and, upon approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and sell securities based upon the mortgages so set aside. Securities issued under this subsection may be in the form of debt obligations or trust certificates of beneficial interest, or both. Securities issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Securities issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Mortgages set aside pursuant to this subsection shall at all times be adequate to enable the corporation to make timely principal and interest payments on the securities issued and sold pursuant to this subsection."

(b) Section 306 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on such trust certificates or other securities as shall (1) be issued by the corporation under section 304(d), or by any other issuer approved for the purposes of this subsection by the Association, and (2) be based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any trust or other security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any security guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the rights satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any mortgage or mortgages constituting the trust or pool against which the guaranteed securities are issued; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed securities, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constiute such trust or pool shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatisfied rights of the holders of the securities based on and backed by such trust or pool. The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection."

SUBORDINATED AND CONVERTIBLE OBLIGATIONS

SEC. 705. Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding thereto (after subsection (d) as added by section 704 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(e) For the purposes of this section, the corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, obligations which are subordinated to any or all other obligations of the corporation, including subsequent obligations. The obligations issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and may be made redeemable at the option of the corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations. Any of such obligations may be made convertible into shares of common stock in such manner, at such price or prices, and at such time or times as may be stipulated therein. The total principal amount of such subordinated obligations which may be outstanding at any one time shall not exceed two times the sum of (1) the capital of the corporation represented by its outstanding common stock and (2) its surplus and undistributed earnings at such time. The outstanding total principal amount of such obligations which are entirely subordinated to the obligations of the corporation issued or to be issued under subsection (b) shall be deemed to be capital of the corporation for the purpose of determining the aggregate amount of obligations issued under subsection (b) which may be outstanding at any one time. Obligations issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the corporation. The corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price."

(m) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association," immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association" and by inserting "or the stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association" immediately after "any other agency of the United States".

(n) Section 8(8)(E) of the Federal Credit Union Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 708. The amendments made by this title shall be effective from and after a date, no more than one hundred and twenty days following the date of enactment of this Act, as established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Notice of the establishment of such effective date shall be published in the Federal Register at least thirty days prior thereto.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 709. (a) No cause of action by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association existing prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. Any such cause of action may thereafter be asserted by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act.

(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association, or any officer thereof in his official capacity, prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. A court may at any time thereafter during the pendency of any such litigation, on its own motion or that of any party, order that the litigation may be maintained by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act or the appropriate corresponding officer thereof.

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 710. (a) On the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, each share of outstanding nonvoting common stock, with a par value of $100 per share, of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be changed into and shall become one share of voting common stock, without par value, of such corporation.

(b)(1) The provisions of section 308(b) of the National Housing Act (as added by section 702(y)(7) of this Act) shall be applicable only to the extent that its provisions do not conflict with this subsection.

(2) For a transitional period after the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, the board of directors of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall consist of nine persons. For a term expiring on the date of the first annual meeting of the corporation's stockholders, all members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. For a term beginning on such date, seven members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary, and two members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For subsequent terms beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, five members shall be appointed by the Secretary, and four members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For each term beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, the Secretary shall appoint as a member of the board the president of the corporation. During the transitional period, the president of the corporation shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may be removed from office by the President for good cause.

(3) The transitional period referred to in paragraph (2) shall come to an end at such time as the board of directors shall find, with the approval of the Secretary, that not less than one-third of the corporation's common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses; but in no event shall it end sooner than May 1, 1970, or later than May 1, 1973.

(c) From the effective date established pursuant to section 708 and until the retirement of the last of the outstanding shares of its preferred stock, the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be deemed to be a wholly owned corporation for the purposes of the Government Corporation Control Act. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the financial transactions of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall continue to be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office for such period as there may be outstanding obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association which are guaranteed as to principal or interest by the Government National Mortgage Association.

(d) Those persons who are the officers and employees of the Federal National Mortgage Association immediately prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall become the officers and employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such date. The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Government National Mortgage Association shall provide by contract for the conditions and methods under which and by which the Federal National Mortgage Association during the transitional period may employ those individuals who are employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date; and may provide by contract for the operation by either of such corporations of any of the functions of the other. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make every reasonable effort to place in other comparable Federal positions any individuals who are career or career-conditional employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date and who are subsequently during the transitional period neither employed by the Federal National Mortgage Association nor retained by the Government National Mortgage Association.

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title VII be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title VII? If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE VIII—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

SEC. 801. The Congress finds that the volume of housing being produced for families and individuals of low or moderate income must be increased to meet the national goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family, and declares that it is the policy of the United States to encourage to widest possible participation by private enterprise in the provision of housing for low or moderate income families. The Congress has therefore determined that one or more private organizations should be created to encourage maximum participation by private investors in programs and projects to provide low and moderate income housing.

CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

SEC. 802. (a) There is hereby authorized to be created a private corporation for profit (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "corporation"). The corporation will not be an agency or establishment of the United States Government. The corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this title and, to the extent consistent with this title, to the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29–901 et seq.)

(b) Whenever the President finds it in the national interest to do so, he may cause the creation of an additional corporation or additional corporations to carry out the purposes of this title. All the provisions of this title shall thereupon become applicable to each such corporation, and to the limited partnership formed by its pursuant to section 807.

(c) Nothing in this title shall be construed to preclude private persons from creating other corporations and organizing other partnerships, joint ventures, or associations for the purposes set forth in this title as the purposes of the corporation and the partnership described in section 807.

PROCESS OF ORGANIZATION

SEC. 803. (a) The President of the United States shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, incorporators of the corporation, one of whom shall be designated by the President to serve as chairman. The incorporators shall serve as the initial board of directors until the first annual meeting of stockholders or until their successors are elected and have qualified.

(b) The incorporators shall take whatever actions are necessary or appropriate to establish the corporation, including the filing of articles of incorporation as approved by the President.

(c) The incorporators shall also arrange for an initial offering of shares of stock in the corporation and of interests in the partnership described in section 807 of this title. If the incorporators deem it advisable in order to carry out the purposes of this title, the initial offering may be made upon terms which require the purchase of other securities of the corporation or of interests in such partnership.

DIRECTORS

SEC. 804. The corporation shall have a board of directors (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "board"), consisting of fifteen members. Three members of the board shall be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, effective on the date on which the other members are elected, and for terms of three years or until their successors have been appointed and have qualified, except that the first three members of the board so appointed shall continue in office for terms of one, two, and three years, respectively, and any member so appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the director whom he succeeds. Twelve members of the board shall be elected by the stockholders.

FINANCING THE CORPORATION

SEC. 805. The corporation shall have the power to create and issue the number of shares stated in its articles of incorporation. Such shares may be divided into one or more classes, any or all of which classes may consist of shares with par value or shares without part value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, and special or relative rights and such limitations, restrictions, or qualifications thereof as shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation may limit or deny the voting power of the shares of any class.

PURPOSES AND POWERS OF THE CORPORATION

SEC. 806. (a) In order to achieve the objectives and carry out the purposes of this title, the corporation is authorized to—

(1) plan, initiate, and carry out, pursuant to Federal programs or otherwise, the building or rehabilitation of housing and related facilities primarily for the benefit of families and individuals of low or moderate income;

(2) buy, own, manage, lease, or otherwise acquire or dispose of property in connection with the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1); and

(3) provide such funds as may be necessary to accomplish the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1).

(b) Included in the activities authorized to the corporation for the accomplishment of the purposes indicated in subsection (a) of this section are, among others not specifically named—

(1) to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, joint ventures, and other associations with individuals, corporations, and private and governmental agencies, organizations, and institutions;

(2) to act as manager or general partner of any such partnership, venture, or association;

(3) to conduct or contract for research and studies related to the development, demonstration, and evaluation of improved techniques and methods of constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing;

(4) to provide technical assistance to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others with respect to the planning, financing, construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, and management of housing for low and moderate income families and individuals;

(5) to make loans or grants, including grants of interests in housing and related facilities, to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others, in carrying out its activities under subsection (a) of this section; and

(6) to hire or accept the voluntary services of consultants, experts, advisory boards, and panels to aid the corporation in carrying out the purposes of this title.

(c) To carry out the foregoing purposes and engage in the foregoing activities, the corporation shall have the usual powers conferred upon a stock corporation by the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act.

(d) Nothing in this title shall have the effect of waiving or otherwise affecting the applicability of the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 267a—276a–5), or any other law requiring compliance with labor standards, in the case of any construction to which such provisions would otherwise apply.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

SEC. 807. (a) The corporation is authorized to arrange for the formation, as a separate organization, of a limited partnership (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "partnership") under the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–401 et seq.) for the purpose of engaging in any of the activities authorized for the corporation under section 906 of this title, and to enter into a partnership agreement governing the affairs of such limited partnership.

(b) The partnership shall be subject to the provisions, to the extent consistent with this title, of (1) the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act and (2) those provisions of the District of Columbia Uniform Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec 41–301 et seq.) made applicable by section 6(2) of that Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–305(2)). Notwithstanding any inconsistency between the provisions of such Acts, or of any other law, and the provisions of this section, the partnership organized pursuant to this section shall be deemed to have the legal status of a limited partnership.

(c) The partnership is authorized to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures organized under applicable State or local law for the purpose of engaging in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in particular localities.

(d) The corporation shall be the general partner in the partnership. The capital of the partnership and the contributions of the partners shall be in such amounts and at such times as are set forth in or pursuant to the partnership agreement.

(e) The partnership agreement shall include provisions designed to assure that (1) the partnership shall participate in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in a manner designed to encourage the participation therein of local interests, and (2) in any such development, project, or undertaking the partnership shall not subscribe to more than 25 per centum (including equity investments made in services or property) of the aggregate initial equity investment unless, in the judgment of the corporation as general partner, the balance of the required equity investment is not readily obtainable from other responsible investors residing or doing business in the local community

(f) The partnership agreement may without limitation (1) permit each of the stockholders of the corporation to become a member of the partnership as a limited partner, (2) authorize the inclusion of other limited partners in addition to the stockholders of the corporation, (3) provide that the assignee of the partnership interest of a limited partner of the partnership who is also a stockholder of the corporation may not become a substituted limited partner unless he also acquires the assignor's stock of the corporation, and (4) include provisions requiring that the corporation as a general partner approve the substitution or addition of a member of the partnership.

(g) A corporation which is a limited partner in the partnership shall not become liable as a general partner by reason of the fact that (1) such corporation is a holder of shares of voting stock of the corporation constituting not more than 5 per centum of the total number of outstanding shares of such stock and exercises any of the rights (including voting rights) of a holder of such shares, and/or (2) a person who is an officer or director of such corporation (or of another corporation which controls or is subject to the control of, or is under common control with, such corporation) is a director of the corporation and performs the duties of that office. The interest of a limited partner in the partnership shall not be treated as a stock interest in the corporation, notwithstanding that such interest of a limited partner may be proportionate to his stock interest in the corporation.

(h) The certificate of the partnership and any amendment thereof required by the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act shall be executed and acknowledged by the corporation as member and by each other member of the partnership or his attorney-in-fact duly authorized by power of attorney in writing. The corporation may execute and acknowledge the certificate and any amendment thereof as attorney-in-fact for any member, member to be substituted or added, or assigning member, by whom the certificate or amendment is required to be executed and acknowledged and who has appointed the corporation as such attorney.

REPORT TO CONGRESS AND RECORDS

SEC. 808. (a) The corporation shall submit an annual report to the President for transmittal to the Congress within six months after the end of its fiscal year. The report shall include a comprehensive and detailed report of the operations, activities, and financial condition of the corporation and the partnership under this title.

(b) The accounts of the corporation and of the partnership shall be audited annually in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards by independent certified public accountants or independent licensed public accountants certified or licensed by a regulatory authority of a State or other political subdivision of the United States.

ANTITRUST LAWS

SEC. 809. Nothing contained herein shall affect the applicability of the Federal antitrust laws to the activities of the corporation and the partnership created under this title and of the persons participating therein or in partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures with either of them.

RIGHT TO REPEAL, ALTER, OR AMEND

SEC. 810. The right to repeal, alter, or amend this title at any time is expressly reserved.

AMENDMENT TO BANKING LAWS

SEC. 811. Paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "Notwithstanding any other provision in this paragraph, the association may purchase for its own account shares of stock issued by a corporation authorized to be created pursuant to title VIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and may make investments in a partnership, limited partnership, or joint venture formed pursuant to section 807(a) or 807(c) of that Act."

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title VIII be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title VIII? If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

SEC. 901. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"LOANS TO PROVIDE OCCUPANT-OWNED, RENTAL, AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

"SEC. 521. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 502, 517(a), and 515, loans to persons of low or moderate income under section 502 or 517(a)(1), and loans under section 515 to provide rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for persons and families of low or moderate income or elderly persons and elderly families, shall bear interest at a rate prescribed by the Secretary at not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference beween the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum:

Provided, That such a loan may be made only when the Secretary determines that the needs of the applicant for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources including assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act: Provided further, That interest on loans under section 502 or 517(a) to victims of natural disasters shall not exceed the rate which would be applicable to such loans under section 502 without regard to this section.

"(b) Housing and related facilities provided with loans described in subsection (a) shall be located in rural areas; and applicants eligible for such loans under section 502 or 517(a)(1), or for occupancy of housing provided with such loans under section 515, shall include otherwise qualified nonrural residents who will become rural residents.

"(c) There shall be reimbursed to the Rural Housing Insurance Fund by annual appropriations the amounts by which nonprincipal payments made from the fund during each fiscal year to the holders of insured loans described in subsection (a) exceed interest due from the borrowers during each year; and the Secretary from time to time may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 517(h) to obtain amounts equal to such unreimbursed excess payments, pending the annual reimbursement by appropriation."

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 902. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 521 (as added by section 901 of this Act) the following new section:

"HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

"SEC. 522. (a) Upon the application of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization, the Secretary is authorized, after consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and after the Secretary determines that the housing and related facilities cannot reasonably be provided in any other way, to provide financial and technical assistance for the establishment, in rural areas, of housing and related facilities for trainees and their families who are residents of a rural area and have a rural background, while such trainees are enrolled and participating in training courses designed to improve their employment capability. The selection of training sites and location of housing shall be made with due regard to the economic viability of the area, and only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Government agencies having primary responsibility for administering related programs.

"(b) Housing and related facilities assisted under this section shall be safe and sanitary, constructed in the most economical manner, and of modest design, giving due consideration to the purposes to be served and the needs of the occupants, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary, include mobile family quarters. Design and location shall be such as to facilitate, as feasible, the use of such housing and related facilities for other purposes when no longer needed for the primary purpose.

"(c) The applicant shall contribute the necessary land, or funds to acquire such land, from its own resources, including land acquired by donation or from funds repayable under subsection (e) or borrowed from other sources.

"(d) No financial assistance shall be made available under this section unless, to the extent and for the periods required by the Secretary, the applicant agrees that—

"(1) such housing will be maintained at all times in a safe and sanitary condition in accordance with standards prescribed by State or local law, or, in the absence of such standards, with requirements prescribed by the Secretary;

"(2) priority shall be given at all times, in granting occupancy of such housing and facilities, to the trainees and their families described in subsection (a); and

"(3) rentals charged them shall not exceed amounts approved by the Secretary after considering the portion of the actual total family income which the family can afford to pay for rent while meeting its other immediate needs during occupancy.

"(e) The Secretary may make advances pursuant to any contract for financial assistance under this section at such times and in such manner as may be specified in the contract. Such advances for the purchase of land shall be repayable with interest and within a period not to exceed thirty-three years and may be made upon such security, if any, as the Secretary requires. Advances for other purposes may be made repayable with or without interest or nonrepayable as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the anticipated income and cost of operation of the housing and related facilities and the ability of each applicant to finance such facilities. Any advances shall be limited to cover the capital costs of constructing such facilities, plus interest on borrowings to cover such costs.

"(f) Should housing and related facilities assisted pursuant to a contract under this section be sold to an ineligible transferee or diverted to a use other than its primary purpose within a period specified in the contract, all advances made under such contract shall be repaid to the Secretary, up to the amount of the sales price or the fair value of the property as determined by the Secretary, whichever is higher, with interest from the date of the sale or diversion. If no suitable alternate use of the property is available, as determined by the Secretary, after the purpose of this section can no longer be served, the property shall be returned to its original condition by the recipient of the assistance.

"(g) Interest charged on advances made under this section shall be at a rate, prescribed by the Secretary, which shall be not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum, as determined by the Secretary.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to insure that Federal funds expended under this section are not wasted or dissipated.

"(i) As used in this section (1) the term 'related facilities' shall include any necessary community rooms or buildings, infirmaries, utilities, access roads, water and sewer services, and the minimum fixed or movable equipment determined by the Secretary to be necessary to make the housing reasonably habitable by trainees and their families; and (2) the term 'trainee' means any person receiving training under any federally assisted training program.

"(j) All laborers and mechanics employed in connection with the provision of housing and related facilities assisted under this section, where such housing includes eight or more dwelling units, shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5); and no assistance shall be extended under this section with respect to such housing and the related facilities without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work involved. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this subsection, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1267) and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (40 U.S.C. 276c).

"(k) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section."

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 903. Section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and (e)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(e)"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and (f) such sums as may be required by the Secretary to administer the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act".

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR BUILDING SITES

SEC. 904. Section 514(f)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" before "(B)", and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof the following: "and (C) land necessary for an adequate site".

MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

SEC. 905. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 522 (as added by section 902 of this Act) the following new section:

"MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

"SEC. 523. (a) The purposes of this section are (1) to make financial assistance available on reasonable terms and conditions in rural areas and small towns to needy low-income individuals and their families who, with the benefit of technical assistance and overall guidance and supervision, participate in approved programs of mutual or self-help housing by acquiring and developing necessary land, acquiring building materials, providing their own labor, and working cooperatively with others for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for themselves, their families, and others in the area or town involved, and (2) to facilitate the efforts of both public and private nonprofit organizations providing assistance to such individuals to contribute their technical and supervisory skills toward more effective and comprehensive programs of mutual or self-help housing in rural areas and small towns wherever necessary.

"(1) to make grants to, or contract with, public or private nonprofit corporations, agencies, institutions, organizations, and other associations approved by him, to pay part or all of the costs of developing, conducting, administering, or coordinating effective and comprehensive programs of technical and supervisory assistance which will aid needy low-income individuals and their families in carrying out mutual or self-help housing efforts;

"(2) to make loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to needy low-income individuals participating in programs of mutual or self-help housing approved by him, for the acquisition and development of land and for the purchase of such other building materials as may be necessary in order to enable them, by providing substantially all of their own labor, and by cooperating with others participating in such programs, to carry out to completion the construction of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for such individuals and their families, subject to the following limitations:

"(A) there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan;

"(B) the amount of the loan, together with other funds which may be available, is adequate to achieve the purpose for which the loan is made;

"(C) the credit assistance is not otherwise available on like terms or conditions from private sources or through other Federal, State, or local programs;

"(D) the loan bears interest at a rate not to exceed 3 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, plus such additional charge, if any, toward covering other costs of the loan program as the Secretary may determine to be consistent with its purposes; and

"(E) the loan is repayable within not more than thirty-three years.

"(c) In determining whether to extend financial assistance under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other factors, the suitability of the area within which construction will be carried out to the type of dwelling which can be provided under mutual or self-help housing programs, the extent to which the assistance will facilitate the provision of more decent, safe, and sanitary housing conditions than presently exist in the area, the extent to which the assistance will be utilized efficiently and expeditiously, the extent to which the assistance will effect an increase in the standard of living of low-income individuals participatng in the mutual or self-help housing program, and whether the assistance will fulfill a need in the area which is not otherwise being met through other programs, including those carried out by other Federal, State, or local agencies.

"(d) As used in this section, the term 'construction' includes the erection of new dwellings, and the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to establish appropriate criteria and procedures in order to determine the eligibility of applicants for the financial assistance provided under this section, including criteria and procedures with respect to the periodic review of any construction carried out with such financial assistance.

"(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1968, and ending prior to July 1, 1973, such sums, not in excess of $5,000,000 for any such fiscal year, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section. No grant or loan may be made or contract entered into under the authority of this section after June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a commitment or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title IX be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. TALCOTT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I take this time to ask several questions of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], the chairman of the subcommittee, and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], the chairman of the full committee.

As I understand this bill, it provides for a total expenditure of some $50 billion. Is that not correct?

Mr. BARRETT. It is $5 billion over 3 years.

Mr. TALCOTT. $5 billion for the fiscal year 1969.

Mr. BARRETT. Over 3 years.

Mr. TALCOTT. Then, I have a different computation.

In any event, there is a good deal of money being authorized for housing, particularly for city housing, but title IX is intended for rural housing. Can you tell me how much money is authorized in title IX for rural housing of all kinds?

Mr. BARRETT. First let me say that these will be in subsidies as well as in the low-income housing field. I cannot give you the exact amount on it, because titles I and II do not set a limit on the exact amount of dollars that can be used for rural housing.

Mr. TALCOTT. Will the gentleman answer this question? I am trying to ascertain the amount of money in this bill which is authorized for rural housing. In my view, the people who live in rural areas are the poorest of the poor and the most disadvantaged of the disadvantaged and have the worst housing. They would gladly move to the ghettos of the big cities to improve their conditions. I would like to find out how much money is being proposed to be spent for the rural people as opposed to the people in the big cities.

Mr. Chairman, I would suggest that the rural areas are actually the poorest of the poor, the most disadvantaged of the disadvantaged. They have the worst housing in the United States and most of the people who live in the rural areas, particularly the farmworkers and the migrant farmworkers would like to be able to move permanently to the cities to seek to enjoy some of the benefits afforded residents there.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I would like to know how much money is being authorized in this bill for rural housing as compared with city housing.

Mr. BARRETT. We have a total authorization, if I may say to the gentleman, of $25 million for self-help housing.

Is that an adequate answer to the gentleman's question?

Mr. TALCOTT. Then the answer to my question is $5 billion for the cities and only $25 million for rural people.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TALCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I am amazed at the continued statements on the other side of the aisle that this bill involves $5 billion. There are five programs contained in this bill which run for a period of 40 years and those five programs alone will cost the taxpayers of the United States of America more than $50 billion.

Mr. Chairman, I invite the gentleman to deny that if it is not true, or to confirm it if it is true and let us quit talking about this benig a $5-billion bill because the cost will be in excess of $50 billion—of the taxpayers' money.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from California will yield, I would say the gentleman from North Carolina is partially right. We have to calculate these subsidies going down in the rent supplement areas. We will also have to calculate the subsidy figures coming down on the low- and moderate-income housing. I do not believe anyone can give the amount that will be covered over a 40-year period. I do not believe anyone can do that or can make that statement accurately.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from California will yield further to me, my experience is and has been that these programs and the cost thereof do not go down, but they go up as the years pass. The total expenditure to the taxpayer of America in these five programs alone is more than $50 billion.

Mr. TALCOTT. Well, I am amazed. With a $50 billion exposure to the taxpayers for housing for the city dwellers, there is only the possibility of $25 million for rural residents. This proration of Federal authorization is inequitable. The rural residents are poorer and housing costs are higher. Additionally, the rural residents must help themselves. This idea of self-help ought to be applied to city dwellers also.

This bill is grossly unfair to the rural people who need housing help even more urgently than city residents.

Until more consideration is given to the people who need housing most, I cannot vote to burden the Federal taxpayer with an exposure to the payment of $50 billion.

This bill will encumber the next generation by a certain $50 billion. Experience proves that the mortgage will increase before the program projects are amortized.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. STEPHENS

Mr. STEPHENS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STEPHENS: On page 179, line 14, renumber paragraph (1) as paragraph (1)(A). On page 179, after line 22 and before line 23 insert a new paragraph (B) to read as follows:

"(B) to establish the Self-Help Housing Land Development Fund, referred to herein as the Self-Help Fund, to be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for making loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to public or private nonprofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to families, nonprofit organizations, and cooperatives eligible for assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act or section 521 of this act. Such a loan, with interest at a rate not to exceed 3 percent per annum, shall be repaid within a period not to exceed two years from the making of the loan, or within such additional period as may be authorized by the Secretary in any case as being necessary to carry out the purposes hereof."

On page 182, line 11, strike out the quotation marks.

On page 182, after line 11 and before line 12, insert the following new subsection (g):

"(g) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of subsection (b)(1)(B) not to exceed $1,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969 and not to exceed $2,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amount so authorized to be appropriated for any fiscal year which is not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year or years. Amounts appropriated under this subsection shall be deposited in the Self-Help Fund, which shall be available without fiscal year limitation for making loans under subsection (b)-(1)(B). Instruments and property acquired by the Secretary in or as a result of making such loans shall be assets of the Self-Help Fund. Sums received from the repayment of such loans shall be deposited in and be a part of the Self-Help Fund."

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, we are acquainted with the amendment which the gentleman has offered. The gentleman has given it to both sides, the minority and the majority. Therefore, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the gentleman's amendment be dispensed with and, that it be printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, just what kind of request is this, that the amendment be subject to amendment at any point? It is subject to amendment without unanimous consent.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Iowa will yield, I believe the gentleman will understand it when he understands what is sought to be accomplished by the amendment. We are willing to accept the amendment and we thought the other side was willing to do likewise.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, the gentleman says he is willing to accept the pending amendment. Only a short time ago he made a speech complaining about the numerous amendments to this bill and made the statement that we would be here a long time if all of the amendments were offered. In other words, he suggested that the Members ought to stick their amendments in their pockets or some place else, apparently, so that we could get out of here without properly considering the bill.

The gentleman from Texas brought in a Christmas tree with presents on it for everybody, or as many people as he could think of, and now he wants the Members to pocket some of the baubles that are on the tree. One after one, he succumbs to amendments that are offered and blithely, easily, and glibly accepts the amendments that are being offered.

I would ask the gentleman what kind of business is this where on one hand he chides the Members for their interest in the bill, and on the other the gentleman gets up and accepts amendment after amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to see a little order out of the chaos that presently exists.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, may I say to the gentleman that this is an amendment in the public interest. It has been examined by experts on both sides, the minority side and the majority side. And whenever we agree on an amendment that no one objects to, and we believe is in the public interest, we are willing to save a little time that way and get through. And we only agree to amendments where there is no doubt about them being constructive and helpful.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman asks us to rely on his judgment. Some of us would like to know what is in some of the amendments that the gentleman so blithely and quickly now accepts, whereas a moment ago he was blaming the House because the Members were introducing so many amendments.

Mr. PATMAN. The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. STEPHENS] expects to state what the amendment proposes.

Mr. STEPHENS. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate having the opportunity of explaining the amendment that everybody agrees to, as it sounds like. However, it seems they only disagree on one thing: letting me explain.

However, Mr. Chairman, this amendment is an amendment that is applied to the self-help proposals that are in the bill for groups that want to get together and build houses for low-income people, just like they used to do in the old frontier days. However, nowadays, Mr. Chairman, people just do not have the necessary skills they used to have when logrollings were held.

The purpose of this amendment is to provide some guidance through the Farmers Home Administration for the people who are planning to provide self-help housing for themselves. It would provide groups that want to undertake the self-help projects with the help of finding the proper site for their buildings. It will guide them in the plans for their housing and then it will provide them for the actual construction of these houses.

The amount of money involved is $1 million for the first year, $2 million for the second year; a total of $3 million. It will have to be appropriated and it will be then put into a revolving fund, because it will be paid back out of the funds that are contemplated here.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman from Georgia is not telling me that this is some more counseling service for somebody?

Mr. STEPHENS. A little more than what the gentleman objected to yesterday. It teaches more, it teaches the people how to solve their problems, such as how many rafters would go into the house, and how many studs would go into the house.

Mr. GROSS. The builders today are not competent to know how many studs would go into a house in Georgia or in Iowa?

Mr. STEPHENS. Yes, they are; they are competent, but these people that we are talking about are not contractors, they are not builders, they are building a house from scratch themselves as a self-help project, just like the old-fashioned groups that got together in a community when they wanted to build a log cabin, and they had all the people in the neighborhood come and help them.

Mr. GROSS. If the gentleman will yield further, is the gentleman going to provide them with slide rules also, to the highly educated people in Georgia who are going to build their own houses?

Mr. STEPHENS. We have educated people in Georgia who can teach them how to do it.

Mr. GROSS. I guess we had some down here not long ago—down here in shantytown.

Mr. STEPHENS. Yes, sir; we did. But they were not all from Georgia though.

Mr. MATHIAS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MATHIAS of California. Mr. Chairman, I thoroughly support the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. STEPHENS] to provide a revolving fund for self-help housing land acquisition. Self-Help Enterprises, which runs a very succesful program in my own congressional district, organizes groups of 10 to 12 families, who share their time and talent to complete a new home for each family in the group. It is important that each group of houses be located in the same general area, so that each family can help with building every house. If the houses are widely separated, the cost of technical supervision rises. And when an area is improved by the construction of self-help homes, land costs rise and it is difficult to acquire additional homes sites in the area at a reasonable cost.

In February of 1967, I filed legislation to expand the scope of self-help housing and that bill included language authorizing a revolving fund for land acquisition. With a revolving fund land can be acquired in blocks and then subdivided. The proceeds of subdivision will be returned to the fund. Such a revolving fund will allow significant economies in the self-help housing process and thereby put self-help housing within reach of an even greater number of families.

Contrary to popular opinion, most of the country's substandard housing is not located in the deteriorated slum neighborhoods of our major cities, but in rural areas and small towns. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Weaver has testified that:

> In 1960, over 52% of the dilapidated units were in rural open country or in small towns under 2,500 population . . . Conversely, only 23% of the dilapidated housing in the United States was located in cities over 50,000 population.

I am particularly pleased that the present bill provides for the expansion of self-help housing. Self-Help Enterprises of Visalia, Calif., is now operating a highly successful program of this type. One hundred and seventy-five farmworker families in the San Joaquin Valley have already completed new homes, another 195 families have homes under construction, and an additional 315 families are in some stage of planning for future construction.

Section 905 of the present bill will allow the Secretary of Agriculture to support expanded programs of self-help housing and make loans to program participants. Section 1415 authorizes the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to study the application of self-help techniques to nonrural areas. These two sections will expand the scope of self-help housing and give it a chance to show that it can work in urban as well as rural areas.

The self-help process has demonstrated that it is efficient and that it requires a minimum of Government expense and involvement. With Government funds Self-Help Enterprises furnishes only technical and supervisory assistance. All the actual labor is supplied by the families themselves. The cost of land, materials and equipment is covered by a mortgage that the owner will pay off in regular installments. The average mortgage in the San Joaquin Valley amounts to about $8,000 or two-thirds of the value of the typical home. The remaining one-third, about $4,000, is the owner's equity built by months of hard work by every member of the family.

Self-help housing is an excellent program that has shown that it can succeed. I am pleased that the present bill will expand this program.

Mr. STEPHENS. I thank the gentleman.

(Mr. MATHIAS of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WATSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. WATSON. I certainly am inclined to support the gentleman's amendment but, frankly, I am a little undecided now.

Just what does the gentleman's amendment do? Do you mean to tell me that if some of our neighbors want to get together and supply our combined talents in building houses for one another that we have to have Government approval to do that?

Mr. STEPHENS. Under the bill itself, if they are going to get some assistance from the Government and in the financing of it, this amendment would give them some assistance from the Farmers Home Administration in the planning of it.

Mr. WATSON. Well, that is the thing—the Government will be paying for the planning of it. In other words, we are going to eliminate the architects, and we are going to eliminate the real estate people, and we are going to eliminate the contractors, but the Government is going to come in with other people?

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. STEPHENS] has expired.

(By unanimous consent, at the request of Mr. WATSON, Mr. STEPHENS was granted 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. WATSON. That is the point I am trying to get satisfied in my mind—is the Government going to step in and take the place of the architects and the contractors and so forth? I just fail to see, if a group wants to get together who are providing the plumbing expertise, and another one the electrical know-how, and so forth, why we need any approval from the Government in order to get help.

Mr. STEPHENS. I would point out to the gentleman that under my amendment it is not mandatory that they have to take this help. If they ask for it, they can get it. It is not mandatory and it is not required that they get it.

Mr. WATSON. Yes, but I have still failed to get an answer to my question as to why, if they chose to follow this route, why they have to get Government approval.

Mr. STEPHENS. They have to get Government approval of their projects if they want the loans that are involved here—that is, Government approval to provide the money.

Mr. WATSON. But you do agree under this process that we are going to eliminate the architect and we are going to eliminate the regular contractors.

Mr. STEPHENS. No; I do not think we are going to eliminate them. They have a perfect right to hire them and undertake the work.

Mr. WATSON. Yes; but why would we resort to Government counsel and advice and guidance if I can go and get a carpenter or a contractor who obviously knows what there is to know about the construction of a house.

Mr. STEPHENS. They can do that.

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. Is it not true that the very definition itself of the word "self help" indicates that the man is in a different position in dealing with professionals in his community. If it was not self help, it would not be in this section. Therefore, this makes no change in his relationship to any of the professions whatsoever.

If he wants to do it, and if he asks for it to get the money and the Government assistance for planning through the Government, you are making it available.

Mr. WATSON. If the gentleman will yield for another observation, if it is self help and he is going to do it himself, why does the Government have to be here in the picture?

Mr. STEPHENS. It does not have to do it unless it is invited.

Mr. WATSON. I assume that the purpose of the amendments is to get the Government into the picture, otherwise this is simply an exercise in futility.

Mr. STEPHENS. My amendment would provide for a way to help rather than giving it completely to what might be an irresponsible group.

(On request of Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia, and by unanimous consent, Mr. STEPHENS was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from Georgia yield for a question?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. I thought I thought I was perfectly clear on the amendment until we started getting into the questions. Would your amendment provide that a person can obtain money from the Government who is not an expert in home construction but merely wishes to provide some money for planning purposes of his own home?

Mr. STEPHENS. No; I do not think that would be exactly correct. These self-help proposals are for group self-help. It may be for the purpose of dealing with one individual home, yes; but it may be handled by a nonprofit group that would have some leadership in finding the land, and perhaps they would build 10 houses in an area together.

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. Will the gentleman yield for one further question?

Mr. STEPHENS. I yield.

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. Suppose there is a church group that wants to get together. They have no experience whatsoever in building, but there is a local church and they say, "We want to build a small community. We need some money for planning this community." Under this program, should they apply for a planning grant, and would the Federal Government finance the plan for that and the homes under your amendment?

Mr. STEPHENS. Under my amendment, yes. The Farmers Home Administration could come in to help.

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. Then, of course, they would have other financing to obtain, financing for building the houses.

Mr. STEPHENS. That is correct.

Mr. THOMPSON of Georgia. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. BINGHAM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, before we leave the titles of the bill that have to do with housing and with mass transportation, I would like to make one or two brief comments, and I will not take the 5 minutes. I think it should be understood that there are many of us in this House who feel that, while the committee—especially the chairman of the committee and the chairman of the subcommittee—have done a splendid job on this bill, there are several titles in which the sums authorized are not going to be adequate to meet the needs. Recognizing the practicalities, we have not sought amendments to increase these amounts, but it should be a matter of record that we believe in many instances these figures should be higher.

I have particular reference to title VI, dealing with urban mass transportation. While an increase has been called for in that title, it is wholly inadequate. I hope that some day the Members of this House and the people of the country will recognize that the Federal Government is doing far too little for mass transportation in the big cities of our country, especially when we consider the huge amounts of money that the Federal Government is spending for highways across the country today.

It is still true that the Federal Government is putting up $20 for highways for every dollar that it is putting up to improve the mass transportation facilities which millions of people in our cities have to use every day. I hope that some day that ratio will be brought more into balance.

Mr. SISK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I hesitate to take too much of the Committee's time, but I do wish to express my appreciation to the Banking and Currency Committee for title IX. I have long been interested and concerned with the program of self-help housing because in the areas where it has been tried, I believe it has done an exceptionally good job. I wish to commend my colleague from California [Mr. MATHIAS], who has an adjoining district to mine, where we have seen what can happen under a good program of self-help housing.

I would like at this time, Mr. Chairman, if I might, to direct a question or two to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT] with reference to the intent of the committee and the intent of Congress as to the program of financing for self-help housing under the provisions of this bill as to areas or small towns or suburban areas that are near or adjacent to metropolitan areas.

As I am sure my colleague from Pennsylvania knows, the present program operating under the Farmers Home Administration is limited to small towns of 5,500 or less. We have run into a situation where the small town which happens to be adjacent to a metropolitan area has had a question raised as to whether or not it would qualify.

I would like to have the gentleman from Pennsylvania comment as to the intent of the committee in this area and to what extent this program which is proposed now in this legislation might expand on the general self-help housing program.

I yield to the gentleman for that purpose, if he will comment.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I think we have a great opportunity to expand under this program. Any small town under 5,500 will be eligible to apply under this program.

Mr. SISK. Mr. Chairman, I am certainly not advocating that this be made applicable in the metropolitan area. I think we have ample programs in the cities themselves, but I am concerned with the suburban areas and the small towns, where today they lie, let us say, within the metropolitan area of a city, and where the Farmers Home Administration under their program have ruled that because of the proximity to the metropolitan area, the towns would not qualify for the self-help program.

I understand the gentleman from Pennsylvania to say he understands here the fact that an area is adjacent or near to a metropolitan area will not rule it out if the area otherwise qualifies.

Mr. BARRETT. That is correct.

Mr. STEPHENS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, it is my understanding that the self-help proposals are not limited by the 5,500 limitation that we have for the Farmers Home Administration, that this is not limited to 5,500.

Mr. SISK. Let me say to my good friend from Georgia, I have been pretty deeply involved in this program for the last 3 or 4 years. I have a number of self-help homes in my area that have been helped, and the Farmers Home Administration has been very strict in adhering to this. It was my hope that, though not seeking to qualify within the cities themselves, at least within the suburban areas and areas near to the metropolitan area they would qualify. I raise this question because I recently had one ruled out, a little town of about 3,000 or 4,000, because of its proximity to the city of Fresno, which is my hometown.

I simply want to make clear that this is not the intent of the Congress to rule such a community out.

Mr. BARRETT. I believe that is what we intended when we passed on this in the committee.

Mr. SISK. I appreciate that very much. As I understand, this is the position of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, that is correct.

(Mr. SISK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SISK. Mr. Chairman, I wish to express my appreciation for the inclusion of section 905 of this bill, authorizing a new program of assistance for self-help housing in rural areas and small towns through the Farmers Home Administration. This language represents substantially the program which I have advocated for some time, but it is important that the nature of this program be clearly understood in terms of a legislative history. The immediate language provides for continuing assistance only in areas served by the Farmers Home Administration, the larger urban areas being embraced by the language establishing the National Home Ownership Foundation—section 107—which provides authorization for technical assistance to self-help groups, and section 1415(a) which authorizes and requires the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to carry out studies and demonstrations of self-help housing.

My concern is with section 905 of title IX.

Is it my understanding that the purpose of section 905 is to enable low-income families to secure decent housing and homeownership through self-help, first, by authorizing funds for sponsorship of such programs, and, second, by making low-interest-rate money available to such families. It is my understanding that the enactment of this section would authorize funds which the Farmers Home Administration can grant to nonprofit organizations to provide educational services and technical assistance to low-income families seeking homes through self-help, and that the $5 million in funds authorized specifically in this section is for this purpose. It is also my understanding that section 905 authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to make credit available to such self-help families at the lowest possible rate, not to exceed 3 percent per annum.

In other words, section 905 authorizes an expansion of the self-help housing program, authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to lend money to self-help families in small towns and rural areas, at the lowest interest rate possible under existing or future legislation; and further, that the funds authorized in subparagraph (f) of section 905 are for the purpose of carrying on educational and technical assistance programs through nonprofit organizations organized for that purpose.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title IX, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE X—URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1001. This title may be cited as the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1002. (a) The Congress finds that (1) the vitality of many American cities is being threatened by the deterioration of their inner city areas; responsible owners of well-maintained residential, business, and other properties in many of these areas are unable to obtain adequate property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils; the lack of such insurance coverage accelerates the deterioration of these areas by discouraging private investment and restricting the availability of credit to repair and improve property therein; and this deterioration poses a serious threat to the national economy; (2) recent riots and other civil commotion in many American cities have brought about abnormally high losses to the private property insurance industry for which adequate reinsurance cannot be obtained at reasonable cost, and the risk of such losses will make most lines of property insurance even more difficult to obtain; (3) the capacity of the private property insurance industry to provide adequate insurance is threatened, and the continuity of such property insurance protection is essential to the extension of credit in these areas; and (4) the national interest demands urgent action by the Congress to assure that essential lines of property insurance, including lines providing protection against riot and civil commotion damage will be available to property owners at reasonable cost.

AMENDMENT OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1003. The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

"PROGRAM AUTHORITY

"SEC. 1201. (a) The Secretary is authorized to establish and carry out the programs provided for in parts A, B, and C of this title.

"(b)(1) The powers of the Secretary under this title shall terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary—

"(A) to continue reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1223(b) until April 30, 1976;

"(B) to process, verify, and pay claims for reinsured losses and perform other necessary functions in connection therewith; and

"(C) to complete the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

(2) On April 30, 1976, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, for its approval, a plan for the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"ADVISORY BOARD; MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION AND EXPENSES

"SEC. 1202. (a)(1) There is established an Advisory Board (hereinafter called the 'Board') consisting of nineteen members appointed by the Secretary. Members of the Board shall be selected from among representatives of the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments including State insurance authorities, and the Federal Government. Of these members of the Board, not more than six shall be regular full-time employees of the Federal Government, and not less than four shall be representatives of the private insurance industry and not less than four shall be representatives of State insurance authorities.

"(2) The Secretary shall designate a Chairman and a Vice Chairman of the Board.

"(3) Each member shall serve for a term of two years or until his successor has been appointed, except that no person who is appointed while a full-time employee of a State or the Federal Government shall serve in such position after he ceases to be so employed, unless he is reappointed.

"(4) Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occuring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of that term.

"(b) The Chairman shall preside at all meetings, and the Vice Chairman shall preside in the absence or disability of the Chairman. In the absence of both the Chairman and Vice Chairman, the Secretary may appoint any member to act as Chairman pro tempore. The Board shall meet at such times and places as it or the Secretary may fix and determine, but shall hold at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Chairman or any three members of the Board, or at the call of the Secretary.

"(c) The Board shall review general policies and shall advise the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform such other functions as are specified in this title.

"(d) The members of the Board shall not, by reason of such membership, be deemed to be employees of the United States, and such members, except those who are regular full-time employees of the Government, shall receive for their services, as members, the per diem equivalent to the rate for grade GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, when engaged in the performance of their duties, and each member of the Board shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1203. (a) When used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

"(1) 'environmental hazard' means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner;

"(2) 'essential property insurance' means insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire policies and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the State insurance authority and the Secretary, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations of property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, or theft, as the Secretary by rule shall designate. Such insurance shall not include automobile insurance and shall not include insurance on such types of manufacturing risks as may be excluded by the State insurance authority;

"(3) 'inspection facility', with respect to any State, means any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under fair access to insurance requirements plans under part A;

"(4) 'insurer' includes any insurance company or group of companies under common ownership which is authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

"(5) 'pool' means any pool or association of insurance companies in any State which is formed, associated, or otherwise created for the purpose of making property insurance more readily available;

"(6) 'losses resulting from riots or civil disorders' means losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered under section 1221, as determined under regulations of the Secretary;

"(7) 'property owner', with respect to any real, personal, or mixed real and personal property, means any person having an insurable interest in such property;

"(8) 'person' includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, or association, or any other organized group of persons;

"(9) 'reinsured losses' means losses on reinsurance claims and all direct expenses incurred in connection therewith including, but not limited to, expenses for processing, verifying, and paying such losses;

"(10) 'standard line of property insurance' includes—

"(A) fire and extended coverage;

"(B) vandalism and malicious mischief;

"(C) other allied lines of fire insurance;

"(D) burglary and theft;

"(E) those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to those provided for in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

"(F) inland marine;

"(G) glass;

"(H) boiler and machinery;

"(I) ocean marine;

"(J) aircraft physical damage; and

"(K) such other lines generally offered to the public which include protection against damage from riot or civil commotion as the Secretary by regulation may designate;

"(11) 'State' means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific;

"(12) 'urban area' includes any municipality or other political subdivision of a State, subject to population or other limitations defined in rules and regulations of the Secretary and such additional areas as may be designated by the State insurance authority; and

"(13) 'year' means a calendar year, fiscal year of a company, or such other period of twelve months as may be designated by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to define, by rules and regulations, any technical or trade term, insofar as such definition is not inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

"PART A—STATEWIDE PLANS TO ASSURE FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

"FAIR PLANS

"SEC. 1211. (a) Each insurer reinsured under this title shall cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is to acquire such reinsurance in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

"(b) Such plans must be approved by the State insurance authority, or be authorized or required by State law, and shall be designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in, but not necessarily limited to, urban areas. Such plans may vary in detail from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans shall contain provision that—

"(1) no risk shall be written at surcharged rates or be denied insurance coverage for essential property insurance unless there has first been an inspection of the risk, without cost to the owner, by an inspection facility and a determination by the insurer, based on information in the inspection report and other sources, that the risk does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate;

"(2) inspections under the plan may be requested by the property owner or his representative, the insurer, or the insurance agent, broker or other producer, and such requests need not be made in writing;

"(3) the absence of a building owner or his representative during an inspection shall not preclude a tenant seeking insurance from obtaining an inspection under the plan;

"(4) following the inspection, a copy of the inspection report shall be promptly sent by the inspection facility to the insurer or insurers, or to an all-industry placement facility referred to under section 1212, as may be designated by the person requesting the inspection;

"(5) after the inspection report is received by an insurer, it shall promptly determine if the risk meets reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate, and shall promptly return to the inspection facility the inspection report and provide an action report setting forth—

"(A)(i) the amount of coverage it agrees to write; and if the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge (if such a surcharge is authorized by the State insurance authority), the improvements necessary before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged premium rate; and

"(ii) the amount of coverage it agrees to write if certain improvements specified in the action report are made; or

"(B) the specific reasons it declines to write coverage;

"(6) if the insurer declines the risk, or agrees to write the coverage sought on condition that the property will be improved, it shall also promptly send a copy of both the inspection and action reports to the property owner and the State insurance authority, and at the time the insurer sends such reports to the property owner, it shall also explain his right, under applicable State laws, to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority, setting forth the procedures to be followed for such appeal;

"(7) all policies written pursuant to the plan shall be promptly written after inspection or reinspection and shall be separately coded so that appropriate records may be compiled for purposes of performing loss prevention and other studies of the operation of the plan;

"(8) the inspection facility shall submit to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary periodic reports setting forth information, by individaul insurers, including the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and such other information as the State insurance authority may request;

"(9) notice will be given to any policyholder a reasonable time prior to the cancellation or nonrenewal of any risk eligible under the plan (except in case of nonpayment of premium or evidence of incendiarism), to allow ample time for an application for new coverage to be made and a new policy to be written under the plan, and the insurer shall, in writing, explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining an inspection under the plan in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal; and

"(10) a continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

"ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

"SEC. 1212. Any plan under this part shall include an all-industry placement facility doing business with every insurer participating in the plan in the State, and shall provide that this facility shall perform certain functions including, but not limited to, the following:

"(1) seeking, upon request by or on behalf of any property owner requesting an inspection under the plan, to distribute the risks involved equitably among the insurers with which it is doing business; and

"(2) seeking to place insurance up to the full insurable value of the risk to be insured with one or more insurers with which it is doing business, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

"INDUSTRY COOPERATION

"SEC. 1213. (a) Every insurer seeking reinsurance under this title shall file a statement with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is participating in a plan under this part, pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan, and shall file a copy of such statement with the Secretary.

"(b) No insurer acquiring reinsurance under this title shall direct any agent or broker or other producer not to solicit business through such a plan, nor shall any agent, broker, or other producer be penalized by such insurer in any way for submitting applications for insurance to an insurer under the plan.

"PLAN EVALUATION

"SEC. 1214. (a) In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, each State insurance authority shall—

"(1) transmit to the Secretary any proposed or adopted plan, or amendments thereto; and

"(2) advise the Secretary, from time to time, concerning the operation of the plan, its effectiveness in providing essential property insurance, and the need to form a pool of insurers or adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State.

"(b) The Secretary may, after full consultation with the Board, by rules and regulations, modify the plan criteria set forth under this part, if it finds, on the basis of experience, that such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title. The Secretary may also, with respect to any State, waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria, upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law.

"PART B—REINSURANCE COVERAGE

"REINSURANCE OF LOSSES FROM RIOTS OR CIVIL DISORDERS

"SEC. 1221. (a)(1) The Secretary is authorized to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders in any one or more States.

"(2) Reinsurance shall be offered to any such insurer or pool only on all standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 1203(a)(10) together, and any insurer or pool purchasing such reinsurance shall also be eligible to purchase reinsurance on any one or more standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (F) through (J) of section 1203(a)(10) or which may be designated by regulation pursuant to subparagraph (K) of that section.

"(b) Reinsurance coverage under this section may be provided immediately following the enactment of this title to any insurer or pool in any State on a temporary basis, and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, and coverage under such terms and conditions may be bound with respect to any such insurer or pool by means of a written binder which shall remain in force not more than ninety days and shall expire at the earlier of either—

"(1) the termination of such ninety-day period, or

"(2) the effective date of any governing contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into between the insurer or pool and the Secretary under section 1222 for the purpose of providing reinsurance coverage against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders.

"(c) No reinsurance shall be offered to any insurer or pool in a State after the expiration of the written binder entered into under subsection (b), unless there is in effect in such State a plan as set forth under part A and the insurer or pool is participating in such plan, and unless, in the case of an insurer in a State where a pool has been established pursuant to State law, the insurer is participating in such a pool.

"REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS AND PREMIUMS

"SEC. 1222. (a) During the first year following the date of the enactment of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement with any insurer or pool for reinsurance coverage, in consideration of payment of such premiums, fees, or other charges by insurers or pools which the Secretary, after full consultation with the Board, deems to be adequate to obtain aggregate reinsurance premiums for deposit in the National Insurance Development Fund established under section 1233 in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during the calendar year 1967, on the assumption that a substantial proportion of the property insurance written will be reinsured under this title, and thereafter the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found after full consultation with the Board and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that such action is necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title.

"(b) Reinsurance offered under this title shall reimburse an insurer or pool for its total proved and approved claims for covered losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement, over and above the amount of the insurer's or pool's retention of such losses as provided in such reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into under this section.

"(c) Such contracts, agreements, treaties, or other arrangements may be made without regard to section 3679(a) of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665(a)), and shall include any terms and conditions which the Secretary deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. The premium rates, terms, and conditions of such contracts with insurers or pools, throughout the country, in any one year shall be uniform.

"(d) Any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement for reinsurance under this section shall be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter, and shall be entered into within ninety days after the date of the enactment of this title or within ninety days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within ninety days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance eligible for reinsurance in a State which it was not authorized to write in the preceding year.

"CONDITIONS OF REINSURANCE

"SEC. 1223. (a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b), reinsurance shall not be offered by the Secretary in a State or be applicable to insurance policies written in that State by an insurer—

"(1) after one year following the date of the enactment of this title, or, if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year, by the close of its next regular session, in any State which has not adopted appropriate legislation, retroactive to the date of the enactment of this title, under which the State, its political subdivisions, or a governmenal corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, will reimubure the Secretary, in an amount up to 5 per centum of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in that State during the current year, such that the Secretary may be reimbursed for amounts paid by him in respect to reinsured losses that occurred in that State during a calendar year in excess of (A) reinsurance premiums received in that State during the same calendar year plus (B) the excess of (i) the total premiums received by the Secretary for reinsurance in that State during a preceding period measured from the end of the most recent calendar year with respect to which the Secretary was reimbursed for losses under this title over (ii) any amounts paid by the Secretary for reinsured losses that occurred during this same period;

"(2) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds that there has not been adopted by the State, or the property insurance industry in that State, a suitable program or programs, in addition to plans under part A, to make essential property insurance available without regard to environmental hazards, and that such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; except that this paragraph shall not become effective until two years after the date of the enactment of this title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine;

"(3) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary, or the State insurance authority, finds that such insurer is not fully participating—

"(A) in the plan in the State;

"(B) where it exists, in a pool; and

"(C) where it exists, in any other program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State;

"(4) following a merger, acquisition, consolidation or reorganization involving one or more insurers having lines of property insurance in the State reinsured under this title and one or more insurers with or without such reinsurance, unless the surviving company—

"(A) meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance, other than as provided under section 1222(d); and

"(B) within ten days pays any reinsurance premiums due; or

"(5) upon receipt of notice from the insurer or pool that it desires to cancel its reinsurance agreement with the Secretary in the State.

"(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, reinsurance may be continued for the terms of the policies written prior to the date of termination or nonrenewal of reinsurance under this section, for as long as the insurer pays reinsurance premiums annually in such amounts as are determined under section 1222, based on the annual premiums earned on such reinsured policies, and for the purpose of this subsection, the renewal, extension, modification, or other change in a policy, for which any additional premium is charged, shall be deemed to be a policy written on the date such change was made.

"RECOVER OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

"SEC. 1224. (a) The Secretary, in a suit brought in the appropriate United States district court, shall be entitled to recover from any insurer the amount of any unpaid premiums lawfully payable by such insurer to the Secretary.

"(b) No action or proceeding shall be brought for the recovery of any premium due to the Secretary for reinsurance, or for the recovery of any premium paid to the Secretary in excess of the amount due to him, unless such action or proceeding shall have been brought within five years after the right accrued for which the claim is made, except that, where the insurer has made or filed with the Secretary a false or fraudulent annual statement, or other document with the intent to evade, in whole or in part, the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until its discovery by the Secretary.

"PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

"CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1231. (a) All reinsurance claims for losses under this title shall be submitted by insurers in accordance with such terms and conditions as may be established by the Secretary.

"(b)(1) Upon disallowance of any claim under color of reinsurance made available under this title, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the claim arose.

"(2) Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant received written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.

"FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

"SEC. 1232. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the reinsurance program under this title, and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with any insurer, pool, or other person, for the purpose of providing for the performance of any or all of the following functions:

"(1) estimating or determining any amounts of payments for reinsurance claims;

"(2) receiving and disbursing and accounting for funds in making payments for reinsurance claims;

"(3) auditing the records of any insurer, pool, or other person to the extent necessary to assure that proper payments are made;

"(4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance payments, including the total amount of proved and approved claims which may be payable to any insurer, and the total amount of premiums earned by any insurer in the respective States for reinsured lines of property insurance; and

"(5) otherwise assisting in any manner provided in the contract to further the purposes of this title.

"(b)(1) Any such contract may require the insurer, pool, or other person, or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amounts as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

"(2) In the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States—

"(A) no individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section; and

"(B) no officer of the United States disbursing funds shall be liable with respect to any otherwise proper payment by him if it was based on a voucher signed by an individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments.

"NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

"SEC. 1233. (a) To carry out the programs authorized under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a National Insurance Development Fund (hereinafter called the 'fund') which shall be available, without fiscal year limitations—

"(1) to make such payments as may, from time to time, be required under reinsurance contracts under this title;

"(2) to pay such administrative expenses as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title; and

"(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums, including interest thereon, as may be borrowed from him for purposes of such programs under section 520(b).

"(b) The fund shall be credited with—

"(1) reinsurance premiums, fees, and other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with reinsurance provided under Part B;

"(2) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund;

"(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

"(4) receipts from any other source which may, from time to time, be credited to the fund; and

"(5) funds borrowed by the Secretary under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

"(c) If, after any amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced (including interest thereon at the rate prescribed under section 520(b)), the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

"RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENT, AND AUDITS

"SEC. 1234. (a) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall furnish the Secretary with such summaries and analyses of information in its records as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, in such form as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall, by rules and regulations, prescribe. The Secretary shall make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

"(b) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall file with the Secretary a true and correct copy of any annual statement, or amendment thereof, filed with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files such statement or amendment with such State insurance authority.

"(c) Any insurer or other person executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under section 1222 or section 1232 shall keep reasonable records which fully disclose the total costs of the programs undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

"(d) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of investigation, audit, and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of any insurer or other person that are pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to, the Secretary. Such audits shall be conducted to the maximum extent feasible in cooperation with the State insurance authorities and through the use of their examining facilities.

"STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

"SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized and directed to conduct a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure—

"(1) an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas; and

"(2) adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas.

"(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of this study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and Congress no later than one year following the date of the enactment of this title.

"OTHER STUDIES

"SEC. 1236. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title including, but not limited to, inquiries concerning—

"(1) the operation of plans under part A;

"(2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas;

"(3) the market for private reinsurance; and

"(4) loss prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

"(b) To such extent and under such circumstances as he deems appropriate, the Secretary may conduct any study authorized under this section in cooperation with State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry.

"GENERAL POWERS

"SEC. 1237. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c)(2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950.

"SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILITIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

"SEC. 1238. The Secretary may, with the censent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a reimbursable basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, except that any such agency having custody of any data relating to any of the matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall, to the extent permitted by law, upon request of the Secretary, make such data available to the Secretary.

"ADVANCE PAYMENTS

"SEC. 1239. Any payments which are made under the authority of this title may be made, after necessary adjustments on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments in advance or by way of reimbursement. Payments may be made in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

"TAXATION

"SEC. 1240. (a) The National Insurance Development Fund, including its reserves, surplus, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any State, or any subdivision thereof, except that any real property acquired by the Secretary as a result of reinsurance shall be subject to taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"(b) Any measures undertaken by any State to meet or to fund its obligations under section 1223(a)(1) shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

"APPROPRIATIONS

"SEC. 1241. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title."

FINANCING

SEC. 1004. Section 520(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "necessarry" in the first sentence, and by striking out the period at the end of such sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "; and (2) to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII of this Act: Provided, however, That borrowings to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII shall be limited to $150,000,000 or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine."

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title X be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANNUNZIO

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 201, line 19, strike "or".

On page 201, immediately after line 19, insert:

"(5) if the insurer has cancelled or failed to renew one or more policies providing for essential property insurance after April 1, 1968, and has failed to offer similar coverage on equivalent terms prior to the expiration of thirty days after the date of enactment of this title, unless the Secretary on the recommendation of the State insurance authority, finds (a) that such cancellations or failures to renew were not inconsistent with the purposes of this title, or

(b) afer December 31, 1969, that the insurer has been participating fully in any programs adopted in the state or as required under this title to make essential property insurance readily available."

On page 201, line 20, redesignate paragraph (5) as paragraph (6).

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Chairman, the purpose of my amendment is to deal realistically with one of the major aspects of the insurance crisis in our cities. As most of the Members from urban areas or from districts which have large cities within them are aware, there have been innumerable cancellations and refusals to renew property insurance policies. Such cancellations and refusals have resulted in untold hardships for property owners and small businessmen. They cannot get improvement loans. They cannot expand their businesses and, most tragic, a single property loss can wipe them out entirely.

The extent of these policy cancellations is not known, but we do know that they are widespread and that they have occurred in recent months. Some of these cancellations may have been justified on the ground that the lack of the riot reinsurance provided by this bill has made the risks involved an untenable burden for the insurance industry. However, once the federal riot reinsurance is offered, there is no excuse in the world why these policies should not be reinstated immediately rather than delay until there is full implementation of the so-called FAIR plans.

My amendment provides that Federal riot reinsurance will not be available to insurance companies which have canceled policies after April 1, 1968, and fail to reinstate such policies within 30 days after the enactment of this act.

The amendment recognizes that a refusal to reinstate the cancellations may be wholly justified because the risk has become uninsurable or because similar coverage at equivalent rates has been obtained elsewhere or for some other such reason. Therefore, my amendment provides that the Secretary may, if the State commissioner so recommends, offer reinsurance to insurers who have canceled or failed to renew if such cancelations or failures to renew were not inconsistent with the purposes of this title. Thus, the State Commissioner can determine the validity of the insurer's motives and the Secretary may then decide to offer the reinsurance. The amendment also comports with the statutory scheme of emphasis on the responsibility of the industry and the State commissioners. It is no secret to Members of Congress that insurance companies have arbitrarily canceled insurance on your own homes.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the adoption of my amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. The Members and staff have studied this amendment, and we are willing to accept it on this side. We realize it will be in conference, and final action will have to be taken.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I am happy to yield to my colleague from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Would the gentleman explain just exactly what he is trying to do? Perhaps I misunderstood, but I gather this relates to an insurance company which has canceled insurance. In what period of time?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. As the gentleman from Tennessee knows, yesterday the Committee of the Whole adopted two amendments which established certain limits and placed restrictions on the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

All that my amendment would do is make provision regarding insurance companies which have recently canceled insurance in riot areas. I have newspaper clippings about that. Most of the Members of the House are familiar with the investigations in this area being carried on by the States of New York, New Jersey, and Kentucky.

If the insurance companies are to participate in the so-called FAIR insurance plan, a requirement will have to be met. I am trying to place a limit of April 1, 1968, instead of leaving it to the discretion of the Secretary. I ask that we place that limit, as we did yesterday on a couple of amendments to the bill, so that these people who need insurance in the ghetto areas of our cities will have a particular date to go from.

Mr. BROCK. The gentleman says, if it were in operation on the first of April of this year?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Yes.

Mr. BROCK. If they had canceled the policy prior to that time they would not be qualified under the program?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. No.

Mr. BROCK. Is that any business of insurance in the city, or for that particular company?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. We are talking about the companies which have canceled insurance.

Mr. BROCK. In other words, the gentleman is saying that every company which has canceled a policy will be precluded from participation in this program?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I am not saying that. I am just saying, after April 1, 1968, all things being equal, insurance companies be given consideration. As to these cancellations, those who cover insurance for these particular States, or the commissioners of insurance, can look into the matter. These people con become eligible for reinsurance.

Mr. BROCK. So the amendment does not affect the participation of a company at all?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. It does not affect the participation of a company if they comply with the law.

Mr. BROCK. It just says that the insurance commissioner shall look at the areas which had canceled policies and try to get them more insurance.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. The Secretary.

Mr. BROCK. Is that not what would happen under any circumstances, regardless of whether it is put in the bill or not?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I merely try to spell it out so that there will be no misunderstanding.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I should like to say to the gentleman from Tennessee, I believe this would be the situation under the bill without the amendment, but the gentleman from Illinois wanted to be absolutely sure, so I would accept the amendment.

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I am happy to yield to my distinguished colleague from Missouri.

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. As most of you know, many property owners had their insurance coverages canceled or could not get their coverage renewed in the inner city areas of our cities even before the riots of last April. Now the number of these cancellations and nonrenewals have reached an intolerable level. The newspapers are daily reporting mass cancellations in sharply increasing numbers in cities all across the land. In my own city of St. Louis, the Royal Globe group has threatened to give a 30-day notice on July 10 to cancel a $52.4 million fire insurance policy on five public housing projects as of August 10, 1968. Some of us have worked 20 years to help these people find homes. And now, if this insurance is canceled, these people run another risk of losing their homes.

This amendment will bring a halt to this cancellation practice and will reverse the situation. It will provide immediate help to those property owners whose coverage has been canceled through no fault of their own. It will make a significant improvement to the bill.

(Mrs. SULLIVAN and Mr. ANNUNZIO asked and were given permission to revise and extend their remarks.)

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I have been more and more distressed by the course of the debate of this particular bill.

I do not know that in my 6 years in this Congress I have encountered a more complex or comprehensive piece of legislation. We have seen amendments offered, some defeated, some accepted, and some passed by a vote on the floor. Very few Members of the House seem to have a great deal of interest in or knowledge of what is incorporated in these amendments. Now we offer an amendment which tells the States or HUD to pay attention to areas where insurance has been canceled because of riots. The whole thrust and purpose of the riot section is to get insurance into these areas. It seems to me we may be taking a rather dangerous step with this amendment. At least it is redundant. It could be a great deal worse, but I do not know what is in the amendment. I question the wisdom on the part of the majority of accepting an amendment which I think could have very unfortunate repercussions.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge the defeat of the amendment.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GROSS. What is magical about the date of April 1? Would that be in connection with the riots on or about April 1 or subsequent thereto? What is magic about that date?

Mr. BROCK. I think the author of the amendment should respond.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. Yes. I yield.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. My amendment says after April 1.

Mr. GROSS. If the gentleman will yield further, what is the meaning of the date April 1 in your amendment or your reference to that date?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. We are setting a limit or a cutoff date. All this amendment does is to reestablish the insurance for the people in the ghettos for the people that have been canceled out.

Mr. GROSS. As of April 1?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Without cause.

Mr. GROSS. What is the magic of the date April 1?

Mr. BROCK. What happens to the insurance that was canceled after April 1? That is where your amendment applies.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. If the gentleman will yield further, the same thing applies. If they are eligible for insurance, the companies and the recipients of the insurance will receive the insurance, but if they are canceled before, if these companies arbitrarily cancel these people out, after April 1 they must show cause. If the cause is not justified, then the company will not be able to participate under the terms of this.

Mr. BROCK. In other words, if they are late in their payments, cancellation is justifiable?

Mr. ANNUNZIO. No.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I take this time only to ask the Chairman if it would be possible to have the amendment reread.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will reread the amendment.

The Clerk reread the amendment.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, it sounds to me that this is a provision imposing a penalty upon insurance companies who exercised their legal rights under the policies to cancel them. I do not believe that this Committee should undertake, in this summary fashion and without a more thorough study of what is involved here, to impose such a penalty upon insurance companies. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I shall have to oppose this act.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, if I might inquire of the author of the amendment, I do not see where the administrator is going to get the guidelines under which to make this kind of a decision as to where is the proper cancellation and where is the improper cancellation.

There are all kinds and circumstances upon which one can make this decision. It seems to me that we are making a very dangerous decision, making a very dangerous decision by providing that this be retroactive to April.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I am sure that the gentleman from Tennessee is aware of the fact that, beginning April first of this year, that a number of insurance companies have made wholesale cancellations of insurance.

Mr. BROCK. That is right.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. And, in the various areas where riots have occurred throughout the country, this has been true.

Mr. Chairman, all that my amendment proposes to do is this:

(5) If the insurer has cancelled or failed to renew one or more policies providing for essential property insurance after April 1, 1968, and has failed to offer similar coverage on the prevalent terms prior to the expiration of 30 days after the date of enactment of this title, unless the Secretary, on the recommendation of the State insurance authority, finds (a) that such cancellation or failures to renew were not inconsistent with the purposes of this title, or (b) after December 31, 1969, that the insurer has been participating fully in any programs adopted in the State or as required under this title to make essential property insurance readily available.

In other words, it means that these people, where their insurance policies have been canceled out, without cause, can at least get a hearing before the Commissioner of Insurance and, if they meet all of the criteria and are eligible for insurance from a particular insurance company that has canceled them out the Commissioner can go into these questions and ask the insurer to reinstate the policy.

Mr. BROCK. But all of the authority which we are granting by this kind of delegation of authority is to a State insurance commission.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. That is granted under the FAIR insurance plan. If these companies do not cooperate, why should they have the opportunity to operate under the FAIR insurance plan?

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, this bill should be prospective, and not retroactive, as would be the case if this amendment is adopted, and it provides the imposition of a penalty on an insurance company for exercising legal rights under its contract.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I wish to assure the gentleman that I am not interested in imposing a penalty upon any insurance company, but I am interested in the need of the small businessman and others who operate and live in the ghettos of America getting a break from these insurance companies under the FAIR insurance plan. However, if they do not cooperate, they would not be able to participate under the FAIR insurance plan. If we do not have a plan like this, we will have in our metropolitan areas, in our cities, in our ghettos, plywood buildings and stores constructed of lesser material.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from North Carolina has expired.

(On request of Mr. BROCK, and by unanimous consent, Mr. JONAS was allowed to proceed for 5 additional minutes.)

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. In line with the last comment of the gentleman from Illinois, I think we may be getting closer to a compromise. Would the gentleman be willing to accept an amendment to his amendment which would state that this provision would be effective upon the enactment of this section instead of going back to the first of April? If the gentleman would accept such an amendment to his amendment I believe he would have a very valid point.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I will accept that amendment to my amendment.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last three words.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I assume somebody needs time to get an amendment prepared.

Mr. BELCHER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. BELCHER. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I am more confused than I was before. We have been accepting amendments so fast this afternoon I cannot keep up with them. And now the gentleman on this side of the aisle asks the gentleman on that side of the aisle if he will accept an amendment to his amendment, and the gentleman on the other side of the aisle accepts it, and then pretty soon the 434 Members of the Congress are supposed to enact that into law.

Mr. Chairman, I do not believe there are 10 Members in this House who understand entirely, and can explain exactly, the significance of this amendment, and the acceptance of the amendment proposed by the gentleman on this side and the acceptance of that amendment by the author on the other side.

If there are 10 Members who can explain what that would do to the insurance companies, then I would like to see them explain it.

Mr. GROSS. So would I; I would say to my friend from Oklahoma. I would like to know what this amendment will do.

What is this going to cost the taxpayers of the country, the whole kit and caboodle, with respect to this so-called FAIR insurance, or whatever it is, this attempt to subsidize the insurance companies for writing insurance in so-called ghetto areas, or whatever they are? How much is this going to cost the taxpayers of the entire country?

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi, and I hope the gentleman can shed some light on it.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I do not know whether I can shed any light on this or not; I am as confused as the gentleman is.

It seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that after studying the insurance section of the bill, as I understand it, insurance companies, even if they will have this reinsurance, can turn down certain policies that are submitted to their companies. I believe if we adopt this amendment, the way I interpret it, the insurance companies will not have the option of turning down certain particularly bad risks; they will have to accept every risk.

I agree with the gentleman that possibly this amendment should be studied and discussed more.

Mr. Chairman, again I thank the gentleman for yielding to me. As I say, it seems to me if we adopt this amendment we are going to change the whole insurance section of this bill; we are going to say now that the insurance companies would have to accept every policy that has the Government reinsurance responsibility behind it. I hope the amendment is defeated and, as the gentleman from Iowa has said, this amendment could still cost the taxpayer more money.

Mr. GROSS. It is not sufficient to say that it is not going to cost the taxpayers any money simply because the first burden may be shifted from the Federal Government to the States. The taxpayers in the States will have to foot the bill if they subsidize the insurance companies.

But in the end, of course, there is always good old Santa Claus here in Washington if the States fail or refuse to ante up.

Mr. Chairman, this bill is probably the longest single step Congress has taken in the last 20 years on the road to socialism. There is something in it for everybody except middle-class citizens. They get the privilege of paying the taxes.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I was in a colloquy with my colleagues here as to the suggestions I had made that we make this amendment concurrent with the bill, and not make it retroactive, and after giving the matter further consideration, Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that that simply would result in repetition of what is already in the control provision, and I believe actually that the amendment is redundant.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I intend to offer no substitute amendment, and I believe the amendment should be defeated.

Mr. GROSS. The gentleman has made the right decision. Let us defeat the original amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANNUNZIO].

The amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. PATTEN

Mr. PATTEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. PATTEN: On page 211, immediately after line 14, insert the following:

"TITLE XI—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA INSURANCE PLACEMENT ACT

"SHORT TITLE

"SEC. 1101. This title may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act'.

"DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

"SEC. 1102. The purposes of this title are—

"(1) to assure stability in the property insurance market for property located in the District of Columbia;

"(2) to assure the availability of basic property insurance as defined by this title;

"(3) to encourage maximum use, in obtaining basic property insurance, of the normal insurance market provided by authorized insurers; and

"(4) to provide for the equitable distribution among insurers of the responsibility for insuring qualified property for which basic property insurance cannot be obtained through the normal insurance market by authorizing the establishment of a joint underwriting association.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1103. As used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires—

"(a) 'Commissioner' means the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or his designated agent.

"(b) 'Basic property insurance' means insurance against direct loss to property caused by perils as defined and limited in the standard fire policy and extended coverage endorsement thereon as approved by the Commissioner, and such other property insurance coverages, including, but not limited to, vandalism and malicious mischief, burglary, theft, and robbery, for such types, classes, and locations of property as may be designated by the Commissioner pursuant to the procedures set out in section 1105 of this title, but shall not include insurance on automobiles.

"(c) 'Environmental hazard' means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner.

"(d) 'Inspection bureau' means the rating bureau or other organization designated by the Commissioner to perform inspections to determine the condition of the properties for which basic property insurance is sought.

"(e) 'Industry Placement Facility' means the facility formed by all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing basic property insurance (including homeowners and commercial multiperil policies) within the District of Columbia to assist agents, brokers, and applicants in securing basic property insurance.

"(f) 'Premiums written' means gross direct premiums charged with respect to property in the District of Columbia on all policies of basic property insurance and the basic property insurance premium components of all multiperil policies, less all premiums and dividends returned paid, or credited to policyholders or the unused or unabsorbed portions of premium deposits.

"(g) 'Property owner' means any person having an insurable interest in real, personal, or mixed real and personal property.

"INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

"SEC. 1104. (a) Within thirty days after the effective date of this title all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies, shall establish an Industry Placement Facility to formulate and administer a program, subject to disapproval by the Commissioner in whole or in part, to seek the equitable apportionment among such insureres of basic property insurance which may be afforded applicants in the District of Columbia whose property is insurable in accordance with reasonable underwriting standards and who individually or through their insurance agent or broker request the aid of the Facility to procure such insurance. The Facility shall seek to place insurance with one or more participating companies up to the full insurable value of the risk, if requested, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

"(b) The Facility may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, provide as part of its program for the equitable distribution of commercial risks and dwelling risks among insurers.

"(c) Each such insurer shall participate in the Industry Placement Facility program in accordance with the established rules of the program as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the established rules of the program, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

"FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

"SEC. 1105. (a) The Industry Placement Facility shall on its own motion, or within thirty days after a request by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner such proposed rules and regulations applicable to insurers, agents and brokers deemed necessary to assure all property owners fair access to basic property insurance through the normal insurance markets, including, but not limited to, rules and regulations concerning—

"(1) the manner and scope of inspections of risks by an inspection bureau;

"(2) the preparation and filing of inspection reports and reports on actions taken in connection with inspected risks, and summaries thereof;

"(3) the operation of an Industry Placement Facility, including but not limited to rules and regulations concerning—

"(A) the basic property insurance coverages of such facility;

"(B) the reasonable effort to obtain insurance in the normal commercial market required by an applicant before recourse to the Facility; and

"(C) the appeals procedure within the Facility for any applicant for insurance regarding any ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the Facility.

"(b) The Commissioner may adopt such of the rules submitted pursuant to subsection (a) of this section as he approves. If the Commissioner disapproves any proposed rule submitted he may require the Facility to submit a revision thereof within such time as he may designate, but no less than five days. If the Facility fails to submit a proposed rule, or revision thereof, within the designated time, or if a revised rule is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner may adopt such rule covering the proposed general subject matter as he shall deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

"JOINT UNDERWRITING ASSOCIATION

"SEC. 1106. (a) The Commissioner is authorized to establish by order a joint underwriting association if he finds, after notice and hearing, that such association is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. Such joint underwriting association shall consist of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner or any component thereof in multiperil policies.

"(b) Every such insurer shall be and remain a member of the association and shall comply with all requirements of membership as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the requirements of membership, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

"(c)(1) Within sixty days following the effective date of the order of the Commissioner under this section the association shall submit to him a proposed plan of operation, consistent with the provisions of this Act, which shall provide for economical, fair, and nondiscriminatory administration of the association and for the prompt and efficient provision of reinsurance for such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner without regard to environmental hazards, including, but not limited to, provisions concerning—

"(A) preliminary assessment of all members for initial expenses necessary to commence operations;

"(B) establishment of necessary facilities;

"(C) management and operation of the association;

"(D) assessment of members to defray losses and expenses;

"(E) commission arrangements;

"(F) reasonable underwriting standards;

"(G) assumption and cession of reinsurance; and

"(H) such other matters as the Commissioner may designate.

"(2) The plan of operation shall be subject to approval by the Commissioner in whole or in part. If the Commissioner disapproves all or any part of the proposed plan of operation, the association shall within thirty days thereafter submit for his review an appropriately revised plan of operation and if the association fails so to do, or if the revised plan so filed is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner shall promulgate a plan of operation.

"(3) The association may, on its own initiative, amend such plan, subject to approval by the Commissioner, and shall amend such plan at the direction of the Commissioner if he finds such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

"(d) All members of the association shall participate in its writings, expenses, profits, and losses, or in such categories thereof as may be separately established by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner, in the proportion that the premiums written by each such member (but excluding premiums for insurance on automobiles) during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums written in the District of Columbia by all members of the association, or in accordance with such other formula as devised by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner. Such participation by each insurer in the association shall be determined annually on the basis of such premiums written during the preceding calendar year as disclosed in the annual statements and other reports filed by the insurer with the Commissioner.

"(e) The association shall be governed by a board of eleven directors, elected annually by cumulative voting by the members of the association, whose votes in such election shall be weighted in accordance with the proportionate amount of each member's net direct premiums written in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar year. The first board shall be elected at a meeting of the members or their authorized representatives, which shall be held within thirty days after the effective date of the order under this section establishing the association, at a time and place designated by the Commission.

"EXAMINATION BY COMMISSIONER

"SEC. 1107. The operation of the inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and any joint underwriting association shall at all times be subject to the supervision and regulation of the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the power of visitation of and examination into such operations and free access to all the books, records, files, papers, and documents that relate to such operations, may summon and qualify witnesses under oath, and many examine directors, officers, agents, or employees or any other person having knowledge of such operations.

"WAIVER OF LIABILITY

"SEC. 1108. There shall be no liability on the part of, and no cause of action of any nature shall arise against insurers, the inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, the joint underwriting association or their agents or employees, or any officer or employee of the District of Columbia, for any statements made in good faith by them concerning the insurability of property in any reports or other communications or at the time of the hearings conducted in connection therewith, or in the findings with respect thereto required by the provisions of this title. The reports and communications of the inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and joint underwriting association with respect to individual properties shall not be open to inspection by, or otherwise available to, the public.

"ANNUAL REPORTS BY ASSOCIATION

"SEC. 1109. The association shall file with the Commissioner, annually on or before the 1st day of March, a statement which shall contain information with respect to its transactions, condition, operations, and affairs during the preceding year. Such statement shall contain such matters and information as are prescribed by the Commissioner and shall be in such form as is approved by him. The Commissioner may at any time require the association to furnish him with additional information with respect to its transactions, condition or any matter connected therewith which he considers to be material and which will assist him in evaluating the scope, operation, and experience of the association.

"APPEALS

"SEC. 1110. (a) Any applicant for insurance and any affected insurer may appeal to the Commissioner within ninety days after any final ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the inspection bureau, Industry Placement Facility, or joint underwriting association, following exhaustion of remedies available within such bureau, facility, or association.

"(b) All final orders or decisions of the Commissioner made pursuant to this Act shall be subject to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals pursuant to section 11–742 of the District of Columbia Code.

"REIMBURSEMENT OF NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

"SEC. 1111. (a) In order to carry out the purposes of this Act and to make available to insurers who participate hereunder, reinsurance against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders afforded under the National Insurance Development Corporation Act of 1968, the Commissioner is authorized to assess each insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia an amount, in the proportion that the premiums earned by each such company, on lines reinsured by the National Insurance Development Corporation, during the preceding calendar year bears to the aggregate premiums earned on those lines in the District of Columbia by all insurance companies, sufficient to provide a fund to reimburse the Corporation in the manner set forth in section 1223(a)(1) of the National Insurance Development Corporation Act of 1968. Such fund may be added to or such a fund may be created by moneys appropriated therefor by the Congress.

"(b) Insurers shall add to the premium rate an amount, to be approved by the Commissioner, sufficient to recover within not more than three years, any amonts assessed pursuant to subsection (a) of this section during the preceding calendar year. Such amount shall be a separate charge to the insured in addition to the premium to be paid and shall be reflected as such in the policy of insurance: Provided, That no commission shall be paid thereon to any agent or broker producing or selling the policy of insurance wherein such amount is added.

"DELEGATION

"SEC. 1112. The Commissioner is authorized to delegate any of the functions vested in him by this title.

"JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1113. Section 11–742(a) of the District of Columbia Code is amended (a) by striking 'and' immediately following clause (9); (b) by striking the period following clause (10) and inserting in lieu thereof '; and'; and (c) by adding the following:

"'(11) final orders and decisions of the Commissioner under the provisions of the District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act.'

"EFFECTIVE DATE

"SEC. 1114. This title shall be effective upon a determination by the Commissioner that the Congress has enacted legislation providing Federal reinsurance against losses from civil disorders."

And redesignate the succeeding titles and sections of H.R. 17989 accordingly.

Mr. REUSS (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, if we consent to the unanimous consent request, would it be possible to make a point of order after the gentleman from New Jersey speaks n his amendment, or would a point of order have to be made now?

The CHAIRMAN. A point of order may be made at any time before the gentleman from New Jersey is recognized to speak on his amendment.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment, and will reserve the point of order so that the gentleman from New Jersey may proceed to explain his amendment, if he wants to do that.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Tennessee reserves a point of order against the amendment.

Without objection, the amendment will be considered as read.

There was no objection.

Mr. PATTEN. Mr. Chairman, if you had comments about the last amendment, about not understanding it, it goes double for this amendment.

I warn the Members of the House unless you adopt this amendment, the District and the people in it will have no benefits under this act. There is no authorization for the District of Columbia to implement the benefits of this act.

This amendment is the same bill that the Senate in their Subcommittee on Business and Commerce reported on Monday, July 8, just the other day, headed by Senator TYDINGS; and the full Senate Committee of the District of Columbia over there, according to Senator BIBLE, who is chairman of the full committee and a cosponsor, said that the Senate would positively pass.

But the parliamentary procedure is that the House under our present schedule will never pass it this year. If we do not amend this act to allow the District of Columbia to participate in the benefits of this reinsurance provision, the Congress will be embarrassed and in a position where every State can cooperate but the District of Columbia will get no benefits.

That is my legal opinion, and it is done hastily and it is not fair to the committee since nobody has had a chance to digest it, but I inquired of a member of our Committee on the District of Columbia and he said this bill would be acceptable by our own District of Columbia authorization committee.

Mr. BARRETT. The District Committee should consider the legislation.

The bill covers the States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and so forth. The proposed amendment is within the province of the District Committee.

Mr. PATTEN. I know what you said—your bill makes the District of Columbia eligible, but the District of Columbia is not authorized to take advantage of this act unless they get that authorization. They will not get authorization by the time we adjourn unless we do it by this amendment. I have no personal interest in this.

Mr. BARRETT. The gentleman knows that this is the District of Columbia Committee's business and we cannot interfere with the District Committee.

Mr. PATTEN. You are not interfering, you are helping them out and helping the Congress not to be embarrassed.

Mr. BARRETT. We are helping them out by passing the necessary legislation.

Mr. PATTEN. I know that as a Member of Congress I do not want to walk out of here and read that we took care of every State but it is impossible for the District of Columbia people to participate in the benefits of this act.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PATTEN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Under this act, the District of Columbia can participate if the insurance companies want to participate in a voluntary FAIR plan. The insurance companies of the District have assured me that they would participate in a FAIR plan. It is true that we cannot guarantee to the citizens of the District of Columbia, without the gentleman's amendment, that they can be forced to live up to their word, but I do want to make it clear that the legislation is drafted in a way so that the insurance companies can and will expect to participate in one of these plans to be enabled to get reinsurance. The only thing that would be lacking is the stick of the District to force any insurance company to participate.

Mr. PATTEN. You said it.

Mr. MOORHEAD. But the companies are so anxious to get going on this program because they want to live up to their duty of insuring homeowners and businessmen and I feel very confident in saying to the gentleman that if the amendment is not put into this bill, this is still a good bill for the District of Columbia—not as good as it would be with the gentleman's amendment—but still a very good bill for the District of Columbia.

Mr. PATTEN. I thank you.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman insist on his point of order?

Mr. BROCK. I insist on the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BROCK. I make a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it is not germane, it would create a special class of beneficiary, and it would invade the jurisdiction of another committee.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New Jersey desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. PATTEN. Mr. Chairman, as far as our having a right to amend this bill at this point without referring it to the District of Columbia Committee, I am pretty sure our rules permit such action. But my answer will be based on the broader picture. I tell you that the District of Columbia cannot participate, and if you want to adjourn this Congress without giving the District of Columbia the same benefits that the 50 States would receive, all right. The onus will be yours. I have no personal interest in it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is ready to rule. The Chair has examined title X closely. The name of title X is "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance." On page 189, under "Definitions," it is stated that—

(11) "State" means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific;

The amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey deals with a matter of insurance, which the Chair feels is within the scope of the pending bill. The district of Columbia is included in the pending bill. Therefore, the Chair holds that the amendment is germane and overrules the point of order.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Chairman in all sincerity I ask the distinguished chairman of the committee whether he has had an opportunity to analyze in detail the provisions of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PATMAN. No, I did not get a copy of it until recently, and I have not had an opportunity to evaluate it.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. So as far as the details, the powers, and the jurisdiction included in the proposed amendment, the distinguished chairman of the committee knows only what has been said on the floor or has heard in listening or reading the amendment?

Mr. PATMAN. We have present in the Chamber members of the Committee on the District of Columbia. They are charged with the responsibility of District of Columbia affairs. I respect their convictions on the matter. They pass on District of Columbia bills. If none of them wishes to make a point of order on the amendment——

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. A point of order was made and overruled.

Mr. PATMAN. Yes, that is correct. Anyone on the District of Columbia Committee who wants to oppose it has the opportunity to do so. It is not up to me, because we do not have jurisdiction over District of Columbia legislation.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. The gentleman from Texas, the chairman of this committee, would concede that an amendment of this sort ought to have a little more thorough consideration than what we have given it so far?

Mr. PATMAN. There could be taken into account the consideration that this will be the only amendment before the two Houses, and the conferees will write this bill, the final copy of the bill, and they can either consider it or not consider it. It will not be compulsory. Therefore, we have another chance to consider it.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. But is it not also true that under the provision on page 189 of the gentleman's bill that came from his committee the District of Columbia is made eligible?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we did not consider this amendment in committee. It was not considered in the committee to my knowledge. This is the first time I have known anything about it.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, am I correct, I ask the chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, that the committee in its consideration of this legislation surely intended to offer every protection to the District of Columbia that we were offering to the 50 States?

Mr. PATMAN. That is correct.

Mr. BROCK. There was no intention of excluding the District and there certainly is not now. I think it is a question whether or not this amendment would affect the desire of the author of the amendment, in that it might jeopardize the bill. I think that is within the realm of the Banking and Currency Committee.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, this is not the final action, because there is no provision in the Senate bill that is similar. If the Senate bill had a similar provision and if this were passed, it would go into the bill that goes to the White House, but we do not have that situation. We have the situation where this will be in from one side. That will enable the conferees to have the power to pass on it and to determine whether or not it is in the public interest.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Chairman, however, as far as the chairman of the committee is concerned, it was the belief of the committee that the District of Columbia was fully protected in this area?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, that is correct. Certainly we were anxious to make sure the District of Columbia was not discriminated against.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman of the committee.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is in the same form as a bill passed in the other body and coming out of that body's District of Columbia Committee. What we are doing here is taking the action which the other States would take, which is enacting enabling legislation which would permit the District of Columbia to participate under this legislation. We could do this next year, but we want to be sure that the District citizens are protected before this Congress is adjourned. Probably this amendment is a good one, and it can be reviewed further in the conference.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. But the District Committee in the House has not reviewed this amendment?

Mr. MOORHEAD. I am informed that under its schedule it cannot act on this legislation before the anticipated adjournment.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, is it not true that in the last hour and a half two or three amendments which have hit the House floor were drafted downtown today and were never considered previously by the Banking and Currency Committee? Is that not true?

Silence seems to give assent.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee this question. Is it not true that under this legislation any State that does not now qualify under the definition has 18 months to so qualify, and that would include the District of Columbia?

Mr. PATMAN. That is correct.

Mr. MOORHEAD. That is correct.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I have heard a great deal of debate here in the last 2 or 3 days on this long, multipage bill. It looks as if the reason it is going to pass with a pretty good majority is that there is something in it for everybody. Everybody is going to get to dip into the Treasury in one way or another on this bill, and everybody is going to be taken care of, from the ghettos to the insurance companies and to—well, you name it.

If that is the case, and I believe it is, I do not see why we should exclude the District of Columbia. I rather favor the gentleman's amendment. If there are so many goodies in it for everybody—and I hold no particular brief for the District of Columbia, but after all the 50 States and everybody are going to get into the act—I do not see why Congress, which is the legislative body for the District, should not provide for the District. And since it has been admitted we will not be able to legislate them into it this year except if we vote for this amendment, I think we probably ought to do it.

As I have listened to the debate, I have gotten the impression that if this bill were translated into Russian and handed to the Supreme Soviet, they would say, "We will not buy it because it is too socialistic for us." But since it contains something for everybody and everybody's district, I am sure it is going to pass, and I just ask that we not exclude the citizens in the District of Columbia.

Mr. GUDE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey for the District of Columbia as well as those provisions of the bill which would provide the means by which insurance protection can be obtained at reasonable and proper rates in high risk areas subject to civil disorder. The District of Columbia as well as other unfortunate cities, is passing through a critical period of tension and social distress.

Vigorous business and industrial communities are as desperately needed in these cities as are stable residential communities.

But business and industry cannot flourish in these areas without a guarantee of protection for the future through reasonable and proper insurance. In addition, the owners of business and industry, and the employees of these firms have a firm right to continue in their occupations—this legislation is part of the guarantee that they will not be deprived of that right.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. PATTEN].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. PATTEN) there were—ayes 65, noes 48.

Mr. KYL. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. PATTEN and Mr. WIDNALL.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 87, noes 68.

So the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title X, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE XI—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1101. This title may be cited as the "National Flood Insurance Act of 1968".

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1102. (a) The Congress finds that (1) from time to time flood disasters have created personal hardships and economic distress which have required unforeseen disaster relief measures and have placed an increasing burden on the Nation's resources; (2) despite the installation of preventive and protective works and the adoption of other public programs designed to reduce losses caused by flood damage, these methods have not been sufficient to protect adequately against growing exposure to future flood losses; (3) as a matter of national policy, a reasonable method of sharing the risk of flood losses is through a program of flood insurance which can complement and encourage preventive and protective measures; and (4) if such a program is initiated and carried out gradually, it can be expanded as knowledge is gained and experience is appraised thus eventually making flood insurance coverage available on reasonable terms and conditions to persons who have need for such protection.

(b) The Congress also finds that (1) many factors have made it uneconomic for the private insurance industry alone to make flood insurance available to those in need of such protection on reasonable terms and conditions; but (2) a program of flood insurance with large-scale participation of the Federal Government and carried out to the maximum extent practicable by the private insurance industry is feasible and can be initiated.

(c) The Congress further finds that (1) a program of flood insurance can promote the public interest by providing appropriate protection against the perils of flood losses and encouraging sound land use by minimizing exposure of property to flood losses; and (2) the objectives of a flood insurance program should be integrally related to a unified national program for flood plain management and, to this end, it is the sense of Congress that within two years following the date of the enactment of this Act the President should transmit to the Congress for its consideration any further proposals necessary for such a unified program, including proposals for the allocation of costs among beneficiaries of flood protection.

(d) It is therefore the purpose of this title to (1) authorize a flood insurance program by means of which flood insurance, over a period of time, can be made available on a nationwide basis through the cooperative efforts of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry, and (2) provide flexibility in the program so that such flood insurance may be based on workable methods of pooling risks, minimizing costs, and distributing burdens equitably among those who will be protected by flood insurance and the general public.

(e) It is the further purpose of this title to (1) encourage State and local governments to make appropriate land use adjustments to constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage and minimize damage caused by flood losses, (2) guide the development of proposed future construction, where practicable, away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards, (3) encourage lending and credit institutions, as a matter of national policy, to assist in furthering the objectives of the flood insurance program, (4) assure that any Federal assistance provided under the program will be related closely to all flood-related programs and activities of the Federal Government, and (5) authorize continuing studies of flood hazards in order to provide for a constant reappraisal of the flood insurance program and its effect on land use requirements.

AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FLOOD INSURANCE ACT OF 1956

SEC. 1103. (a) The second sentence of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (79 Stat. 1078) is amended—

(1) by striking out "rate" the second time it appears in such sentence, and inserting in lieu thereof "marked yield", and

(2) by striking out "as of the last day of", and inserting in lieu thereof "during".

(b) Section 15(e) of such Act is further amended by striking out the last sentence thereof.

(c) Section 2 through 14, subsections (a) through (d), and (f) and (g) of section 15, and sections 16 through 23 of such Act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER I—THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

BASIC AUTHORITY

SEC. 1105. (a) To carry out the purposes of this title, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program which will enable interested persons to purchase insurance against loss resulting from physical damage to or loss of real property or personal property related thereto arising from any flood occurring in the United States.

(b) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent practicable, encourage and arrange for—

(1) appropriate financial participation and risk sharing in the program by insurance companies and other insurers, and

(2) other appropriate participation, on other than a risk-sharing basis, by insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, in accordance with the provisions of chapter II.

SCOPE OF PROGRAM AND PRIORITIES

SEC. 1106. (a) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall afford a priority to making flood insurance available to cover residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families and business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns.

(b) If on the basis of—

(1) studies and investigations undertaken and carried out and information received or exchanged under section 1108, and

(2) such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary determines that it would be feasible to extend the flood insurance program to cover any types or classes of—

(A) other residential properties,

(B) other business properties,

(C) agricultural properties,

(D) properties occupied by private nonprofit organizations, or

(E) properties owned by State and local governments and agencies thereof, he shall transmit such determination to the Congress together with his recommendations with respect to any such extension of the program.

(c) The Secretary shall make flood insurance available in only those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have—

(1) evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program, and

(2) given satisfactory assurance that by June 30, 1970, permanent land use and control measures will have been adopted for the State or area (or subdivision) which are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use developed under section 1161, and that the application and enforcement of such measures will commence as soon as technical information on floodways and on controlling flood elevations is available.

NATURE AND LIMITATION OF INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1107. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1119, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respectice States, provide by regulation for general terms and conditions of insurability which shall be applicable to properties eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1106, including—

(1) the types, classes, and locations of any such properties which shall be eligible for flood insurance;

(2) the nature and limits of loss or damage in any areas (or subdivisions thereof) which may be covered by such insurance;

(3) the classification, limitation, and rejection of any risks which may be advisable;

(4) appropriate minimum premiums;

(5) appropriate loss-deductibles; and

(6) any other terms and conditions relating to insurance coverage or exclusion which may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) In addition to any other terms and conditions under subsection (a), such regulations shall provide that—

(1) any flood insurance coverage based on chargeable premium rates under section 1109 which are less than the estimated premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) shall not exceed—

(A) in the case of residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families—

(i) $17,500 aggregate liability for any dwelling unit, and $30,000 for any single dwelling structure containing more than one dwelling unit, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit;

(B) in the case of business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns, an aggregate liability with respect to any single structure, including any contents thereof related to premises of small business occupants (as that term is defined by the Secretary), which shall be equal to (i) $30,000 plus (ii) $5,000 multiplied by the number of such occupants and shall be allocated among such occupants (or among the occupant or occupants and the owner) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary; except that the aggregate liability for the structure itself may in no case exceed $30,000; and

(C) in the case of any other properties which may become eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1106—

(i) $30,000 aggregate liability for any single structure, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit in the case of residential properties, or per occupant (as that term is defined by the Secretary) for any contents related to the premises occupied in the case of any other properties; and

(2) any flood insurance coverage which may be made available in excess of any of the limits specified in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (1) (or allocated to any person under subparagraph (B) of such paragraph) shall be based only on chargeable premium rates under section 1109 which are not less than the estimated premium rates under section 1108(a)(1), and the amount of such excess coverage shall not in any case exceed an amount which is equal to the applicable limit so specified (or allocated).

ESTIMATES OF PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1108. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake and carry out such studies and investigations and receive or exchange such information as may be necessary to estimate, any shall from time to time estimate, on an area, subdivision, or other appropriate basis—

(1) the risk premium rates for flood insurance which—

(A) based on consideration of the risk involved and accepted actuarial principles, and

(B) including—

(i) the applicable operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112 and reflected in such rates, and

(ii) any adminstrative expenses (or portion of such expenses) of carrying out of the flood insurance program which, in his discretion, should properly be reflected in such rates, would be required in order to make such insurance available on an actuarial basis for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage is available under section 1106(a) (or is recommended to the Congress under section 1106(b));

(2) the rates, if less than the rates estimated under paragraph (1), which would be reasonable, would encourage prospective insureds to purchase flood insurance, and would be consistent with the purposes of this title; and

(3) the extent, if any, to which federally assisted or other flood protection measures initiated after the date of the enactment of this title affect such rates.

(b) In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible and on a reimbursement basis, utilize the services of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, and, as appropriate, other Federal departments or agencies, and for such purposes may enter into agreements or other appropriate arrangements with any persons.

(c) The Secretary shall give priority to conducting studies and investigations and making estimates under this section in those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program.

ESTABLISHMENT OF CHARGEABLE PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1109. (a) On the basis of estimates made under section 1108 and such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1119, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, prescribe by regulation—

(1) chargeable premium rates for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage shall be available under section 1106 (at less than the estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1), where necessary), and

(2) the terms and conditions under which, and the areas (including subdivisions thereof) within which, such rates shall apply.

(b) Such rates shall, insofar as practicable, be—

(1) based on a consideration of the respective risks involved, including differences in risks due to land use measures, floodproofing, flood forecasting, and similar measures,

(2) adequate, on the basis of accepted actuarial principles, to provide reserves for anticipated losses, or, if less than such amount, consistent with the objective of making flood insurance available where necessary at reasonable rates so as to encourage prospective insureds to purchase such insurance and with the purposes of this title, and

(3) stated so as to reflect the basis for such rates, including the differences (if any) between the estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) and the estimated rates under section 1108(a)(2).

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the chargeable rate with respect to any property, the construction or substantial improvement of which the Secretary determines has been started after the identification of the area in which such property is located has been published under paragraph (1) of section 1160, shall not be less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate for such area (or subdivision thereof) under section 1108(a)(1).

(d) In the event any chargeable premium rate prescribed under this section—

(1) is a rate which is not less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate under section 1108(a)(1), and

(2) includes any amount for administrative expenses of carrying out the flood insurance program which have been estimated under clause (ii) of section 1108(a)(1)(B), a sum equal to such amount shall be paid to the Secretary, and he shall deposit such sum in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

FINANCING

SEC. 1110. (a) All authority which was vested in the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by virtue of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1084) (pertaining to the issue of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury), as amended by subsections (a) and (b) of section 1103 of this Act, shall be available to the Secretary for the purpose of carrying out the flood insurance program under this title; except that the total amount of notes and obligations which may be issued by the Secretary pursuant to such authority shall not exceed $150,000,000.

(b) Any funds borrowed by the Secretary under this authority shall, from time to time, be deposited in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 1111. (a) To carry out the flood insurance program authorized by this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish in the Treasury of the United States a National Flood Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") which shall be available, without fiscal year limitation—

(1) for making such payments as may, from time to time, be required under section 1134;

(2) to pay reinsurance claims under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135;

(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums as may be borrowed from him (together with interest) in accordance with the authority provided in section 1110; and

(4) for the purposes specified in subsection (d) under the conditions provided therein.

(b) The fund shall be credited with—

(1) such funds borrowed in accordance with the authority provided in section 1110 as may from time to time be deposited in the fund;

(2) premiums, fees, or other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135;

(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

(4) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund pursuant to subsection (c);

(5) such sums as are required to be paid to the Secretary under section 1109(d); and

(6) receipts from any other operations under this title (including premiums under the conditions specified in subsection (d), and salvage proceeds, if any, resulting from reinsurance coverage).

(c) If, after—

(1) all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated, and

(2) any outstanding amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations authorized under section 1176(a)(2)(B) have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced, with interest accrued at the rate prescribed under section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956, as in effect immediately prior to the enactment of this title,

the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

(d) In the event the Secretary makes a finding in accordance with the provisions of section 1140 that operation of the flood insurance program, in whole or in part, should be carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, the fund shall be available for all purposes incident thereto, including—

(1) costs incurred in the adjustment and payment of any claims for losses, and

(2) payment of applicable operating costs set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112, for so long as the program is so carried out, and in such event any premiums paid shall be deposited by the Secretary to the credit of the fund.

OPERATING COSTS AND ALLOWANCES

SEC. 1112. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time negotiate with appropriate representatives of the insurance industry for the purpose of establishing—

(1) a current schedule of operating costs applicable both to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers and to insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations participating on other than a risk-sharing basis, and

(2) a current schedule of operating allowances applicable to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers, which may be payable in accordance with the provisions of chapter II, and such schedules shall from time to time be prescribed in regulations.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a)—

(1) The term "operating costs" shall (without limiting such term) include—

(A) expense reimbursements covering the direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred in connection with selling and servicing flood insurance coverage;

(B) reasonable compensation payable for selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, or commissions or service fees paid to producers;

(C) loss adjustment expenses; and

(D) other direct, actual, and necessary expenses which the Secretary finds are incurred in connection with selling or servicing flood insurance coverage; and

(2) the term "operating allowances" shall (without limiting such term) include amounts for profit and contingencies which the Secretary finds reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

SEC. 1113. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe regulations establishing the general method or methods by which proved and approved claims for losses may be adjusted and paid for any damage to or loss of property which is covered by flood insurance made available under the provisions of this title.

DISSEMINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE INFORMATION

SEC. 1114. The Secretary shall from time to time take such action as may be necessary in order to make information and data available to the public, and to any State or local agency or official, with regard to—

(1) the flood insurance program, its coverage and objectives, and

(2) estimated and chargeable flood insurance premium rates, including the basis for and differences between such rates in accordance with the provisions of section 1109.

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN DUPLICATIONS OF BENEFITS

SEC. 1115. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, no Federal disaster assistance shall be made available to any person—

(1) for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage is covered by a valid claim which may be adjusted and paid under flood insurance made available under the authority of this title, or

(2) except in the situation provided for under subsection (b), for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered by a valid claim under flood insurance which had been made available under the authority of this title, if—

(A) such loss, destruction, or damage occurred subsequent to one year following the date flood insurance was made available in the area (or subdivision thereof) in which such property or the major part thereof was located, and

(B) such property was eligible for flood insurance under this title at that date;

and in such circumstances the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered shall be presumed (for purposes of this subsection) to be an amount not less than the maximum limit of insurable loss or damage applicable to such property in such area (or subdivision thereof), pursuant to regulations under section 1107, at the time insurance was made available in such area (or subdivision thereof).

(b) In order to assure that the provisions of subsection (a)(2) will not create undue hardship for low-income persons who might otherwise benefit from the provision of Federal disaster assistance, the Secretary shall provide by regulation for the circumstances in which the provisions of subsection (a)(2) shall not be applicable to any such persons.

(c) For purposes of this section, "Federal disaster assistance" shall include any Federal financial assistance which may be made available to any person as a result of—

(1) a major disaster (within the meaning of that term as determined by the President pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to State and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g)),

(2) a natural disaster, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 321 of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 (7 U.S.C. 1961), or

(3) a disaster with respect to which loans may be made under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)).

(d) For purposes of section 10 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1320), the term "financial assistance" shall be deemed to include any flood insurance which is made available under this title.

STATE AND LOCAL LAND USE CONTROLS

SEC. 1116. After June 30, 1970, no new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title in any area (or subdivision thereof) unless an appropriate public body shall have adopted permanent land use and control measures (with effective enforcement provisions) which the Secretary finds are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use under section 1161.

PROPERTIES IN VIOLATION OF STATE AND LOCAL LAW

SEC. 1117. No new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title for any property which the Secretary finds has been declared by a duly constituted State or local zoning authority, or other authorized public body, to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances which are intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development or occupancy in flood-prone areas.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROGRAMS

SEC. 1118. In carrying out this title, the Secretary shall consult with other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, and with interstate, State, and local agencies having responsibilities for flood control, flood forecasting, or flood damage prevention, in order to assure to the maximum extent practicable that the programs of such agencies and the flood insurance program authorized under this title are mutually consistent.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

SEC. 1119. (a) The Secretary shall appoint a flood insurance advisory committee, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and such committee shall advise the Secretary in the preparation of any regulations prescribed in accordance with this title and with respect to policy matters arising in the administration of this title, and shall perform such other responsibilities as the Secretary may, from time to time, assign to such committee.

(b) Such committee shall consist of not more than fifteen persons and such persons shall be selected from among representatives of—

(1) the insurance industry,
(2) State and local governments,
(3) lending institutions,
(4) the homebuilding industry, and
(5) the general public.

(c) Members of the committee shall, while attending conferences or meetings thereof, be entitled to receive compensation at a rate fixed by the Secretary but not exceeding $100 per day, including traveltime, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as is authorized under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

INITIAL PROGRAM LIMITATION

SEC. 1120. The face amount of flood insurance coverage outstanding and in force at any one time under this title shall not exceed the sum of $2,500,000,000.

REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

SEC. 1121. The Secretary shall include a report of operations under this title in the annual report to the President for submission to the Congress required by section 8 of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act.

CHAPTER II—ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 1130. Following such consultation with representatives of the insurance industry as may be necessary, the Secretary shall implement the flood insurance program authorized under chapter I in accordance with the provisions of part A of this chapter and, if a determination is made by him under section 1140, under part B of this chapter.

PART A—INDUSTRY PROGRAM WITH FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

INDUSTRY FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1131. (a) The Secretary is authorized to encourage and otherwise assist any insurance companies and other insurers which meet the requirements prescribed under subsection (b) to form, associate, or otherwise join together in a pool—

(1) in order to provide the flood insurance coverage authorized under chapter I; and

(2) for the purpose of assuming, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, such financial responsibility as will enable such companies and other insurers, with the Federal financial and other assistance available under this title, to assume a reasonable proportion of responsibility for the adjustment and payment of claims for losses under the flood insurance program.

(b) In order to promote the effective administration of the flood insurance program under this part, and to assure that the objectives of this title are furthered, the Secretary is authorized to prescribe appropriate requirements for insurance companies and other insurers participating in such pool including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for capital or surplus or assets.

AGREEMENTS WITH FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1132. (a) The Secretary is authorized to enter into such agreements with the pool formed or otherwise created under this part as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) Such agreements shall specify—

(1) the terms and conditions under which risk capital will be available for the adjustment and payment of claims.

(2) the terms and conditions under which the pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein) shall participate in premiums received and profits or losses realized or sustained,

(3) the maximum amount of profit, established by the Secretary and set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112, which may be realized by such pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein),

(4) the terms and conditions under which operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112 may be paid, and

(5) the terms and conditions under which premium equalization payments under section 1134 will be made and reinsurance claims under section 1135 will be paid.

(c) In addition, such agreements shall contain such provisions as the Secretary finds necessary to assure that—

(1) no insurance company or other insurer which meets the requirements prescribed under section 1131(b), and which has indicated an intention to participate in the flood insurance program on a risk-sharing basis, will be excluded from participating in the pool,

(2) the insurance companies and other insurers participating in the pool will take whatever action may be necessary to provide continuity of flood insurance coverage by the pool, and

(3) any insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations will be permitted to cooperate with the pool as fiscal agents or otherwise, on other than a risk-sharing basis, to the maximum extent practicable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1133. The insurance companies and other insurers which form, associate, or otherwise join together in the pool under this part may adjust and pay all claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance in accordance with the provisions of this title and, upon the disallowance by any such company or other insurer of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, may institute an action on such claim against such company or other insurer in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PREMIUM EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 1134. (a) The Secretary, on such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe, shall make periodic payments to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, in recognition of such reductions in chargeable premium rates under section 1109 below estimated premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) as are required in order to make flood insurance available on reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) Such payments shall be based only on the aggregate amount of flood insurance retained by the pool after ceding reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1135, and shall not exceed an aggregate amount in any payment period equal to the sum of the following:

(1) an amount for losses which bears the same ratio to the amount of all proved and approved claims for losses under this title during any designated period as the amount equal to the difference between—

(A) the sum of all premium payments for flood insurance coverage in force under this title during such designated period which would have been payable during such period if all such coverage were based on estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) (excluding any administrative expenses which may be reflected in such rates, as specified in clause (ii) of section 1108(a)(1)(B)), and

(B) the sum of the premium payments actually paid or payable for such insurance under this title during such period, bears to the amount specified in clause (A); and

(2) subject to the terms and conditions specified in the agreements entered into with the pool under section 1132, a proportionate amount for appropriate operating costs and allowances (as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112) during any designated period which bears the same ratio to the total amount of such operating costs and allowances during such period as the ratio specified in paragraph (1).

(c) Designated periods under this section and the methods for determining the sum of premiums paid or payable during such periods shall be established by the Secretary.

REINSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1135. (a) The Secretary is authorized to take such action as may be necessary in order to make available, to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, reinsurance for losses (due to claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance) which are in excess of losses assumed by such pool in accordance with the excess loss agreement entered into under subsection (c).

(b) Such reinsurance shall be made available pursuant to contract, agreement, or any other arrangement, in consideration of such payment of a premium, fee, or other charge as the Secretary finds necessary to cover anticipated losses and other costs of providing such reinsurance.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to negotiate an excess loss agreement, from time to time, under which the amount of flood insurance retained by the pool, after ceding reinsurance, shall be adequate to further the purposes of this title, consistent with the objective of maintaining appropriate financial participation and risk sharing to the maximum extent practicable on the part of participating insurance companies and other insurers.

(d) All reinsurance claims for losses in excess of losses assumed by the pool shall be submitted on a portfolio basis by such pool in accordance with terms and conditions established by the Secretary.

PART B—GOVERNMENT PROGRAM WITH INDUSTRY ASSISTANCE

FEDERAL OPERATION OF THE PROGRAM

SEC. 1140. (a) If at any time, after consultation with representatives of the insurance industry, the Secretary determines that operation of the flood insurance program as provided under part A cannot be carried out, or that such operation, in itself, would be assisted materially by the Federal Government's assumption, in whole or in part, of the operational responsibility for flood insurance under this title (on a temporary or other basis), he shall promptly undertake any necessary arrangements to carry out the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, utilizing, as may be practicable for purposes of providing flood insurance coverage, insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, as fiscal agents of the United States.

(b) Upon making the determination referred to in subsection (a), and at least thirty days prior to implementing the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress and such report shall—

(1) state the reasons for such determination,

(2) be supported by pertinent findings,

(3) indicate the extent to which it is anticipated that the insurance industry will be utilized in providing flood insurance coverage under the program, and

(4) contain such recommendations as the Secretary deems advisable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1141. In the event the program is carried out as provided in section 1140, the Secretary shall be authorized to adjust and make payment of any claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance, and upon the disallowance by the Secretary of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance by the Secretary, may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

SERVICES BY INSURANCE INDUSTRY

SEC. 1145. (a) In administering the flood insurance program under this chapter, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements which may, from time to time, be necessary for the purpose of utilizing, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, the facilities and services of any insurance companies or other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, or insurance adjustment organizations; and such contracts, agreements, or arrangements may include provision for payment of applicable operating costs and allowances for such facilities and services as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112.

(b) Any such contracts, agreements, or other arrangements may be entered into without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

USE OF INSURANCE POOL, COMPANIES, OR OTHER PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS

SEC. 1146. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the flood insurance program and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any Federal funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, or any insurance company or other private oragnization, for the purpose of securing performance by such pool, company, or organization of any or all of the following responsibilities:

(1) estimating and later determining any amounts of payments to be made;

(2) receiving from the Secretary, disbursing, and accounting for funds in making such payments;

(3) miakng such audits of the records of any insurance company or other insurer, insurance agent or broker, or insurance adjustment organization as may be necessary to assure that proper payments are made; and

(4) otherwise assisting in such manner as the contract may provide to further the purposes of this title.

(b) Any contract with the pool or an insurance company or other private organization under this section may contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary finds necessary or appropriate for carrying out responsibilities under subsection (a), and may provide for payment of any costs which the Secretary determines are incidental to carrying out such responsibilities which are covered by the contract.

(c) Any contract entered into under subsection (a) may be entered into without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

(d) No contract may be entered into under this section unless the Secretary finds that the pool, company, or organization will perform its obligations under the contract efficiently and effectively, and will meet such requirements as to financial responsibility, legal authority, and other matters as he finds pertinent.

(e) (1) Any such contract may require the pool, company, or organization or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amount as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(2) No individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section.

(3) No officer disbursing funds shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment by him under this section if it was based upon a voucher signed by an individual designated to certify payments as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(f) Any contract entered into under this section shall be for a term of one year, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of an intention to terminate at the end of the current term; except that the Secretary may terminate any such contract at any time (after reasonable notice to the pool, company, or organization involved) if he finds that the pool, company, or organization has failed substantially to carry out the contract, or is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the flood insurance program authorized under this title.

SETTLEMENT AND ARBITRATION

SEC. 1147. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make final settlement of any claims or demands which may arise as a result of any financial transactions which he is authorized to carry out under this chapter, and may, to assist him in making any such settlement, refer any disputes relating to such claims or demands to arbitration, with the consent of the parties concerned.

(b) Such arbitration shall be advisory in nature, and any award, decision, or recommendation which may be made shall become final only upon the approval of the Secretary.

RECORDS AND AUDITS

SEC. 1148. (a) The flood insurance pool formed or otherwise created under part A of this chapter, and any insurance company or other private organization executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under part B of this chapter or this part, shall keep such records as the Secretary shall prescribe, including records which fully disclose the total costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit.

(b) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of the pool and any such insurance company or other private organization that are pertinent to the costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered.

CHAPTER III—COORDINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE WITH LAND-MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS IN FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

IDENTIFICATION OF FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

SEC. 1160. The Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any agreements or other arrangements with the Secretaries of the Army, the Interior, Agriculture, and Commerce, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the heads of other Federal departments or agencies, on a reimbursement basis, or with the head of any State or local agency, in order that he may—

(1) identify and publish information with respect to all flood plain areas, including coastal areas located in the United States, which have special flood hazards, within five years following the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(2) establish flood-risk zones in all such areas, and make estimates with respect to the rates of probable flood-caused loss for the various flood-risk zones for each of these areas, within fifteen years following such date.

CRITERIA FOR LAND MANAGEMENT AND USE

SEC. 1161. (a) The Secretary is authorized to carry out studies and investigations, utilizing to the maximum extent practicable the existing facilities and services of other Federal departments or agencies, and State and local governmental agencies, and any other organizations, with respect to the adequacy of State and local measures in flood-prone areas as to land management and use, flood control, flood zoning, and flood damage prevention, and may enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements to carry out such authority.

(b) Such studies and investigations shall include, but not be limited to, laws, regulations, or ordinances relating to encroachments and obstructions on stream channels and floodways, the orderly development and use of flood plains of rivers or streams, floodway encroachment lines, and flood plain zoning, building codes, building permits, and subdivision or other building restrictions.

(c) On the basis of such studies and investigations, and such other information as he deems necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time develop comprehensive criteria designed to encourage, where necessary, the adoption of permanent State and local measures which, to the maximum extent feasible, will—

(1) constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage where appropriate,

(2) guide the development of proposed construction away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards,

(3) assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and

(4) otherwise improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas, and he shall work closely with and provide any necessary technical assistance to State, interstate, and local governmental agencies, to encourage the application of such criteria and the adoption and enforcement of such measures.

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN INSURED PROPERTIES

SEC. 1162. The Secretary may, when he determines that the public interest would be served thereby, enter into negotiations with any owner of real property or interest therein which—

(1) was located in any flood-risk area, as determined by the Secretary,

(2) was covered by flood insurance under the flood insurance program authorized under this title, and

(3) was damaged substantially beyond repair by flood while so covered, and may purchase such property or interests therein, for subsequent transfer, by sale, lease, donation, or otherwise, to any State or local agency which enters into an agreement with the Secretary that such property shall, for a period not less than forty years following transfer, be used for only such purposes as the Secretary may, by regulation, determine to be consistent with sound land management and use in such area.

CHAPTER IV—APPROPRIATIONS AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1170. As used in this title—

(1) the term "flood" shall have such meaning as may be prescribed in regulations of the Secretary, and may include inundation from rising waters or from the overflow of streams, rivers, or other bodies of water, or from tidal surges, abnormally high tidal water, tidal waves, tsunamis, hurricanes, or other severe storms of deluge;

(2) the terms "United States" (when used in a geographic sense) and "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands;

(3) the terms "insurance company", "other insurer", and "insurance agent or broker" include any organizations and persons authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

(4) the term "insurance adjustment organization" includes any organizations and persons engaged in the business of adjusting loss claims arising under insurance policies issued by any insurance company or other insurer;

(5) the term "person" includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, including State and local governments and agencies thereof; and

(6) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

STUDIES OF OTHER NATURAL DISASTERS

SEC. 1171. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the extent to which insurance protection against earthquakes or any other natural disaster perils, other than flood, is not available from public or private sources, and the feasibility of such insurance protection being made available.

(b) Studies under this section shall be carried out, to the maximum extent practicable, with the cooperation of other Federal departments and agencies and State and local agencies, and the Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any necessary agreements or other arrangements with such other Federal departments and agencies (on a reimbursement basis) and such State and local agencies.

PAYMENTS

SEC. 1172. Any payments under this title may be made (after necessary adjustment on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments) in advance or by way of reimbursement, and in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

GOVERNMENT CORPORATION CONTROL ACT

SEC. 1173. The provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act shall apply to the program authorized under this title to the same extent as they apply to wholly owned Government corporations.

FINALITY OF CERTAIN FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

SEC. 1174. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law—

(1) any financial transaction authorized to be carried out under this title, and

(2) any payment authorized to be made or to be received in connection with any such financial transaction, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

SEC. 1175. Any administrative expenses which may be sustained by the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program authorized under this title may be paid out of appropriated funds.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1176. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may from time to time be necessary to carry out this title, including sums—

(1) to cover administrative expenses authorized under section 1175;

(2) to reimburse the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111 for—

(A) premium equalization payments under section 1134 which have been made from such fund; and

(B) reinsurance claims paid under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135; and

(3) to make such other payments as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) All such funds shall be available without fiscal year limitation.

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title XI be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. JONAS

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JONAS: On page 224, in line 18, strike the period, insert a comma and the following: "and all authority of the Secretary to issue notes and obligations under said section 15(e) beyond such sum is hereby rescinded."

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, 2 weeks ago Congress enacted and the President signed into law the Revenue and Expenditure Reduction Act of 1968. One of the provisions in that bill requires that the President next January submit to the Congress $8 billion in rescissions of unspent appropriations previously made. There are more than $200 billion available downtown in previously appropriated money which has not been spent. This amendment I am offering today would not touch unexpended balances of appropriations, but it would move in the same direction that the Congress directed the President to move, and it undertakes to rescind some unused authorizations. No living person to my knowledge knows how many authorizations have been approved but have not been funded. It would run into the billions of dollars.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. Yes, sir.

Mr. PATMAN. The riot insurance provision which we have already passed contains $150 million as the extent of the Federal Government's liability. This one, if I understand it correctly, will include $150 million liability for the Federal Government.

Mr. JONAS. That is correct.

Mr. PATMAN. In other words, it relieves us of the open end approach?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct.

Mr. PATMAN. And they could extend to only that limit of liability.

Mr. JONAS. That is correct. But my amendment would rescind the unused portion of the $500 million which was authorized way back in 1956 and has not been used.

Mr. BOGGS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

(Mr. BOGGS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOGGS. Mr. Chairman, I want to understand the gentleman's amendment a little more thoroughly. What the gentleman's amendment does is put both of these insurance programs under the same financial category, is that correct?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct; $150 million in each.

Mr. BOGGS. If I understand the situation correctly, under the 1956 act there was one-half billion dollars authorized—$500 million?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct.

Mr. BOGGS. From Treasury financing?

Mr. JONAS. For flood insurance, and now we are using $150 million of that in this bill.

Mr. BOGGS. And what the gentleman is saying is that he wants to limit it to $150 million?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct and rescind the other $350 million which has been left untouched for these many years. I think it is good to rescind it since it has been lying there for 12 years.

Mr. BOGGS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, if the funds were needed in the future, there would not be any question about that?

Mr. JONAS. That is correct. Future authorizations could provide any additional funds that might be required.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

(Mr. MAHON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Chairman, I wish to associate myself with the position of the gentleman from North Carolina with respect to this amendment. We complain about the billions of dollars in unobligated balances which have accumulated through the years. We have had a $\frac{1}{2}$ billion unobligated balance for a period of 12 years for flood insurance. It is a bad way to run the country's fiscal operations. The $350 million balance in obligational authority that would remain should be canceled.

Mr. Chairman, I certainly hope the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina will be adopted.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONAS. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I have had a longstanding interest in flood insurance, dating back to January 1956, when I was one of the sponsors of that legislation at that time.

It is my opinion that the amendment which the gentleman from North Carolina has proposed is a wholesome one at this time and, therefore, I urge its adoption.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we are willing to accept the amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from North Carolina. We have looked it over and considered it and the staff has looked it over and considered it and we are willing to accept it.

Mr. JONAS. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JONAS].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. KEITH. Mr. Chairman, in 1949 the Congress made a national commitment to provide a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family. The legislation which we are considering today, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, is a giant step forward toward that ultimate goal.

In addition, Mr. Chairman, this omnibus bill attacks a problem which has concerned me for many years—how to provide flood-prone areas with reasonably priced insurance to protect real property owners from financial ruin due to onslaughts of tidal waves. The proposed partnership between the Federal Government and the insurance industry will hopefully and eventually make possible protection to homeowners and small businessmen in high-risk coastal areas.

As the Representative from Massachusetts 12th District, a major part of which is comprised of shoreline, including Cape Cod and the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, I have a longstanding interest in the need to protect residents of flood-prone a reas from economic disaster resulting from natural catastrophes. Many of my constituents reside in areas which are constantly exposed to the threat of disasters of monumental proportions.

The bill before us today offers three main advantages to property owners in those flood-prone areas which are qualified for the program. First, property owners would have immediate access to funds with which to rehabilitate or restore their flood-ravaged property, and would not have to rely on Federal disaster relief funds, which are currently practically the sole recourse of financially ruined property owners.

Second, flood insurance would reduce the need for loans and other temporary aids, which impose long-term burdens on the borrowers.

Third, the program offers incentives which will tend to discourage future building and investment in extraordinarily high risk areas. Flood prevention measures are encouraged.

Mr. Chairman, the flood insurance provision included in the Omnibus Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 before us today will go a long way toward providing protection to property owners in flood-prone areas. One of the towns in my district, Wareham, has already been surveyed by the Corps of Engineers and thus will be among the first communities to be eligible for coverage. It is my hope that the flood insurance program will soon be expanded to many more areas and to include other natural disasters.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title XI, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE XII—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1201. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 307 of this Act) the following new section:

"MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

"SEC. 242. (a) The purpose of this section is to assist the provision of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill or who otherwise require medical care and related services of the kind customarily furnished only (or most effectively) by hospitals.

"(b) For the purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'hospital' means a facility—

"(A) which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care);

"(B) not more than 50 per centum of the total patient days of which during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescent and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis; and

"(C) which is owned and operated by one or more nonprofit corporations or associations no part of the net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; and

"(2) the terms 'mortgage' and 'mortgagor' shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207(a) of this Act, except that the mortgage, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

"(d) In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:

"(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

"(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $25,000,000, and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated replacement cost of the property or project, including equipment to be used in the operation of the hospital, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

"(3) The mortgage shall—

"(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe, and

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

"(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this section unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which is located the hospital covered by the mortgage, a certification that (1) there is a need for such hospital, and (2) there are in force in such State or the political subdivision of the State in which the proposed hospital would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. No such mortgage shall be insured under this section unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

"(e) The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property or project from the lien of any mortgage insured under this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(f) The activities and functions provided for in this section shall be carried out by the agencies involved so as to encourage programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population.

"(g) The provisions of subsection (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section and all references therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 1202. Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the fifth sentence the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 242, except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project, voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation or association undertaking the construction; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under section 242 shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be."

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title XII of the bill be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 258, line 3, before the comma, insert "(except that in the case of a mortgage which covers equipment the maturity may not exceed the reasonable use expectancy of such equipment)".

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. The amendment which has been proposed by the gentleman from Tennessee implements in this particular title the same provision that is contained in a preceding title and that we had accepted and one that the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had passed unanimously?

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, that is correct.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we are willing to accept the amendment, because we know what it is.

Mr. BROCK. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to offer a proposal that I had prepared to offer on page 248 in the previous title of the bill, at line 11, and I therefore ask unanimous consent that we may return to that previous title for the purpose of discussion of this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, may I inquire what the amendment is?

Mr. WIDNALL. On page 248, line 11, after "agency," insert the following: "or enter into contracts with any persons or private firms,".

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we will not object to having it considered at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: On page 248, line 11, after "agency," insert the following: "or enter into contracts with any persons or private firms,".

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would enable the Secretary of HUD to enter into contracts with private as well as Government organizations for the purpose of acquiring typographical data and other information necessary for the execution of the flood insurance program.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we are acquainted with this amendment, and we have discussed it on our side and we are willing to accept it on our side.

Mr. WIDNALL. I thank the gentleman from Texas.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey.

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FRELINGHUYSEN

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN: On page 259, after line 9, insert the following new subsection:

"(g) Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this title, the Secretary may insure under this section a mortgage which provides permanent financing or refinancing of existing mortgage indebtedness in the case of a hospital whose permanent financing is presently lacking, if the construction of such hospital was completed between January 1, 1966, and the date of the enactment of this Act."

On page 259, line 10, strike out "(g)" and insert "(h)".

(Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I will be glad to yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman used the word "may" in the amendment, I believe, making it discretionary with the authorities?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. That is right.

Mr. PATMAN. To refinance.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that this amendment is a very minor modification of the proposed new section 242 of the National Housing Act that would allow the Secretary to insure mortgages for the construction of hospital facilities.

My amendment will provide a very limited retroactive feature to allow financing on a permanent basis, or refinancing, for hospital facilities which have been constructed since January 1, 1966, and the date of the enactment of this act.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Does the gentleman know how many hospitals will come under this refinancing on a permanent basis?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I might say to the gentleman from Rhode Island that there would probably be a very small number which would qualify for this assistance.

It is my feeling that the basic intent of section 242 is a good one, to encourage and facilitate the construction of new, and needed, hospital facilities. This amendment would allow the financing of a newly constructed hospital facility. There is one such facility, to my knowledge, in the State of New Jersey, and it is in my congressional district.

I believe there would be relatively few that would qualify under this retroactive feature.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. If the gentleman will yield further, I would state that I believe this is what was objected to 2 years ago, this type of an amendment directed specifically to one particular hospital.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I would say to the gentleman that the whole point of the amendment is that it is not so directed.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. It is directed to one date, why is it not 1965 or 1964, the date to which we would make this bill retroactive?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The date is January 1, 1966.

I might say to the gentleman further that there is no regional flavor to this amendment at all. It would apply to hospital facilities in the State of Rhode Island, or in the State of Massachusetts or in the State of Texas. There is no regional flavor. It is not aimed at an individual facility or any specific facility.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. There is one in the State of New Jersey that would qualify.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I have just told the gentleman that.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. That is one reason I am offering the amendment, because permanent financing has not been arranged for this facility.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. CAHILL. I commend the gentleman from New Jersey.

I have read this section and I have read the gentleman's amendment. I think it is a very constructive improvement of this act. We all recognize the great need today for aid to hospitals. If there is any way that we can help any hospital in this country obtain permanent financing, it seems to me this amendment should be supported and I again commend the gentleman for offering his amendment.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

I might say I commend the committee for having made the suggestion to provide this kind of insurance for mortgages for the construction of hospitals. The need since January 1, 1966, for mortgage assistance has been real, and the difficulties of certain hospitals in acquiring adequate financing have been real.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. WIDNALL. I compliment the gentleman from New Jersey on this amendment. I think this is needed and it can be very, very helpful in some very really trying circumstances right now where several hospitals have not been able to get permanent financing.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. JOELSON. Mr. Chairman, I know that the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN] has in mind a hospital located within his congressional district. However, since many of my constituents utilize that hospital, I think the gentleman has a good amendment and I intend to support it.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I thank the gentleman.

I am sure that hospitals in other areas may also qualify for this assistance.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, we are willing to accept the gentleman's amendment on this side.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN].

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to title XII, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE XIII—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

REAFFIRMATION OF GOAL

SEC. 1301. The Congress finds that the supply of the Nation's housing is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal, established in the Housing Act of 1949, of the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family". The Congress reaffirms this national housing goal and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of twenty-six million housing units, six million of these for low and moderate income families.

ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

SEC. 1302. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall annually submit to the President and to the Council of Economic Advisers in time to provide basic material for the Economic Report of the President a report of (1) his estimate of the number of standard housing units produced through new construction and rehabilitation, private and public, in the preceding year, (2) his estimate of the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families, (3) his assessment of whether the ten-year housing goal set forth above is being met, (4) his recommendation of the current annual goal to meet the ten-year goal, and (5) his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions necessary to achieve the ten-year goal.

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title XIII be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to title XIII? If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE XIV—MISCELLANEOUS

MODEL CITIES

SEC. 1401. (a) Section 111(a) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the second time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $12,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969".

(b) Section 111(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the third time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $1,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970".

(c) Section 111(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANT PROGRAM

SEC. 1402. (a) Section 314(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended—

(1) by striking out in the first sentence "to public bodies, including cities and other political subdivisions," and inserting in lieu thereof "to public bodies (including cities and other political subdivisions) and nonprofit organizations,";

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "In the case of any such grant to a nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall require that the assisted activities and undertakings are not inconsistent with the program of the local public agency."; and

(3) by striking out in the second sentence "No such grant shall exceed two-thirds of the cost, as determined or estimated by said Secretary, of such activities or undertakings," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "No such grant shall exceed 90 per centum of the cost, as determined or estimated by the Secretary, of the assisted activities or undertakings,".

(b) Section 314(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "$10,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$20,000,000".

AUTHORIZATION FOR URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICES PROGRAM

SEC. 1403. (a) The first sentence of section 906 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Develpment Act of 1966 is amended by striking out "and not to exceed $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969, and not to exceed $15,000,000 for fiscal year 1970".

(b) The second sentence of section 906 of such Act is amended to read as follows: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 1404. (a) Section 1010(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ", which amounts shall be increased in subsequent fiscal years by such sums as may be necessary".

(b) Section 1010(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "two years" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "three years".

COLLEGE HOUSING

SEC. 1405. (a) The heading of section 401 of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "LOANS" and inserting in lieu thereof "ASSISTANCE IN THE FORM OF LOANS OR ANNUAL GRANTS".

(b) Section 401(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) To assist educational institutions in providing housing and other educational facilities for students and faculties, the Secretary may make loans of funds to such institutions for the construction or purchase of such facilities or may, as an alternative to all or part of the loan (in the case of any such institution), make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase: Provided, That no such assistance shall be provided unless (1) the educational institution involved is unable to secure the necessary funds for the construction or purchase from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2) the Secretary finds that any such construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that any such facilities are not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials."

(c) Section 401(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "(c)";

(2) by striking out "of (1)" and "or (2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "of (A)" and "or (B)", respectively; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any housing or other educational facilities shall be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and provision for such grants shall be embodied in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such period. Each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between (A) the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of the loan, on the amount borrowed from other sources for the construction of such facilities, and (B) the average annual debt service which the institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, with respect to such amounts if the applicable interest rate were the rate specified in paragraph (1): Provided, That the amount on which such grant is based shall be approved by the Secretary but in no event shall exceed the total development cost of the facilities."

(d) Section 401(d) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(d)", and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted with loans made hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section."

(e) Section 401(f) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(f)(1) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the payment of annual grants to educational institutions in accordance with this section.

"(2) Contracts for annual grants under this section shall not be entered into in an aggregate amount greater than is authorized in appropriation Acts; and in any event the total amount of annual grants which may be paid to educational institutions in any year pursuant to contracts entered into under this section shall not exceed $10,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969."

(f) Section 403 of such Act is amended by striking out "the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "the amount of the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans, and not more than 12½ per centum of the funds provided for in this title for grants,".

(g)(1) Section 401(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) Except as otherwise proivde in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case of any loan which is made under this section to a nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation referred to a clause (5) of section 404(b), or which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under this section, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by the educational institution (referred to in clause (1) of such section) at which such corporation is located, and that, in the event of the dissolution of such corporation, title to the housing constructed with such loan will vest in such educational institution."

(2) Clause (3)(B) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "of any loan secured under this title" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "of any loan which is made under section 401, or is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(3) Clause (4) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "to obtain loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "to obtain loans or grants".

(4) The second paragraph of section 404 (b) of such Act is amended by inserting after "clause (5) of this subsection," the following: "and in the case of any loan which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(h) Section 404(c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; except that in the case of the purchase of facilities such term means the cost as approved by the Secretary".

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

SEC. 1406. (a) Section 202 (a) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended—

(1) by inserting in paragraph (1) after "corporations," the following: "limited profit sponsors,";

(2) by inserting in paragraph (2) after "(as defined in subsection (d)(2))," the following: "to any limited profit sponsor approved by the Secretary,"; and

(3) by inserting in paragraph (3) after "Secretary" the following: ", except that in the case of other than a corporation, consumer cooperative, or public body or agency the amount of the loan shall not exceed 90 per centum of the development cost".

(b) Section 202(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out "full".

FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING PROGRAMS

SEC. 1407. (a) Title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended—

(1) by inserting after "urban centers," in section 801(b) the following: "and with business firms and associations, labor unions, and other interested associations and organizations,";

(2) by striking out "technical and professional people" in sections 801(b)(1) and 802 (a)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof "technical, professional, and other persons with the capacity to master and employ such skills"; and

(3) by inserting after "which has responsibility for community development" in sections 801(b)(1) and 802(a)(1) the following: ", or by a private nonprofit organization which is conducting or has responsibility for housing and community development programs".

(b) Section 805 of such Act is amended by inserting "Guam, American Samoa, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands," after "the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico,".

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

(b) Paragraph (87) of section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking out "(4)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(6)".

INTERNATIONAL HOUSING

SEC. 1409. Section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 604. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations and assemble such data from other nations, through participation in international conferences and other means, where such exchange or assembly is deemed by him to be beneficial in carrying out his responsibilities under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act or other legislation. In carrying out his responsibilities under this subsection the Secretary may—

"(1) pay the expenses of participation in activities conducted under authority of this section including, but not limited to, the compensation, travel expenses, and per diem in lieu of subsistence of persons serving in an advisory capacity while away from their homes or regular places of business in connection with attendance at international meetings and conferences, or other travel for the purpose of exchange or assembly of data relating to housing and urban planning and development; but such travel expenses shall not exceed those authorized for regular officers and employees traveling in connection with said activities; and

"(2) accept from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations, funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations to be utilized jointly in carrying out activities under this section.

"(b) International programs and activities carried out by the Secretary under the authority provided in subsection (a) shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for the purpose of assuring that such authority shall be exercised in a manner consistent with the foreign policy of the United States."

(b) Section 17 of such Act is repealed. The capital stock referred to in such section shall be retired, and the sum of $1,000,000 represented by such stock shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States.

(c) Such Act is amended by inserting after section 16 a new section 17 as follows:

"SEC. 17. In the performance of, and with respect to, his functions, powers, and duties under this Act, the Secretary shall have (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) the functions, powers, and duties set forth in subsections (a), (b), and (e) of section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950."

(d) Section 101 of the Government Corporation Control Act is amended by striking out "United States Housing Authority and including public housing projects financed through appropriated funds and operations thereof;".

ELIGIBILITY FOR RENT SUPPLEMENT PAYMENTS

SEC. 1411. Notwithstanding any other provision of law respecting the date after which a mortgage must have been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make, and contract to make, rent supplement payments under the provisions of section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to the owners of the housing projects known as the 114th Street rehabilitation project and the 114th Street rehabilitation project numbered 2, in New York City, New York (project numbers 012–33501 and 012–33512).

CONSOLIDATION OF LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SEC. 1412. All projects now operated and maintained by the National Capital Housing Authority pursuant to title I of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act are deemed to be low-rent housing projects and may be consolidated, pursuant to section 15(6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into any contract for annual contributions covering projects maintained and operated pursuant to title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN GARDEN CITY, MICHIGAN

SEC. 1413. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Florence Primary School in Garden City, Michigan, local expenditures made in connection with such school shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward the Cherry Hill urban renewal project (Mich. R–46) for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

SEC. 1414. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the storm drainage system in the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project (Calif. R–67) in Sacramento, California, local expenditures made in connection with such storm drainage system located in that project shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward that project for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

SELF-HELP STUDIES

SEC. 1415. (a) Section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by inserting after the words "improved means" the following: ", including the study of self-help in the construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance of housing for low-income persons and families and the methods of selecting, involving, and directing such persons and families in self-help activities,".

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make a report to the Congress, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, setting forth the results of the self-help studies and demonstrations carried out under section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961, together with such recommendations as he deems appropriate.

EARTHQUAKE STUDY

SEC. 1416. Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "three years after the appropriation of funds for this study" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1969".

HOME OWNERS' LOAN ACT OF 1933

SEC. 1417. (a) Section 5(b) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) An association may raise capital in the form of such savings deposits, shares, or other accounts, for fixed, minimum, or indefinite periods of time (all of which are referred to in this section as savings accounts and all of which shall have the same priority upon liquidation) as are authorized by its charter or by regulations of the Board, and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized. Holders of savings accounts and obligors of an association shall, to such extent as may be provided by its charter or by regulations of the Board, be members of the association, and shall have such voting rights and such other rights as are thereby provided. Except as may be otherwise authorized by the association's charter or regulation of the Board in the case of savings accounts for fixed or minimum terms of not less than thirty days, the payment of any savings account shall be subject to the right of the association to require such advance notice, not less than thirty days, as shall be provided for by the charter of the association or the regulations of the Board. The payment of withdrawals from savings accounts in the event an association does not pay all withdrawals in full (subject to the right of the association to require notice) shall be subject to such rules and procedures as may be prescribed by the association's charter or by regulation of the Board, but any association which, except as authorized in writing by the Board, fails to make full payment of any withdrawal when due shall be deemed to be in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact business within the meaning of subsection (d) of this section. Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association, but the Board may by regulation provide for withdrawal or transfer of savings accounts upon nontransferable order or authorization.

"(2) To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended—

(1) by striking out "shares" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "savings accounts or securities"; and

(2) by inserting after the first semicolon in the second proviso the following words: "or in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;".

(c) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding immediately after the second paragraph thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may make and invest in any loan not exceeding $5,000—

"(A) for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property, or

"(B) for the purpose of mobile home financing, subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe."

(d) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"Any such association may invest in loans, or interests in loans secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly."

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK ACT

SEC. 1418. Section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1432), is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 12.", and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) Subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board, one or more Federal home loans banks may acquire, hold, or dispose of, in whole or in part, or facilitate such acquisition, holding, or disposition by members of any such bank of, housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections."

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 1419. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), (9), and (10)".

(b) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "clauses (2), (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "clauses (2), (3), (7)".

(c) Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "and (9)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(9), and (10)".

(d) Section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage" immediately after "twenty-five years".

(e) Section 213(o) of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof four new sentences as follows: "Moneys in the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Secretary may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligations of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this subsection. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(f) Section 810(e) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "private corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor approved by the Secretary", and

(2) by striking out "corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the third and fourth sentences and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor".

(g) Section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "corporations restricted by" and inserting in lieu thereof "corporations or other legal entities restricted by or under".

Mr. PATMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title XIV be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ASHLEY

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ASHLEY: On page 275 strike all of lines 9 through 24 and on page 276 strike all of lines 1 through 25 and substitute therefor the following:

"SEC. 1417. (a) Section 5(b) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464 (b)) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

" 'However, certificates of account guaranteeing a definite rate of return for fixed periods of time not less than three months may be issued for shares, as prescribed from time to time by the Board by regulation.' "

On page 277 strike lines 3 through 5 and in line 6 strike "(2)".

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, section 1417 of the bill to which my amendment is directed represents a very significant departure from the established relationship that historically has existed between Federal savings and loan associations and their savings account holders.

We all understand that a savings and loan association is a specialized financial institution established to accept savings, to honor requests to withdraw these savings, and to pool funds mainly to make loans secured by mortgages for the construction, repair and purchase of homes. The critical point at issue is that a saver in a savings and loan association is in a very different position legally than a saver or a depositor in a commercial bank.

In a savings and loan association, a share account holder is an equity owner of the institution. He receives "dividends" but he has no advance legal right, as an owner, to a specified rate of dividend any more than any private stockholder in any corporation.

A bank depositor, very much to the contrary, enters into a debtor-creditor relationship. The bank becomes the debtor and the depositor the creditor and under this relationship the bank contracts in advance to pay a specified rate of interest.

Under present law, Federal savings and loan associations are authorized to raise their capital only through the issuance of shares and they are specifically prohibited from accepting deposits which establish the debtor-creditor relationship.

Section 1417 would rewrite the law by allowing mutual associations to raise capital through deposits for either fixed or indefinite periods of time and also to raise capital by selling notes, bonds or debentures.

The language of section 1417 says that a depositor in a savings and loan association is not going to have any greater rights but this patently is a contradiction in legal terms. It is a contradiction because a depositor has a legal right to payment and a share holder has a right only to dividends if they are earned. In short, a depositor is a creditor and creditors always precede equity owners with respect to claims on income and sharing of assets in the case of liquidation.

Questions also arise with respect to giving Federal savings and loan association authority to give security and to issue notes, bonds and debentures. Just what does this provision mean? Can debentures be convertible and, if so, into what—share accounts or the newly designated "deposits"?

Are these debt obligations subject to insurance by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation? The committee's report states that they are not but certainly questions can arise since the proposed language in the bill is silent on this matter. And who would have preference in case of liquidation of a savings and loan—the share holder—"depositor" or the holder of debt obligations?

It would be helpful if we could look to the hearings for discussions of these fundamental and obviously important questions but the fact of the matter is that there were no hearings and not the first suggestion of testimony on any part of section 1417. The section was adopted in the final hour of the markup stage of the bill in the absence of any prior discussion or consideration.

Mr. Chairman, the desire of the savings and loans to compete better with commercial banks is understandable. Our purpose is not to thwart competition but only to make certain that such competition is healthy and serves the public interest.

Certainly the abrupt shift in the definition of share accounts as depositors and the granting of authority to borrow on notes and debentures need much more study and should be subject to the testimony of the regulatory agencies concerned before being presented to the House of Representatives.

At the same time it is clear that justification exists for additional flexibility for savings and loan's in attracting funds for their important and much needed role in providing housing in the United States. Presently the Home Loan Bank Board authorizes savings and loan's to issue saving certificates no shorter than 6 months in maturity.

To increase the ability of savings and loans to better finance home building the amendment I offer, which strikes the authority to establish deposit accounts and sell debt obligations, would permit the issuance of saving certificates as short as 90 days in maturity and also would permit the guaranteeing of future dividends—which presently is not authorized by statute—provided that sufficient funds are earmarked in advance for this purpose.

Mr. Chairman, I urge adoption of my amendment.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ASHLEY. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman has sufficient time to answer a question, I would appreciate it. I would like to get clear in my mind if the amendment of the gentleman would maintain what we were trying to do in the bill, giving CD flexibility to the savings and loan associations so they can raise more money.

Mr. ASHLEY. Precisely it would.

Mr. BROCK. They face a real crisis this month. We intended to alleviate that.

Mr. ASHLEY. Yes, it would do precisely that.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ASHLEY. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman wants to change the names of the word "deposit" and also the word "interest."

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is mistaken. That is what the bill purports to do. It would allow the savings and loans to use "deposit" instead of "share accounts," and they are totally different.

Mr. PATMAN. The gentleman wants to change it back from the way it is in the bill.

Mr. ASHLEY. I do not want to change it back. I just do not want the change.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman if a large number of States do not permit that, and even the State of the gentleman?

Mr. ASHLEY. I am familiar with the fact that some State-chartered institutions are allowed to use the word "deposit" and the word "interest," but I maintain there is a substantial difference between the word "dividend" and the word "interest" and the words "share account" and "deposit." Interest is a legal claim and a dividend is available only if earned by the association.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, would this not add to the confusion, to pass a law to change it in those States that now permit it under State law?

Mr. ASHLEY. Yes; I think there would be very considerable confusion, and that is precisely the reason for my amendment.

Mr. PATMAN. To change it the way the gentleman changes it—in other words, the gentleman's amendment would cause confusion.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, we are agreed that confusion would result. The sponsor of the amendment is convinced that the proposal in the bill would add to the confusion.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I am afraid the gentleman inadvertently—certainly not intentionally—left the impression that he is doing this for the savings and loan associations and that they would be happy with this. I would like to ask the gentleman if he knows of a savings and loan association which is for this, or any thrift institution, or the Federal Home Loan Bank Board? I am making the statement that they have communicated with me and said they are opposed to it.

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, let me respond to the gentleman by saying that inasmuch as we did not have hearings, it is impossible to know the sentiments of the savings and loan associations. They were not able to present their testimony before the committee, and it is this I object to. I am pleased the chairman saw fit to establish that point.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman not think the bankers came out pretty well in this bill? At least there was a provision about the savings and loans chartering, and the bankers were certainly adamantly opposed to it, and they made great efforts to oppose it, and they were successful in striking it out. After it was stricken out, by a very close vote, something was added that would help the savings and loan associations to a certain extent. In other words, it gave the savings and loans a small amount of help so that the housing market can be benefited. Now, does the gentleman not think it would be a great disservice to the country and to the savings and loan associations to give them this body blow that the gentleman's amendment would give?

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Ohio has expired.

(Mr. HANNA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I think the House should realize we had plenty of opportunity to discuss this particular principle and the actual contents of the amendments as they now stand. At one time in this bill there was a substantial amendment to provide a great change in the savings and loan institutions by allowing the formation of a new Federal chartered system of savings institutions for housing.

Now, we struck that out of the bill completely. The banks were very much against that provision. What we did was to take out a few of the provisions within that measure and frame them as these amendments because it certainly seemed sensible, if we were going to increase the responsibility for housing and homebuilding in the thrift institutions which are oriented for homebuilding, we ought to help them in getting deposits and other funds so that they would have the resources we are calling upon them to use.

Let me give some interesting figures about the difference between savings and loan institutions and banks. How much assets and deposits do they have, and where they put their money?

In 1967, the commercial banks had $182.6 billion in deposits and $586.6 billion in assets. Out of those assets only 18.9 percent were in mortgages.

The savings and loan institutions at the same time had $124.6 billion in deposits and $306.5 billion in assets, but they had 85.9 percent of their assets in mortgages.

We can tell from those figures who is supporting the home building field. It is not the commercial banks; it is the savings and loan institutions.

If we are going to ask them to support increasing burdens, we have to put them in a position where they will be an active competitor to get the money to utilize; money to do what we ask them to do.

What we have done in these amendments is to liberalize in a modern, up-to-date way both the instruments and the terminology the savings and loan institutions use.

The chairman pointed out, and correctly so, that in Ohio, California, and a number of the modern, up-to-date States the States savings and loan institutions already use the terminology he objects to. Are we to have a dual system, a healthy dual system in which the federals can do what the States can do? Are we going to be one way about it?

All the amendment would do is to put everybody in the same position. We are not changing the legal position of the parties with mutuals or shares. In the terminology used today, they all refer to their dividends as interest, and to the money they have in the bank as their deposits, and it is accepted terminology. We all utilize it. The gentleman sometimes uses that language when he discusses these items in the committee, because it comes so naturally to the lip.

Why should this not be up to date and modern and reflect the terminology being utilized in the market? That is all the amendments would do.

We really ought to give the same kind of multiple money raising powers to the savings and loan institutions that the banks have had for so many years. They can take their deposits in many forms and multiply available resources through notes and debentures because of this great flexibility we give them through the liberal provisions of the Federal Reserve Board.

It does seem to me that when we move at this time and at this place, to allow that same flexibility in terms of multiplying the available resources for the savings and loans would be appropriate, so that they will be able to do a more dynamic job for America in one of the most demanding segments of our economy, home building. We are moving in exactly the right kind of direction for the time in which we are passing this great new housing bill. We are bringing up to date the approach in the mortgage field that is already reflected in the very dynamic changing money market, which is so essential to the health of all segments of the American economy.

What is wrong with that? It seems to me we are taking the intelligent, required step to put these great institutions in a posture to perform in partnership with the great principles we are trying to follow in this housing bill.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I take this time to ask the previous speaker, the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA] a question. I have frankly had some misgivings about this amendment, but his argument has almost convinced me to support it. It seems to me his very logic that we need to give the savings and loans the ability to expand their currency and utilize the reserves that the commercial banks have would lead me either to oppose the proposal or support equivalent tax treatment for savings and loans. Would the gentleman agree with that premise?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HANNA. If you are talking about utilization of their resources to go into the many fields that we have allowed banks to expand in. For instance, no one in Congress moved against bankers because they have become competitors in things like travel agencies, car rental agencies, or in the used car field, because it gives them a broader utilization of their resources. If we are talking about a wide-open competitive position in that regard, there might be some concern about the position that they have taxwise, but we are not talking about that.

Mr. BROCK. You are just talking about giving them an opportunity to multiply their reserves.

Mr. HANNA. No. I am talking about a utilization, first of all, of the terminology of the marketplace and the instruments to attract funds.

Mr. BROCK. Utilizing instruments of the marketplace and utilizing deposit accounts. What is the commensurate responsibility of the savings and loans as between share and deposit accounts?

Mr. HANNA. The legal relationship between the deposit and the share account is made up in the contract that the man makes when he goes in there. But I am telling you today in terminology and in the very thinking of the man involved that there is no difference.

Mr. BROCK. Is it your intention that a deposit account could be utilized as a reserve if we had demand or reserve deposits in the bank against which you could loan 8 or 10 times?

Mr. HANNA. This bill does not change what they can do with a deposit at all. It does what the State of California has already done and what the State of Ohio has already done in terms of State savings and loans. I have not seen any problem arising from that as to what they are going to do with the deposits. They will carry out the contract that he man signed. We are merely talking about the terminology which will be utilized if they can do the job.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I thought I understood what the terminology meant until the gentleman from California began to explain what he thought it meant. I have no concept of where he intends to go with this program.

Mr. HANNA. Just read the bill, and it will tell you.

Mr. BROCK. I have read the bill and I thought it meant something, but the gentleman from California told me something else today.

Mr. GIAIMO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield.

Mr. BROCK. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. GIAIMO. I would like to address my question to the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA], because when you mention the phrase "multiplier effect" you concern me. Therefore, I feel perhaps this is a good amendment, because if a savings and loan is going to get into the multiplier effect of bank deposits which will create more money, you are doing exactly what the commercial bank does in order to get that multiplier effect factor, which is not what we want savings and loans to do. We want them to stay in the mortgage money field and be giving 85 percent of the moneys for this. I suspect once you get into the multiplier effect it means that they will try to diversify and put money into other kinds of loans. Perhaps this will go into demand deposits and checking accounts, which is the real multiplier effect. This is not what we want to happen, because it will damage and hinder the mortgage market. The gentleman has made a great argument in favor of this amendment.

Mr. BROCK. The gentleman addressed himself to the point that deeply concerns me, because of the colloquy that we have had.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I am glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I, too, would like to ask a question of the gentleman from California.

Mr. HANNA. I have not had a chance to answer the question yet.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I think the gentleman has yielded to me.

I would like, through the gentleman from Tennessee, to pose a question to the gentleman from California. If I understood the argument of the gentleman from California correctly, he feels that there is every need for a version of this in order to have as much money in the savings and loans as it is possible to have to make this money available for mortgages. Is that correct?

Mr. HANNA. That is correct.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I hope the gentleman will remember that answer in about 10 minutes when I offer another amendment.

I thank the gentleman from Tennessee for yielding to me.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, would the gentleman make his request at the end of his first 5 minutes?

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Ohio had 5 additional minutes, and since the sponsor of the amendment and the proponents of the amendment had 10 minutes, I feel that I should have equal time.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, if the gentleman cares to repeat his request after the first 5 minutes, after we determine whether or not it is worthwhile, we might grant it. But, Mr. Chairman, right now I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. PATMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, each Member of the House received this telegram. I assume that because a large number of them have shown it to me, and especially members of the committee. It says:

> It is my understanding that Representative Ashley will offer an amendment to section 1417 of the housing bill that'll give Federal savings and loan associations expanded flexibility in competition for individual savings and at the same time preserve existing and historical relationship between the Federal savings associations and its customers. I hope you may support the amendment.
> AMERICAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION,
> JOHN W. HOLTON, Washington Office.

Mr. Chairman, one would think from that, that this is being done at the request of the Federal savings and loan associations, but I want to say to the members of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union that the Federal savings and loan associations are indignant about it. They called me and told me that it was terrible.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY] has not been requested to offer that amendment for us, and we do not want that amendment. We were defeated in the committee on the Federal charter bill. There was a tie vote, and then a motion to reconsider the bill lost by one vote.

Mr. Chairman, it occurs to me that the American Bankers Association should be very happy over the achievement in taking out of this bill things to which they were adamantly opposed.

After this was done the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA] offered an amendment that would give savings and loan institutions certain powers to which no one would object and which were in the interest of the public and an approach which would permit more housing to be constructed in this country.

Mr. Chairman, the savings and loan associations are helping everybody, but now the banks want to strike this amendment out or render savings and loan operations ineffective.

So, Mr. Chairman, this is an issue strictly between the Bankers Association lobby and the savings and loan institutions and all of the thrift institutions. Every thrift institution is against this amendment. I can assure the members of the committee of that. And I can assure you that although the language might imply it is in behalf of the savings and loan institutions, instead it is against the savings and loan institutions. It is not in behalf of the savings and loan institutions. It is in favor of the 105-year-old American Bankers Association lobby—105 years old—an association which has lots of experience and the use of effective gimmicks, and as a result they ought to know a lot of ways, which they have acquired during this 105 years, and certainly they have tried to come in here at the last minute and have tried to deny the savings and loan's minor liberalizing amendments. I say that respectfully, because I have no opposition to bankers as such. We want a good banking system, and I have always supported a good banking system.

The Ashley amendment would be disruptive, would be devastating. Why should we have and now knuckle under to the bankers' lobby right here at the last, when we are getting through with one of the biggest bills that Congress ever passed just because they are unhappy over one or two words? And the words that they are unhappy about are already in the law in States, including the State of Ohio, and others.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY], would add to the confusion, and would be strictly a bankers' lobby amendment, because the bankers' lobby admit that they are putting it out, and they want it adopted.

Mr. Chairman, I hope that the Members of the House will stand by this committee. We tried to be fair with the banks. We tried to be fair with the savings and loan associations. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board is adamantly opposed to this amendment as are many other groups.

Mr. Chairman, I ask the Members vote down this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I will not take the full 5 minutes, but I do want to make the observation that the savings and loan institutions, at least, in my district, have provided a great deal of leadership in the development of my area. They suffered considerably in 1966 when we had a real financial crush. Of course we are facing the same prospects in the near future.

In my discussions with the leaders in the savings and loan institutions in my district, I am advised they desparately need some additional lending authority which the bill as now existing would provide.

It does not put them in direct competition with the banks. To the contrary, it extends to them the authority to finance mobile homes which I believe is a legitimate extension of their authority. It gives them more authority to engage in the financing of home repairs which again I believe is a legitimate extension of their authority.

It allows them——

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, my amendment does not disturb that authority.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I want to be sure about that, and I am glad the gentleman rose. The amendment offered by the gentleman would not disturb their authority to engage in that type lending?

Mr. ASHLEY. Absolutely not.

Mr. BLACKBURN. The amendment only limits the borrowing authority——

Mr. ASHLEY. To the extent of deposit accounts and the authority to sell debt obligations.

Mr. PATMAN. If the gentleman will yield, I want to say that I do not agree with the conclusions of the gentleman from Ohio. I believe they are incorrect.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Let me direct a question to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY].

Am I then to understand that under the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio, the savings and loan associations could make four $1,000 unsecured loans if they desire, which is in the bill now?

Mr. ASHLEY. My amendment would leave undisturbed——

Mr. BLACKBURN. Their lending authority?

Mr. ASHLEY. The new grants of authority; that is, on mobile homes and on home improvements with respect to equipment. That is absolutely undisturbed. These new grants of authorities I am not quarreling with. My quarrel goes to the deliberate effort to confuse share accounts with deposits.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Let me conclude with this observation: I have discussed this particular provision with leaders in the industry and the chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board, and it is my understanding that he does favor the provision which now exists in the bill; therefore I would oppose the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLACKBURN. I will be glad to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I would like to associate myself with the remarks of the gentleman, and of the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA].

I would just ask the gentleman is it not true that with the very high interest rates we have been experiencing that the savings and loan associations have had a terrible squeeze in terms of being able to obtain money with which to finance mortgages?

Mr. BLACKBURN. That is very true.

I would like to make this observation to those who fear that the savings and loan associations are going to scatter their resources in unrelated fields, let me say that those fears are not well founded. The savings and loan associations would lose their tax advantage if they should allow their investments to get into too many other fields. I believe they have to maintain an 80-percent home loan mortgage percentage of their total investments in order to get the tax advantage which they now enjoy.

Mr. OTTINGER. They will need this additional flexibility in order to be able adequately to do their job of mortgage financing.

Mr. BLACKBURN. That is my understanding from my discussion with leaders in savings and loan institutions.

Mr. GIAIMO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

(Mr. GIAIMO asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIAIMO. Mr. Chairman, I take this time to get some clarification from the committee.

I have looked into the question of savings and loan institutions vis-a-vis the commercial banks. I know there is tremendous pressure on the savings and loans to retain thrift account money for the mortgage market.

I know they are at a competitive disadvantage because the commercial banks through the use of certificates of deposit and other devices are able to attract a great deal of money which heretofore used to go into the savings accounts.

But I also know that each time, in the history of banking in the United States, that we create a new type of savings or banking institution, each of these institutions constantly tries to broaden its powers and functions so that it can ultimately hope and dream of getting into the field of general banking.

I think it is a mistake to allow this to happen with savings and loans because we will jeopardize the availability of mortgage money even more. This is just what we do not want to do.

I know that there has been suggested legislation for some period of time around the Congress to give greater powers to savings and loan associations, to give depository demand deposits to savings and loans, to give them checking accounts, to give them the power to diversify the kinds of loans they can make, installment loans, commercial and personal loans, and many other types of loans which bring back a greater yield in profits to the lending institution than do the mortgage loans.

Now I would like to ask the members of the committee the following question:

Am I correct in assuming that there is nothing in this bill to give to the savings and loans authority to do this in the present bill?

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GIAIMO. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. REUSS. The gentleman is entirely right. It is expressly prohibited that there be any demand deposits or any checking accounts for the savings and loans.

Mr. GIAIMO. What is this flexibility that I hear referred to by some members of the committee, to give flexibility to the savings and loans?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GIAIMO. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HANNA. That terminology was used in the bankers' telegram and was used by me to indicate the flexibility of instruments available to raise money—which is not the same thing as flexibility to use money once you have it.

When you talk about the multiplicity of instruments, you are not talking about multiplicity in terms of leverage or in terms of the utilization of funds. I thank the gentleman so that I could make that clear.

Mr. GIAIMO. There is one other question that I would like to ask.

Referring to the bill on page 276, line 21, the bill reads as follows:

To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize.

As I understand it, this will give them greater flexibility in entering into borrowing contracts with the commercial banks or other institutions, if so for what purpose?

Mr. HANNA. This will mean that debentures, which are market instruments utilized by other banking institutions, will be available for the savings and loans so that they will have on hand more money to be able to use it in the mortgage market and reduce these tremendous high rates that we all now see the American people paying for mortgages.

Mr. GIAIMO. Is this a broader authorization to allow them to go into the commercial bank type of loans other than the home financing type of loans and home improvement type of loans and also the mobile home types? Are we authorizing them to get into any other types of investment other than those they have authority for at the present time?

Mr. HANNA. The answer to that is "No."

Mr. GIAIMO. What about these vocation loans? Is that in this bill?

Mr. HANNA. No, it is not. When you say, "vacation loan," do you mean a loan to go on a vacation?

Mr. GIAIMO. I understand there is something on vacations in this bill.

Mr. HANNA. There is a provision for the financing of a second home where a man has a home in town and he wants to build one in the mountains or down on the beach. This is only a continuation of home financing and has nothing to do with financing a vacation. It is the kind of a loan that you can make at a bank.

Mr. GIAIMO. I thank the gentleman.

My own feeling is that we have to do something to relieve the pressures on the savings and loans so that they will remain an available source of thrift money which goes to them and which will then go into the mortgage market. I think we must act to assure that these funds continue to go into the savings and loan associations. We must avoid a repetition of what happened when the commercial banks became active with certificate of deposit and drained so much money from the savings institutions.

I do not think the answer to this problem is broadening the power of the savings and loan so that ultimately they will get more and more of their money out of mortgage investments and begin to invest it into the short-term money market which has a greater yield to them and a greater profit.

Mr. HANNA. I agree with the gentleman and I believe most of the members of the Committee agree with him.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio.

The amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ST GERMAIN

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ST GERMAIN: On page 277, strike out lines 17 through 20.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Rhode Island is recognized.

(Mr. ST GERMAIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I am happy that my particular amendment follows immediately after the amendment offered previously. I agree wholeheartedly with the speakers that every effort should be made to see that savings and loan associations have as much money available as possible for the purpose for which they were created—to promote savings and to grant loans to people to buy homes.

However, just as was pointed out in the debate, especially since 1966 there has been a crisis in the money market, and unless my amendment is adopted, I can picture one of the headlines. It is a good bill. We have worked hard on it. The chairman of the subcommittee has spent many, many months on this bill. The members of the subcommittee have, also.

However, I would hate to have it ruined by a newspaper headline which states, "Congress Authorizes Mortgage Funds for Beach Houses and Vacation Houses."

Certainly these funds should be made available to the people who need them—for the young couple that wants to buy a home in which to raise a family. If John Doe wants a second home, a vacation home in the mountains or at the beach, let John Doe go on the conventional route, but let us keep the savings and loan money for those people who want to buy their first home. If conditions change in future years, perhaps the proposal might be acceptable.

But at this time I do not feel that we in the Congress should authorize savings and loan associations to go into lending money for second homes, vacation homes.

SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HANNA

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HANNA to the amendment offered by Mr. ST GERMAIN: On page 277, strike out lines 14 through 23, and insert the following:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, but subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe, any such association may make and invest in—

"(A) any loan not exceeding $5,000 for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, or

"(B) any loan for the purpose of mobile home financing."

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, in taking this opportunity to amend the amendment, I am trying to do a second service, I believe, to the committee. In committee, when we were discussing section A, we spoke of the $5,000 limitation which was suggested by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK]. In offering this amendment to the amendment we have achieved exactly what the gentleman from Rhode Island wants to achieve, and at the same time straightening out the other problem. I hope the gentleman will go along with me on this version.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. If the gentleman will yield, I believe in essence he has struck out the words "including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property," which would in essence in actuality eliminate second homes?

Mr. HANNA. That is correct.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. But it would retain "for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement" of an existing structure?

Mr. HANNA. That is correct.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I would be happy to accept the gentleman's substitute or amendment of my amendment.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, what would be the effeot of this amendment on the savings and loan associations that are located in seashore areas and whose principal functions are to provide mortgage loans for people who want to buy seashore homes?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I would suggest to the gentleman this will be a problem for them in terms of getting any new power which they do not now have.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, it has been my observation that the commercial banks and sources of conventional loan money are not a bit interested in financing this type home. I say to the gentleman, if we take this power and authority away from the savings and loan associations, who is going to finance construction of homes along the Jersey coast and other recreational areas of this country, where we are seeking to develop homes for people to enjoy their vacation time?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. ST GERMAIN], who is the major author of this alteration, which was not my idea to begin with. I want to be sure we straighten out the problems we have on another aspect.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, anything the savings and loan associations can do now, they can continue to do. I wonder what is wrong with the homes if the conventional and FHA people will not approve these homes? That is No. 1.

No. 2, I feel that we want to put this mortgage money into the ghettos where we need the first homes, and let us give people who do not have their first homes the opportunity to have them. Later on, we can go to this change.

Mr. REES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HANNA. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. REES. Mr. Chairman, in regard to the question of the gentleman from New Jersey, what this section does is refer to the repairing and equipping alteration or improvement of real property. It does not affect in any way the ability of the savings and loan institutions to loan money to anybody who wishes to purchase a home any place he wants to, whether it is a second home, a third home, a fifth home, or a sixth home. It has only to do with alteration.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, what about alterations on what might admittedly be a second home?

Mr. REES. Mr. Chairman, it just depends on what type second home it is. I have one in Washington, and I have one in my district. I can borrow up to $5,000 to repair that, but for a vacation home I suspect a person would have to go to a bank. For construction, he can go any place he wishes.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, it has been this member's observation that the commercial banks today are not interested in lending money on mortgages because they can make more money on other forms of loans. The gentleman from Rhode Island must know we cannot get conventional mortgages these days from a banking institution, and if we cannot get it from a savings and loan association, from where can we get it?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, the banks have only 18.9 percent of their capitalization in mortgages and the savings and loan institutions have much more of their capitalization in mortgages, so it is clear where the mortgages have to come from. So I would provide as broad an area of amending as we could.

Mr. CAHILL. Mr. Chairman, I hope the amendment will be defeated.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair would like to inquire of the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA] whether he wishes to offer this amendment as a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. ST GERMAIN], or as an amendment to the amendment?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I originally offered it as an amendment to the pending amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. It does not seem to be an amendment to the amendment. Does the gentleman offer it as a substitute?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I will offer it as a substitute amendment for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA], will be considered as a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island.

There was no objection.

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I will draw the attention of the able gentleman from California to the words "mobile homes" in his substitute and in the bill and I think quite properly. Is there any reason why those words might not apply to mobile homes such as houseboats which move on the water and are a place of residence, as well as to land trailers if the Home Loan Bank Board sees fit to allow it?

Mr. HANNA. Mr. Chairman, I think coming from the waterways of Florida, the gentleman, I am sure, has a great interest in this.

It would be my judgment, if the Home Loan Bank Board approves such water mobile homes, they would be covered.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PEPPER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. I want to endorse what the gentleman in the well said, and I rise in support of his amendment.

Mr. FASCELL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PEPPER. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. FASCELL. I thought I understood the gentleman's substitute amendment, but after the colloquy I was not so sure. Would the gentleman strike out the language "improvement of."

Mr. HANNA. No, I would not. I would strike out the language "including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property."

Mr. FASCELL. But that would leave in the "repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property"?

Mr. HANNA. That is correct.

Mr. FASCELL. It does not seem to me like it changes anything, which is all right with me.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. HANNA] for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. ST GERMAIN].

The substitute amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Rhode Island, as amended.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. ST GERMAIN) there were—ayes 79, noes 28.

So the amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: On page 268, after line 20, insert the following new subsection:

"(1) The last sentence of paragraph 'Seventh' of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) (appearing immediately before the sentence added by section 811 of this Act) is amended by inserting after 'the Asian Development Bank' the following: ', or obligations issued by any State or political subdivision or any agency of a State or political subdivision for housing, university, or dormitory purposes,'."

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, one of the most acute problems in our period of postwar growth in the United States, has been the tremendous pressures on college and university enrollment. We have seen enrollment increase from 2 million in 1946 to 6½ million this year. It is projected to go to 9,400,000 by 1976.

One phase of the problem that has been of particular concern to me has been dormitory housing for these students. In 1965 I sponsored an amendment, which Congress enacted, to provide a direct 3-percent loan program for college housing. Under this program 480 projects have been built at a total cost of $643 million. The facilities built will house over 250,000 students. I am pleased with the success of this program and the contribution it has made to the college housing problem. The total Federal college housing program has now reached a total of $3,346,000,000. While this program is of tremendous importance, an equally important program is the one the States are carrying on themselves with State college housing facilities. The total volume of this housing is $3,148,845,000, almost equal to the total Federal program.

In order to further assist the States in providing housing at the lowest possible cost, I am proposing an amendment that will complement the Housing Urban Development Act of 1968. Since there are such tremendous capital demands by our universities, subchapter IX of the National Housing Act, entitled "Housing for Educational Institutions," has been amended by section 1405 of the bill to permit assistance for educational institutions in the form of annual grants as well as by loans. Section 1405 of the bill, as approved by the Banking and Currency Committee, authorizes the Secretary to, and I quote, "make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase." The annual grants under this provision may be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between the annual debt service on private borrowing and the interest rate which would be payable under the loan provisions of subchapter IX.

The amendment I offer today would permit the same financial institutions that compete for issues such as those of the Inter-American Development Bank and the Asian Development Bank to compete for bond issues for housing, university, or dormitory purposes. A competitive capital market for these bond issues will undoubtedly lower the borrowing costs, and in the case of dormitory and university bond issues, will make the annual grants provided for in section 1405 go that much further.

I submit the following tabulation for the information of the Members:

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. REUSS. We on this side have had an opportunity to examine the gentleman's amendment and believe it is a constructive one and will fully support it.

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS OF COLORADO

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ROGERS of Colorado: On page 269, after line 10, insert the following new subsection:

"(c) Section 202(e) of such Act is amended—

"(1) by striking out 'prior to the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961' and inserting in lieu thereof 'prior to July 1, 1967 (whether or not the insurance has actually been granted)';

"(2) by inserting 'or refinancing' after 'financing';

"(3) by inserting 'foreclosure or' after 'avoid'; and

"(4) by inserting 'tenants or' before 'prospective tenants'."

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, we have gone over this amendment. We have no objection to it. I think the gentleman from New Jersey also has had a chance to examine it.

Mr. WIDNALL. If the gentleman will yield, I have no objection to it.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BROCK. I do not know whether I have any objection to it or not. Will the gentleman please explain what he is trying to do?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. The explanation is, if you will turn to page 268, you start out on housing for the elderly. My amendment then starts after line 10, page 269, which is a new section; this would change section 202 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1959, as amended, which provides housing for the elderly. This would procure refinance under this section.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BARRETT. This is a hardship amendment, is it not?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. That is right. And it deals with a situation in my State where loans have heretofore been made to the elderly for elderly housing and others in a similar financial condition as a result of certain problems which have arisen which were not anticipated at that time.

What it does is to permit them to be refinanced as is permitted for housing for the elderly and as provided by Public Law 87–70.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

These programs are supposed to be actuarially sound. However, if they have to be refinanced, does the gentleman have any estimate as to the cost of this item?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. The anticipated cost as to each particular one, I cannot give it to the gentleman. In my particular State, the State of Colorado, there happens to be about 30 of these institutions which have heretofore been sponsored for the elderly by fraternal orders and others. In other words, due to a situation which developed where our own State legislature saw fit to tax them, this represents an attempt to help them.

Mr. BROCK. But, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, is it for the Government to come to the situation where the State of Colorado places a tax on a municipally operated program and support it?

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. May I point out to the gentleman from Tennessee that if this amendment is not adopted, the Federal Government will be compelled to foreclose in order to protect the guaranteed loans hereto made.

Does the gentleman want the Federal Government to go to foreclosure in my particular State, or is the gentleman willing to help work it out in this manner?

That is how simple it is.

Mr. BROCK. I thank the gentleman from Colorado.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. ROGERS].

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 264, strike section 1405 beginning on line 13 through line 20 on page 268, and insert in lieu thereof the following new section 1405:

"SEC. 1405. (a) Effective with respect to loans for projects for which funds are reserved after June 30, 1968, section 401(c)(1) of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking all that follows the phrase 'which shall be not more than the' and inserting in lieu thereof 'rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed a rate of 1 per centum per annum as determined by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.'

"(b) Effective with respect to notes or other obligations financing loan contracts for which funds are reserved after June 30, 1968, the second sentence of section 401(e) of such Act is amended by striking out all that follows the phrase 'which shall be not more than the' and inserting in lieu thereof 'rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum.'"

(Mr. BROCK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, this amendment relates to the section of the college housing loans and the 3-percent-interest section. What it does is it changes the percentage of the loan from 3 percent to a percentage which is equal to the current cost of financing the Federal debt, less 1 percent—in other words, 1 percent below our cost of acquiring the money at the Federal level.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment is not destructive in intent. It is constructive in a sense that if adopted it would make this program comply with programs which will be passed by the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. QUIE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. QUIE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

As I understand the amendment, it will delete the provision in the bill which would provide for grants being made to institutions, to pay the difference between the financing, that is, between the private market and the 3 percent which is now required.

I certainly support the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee so as to come within the loan program in title III of the Higher Education and Academic Facilities Act. This came up in committee, and we adopted the administration's proposal, which this is, it is the administration's proposal in the House bill before us, and was the administration's proposal in the Higher Education Act.

The problem today in college housing loans and college facility loans is that the Federal Government is providing the money for all of the loans, and has run out of money. Prior to the 3-percent interest level being applied, the public institutions of higher learning could finance their loans through the sale of bonds at a rate at the level of the Federal Government or less, and it was never the intention that the Federal Government would finance and provide the loans for all of the college construction. And the action taken both by the Committee on Education and Labor and the Committee on Banking and Currency in the previous Congress, has led to this action now. What has happened is that the private institutions of higher learning have found it difficult to secure loans at the lower rate of interest. I think that we ought to abide by the recommendations of the administration, and not at least permit this new provision where the banks can charge, or a lending institution can charge, any rate of interest, and the Federal Government agree to pay the difference between that and 3 percent. It is a carte blanche amount, and the only limitation in here is that the Federal Government over 40 years will not make grants greater than the cost of the facility. We might as well be paying for the complete facility immediately.

Mr. BROCK. I appreciate the support of the gentleman on what we are trying to do. What I am afraid would happen under this bill would be to drive the educational institutions out of the private market, and force them into the Federal program.

Frankly, we have not the money to carry this out, and if we are going to get adequate financing I think we had better make sure of the availability of the private market. I believe under this amendment we would sufficiently guarantee all money, and make it available to the schools.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, certainly at a time of steadily rising college enrollment, I believe it would be totally wrong to defer construction of college housing facilities, which is what this amendment would do.

The provision which the committee approved had the wholehearted endorsement of the colleges and universities. It is aimed at doing just what we have done with the housing loan program. This would reduce the impact of providing just an equal payment and place the basic financing in the hands of private lenders and private industry.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment certainly should be defeated at a time like this, when college housing is needed so badly, and when the moneys of the colleges and universities are needed so badly. To raise the rate from 3 percent to 5.5 percent, Mr. Chairman, seems to me to be clearly out of proportion.

I hope the amendment will be defeated.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I wish to associate myself with the remarks of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, and make this additional point: that, ironically, the committee bill, supported, I believe, by all Members on this side, relies on private financing. The Brock substitute amendment would compel public financing.

Mr. Chairman, it seems to me to the extent that we can bring private financing in—and with a very small budgetary impact to make up the difference between 3 percent and the going market rate, which in the case of tax-exempts would be something like 4.5 percent or 4.75 percent—that we not only will be doing something for sound budgeting but for a great number of college students who want to come to the city of Chattanooga, Tenn., or to the city of Rochester, Minn., and board at the college. That is what college housing is for.

I hope that the amendment will not be adopted.

Mrs. MINK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentlewoman.

Mrs. MINK. Mr. Chairman, I am very much interested in the proposal contained in the committee bill and I oppose the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

I think for the very modest amount that this particular section of the bill would cost the Government, in other words the sum of $10 million, we will see the growth in excess of $400 million in new college dormitories.

I think no one in this House needs to be told about the very critical problem facing our colleges which have increasingly greater numbers of students being enrolled on their campuses.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge that this amendment not only be voted down but that the provision included in the bill be supported most enthusiastically as a very wise solution of the problems on our college campuses.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. BROCK. I might just point out to the gentlewoman from Hawaii, I think we share the same objective of trying to expand the availability of financing for college housing.

But I do believe that her argument perhaps could be self-defeating in that it will drive colleges out of the public financing area, and out of the bond market.

In this case, they are simply not having enough support to achieve the financing they must have.

I think perhaps we disagree on the means, but I do not believe we disagree as to the objectives.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I certainly hope that we can vote immediately and vote this amendment down.

Mr. QUIE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, we have hit a problem in college construction loans from the fact that the interest rate on direct loans was reduced to 3 percent, while interest rates have gone up on private money.

Until the 3-percent interest rate was provided in the law, here is what we found in the college loans. Most public institutions of higher learning found that they could borrow money at the same rate that the Federal Government could borrow, or less. That means that a State could borrow at about the same rate and the municipality could borrow at about the same rate because they sold their bonds and they would be tax exempt and they would have quite an appeal to the private market.

When you went to the 3-percent interest rate, every institution of higher learning in the country wanted that big subsidy of 3 percent interest. There just has not been enough direct loan money available under those circumstances.

The administration proposes that the interest rate be approximately 1 percent less than the cost of money to the Government. That would be about 4.4 percent.

Secretary Weaver, when he testified before the House Committee on Banking and Currency, said:

> The new formula for interest rates on college housing loans provides a reasonable rate on these loans which would assure that college housing funds supplement rather than supplant private financing. The program is not designed to finance all college housing construction or to compete with private financing available on terms better than those available to the Federal Government on its borrowing. It is designed to assist those educational institutions which cannot reasonably finance housing in the private market.

The question comes: Who is going to pay the subsidy, the State or the Federal Government?

Will the Federal Government assume the responsibility for every institution in the country, eliminating the need for that responsibility on the part of every State and the local political subdivision?

The main reason for a college loan is to help the private institutions of higher learning and at a rate 1 percent less than the cost of the money to the Federal Government, it is a substantial subsidy to the private institutions.

Mr. Chairman, when we have lending programs of this nature, they must be similar.

In the higher education bill that will be before this House before very long, we have accepted the administration proposal—it would be the cost of money to the Government minus 1 percent.

Facilities loan program should conform. Unless the amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee is adopted, then next week we will have to change the other bill to conform with this one.

Mrs. MINK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. QUIE. I yield to the gentlewoman from Hawaii.

Mrs. MINK. Is it not true that that same committee, in acting on the amendments to the vocational education bill relating to the construction of residence halls for vocational schools, adopted this precise amendment; so if the gentleman's argument in favor of the gentleman's amendment to this section is for consistency, certainly one could not find it in the Committee on Education and Labor that acted on the same day, in two different respects, with regard to the identical provision.

Mr. QUIE. We find that many committees are not consistent with themselves, and I imagine that same criticism can be made of every other committee. But it is my feeling that the colleges will construct their dormitories; that strong demand is there on the part of students for dormitories, and public institutions, if they can find their financing from private sources at a rate that is at the level of the Federal Government or less, as the law will provide if the Brock amendment is adopted, should be permitted to do so.

There is no need for the Federal Government to be subsidizing all of the States and the local political subdivisions. It is important that money for dormitories not be easier to acquire than money for academic facilities. This is more important than consistency with residential facilities for vocational residential schools which carries a substantial Federal grant.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. QUIE. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WIDNALL. I am quite familiar with the original concept of the interest rate of 3 percent for the college housing program. The purpose of that 3-percent figure was to enable the renting of dormitory rooms at a lower figure. That was the purpose of the legislation. That is why we are trying to keep the interest rate as low as possible in this area.

Mr. QUIE. The 3-percent money just leads to grants to colleges for the building of dormitories. It is similar to what we have done in relation to academic facilities. The new language of the committee bill, of course, is the first step to grant an authorization for the construction of these facilities, and I think the House should know the direction in which we are going.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BROCK) there were—ayes 53, noes 70.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. BINGHAM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I hate to take the time of the Committee at this late hour, but I believe that three of the amendments which were adopted yesterday would substantially cripple this program, as far as New York City and the big cities are concerned.

I take this time to pass on to the Members, information that I have obtained today from organizations, such as the archdiocese of New York, which have been working in this field for years. They tell me if the Anderson amendments, lowering the income limits to 130 percent of the public housing limits, are adopted by the House on the final vote, and if the second Brock amendment, which would raise the rental standard in the title II program from 20 to 25 percent of income, it would be impossible to make these programs work in New York City.

With respect to the second Brock amendment, I think there was considerable confusion in the Committee yesterday. I was confused myself, because the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK] referred to the fact that he was proposing an amendment to the rent supplement program. This is not so. The amendment which the gentleman proposed, and that was adopted, actually applies to the new title II program for rental housing to be provided by private financing, and, as a matter of fact, the provision lowering the rental under the rent supplement program, which appears on page 56 of the bill, was not affected by the gentleman's amendment. So that in the title I program and in the rent supplement program the standard will be 20 percent, and only in the new rental program will it be 25 percent.

The remarks of the gentleman in the RECORD will show that he referred several times to rent supplements, whereas, as a matter of fact, his amendment had no bearing whatsoever on the rent supplement program. So I think in this case the Committee did not have a clear understanding as to what it was doing.

I want to repeat that, this very day, judging from the reports of the action tentatively taken by the Committee yesterday, one of the outstanding organizations in New York City in this field told me they could not operate under this program.

I hope there will be separate votes taken on these amendments and that they will be defeated.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BINGHAM. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. YATES. Mr. Chairman, could the gentleman tell us how the archdiocese of New York came to this conclusion? I was one of those who voted for the Anderson amendment yesterday. I have checked with various officials in the Department, and they have told me they believe the Anderson amendments are workable. What was the reasoning behind the statement of the archdiocese?

Mr. BINGHAM. Their reasoning is based on their experience in this field. As a matter of fact, the archdiocese is just about the only organization that has been able to work under section 221(d)(3) in New York City, and they have been able to do it with great ingenuity, but they feel there has to be more flexibility if private financing is to be attracted to this program.

The whole idea of this program is to attract private financing and get away from Government financing.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BINGHAM. I yield to my colleague from New York.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. Chairman, I want to concur with what the gentleman from New York said. There have been consortiums of many religious faiths who have joined together to preserve the characteristics and strengths of neighborhoods. This has given great flexibility to the private ingenuity and private innovation and private enterprise concept. A multitude of voluntary organizations and the religious faiths are joining in dramatic new progressive movements in housing. For example, one in which I participated took place in Kings County. We had some difficulty under the present provisions of 221(d)(3) in attracting private financing.

Mr. BINGHAM. This title is intended to improve on it, but it will not improve on it if the Anderson amendment is adopted.

Mr. CAREY. That is correct. It really puts us back into the old public housing ideas and gives a 30 percent flat base, which is not sufficient to utilize private resources and serve a vast number in need of adequate shelter beyond their means.

Mr. BINGHAM. The gentleman is entirely correct. I thank the gentleman for his contribution.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer an amendment.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we can get an agreement now to vote on this bill and all amendments thereto at 6:30?

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the right to object.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I object to that. How many amendments are there pending?

The CHAIRMAN. There are five amendments.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, we cannot do that.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BARRETT

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I am sure there are a number of Members here tonight who have very important engagements. I do not like to refuse the gentleman from Iowa, but I move that we terminate debate on the bill and all amendments thereto at 6:30.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GERALD R. FORD) there were—ayes 81, noes 67.

So the motion was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: Strike out section 1410 (beginning on page 272, line 3, and ending on page 272, line 22).

And renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, HUD is seeking in section 1410 to obtain additional funds to assist in bettering the administration's overall budget deficit. If there was any chance of the budget becoming balanced, the case might be different, but what is really happening is that HUD and the administration are only obtaining more money to spend on their varied programs.

The legislation proposed would lead most to believe that all that is involved is $1 million, note lines 9 and 10, page 272.

Not well remembered is an answer to my inquiry to HUD as to whether the U.S. Housing Authority corporation had any corporate assets and what was their worth. The HUD answer is contained on page 75 of the housing hearings of 1967 and is as follows:

The corporation (the U.S. Housing Authority) had assets on June 30, 1966, of $148.6 million (after valuation allowances). Net assets after payables were $56.1 million, the Government equity. This includes the $1 million formally invested in capital stock. While the value of the assets is believed to be conservatively stated, with adequate allowances to cover any differences between book values and true values, it should be noted that most of the Government equity is invested in program loans and advances to local housing authorities.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The amendment was agreed to.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BROCK moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I take this time to respond very briefly to the gentleman from New York on his comments with regard to the amendments of myself and the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ANDERSON].

I point out that my amendment raising the income applicable to rentals to 25 percent was the administration-sponsored percentage. It is also the percentage accepted by the Senate and is in the Senate bill.

Second, the Anderson amendments which direct the program to low-income families are amendments which are fully supported by the people in organized labor that I have had contact with. I want that a part of the RECORD.

Mr. Chairman, the motion to recommit will contain two sections that I would like to explain very briefly.

The first relates to the so-called tenant services section which contains $60 million for an open-end section of grant services by the Secretary to public housing recipients. There is $60 million involved in this. The amendment was offered yesterday and defeated on a tie vote. You may recall this was the Gross amendment.

The second section of the motion to recommit will strike out section 412 which is the interim services section. This contains $40 million for the repair of sidewalks and related facilities in local communities.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. I should like to say in response to what the gentleman from New York [Mr. BINGHAM], said a few moments ago that the amendments which I proposed and which were adopted in the Committee of the Whole yesterday, which he said would do great violence to the new rental and homeownership programs—not 2 hours ago I was called out of the chamber off the floor and talked to the two representatives of the Department of HUD, who informed me that the Secretary had told them that these were "amendments that the Department could live with."

Naturally, they prefer no limitations at all. However, the other body saw fit to impose limitations on the programs and certainly limitations contained in these two amendments are essentially amendments the Department can live with and these programs can function.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I find it is impossible to yield with the limitation of debate put upon us by the majority. I might add that I deeply resent the restraint to 15 minutes imposed by you on us when there are five amendments pending.

Mr, Chairman, I would like to explain the amendment I have, which is an amendment to the model cities section. It will strike the figure of $1 billion and insert $250 million. This is a $750 million cut. In addition to that, it imposes a limitation of 15 cities which can receive funds under the bill so that we can go back to the concept of the demonstration cities bill and prove the worth of the program. This was the great single disappointment of the Great Society, the model cities program. I know of only one city which has a moderately successful program in this, and that is the city of Norfolk, Va.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the support of that amendment when it comes up.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. BROCK. Yes. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, at the conclusion of the remarks of the gentleman from Tennessee, I would like to include the current status report on the model cities program. I had 38 replies from 75 cities contacted. Other replies are coming in. I wish to include that in the RECORD at the end of the gentleman's remarks, as an extension of my remarks.

Mr. BROCK. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Chairman, in conclusion, I would say that my motion to strike the title of this bill is a very sincere motion. I think it would be a contribution to good government the way this bill has become such a travesty.

Mr. WIDNALL. In order to provide my colleagues with the most up-to-date information on the present status of the model cities program, I sent a telegram on Wednesday of last week, July 3, to all the mayors of the communities chosen so far to receive model cities planning funds. To date a total of 38 replies have been received out of the 75 cities contacted. The telegram asked four basic questions:

First, what is the amount and percentage of the planning funds reserved for your city which has been received to date from HUD;

Second, what progress has been made on the basis of any funds you have already received;

Third, what is the projected date for completion of your planning; and Fourth, can you identify any major problems of Federal concern, administratively or otherwise, which adversely affect the current progress of the model cities planning.

While the problem of time undoubtedly limited the answers in some cases, the great majority are fairly extensive and detailed. I think it is possible to draw some general conclusions of importance not only for this debate but also for the future conduct of the program at the Federal level.

To begin with, there is no doubt from these telegrams and letters and telephone calls, that local officials, elected or appointed, are enthusiastic over the concept of the model cities program, and I stress the word concept. As could be expected, they see a need for additional funding, and for passage of the provisions contained in the bill now under consideration. I agree with them on both counts.

That is not to say, however, that all Federal efforts to turn concept into reality are an unlimited success. The communications, in summary, paint the following picture of the program to date.

After the Demonstration Cities Act of 1966 became law in early November of that year, the Department of Housing and Urban Development did two things. First, it changed the name of the program to model cities for image purposes, and second, it invited applications for planning funds which were to be in by March of 1967. The final decision on the first 63 cities and 65 project areas was not made until November 16, 1967, when planning funds were reserved for these communities. Almost all, it seems, renegotiated the final reservation figure in January or February of 1968, raising the figure over the original HUD projection, although it is still considered too low in many communities.

Another group of 12 cities received approval for a reservation of planning funds on March 8 of 1968. Actual contracts for the disbursement of funds took longer, and in some cases, as with Trenton and Washington, D.C., no funds at all have been disbursed to the cities. While most cities report progress in organizing for the planning process, including the establishment of task forces, the drawing up of questionnaires for the residents, the development of community participation, and the like, this has been accomplished not with HUD funds but with funds borrowed from the city treasury on the basis of the HUD reservation commitment. Projected completion dates range anywhere from this September to March of next year, with most falling around February 1, 1969.

It should be emphasized that these are projected completion dates. There is no doubt that the cities themselves feel capable of meeting these dates, provided they receive their planning funds, and provided that Federal officials lift the load of paperwork and administrative detail now demanded of overworked city staffs, and provided coordination and direction is established within HUD and among HUD and other Federal agencies, notably HEW, Labor, and OEO, and provided that the problem of community participation is settled.

I have prepared a list of the most common and specific problems worthy of Federal attention that have been submitted to me by local officials participating in the model cities program. I know that HUD is aware of many of these difficulties, and is working on them, but I think it is worth saying again that the model cities program must have the coordination and cooperation at the Federal level that will allow the local administrators and local citizens the breathing room to develop successful projects. That means stronger leadership and coordination from within HUD and also at the White House level, to see to it that other Cabinet Departments are equally concerned and aware of their responsibilities under the program.

I would like to submit the following list of identified problem areas for the RECORD, together with a list of the cities from which I have received replies:

1. The allocation of funds reserved by HUD comes too long after designation, requiring the advancement of local funds to carryout the program schedule.

2. HUD technical requirements for local staff and workload have burdened the cities without adequate funding to carry this out; laborious requirements for applications and constant reports required from audit and legal staffs leave little time for local efforts, and little room for program flexibility.

3. Lack of coordination both within HUD, and between HUD and other Federal Departments. Guidelines leave unclear the relationship between the local city agency and OEO, Labor, HEW, etc. Delays in coordination occur at the national level even when they do not occur at the regional level. Even visits to the cities are done piecemeal, instead of as a team.

4. Existing program regulations, including planning programs under HUD, do not take into account differences in approach of the Model Cities concept.

5. Uncertainty is caused by lack of earmarking of funds by other agencies (i.e., HEW), leaving local officials without knowledge necessary to develop best strategy in utilizing supplemental funds.

6. Establishment of adequate communication with residents of the area, and the overcoming of distrust and apathy, the development of credibility for the project. A lack of publications for communication to the residents, the need for greater funding and a higher level of technical assistance for neighborhood corporations from Federal agencies was noted.

7. Information on programs affecting the Model Cities project in a particular city is often lacking on the part of local officials because of a failure to route these projects through the appropriate city officials.

Cities selected for planning funds, November 16, 1967, replying to Widnall telegram on model cities program (31 of 63):

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARRETT. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BINGHAM. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

First of all, with regard to the second amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee, I would like to call his attention to page H6142 in the RECORD of yesterday where, speaking on his second amendment, he said—

The rent supplement program has been operating for 2 or 3 years now.

And further "I would like to offer the same amendment on rent supplements," and so forth.

The section on the rental standard in the rent supplement program appears on page 63 of the bill at the top of the page, and is not touched by the Brock amendment. The section to which his amendment applies is found on page 56 and has to do with a totally different program, the new program for privately financed rental housing.

Further, Mr. Chairman, insofar as the comments of the gentleman from Illinois are concerned and the statements of the representatives of the Department downtown to which he referred, I do not take their statements as gospel. I often prefer to take the word of people who are trying to work with these programs than the word of those who administer them.

Mr. BARRETT. I oppose the preferential motion and urge that it be voted down.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The preferential motion was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. PUCINSKI

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. PUCINSKI: On page 280, after line 15, insert a new section, as follows:

"SEC. 1420. No standard, rule, regulation or requirement of general applicability prescribed by the Secretary under the authority of this Act may take effect (1) until 30 days after it is published in the Federal Register, and (2) unless interested persons are given an opportunity to participate in the formulation of such standard, rule, regulation or requirement through the submission of views or arguments at a public hearing."

Mr. PUCINSKI. Mr. Chairman, this amendment assures that the public shall have an opportunity to participate in this rulemaking process.

Mr. Chairman, in the last three decades, the cost of Government has risen from $9 billion in 1940 to $168 billion in 1968. Congress has been obligating more and more power to administration in disbursing these funds. It appears only logical to me that Congress should at least retain some voice in shaping the final rules and regulations for disposal.

The distinguished chairman said this amendment would take us back to the horse and buggy era. He errs in this conclusion. Most other agencies now operate under the Administrative Procedure Act and must publish their proposed rules and regulations in the Federal Register. Here is a bill containing 280 pages and involving $5½ billion. Why should the agencies in this bill not come under the same regulations as all other agencies of Government?

He says this will increase redtape. The contrary is true. It will eliminate redtape when administrators know that their bulky regulations must stand the test of public inspection before they become final.

Mr. Chairman, I have no criticism of these agencies, but I believe much suspicion and mistrust can be eliminated, and their programs become more acceptable if their rules and regulations are promulgated with the full cooperation of Congress and other interested parties. I hope the amendment is adopted.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PUCINSKI. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

(Mr. PERKINS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Chairman, all of us who are interested in seeing that all our people have a chance to live in decent home owe a debt of gratitude to our Committee on Banking and Currency. That committee has brought to us one of the greatest advances in housing legislation that this Chamber has had.

I hope we will give our approval to the committee's work without changing to any great degree what it and the other body have achieved.

I am especially pleased that this legislation not only would provide better housing for the poor who live in our cities; it also offers a chance to the rural poor to have decent homes.

The other body and our own committee are to be commended for a truly new approach to the problem of financing not only home rental but also homeownership by low-income families.

Under this new approach the Government will subsidize interest payments rather than the whole mortgage. Those who occupy the homes would pay, on a sliding scale basis, a certain percentage of their income for housing. The Government would make up the difference.

As the family's income increased, its share of the interest and mortgage payment also would increase.

I like also that feature of the legislation which provides the Government subsidy at established interest rates, instead of the below-market rates currently in effect for housing programs. That provision should encourage private capital to participate far more fully than it now is doing.

We all know that city ghettos and rural slums must give way to Government-subsidized housing if we are to make progress. The three requirements, in my view, are employment, housing, and education. This legislation is our most forthright attack upon the problem of providing an opportunity for the poor not only to occupy decent housing but to become homeowners. I hope no amendments will be adopted which would dilute the fine work done by our Banking and Currency Committee and by the other body.

Of course, there are many important provisions in this bill, besides the housing section. Among them is the very vital model cities program. At this point, when this program is just getting started with its effort to modernize our cities, I hope nothing will be done on this floor which will diminish its effectiveness.

We cannot afford to be parsimonious with our attempts to provide proper housing for all our people; we cannot afford to practice false economy in our attempts to make our cities fit places in which to live.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I desire to be heard in opposition to the amendment which has been offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PUCINSKI].

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas is recognized.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, this amendment should be defeated. We adopted one which eliminates redtape which was offered by the distinguished gentlewoman from New Jersey [Mrs. DWYER]. However, this amendment, if adopted, would bring about a lot of redtape. This amendment would add red-tape. In other words, all cities and towns under this amendment would have to have a Washington representative to keep up with the Federal Register in order to find out what was and what was not. At best, it would be terribly cumbersome and would create additional redtape.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PUCINSKI].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. PUCINSKI) there were—ayes 54, noes 78.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HARVEY].

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HARVEY

Mr. HARVEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. HARVEY: On page 278, after line 19, insert the following new section:

"STUDY OF NATIONAL BUILDING CODE

"SEC. 1419. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized and directed to conduct a study of the feasibility of establishing a national building code, giving consideration to the extent to which such a code can or should impose requirements or standards of specific types and the methods by which compliance and enforcement might be encouraged or achieved.

"(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of the study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and the Congress no later than six months following the date of the enactment of this Act."

And renumber the succeeding section accordingly.

Mr. HARVEY. Mr. Chairman, very simply, my amendment would authorize and direct the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to conduct a study of the feasibility of establishing a national building code, and to report the results of such study to Congress in 6 months after the enactment of this bill.

In the President's state of the Union message, he called for 6 million units of low-cost housing in the next decade. This averages 600,000 units a year. It is worth pointing out that although we have had authorized 60,000 units of low-rent housing this past year, that at best we have only been able to accomplish slightly more than half that figure. Needless to say, it is a long way from the 600,000 per year that the President hopes to build in the years ahead.

Somehow, Mr. Chairman, we must not only modernize, but also standardize our building techniques. One of the greatest stumbling blocks to the mass construction of homes for the poor are the various building codes, almost all differing in some respect from each other.

Many different governmental commissions, and other organizations have studied this problem, and almost all agree that something must be done. Only the executive branch of Government, however, has the power and authority to, first of all, admit that the problem exists, and then do something about it by encouraging the adoption of a uniform building code by the States, municipalities, and other units of government.

There are presently in the United States, four different organizations, all of which have drafted very excellent building codes. Three of these organizations are composed of building inspectors—people who make their living working with such a code. The fourth organization is made up of representatives of various fire insurance companies. My point is this: It has been clearly demonstrated that such a uniform code is possible. Now the means should be found to bring it about if we are to accomplish the goal that President Johnson says is necessary in the years ahead.

Mr. Chairman, I have been impressed with the work that the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations has done in this field. In their January 1966 report they urged, first, the development of a code for voluntary adoption by the States; second, a program of building research; third, presidential action to bring about uniformity in building among the Federal agencies themselves; and, fourth, initiation of a program within the Federal Government to develop "performance" criteria instead of simple "specifications." But again these recommendations of the Commission illustrate that only the executive branch of the Government has the power to bring this about. We can hope that the Douglas Commission, appointed by the President to consider this among other problems, will add weight to all of the other recommendations that have recognized this need. Only the executive department can bring it about, however, Mr. Chairman.

In conclusion, let me say that I have heard it said that a uniform building code would represent a Federal takeover. It seems to me that just the opposite is true. The continued failure of code-writing groups to achieve uniformity, and the continued failure of the building industry to achieve standardization, will bring about a complete Federal takeover of the housing industry.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARVEY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I certainly would not accept the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan. This would overlap the Douglas committee.

Mr. HARVEY. Mr. Chairman, I decline to yield further.

Let me say this: I know of the Douglas Commission, and I know there is also an Intergovernmental Commission, but I believe the need is clear.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HARVEY].

The amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GROSS].

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GROSS

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GROSS: On page 262, line 9, strike the period, insert a colon, and add the following: "Provided further, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to levy a 10-percent surtax in an effort to provide ways and means to defray the costs of the numerous giveaways and experiments authorized in this bill."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Iowa.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GROSS) there were—ayes 36, noes 80.

So the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROCK

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROCK: On page 262, line 1, strike out "$1,000,000,000" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "$250,000,000 (which shall be available for assistance to programs in not more than fifteen cities, selected on the basis of their need and the planning and development of their programs)".

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. BROCK].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. BROCK), there were—ayes 60, noes 88.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. JONAS

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. JONAS: On page 280 add a new title as follows:

"TITLE XV

"REDUCTIONS IN AUTHORIZATIONS

"SEC. 1501. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, authorizations for appropriations, reauthorizations, contract authorizations and reauthorizations, and authorizations for the issuance of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury contained in this Act are hereby reduced in each instance by 10 per centum."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. JONAS].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. JONAS), there were—ayes 66, noes 91.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chairman appointed as tellers Mr. JONAS and Mr. PATMAN.

The Committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were—ayes 93, noes 123.

So the amendment was rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WIDNALL

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WIDNALL: Strike out section 1408 beginning on page 270, line 7, and ending on page 270, line 15, and renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL].

The amendment was rejected.

(Mr. RYAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, I deplore the action taken by the Committee of the Whole yesterday to restrict eligibility for title I and title II interest subsidy assistance payments to families whose income does not exceed 130 percent of public housing income limits. I am hopeful that this action will be reversed by rollcall votes of the House.

I want to note a number of fallacies which characterized yesterday's debate. In the first place, it was suggested that 70 percent of the families in the United States could qualify for assistance unless these income limits were imposed. This is based on the percent of families earning less than $10,000 annually. What was not mentioned in the debate yesterday is that families earning between $7,500 and $10,000 could only qualify for assistance in the areas of the country where housing costs are highest, not in the entire country. Moreover, the key element of the interest subsidy program is the fact that the amount of subsidy decreases as income increases.

The chart on page 8 of the committee report demonstrates this. For example, a family with a $14,000 mortgage earning $4,200 yearly would receive a subsidy equivalent to $46.52 monthly. But a family earning $6,600 yearly would receive a monthly subsidy of only $6.52. The imposition of an arbitrary ceiling of 130 percent of public housing income limits would impair this ingenious feature, which permits a gradually decreasing subsidy as income rises. Instead, when the limit is exceeded, the family would suddenly be faced with a large monthly payment. The Anderson amendment would destroy incentive to improve income by destroying the gradually decreasing subsidy which the original bill permitted.

The argument that HUD would concentrate its projects in the higher income brackets, in order to stretch the funds and improve the statistics on the number of families assisted, is also a false argument. Under this bill apartments and homes of certain quality are to be constructed. The amount of subsidy will depend upon the income of the applicant, which HUD cannot forecast in advance.

The Anderson amendment with respect to title II—rental and cooperative housing—would seriously cripple the program in urban centers. It restricts the income of beneficiaries at the time of entry to 130 percent of public housing income limits. In New York City, for example, where 130 percent of the public housing limit for a family of four is $7,488, decent unsubsidized housing is simply not available for persons in the $7,500 to $10,000 income range because of the cost.

Four factors contribute to the cost of housing: land acquisition, construction, the terms of borrowed money, and taxes. In New York City the middle-income "Mitchell-Lama" housing program provides long-term mortgages at 5¼ percent interest, offers tax abatement, and often benefits from subsidized land acquisition through urban renewal writedown. The program also permits a limited return to the private sponsors. Yet even with this range of subsidies, new middle-income housing under this program is renting for more than $40 per month. This requires an income of about $10,000 for a family of four. Entirely unsubsidized housing, of course, rents for a great deal more. This is why in New York, and in other large cities, it is simply not equitable to impose an income limit equal to only 130 percent of public housing income limits.

Because of the Anderson amendment to title II, families earning $8,000 or $9,000 a year will simply be excluded. The irony is that under the bill as reported by the Committee, families in this moderate-income range would be paying a rental fairly close to the unsubsidized fair rental, and the subsidy would be minimal.

In summary, the Anderson amendment is most injurious in precisely those areas of the country where the housing shortage is greatest, where the scarcity has pushed up costs, and where unsubsidized middle-income housing simply does not exist.

It is a short-sighted amendment, penny-wise and pound-foolish. It is strange that the amendment has been produced by the minority side, which is always talking of personal initiative, since it would penalize those families who take steps to increase their earnings. It will discourage them from raising their income to a point where all subsidy will cease, and the housing become self-supporting.

I also regret the adoption of the Brock amendment raising the percentage of income which must be paid for title II rental and cooperative housing from 20 to 25 percent. For a large family, even with the deduction of $200 from reported income for each minor dependent, 25 percent of income is too large a portion. Utilities amounting to $15 to $20 monthly must also be included. Experience with the rent supplement program in New York shows that, to require a large family to pay 25 percent of its income—before taxes and utilities—for rent, is to require it to forego other necessities of life. A family earning $20,000 yearly can pay 25 percent of its income for rent and still afford the other basic necessities of life—food, clothing, and so forth, which do not rise proportionately with income. But low- and moderate-income families are especially hard-hit by the 25-percent requirement. Even 20 percent may be excessive in some cases.

I urge the House to defeat this amendment and to restore the 20-percent provision under title II, so there will not be a discriminatory discrepancy between title I and title II.

Mr. GILBERT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, one of the most significant housing bills ever brought before the Congress. I am greatly impressed with the comprehensive attack this bill makes on the housing problems facing low- and moderate-income families.

For a long time I have been deeply concerned about the shortage of decent and adequate housing for the low-income families in my own congressional district in the Bronx, N.Y. This situation is multiplied throughout the country, and it is fast becoming worse. The bill before us offers several answers to this problem, each interrelated in some manner with the other.

First, there is the homeownership assistance provision, which I heartily support. Over the next 3 years nearly one-half million American families will be helped in buying a home—for most, their first opportunity to own a home—through the bill's program of interest subsidies based on their incomes. It will not only help many to get adequate housing, but will stimulate the addition of crucial new units to the supply of modest homes.

Second, there is a strengthening and expansion of section 221(h), existing homeownership assistance program, otherwise known as the Sullivan's law, after the distinguished Congresswoman from Missouri who sponsored this proposal 2 years ago. Together these two programs give low- and moderate-income families the option of homeownership, an option which has not been readily available to them in the past. We all recognize the effect that homeownership can have—not only will people be housed decently, but they will be given an opportunity to obtain a stake in their community. With this bill, for the first time on a large scale, families that cannot afford adequate housing will be helped to own their homes. I think this is a very significant step in this Nation's housing program.

Third, for those who find homeownership unsuitable, a new rental assistance program is provided with about the same scope as the new homeownership program. As desirable as homeownership may be, it would not be practical for some low- and moderate-income persons, such as the elderly who need little living space or for whom renting would be more economical, the childless or families with few children, the single, and those who just prefer renting to the responsibilities of homeownership.

This program, based on an interest subsidy as is the new homeownership program, will be a natural complement to that program, providing housing at approximately the same cost to families in the same income group.

Fourth, for the very low income, the two eixsting programs—low-rent public housing and rent supplements, which I have supported in the past—are strengthened and greatly expanded in scope. These two programs serve persons who generally need a deeper subsidy than will be possible under the two new programs. Since the assistance in the new homeownership and rental programs should be sufficient to meet the needs of those whose rising incomes remove them from eligibility for public housing, these programs are designed to avoid denying anyone the assistance he needs to obtain adequate housing because his income is too high for one program and too low for the next.

H.R. 17989 also provides measures to increase the amount of private money invested in mortgages, particularly those involving low- and moderate-income families. There is no sense enacting substantial subsidy programs that rely on the private market to provide housing if the investment money is not there. Briefly, one of these measures is the transfer of the secondary market facility of the Federal National Mortgage Association to a corporation privately owned and controlled, but regulated by the Federal Government. The corporation will have new and innovative borrowing authority to attract funds into mortgages which have in the past been channeled into other investments. Another measure is the creation of National housing partnerships which are designed both to attract new money into low- and moderate-income housing and to facilitate the development of such housing projects.

Mr. Chairman, many of the bill's provisions continue the imaginative proposals already enacted. Among them are the model cities and rent supplement programs, which have had my strong support from the beginning, and are showing great promise. The comprehensive city planning and rehabilitation under the model cities program is a program we must keep alive and expand. Both of these programs have shown they merit expanded support by Congress. The bill would increase model cities authorization by $362 million in fiscal 1969 and $1 billion in fiscal 1970.

I urge the adequate funding of the rent supplement program. Thus far, only $42 million has been appropriated for this program, and this is pitifully inadequate. The administration bill proposed to increase the authorization for contract authority by $40 million for fiscal year 1970, and an additional $100 million in each of the fiscal years 1971, 1972, and 1973. This increase will provide a total increase of about 375,000 units over 4 years. By contrast, H.R. 14244 proposed an additional 200,000 rent supplements yearly for the next 10 years. I support the higher figure proposed in the Full Opportunity Act, H.R. 14244, which I have cosponsored.

I am pleased the bill contains the amendment to make State and municipally financed housing eligible for assistance under the new section 236 interest-subsidy program. Housing such as New York's Mitchell-Lama project will benefit from this provision, as well as the proposal in the bill to make this type housing eligible for rent supplement tenants. The Mitchell-Lama and similar State-city housing projects are faced with spiraling construction, site, and interest costs, and what was intended as moderate incomes housing is no longer that. This provision will make it possible for new Mitchell-Lama housing to get 1-percent financing. The rates are now about 5 percent. An interest-rate reduction will have the effect of reducing rentals to about $30 a month. Without this subsidy assistance, this type of State-city financed housing project will be priced out of the reach of the low- and moderate-income families. Unfortunately, the proposed interest-subsidy amendment will not benefit existing Mitchell-Lama housing, but it will be of tremendous help to those projects yet to be completed.

Mr. Chairman, I express my support for title X, the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act, to make essential property insurance more readily available to inner city areas through the operation of FAIR plans. The workability of the FAIR plans is conditioned upon the good will and cooperation of the insurance industry and the various State insurance commissioners. The Federal Government will add incentive for successful operation by requiring FAIR plan participation by the industry and the States as a condition of eligibility for the riot reinsurance the bill proposes.

I also lend my support to the increased mass transit authorization of $190 million, which is minimal when compared with our mass transportation needs.

Mr. Chairman, the jobs through housing provision of the bill has my special commendation. This section calls for new housing construction at the rate of 600,000 units per year for the next 10 years, yielding a new housing total of 6 million units by 1980. What is even more important about this section is that the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is directed to "require, to the greatest extent feasible, that opportunities for employment arising in connection with other provisions of H.R. 17989 be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing and, thereby, provide not only housing but also jobs for these persons." Our cities will derive double benefits from the new housing so critically needed. I urge special attention be given by HUD to allot construction jobs to inner-city residents, where unemployment and poverty are most prevalent. It is anticipated that the building of 600,000 new housing units would create a half million new jobs for inner-city residents. This is a most meritorious provision of the omnibus housing bill before us, and I give it my wholehearted support.

Mr. Chairman, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 as it came to us from the Banking and Currency Committee improves just about every program we already have in the field of housing and urban development. It goes far beyond that by proposing new and imaginative approaches with heretofore proposed limitless potential for providing adequate housing for the low- and moderate-income families of our Nation. In addition to providing the opportunity for decent housing for all our citizens, the bill seeks to provide dignity and security to the underprivileged, the low-income and minority groups, through homeownership and job opportunities.

We must not cripple this legislation or weaken it in any way. I oppose the Anderson amendment which would limit unreasonably the income ceiling on families eligible for the new homeownership and rental programs—sections 101 and 201—for low- and moderate-income families. This amendment would make the program inoperable in New York City.

And I am opposed to the Brock amendment which would force the tenant to pay 25 percent, instead of 20 percent, of his income each month toward rent.

I support the authorization for tenant service in low-rent public housing projects. This is important and needed not only in my city and in my congressional district, but in every city where a large segment of residents must live in public housing.

Mr. Chairman, I am convinced this bill gives us the tools to meet a great national need. I consider it one of the most important pieces of social legislation considered by the 90th Congress. Paving the way for adequate and decent housing for all Americans should be one of the major goals of this Congress.

Mr. VANIK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the legislation before us today, the Housing Act of 1968. This bill maintains and improves programs which are vital to the city of Cleveland and the suburban communities of the Greater Cleveland metropolitan area.

One of the crucial needs of the communities I represent is the need for truely coordinated, advanced planning for urban development among Cleveland's suburbs. These communities have shown a fantastic and accelerating population growth over the last 15 years. As a result, they are today faced with major problems of insuring an adequate and healthy water supply, of obtaining and maintaining adequate sewage treatment and planning for future sanitary districts.

Currently in my community there is considerable concern over the future development of adequate transportation throughout the Cleveland metropolitan area. The Cleveland area has had remarkable success with rapid transit systems and is currently developing the first rapid rail transit system between its international airport and the center of the downtown area. The Cleveland area also recognizes the necessity of adequate highways which will meet the needs of the area's expanding population. Careful planning will be required to insure the Cleveland area the proper combination of rapid transit and highway transportation while maintaining vitally needed open spaces and parks.

Title V of the bill before us provides for supplementary grants for planned areawide development. In the last several weeks, Federal approval and financing was given to a planning agency composed of seven northeast Ohio counties, including Cuyahoga County in which Cleveland is located. Title V will help provide for continuing, strong support of this planning agency which is seeking to solve the problems of my area before they become critical. Title V also provides for advance acquisition of land and continuation of authorization of appropriations for water and sewer facilities grants, neighborhood facilities funds, and other programs vital for urban planning and development.

Title VI of the housing bill will assist in urban development by increasing the authorization for mass transit grants by $190 million.

H.R. 17989 will also improve programs vital for the maintenance and reconstruction of our central cities. This legislation is particularly vital to the new hopes and aspirations of the city of Cleveland. At the beginning of May 1968, Cleveland's new mayor, Carl Stokes, announced a dynamic new plan for the redevelopment of Cleveland entitled: "Cleveland Now." This plan seeks to make Cleveland a city of tomorrow today.

But to do this, the city will have to coordinate and utilize a full range of private, local, State, and Federal funds. The Cleveland Now plan calls for a $1.5 billion investment in Cleveland over the next 10 years with $177 million spent in the first 18 months to get the program off the ground. Included in this first $177 million will be $90.75 million for neighborhood housing rehabilitation. This will mean concentrated code enforcement in low-income areas, a $10 million homeownership program, $36 million in public housing programs, and the modernization of 1,500 homes for $18 million. An additional $61 million will be spent on accelerated urban renewal projects.

Without the passage of the legislation before us and its subsequent funding, this dream for Cleveland will be severely curtailed.

With its passage, the dream moves toward reality.

Titles I and II will provide new and innovative paths to homeownership. In addition, title II would expand the rent supplement program. Already in Cleveland there are 12 rent supplement projects with a total of 732 units in use. This entails the supplementary payment of only $735,698 per year.

Title III will make home improvements easier by increasing from $3,500 to $5,000 the home improvement loan insurance program.

Also vital for Cleveland is title IV which increases urban renewal grants authorization by $1.4 billion on July 1, 1969.

Supplementary grants for model cities will also be increased by $1 billion for fiscal 1970. Needless to say, Cleveland's hopes are pinned on being accepted as a model city. The city has a planning application in which requests $396,663 in Federal funds for developing a model city blueprint. The next series of approvals of model cities will be announced by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in the next 2 to 4 weeks. The result of the vote today will show whether the program will be meaningful or merely an empty promise.

Mrs. MINK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Brock amendment to section 1405 of the bill. The critical shortage in college dormitory facilities which we face to day requires new positive programs of assistance rather than merely raising the interest cost for direct loans by the Federal Government.

In 1950, under the able leadership of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, the Congress authorized a Government program of direct loans at a 3 percent interest rate, with an annual authorization of $300 million for college dormitory construction. This assistance has enabled our Nation's institutions of higher learning to mount a program of dormitory construction since 1950 totaling $2.875 billion.

However, today, vastly accelerated college enrollments over the past decade have expanded the need far beyond what can be loaned under present authority. The backlog of requests for college housing loans has become formidable. Shortage of funds in addition caused the administration to declare a moratorium on applications in 1966, with over a billion dollars worth of unfulfilled requests on hand. The unmet needs today is in excess of $2 billion dollars.

While the Federal loan program has contributed to the financing of some 600,000 housing units since 1950, a survey report prepared for the American Council on Education last year projected a need for an additional 1.5 million accommodations over the next decade, which with a conservative estimate of $5,000 per unit, will call for minimum expenditures of $10 billion in the decade ahead, for new college housing.

I am certain that many Members of Congress have had this problem brought to their attention during recent months, and it has become obvious that the present program, unless greatly expanded, will not suffice to provide more than a fraction of the accommodations as college admissions mount year after year.

Certainly the increase in cost of borrowing funds directly from the Federal Government contained in the Brock amendment will not help except to lower the cost of direct loan program. What is needed is an additional resource of funds. The provision that the Brock amendment seeks to delete provides for the additional funds to come from private financial institutions. This additional source will produce another $400 million of construction funds at only a cost of $10 million.

I have studied this problem for many months and this provision in the bill was the result of recommendations made by representatives of major educational associations.

This grant provision in this bill is designed to supplement the existing loan program by providing the needed housing at a cost within the reach of students and their families without imposing a burden on the Federal budget. It would be done through private financing, with the Government providing only that margin of assistance necessary to give colleges the benefit of the same 3-percent financing available under the existing loan program.

The approach in this bill is very simple: The university would finance the dormitory by selling serial bonds to private investors at the market rate of interest; under a contract previously entered into, HUD would make an annual payment of the difference between the actual debt service and the debt service at a 3-percent interest rate; the 3-percent direct loan authorization in existing law would remain available to be used in cases where the private market required an inordinately high interest rate, with discretion left to the Secretary to determine the dividing line.

This bill provides that $10 million would be made available to institutions for this interest subsidy for this fiscal year and an additional $10 million the next fiscal year. The impact on the Federal budget in any year under the supplemental interest payment approach would be very small. For example, assuming an average private market interest rate of 5 percent for public and private universities together, an annual interest grant of $10 million would achieve the effect of 2 percent interest on $450 million of additional college housing financing, over and above the direct loan program.

I am pleased to note that the reaction of educators has been favorable to this principle embodied in this bill. The National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, termed this provision a "constructive" approach to the problem. It was also supported by the Association of State Colleges and Universities, an organization comprised of 213 institutions of higher learning and seven statewide systems of State colleges in 41 States and Guam.

The Investment Bankers Association of America has also gone on record in favor of this program of assistance to higher education.

I believe that we do have with this provision a feasible and workable plan whose early inception at such a minimal cost to the government can do much to relieve the present worsening situation in providing adequate college dormitories on our college campuses. I sincerely hope that his House will vote down the Brock amendment and thereby support the carefully worked out provisions of this bill which have the approval of educators as well as the business community. This most critical shortage of dormitories is seriously affecting hundreds of thousands of college students and depriving many of the fulfillment of their educational goals. If higher education is to be fully available and an open opportunity to our youth, we must not cut down our help; rather we must judiciously utilize our resources to make greater the reality of education for all our young people.

Mr. MATSUNAGA. Mr. Chairman, the foundation for rebuliding our cities is contained in the bill we are discussing today and one of the focal points of this measure is in its provisions to provide low- and moderate-income housing.

Underlying this bill is the specific national goal—a goal with which I am sure everyone is in agreement—a national goal of building and rebuilding in the next 10 years of sufficient good, decent housing which will replace nearly all of the substandard structures which now are occupied by 20 million Americans.

This legislation represents a national commitment which is needed to assure our carrying out the pledge—now nearly two decades old—of a decent home in a decent neighborhood for every American.

In title I of the bill, a new program is created which would provide Federal assistance to homeownership by low- and moderate-income families, which is out of the reach of most of these people today. While out of reach, it is a strong hope and dream of many of them that some day they will own their own home.

The bill will make it possible for many such people to become homeowners through periodic assistance payments on behalf of such families. The payments would be made to the lender in an amount necessary to make up the difference between 20 percent of the family's monhly income and the required monthly payment under a market interest rate mortgage for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premiums.

With the 1 percent recommended in the bill, a family with an income as low as $3,600 a year will be able to afford a home with a $12,000 mortgage.

Many other provisions in title I are designed to increase the opportunities for Americans to live in decent houses, either as owner or renters.

Among the provisions which provide for increased opportunities are:

A liberalized interest rate under the existing section 221(h) Sullivan program for the rehabilitation and resale of homes;

New FHA credit assistance for homeownership;

Mortgage insurance for housing in declining areas and special risk insurance under a new fund to be established;

Direct assistance to nonprofit sponsors who can develop rental or cooperative housing;

A new national partnership between private enterprise and the Government dedicated to providing housing for lower income families, particularly through limited dividend sponsorship; and

New technologies in the development of housing for lower income families.

This is an ambitious task that we are setting for ourselves—but it is a task that we cannot put off any longer and it is a task which is not too large for a Nation with the skill and the resources which we possess.

Housing is the key to any solution of the problems of our cities. It is the key to successful urban renewal; it is the foundation for the success of the model cities program; it is the key to the welfare of the United States.

Mr TENZER. Mr. Chairman, "America's cities are in crisis," President Johnson declared last winter. To meet this crisis, he offered a broad legislative program which included this year's Housing and Urban Development Act.

One important feature of the measure would extend homeownership to the Nation's needy families.

Owning a home—

The President said—

can increase responsibility and stake out a man's place in his community.

Under this program, low-income families will be able to buy modest homes financed and built by private enterprise. They will pay what they can afford—a percentage of their income—in mortgage payments, but the mortgage interest cost could be as low as 1 percent. The Government would pay the balance of the interest cost.

The bill also provides for an expansion of the rent supplement program through increased funding. Here, assistance is also scaled to need, with occupants of the privately built and managed housing paying one-fourth of their income as rent and the Government paying the amount needed to make up the full economic rent.

Still another feature of the bill would help the Nation gird for the job of supplying the vast amounts of home financing needed in the period ahead. This is contained in the section which would regear the Federal National Mortgage Association, the facility which aids home financing through its purchases of FHA and VA mortgages. As contemplated by the FNMA Charter Act of 1954, Fannie Mae's Secondary Market Operations would be established as a separate, privately owned corporation, regulated by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to the extent necessary to implement national housing policy. A second corporation would be organized within HUD, to be called the Government National Mortgage Association, and would conduct the present corporation's special assistance financing.

The new private corporation could issue securities backed by mortgages it holds, and thus be able to tap additional sources of funds, such as pension funds, which do not ordinarily invest in mortgages. The legislation would also free the corporation from budget restraint. The proposed change in Fannie Mae, in my view, is essentially to achieving adequate financing and a strong FHA–VA mortgage market.

These and other proposals in the legislation, Mr. Chairman, deserve our favorable action as the means for providing adequately for housing.

Mr. LEGGETT. Mr. Chairman, this legislation is a magnificent response to our Nation's housing and community development needs.

It represents an unprecedented new national commitment to urban affairs—a commitment of particular value and significance in the context of recent events.

Against the background of a 10-year drive to build 26 million housing units, this legislation proposes Federal assistance for 6 million of the total: the 6 million to replace the substandard housing in which our low- and moderate-income families live who cannot afford decent housing on their own.

New programs provide, through interest subsidies, homeownership and low-rental housing to millions of Americans who could not otherwise afford it. Metropolitan areawide incentive grants, FHA insurance for nonprofit hospitals and revision of the existing urban renewal program round out the measure, giving new means for helping to fashion our metropolitan environment.

With its programs, the legislation would enable the release of all the know-how, all the skill and talent which historically have characterized great American undertakings. The talent and skill which built America's greatness—which we generally call "private enterprise"—will be enlisted in carrying out the purposes of the legislation which looks to the full involvement of the present home-building industry, as well as the involvement of large segments of private industry which have not before been directly involved in housing.

It offers us new instruments for tapping the management skills and financial resources of private enterprise—an essential ally if we are to make real headway in the urban battle. It creates national housing partnerships in which private enterprise would apply its energies to solving the problems of housing for families of low and moderate incomes. These would be partnerships that would join capital, business, and managerial skills. They would have access to the capital available in large business concerns, and would benefit from their experience and ability in the investment field. They would also have an opportunity to earn a fair return while helping to solve a national problem which all citizens share.

Much private housing now built with Government assistance is developed by nonprofit sponsors. These typically are church groups, fraternal orders, labor unions, and other concerned citizen groups. Their most serious barrier has been the lack of technical skills and financial resources.

This legislation would expand technical aid to such groups and make available interest-free loans to carry them through their preconstruction expenses. These loans could cover market analyses, architectural and engineering fees, land options, and application and commitment fees.

This assistance can also help develop minority-group entrepreneurs.

Thus, the aids of this legislation would tap an ever-widening cooperation between public and private organizations—all intent on achieving the country's goal of a decent home in a suitable environment for every American family.

Mr. MINISH. Mr. Chairman, we have before us in this bill what I consider to be one of the greatest vehicles yet devised for the welfare of American communities, large and small. Its passage is of the utmost urgency.

I am not here to try to convince you that this is the panacea to end all panaceas for the ills of the Nation's cities. We have a long way to go before we reach anything resembling Utopia. Perfection, in our time, appears to be a goal rather than a reachable reality.

But I do believe we can contribute mightily to urban improvement with this piece of legislation. I have, over the years, been attendant at the birth of more than one landmark housing act. I was never more persuaded than I am now of the absolute necessity of quick, positive action on this bill.

This bill is, of course, a conglomeration. It continues the tried and true. It entertains the new and different. I want now to comment on some of its major provisions.

Many voices are raised in the land about that well-worn phrase, the American dream. Thus, there are many conflicting versions of what the dream really is. But all these versions, I daresay, would agree that homeownership—and all that it connotes—is a vital part of the broad American ambition. This is an urge that is deep in our roots and our heritage. Too many Americans, though, lack the wherewithal to buy homes where they and their families can live in decency and well-being.

So, this bill carries a far-seeing provision which would enable the home-building industry to provide homes for almost one-half million families of low and moderate income over the next 3 years. Under this approach, when a family buys a home, the lender receives periodic payments covering the difference between 20 percent of the family's monthly income and the required monthly payment under a market interest rate mortgage for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. The payment never exceeds the difference, however, between the mortgage payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium and the payment that would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent.

Thus, there would be an open market for decent homeownership that never before has been truly tapped. This market comprises families in, generally, the $3,000 to $7,000 range of annual income. The benefit to these families is obvious. Equally as obvious is the profit accrual to the homebuilding industry when you contemplate the start of construction or rehabilitation of one-half million homes over a 3-year period.

As an aside, at this juncture, I should like to make a point about the role of private enterprise in the Government's housing and allied programs. There are those among us who, over the years, have viewed these programs as a melange of Federal control, Federal intervention, and Federal meddling. To the contrary, over those years, we have insisted that private enterprise be a prime participant in the great bulk of all these programs. And private enterprise, unequivocally, has played that role.

Back to the homeownership provision, it requires that the family's income be recertified at least every 2 years and the assistance payment be adjusted if warranted. Since the incomes tend, on the average, to rise, many assisted owners will eventually be able to tackle the full mortgage payment.

The mortgage limitation is $15,000 to $17,500 in higher cost areas. For larger families, these limits can go to $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

Another great potential for homeownership for some low- and moderate-income families is the proposed special FHA mortgage insurance for people who cannot meet regular credit standards but are reasonably satisfactory credit risks. Many families run into credit problems which they manage to straighten out to the point where they become a decent credit gamble. Yet their past record sometimes penalizes them so severely that homeownership is not available to them. This would be, essentially, an experimental program. But it may well offer a new lease on life to families found deserving.

Still in the low- and moderate-income area, the bill would create a new program that, I am convinced, would be a boon to renting families in these brackets. It offers, in effect, the same advantages to renters and cooperators that the homeownership program offers to buyers. It would replace, eventually, the existing 221(d)(3) FHA below-market interest rate program and the 202 direct loan program for the elderly and handicapped. It would operate, through nonprofit sponsors, in much the same manner as the homeownership program. The tenants would pay 20 percent of their incomes toward the rent. The income levels and the authorization would be the same as I have recited for the homeownership program.

These two programs—ownership and rental—exemplify the sparkling vision preeminent throughout this bill. These innovations are well mitered, they are complementary to the degree that they open new vistas of progress not previously possible.

The oldest helping hand we have for low-income families is the public housing program. It has been much maligned in some quarters, though lately it has achieved more acceptance as a regular function of Government. Maligned or not, it has done a job. There are now in operation almost 700,000 units of public housing, with more than 50,000 either under construction or about to start. The Department of Housing and Urban Development has done much to move away from the institutional-seeming, barrack-type development. Aside from improving design, there is emphasis on leasing units from private owners along with smaller projects and individual units.

There is also the novel and dramatic "turnkey" concept. Under turnkey, private builders construct the housing on their own land and sell it to the local housing authority. Also under this program, private companies may manage low-rent housing projects. Another facet is the combination of private building and private management aimed at encouraging residents to become homeowners.

Together, turnkey and the leasing program have been a great success in that there has been a much larger production of low-rent housing units. To sustain this accelerated pace, and to encourage even more the great interest shown in the program by private industry, a substantial expansion of contract authority is necessary. The bill provides, therefore, for a 3-year authorization—$100 million on date of enactment, and $150 million in each of fiscal years 1970 and 1971.

Beyond providing shelter in public housing, there is a need to help residents improve their economic status and solve their social problems. Many of these families are victims of most difficult situations. The aid local housing authorities have been able to give them in this regard has been seriously hampered by a lack of funds. The bill, therefore, authorizes for these services up to $20 million in fiscal year 1969 and up to $40 million in fiscal 1970.

Another successful effort to aid low-income families is the rent supplement program. Private industry strongly backs this approach, which consists of privately built, owned and financed housing. It is a sturdy complement to the public housing program. It serves families in the same general income levels as public housing, but its flexibility lets the families continue to live in the housing as their incomes rise. The bill provides authorizations of $40 million for fiscal 1970 and $100 million for fiscal 1971.

There are other important features of this milestone legislation which will go far in providing the necessary decent housing for our low- and moderate-income people. Other members will discuss these provisions.

Mr. Chairman, this legislation must be supported. No longer can we sit placidly while millions of our citizens are living in housing which at anytime and in anyplace would be totally inadequate.

Mr. MATHIAS of Maryland. Mr. Chairman, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 is one of the most important and far-reaching bills to come before this Congress. It is also one of the most massive and complex, with 14 titles, 280 pages of text, and a House committee report of 350 pages. While every individual may have questions or reservations about some particular sections of H.R. 17989, I believe that the great bulk of the bill and its thrust deserve the strongest possible support.

The broad objectives of this $5 billion measure:

To increase dramatically the nationwide supply of sound housing, particularly for families of low and moderate incomes;

To help families of very modest means toward ownership of their own homes;

To halt the physical decline of our cities and promote their rehabilitation, revitalization, and residential and commercial renewal;

To accelerate urban and rural growth by improving planning and facilities, such as water and sewer systems and mass transit;

To strengthen the national housing market, make funds and insurance for housing more readily available, and encourage nonprofit corporations, community groups and partnerships to expand their efforts to meet our housing needs.

H.R. 17989 reaffirms the basic national objective of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family," a goal which was proclaimed in the Housing Act of 1949 but has eluded us so far. Despite all of our efforts, public and private, housing construction simply has not kept pace with population growth, migration into the cities, and the decline of older buildings in our central cities and rural areas. As a result, 20 million Americans—1 out of every 10—still live in substandard housing, which is unsafe, unhealthy, often overcrowded, and generally unfit. Simply to replace these substandard units with decent homes would require the construction or rehabilitation of 6 million units. To meet our total housing needs in the next decade would require no fewer than 26 million units.

This bill seeks to make those ambitious goals attainable. Its 14 titles propose improvements in nearly every one of our present major housing and urban development programs, and include several very imaginative and promising new approaches.

The most important new program in this bill is the direct result of Republican initiatives last year in recognizing the tremendous family and community benefits of homeownership and proposing, through the Percy-Widnall bills, a sensible way to extend these benefits to families of low and moderate incomes who could not otherwise afford mortgage and interest payments. This legislation, which I cosponsored last year, proposed to establish a National Homeownership Foundation and to tap private capital, private management and technical experience, and private, community-oriented initiative to help families purchase their own homes and gain a real stake in their communities.

The National Homeownership Foundation, the mortgage interest subsidy plan, and many financing provisions of H.R. 17989 are direct descendants of the Percy-Widnall proposal. They represent a major shift in the emphasis of our housing programs from perpetual tenantship toward the individual homeownership which should promote family stability, community pride, and a sense of individual achievement.

In summarizing this long and complicated measure, special notice should also be given to the provisions which seek to arrest urban decline by greatly improving and expanding housing rehabilitation programs and by establishing a special FHA high-risk insurance fund to make insured loans available in older neighborhoods which do not meet present FHA standards. The alternative method of urban renewal, called "neighborhood development," also contained in this bill is another progressive initiative which will enable communities to revitalize declining areas without having to suffer the massive wrecking, relocation, and rebuilding associated with too many "classic" urban renewal efforts.

One particularly urgent title of this bill is title X, which establishes a program of Federal reinsurance for private insurance companies to cover losses from riots and civil disorders, and would also require insurance companies and the States to establish statewide "fair access to insurance requirements plans"—FAIR plans—to assure all urban property owners fair access to property insurance.

As every businessman knows, adequate insurance coverage, at reasonable rates, is essential not only to economic growth, but to the very survival of commerce. The recent disorders in many American cities have placed such a strain on insurance companies that in every central city the cost of property insurance has soared. In many cities sufficient insurance cannot be obtained at any price. In Baltimore alone, for example, over 700 policies have been canceled in the past 3 months.

Federal reinsurance and State-supervised FAIR plans have thus become essential to rebuilding and restoring commercial vitality in those cities which have suffered from disorders. In all cities the availability of property insurance through this program should encourage business development, contribute to expanding job opportunities, and help to review those urban areas where business has grown stagnant and economic strength is dwindling.

In this connection I do regret that the House Committee did not see its way clear to endorse the Senate's provisions extending certain forms of disaster aid explicitly to the victims of major civil disorders. In my judgment, such a step would be appropriate and helpful, since a major disaster can be as damaging to a business or family as a hurricane or tornado, and is as far beyond the stricken individual's control. My bill, H.R. 11891, would have clarified the authority of the Small Business Administration and other agencies to extend disaster aid in riot areas. The Senate amendments have the same thrust, and I hope that those provisions will be considered carefully if this bill should be taken to conference.

In addition to the new directions in housing and urban development which I have outlined, this omnibus bill also contains sharply increased authorizations for water and sewer grants and for urban mass transportation, two vital programs which have not to date received the funding they should have. Demands for water and sewer funds in particular have greatly exceeded appropriations for several years.

Finally, I have noted with particular approval the statement of the House Committee urging the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to renew and redouble his efforts to cut red-tape, standardize and coordinate programs, and drastically reduce the confusion and obscurity which now envelop too many HUD programs. I know that this appeal for sense and streamlined administration will be applauded by every State and local official in Maryland.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. Chairman, I support the great majority of the provisions of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. It is more than obvious that there is a national concern and need for strengthening our housing programs that must not be denied. The American principle of equality of opportunity has been and continues to be in part denied by unsafe, dilapidated, and unhealthy housing. This is a situation that our people cannot and should not permit to continue. This bill is designed to cope with it in a number of ways.

One new aspect of the bill is particularly worthy of attention. This is the new National Homeownership Foundation concept. There is no need to repeat here the very eloquent review of the purposes and history of this departure as proposed by Senator CHARLES PERCY and outlined in the additional views of the ranking minority member of the committee, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL], on pages 352 through 356 of the report. I associate myself fully with those views, but would caution further that with the unexciting reception given such innovations within the Department of Housing and Urban Development, as exemplified by the lack of enthusiasm for the rent certificate program, the Congress, therefore, should continue to review the progress of the National Homeownership Foundation closely. Having introduced the National Homeownership Foundation bill earlier in this Congress in a form that included an approach to tapping the private capital market, I remain convinced that this can and should be done in the future.

Another new and vital feature of the bill is the national insurance development program to provide reinsurance of losses from riots and civil disorders. I know from many personal contacts in my own city of Cincinnati, how mandatory it is that such a program be initiated. Our mayor has recently set up a special committee to expedite steps necessary to secure such coverage, but local communities and private insurance companies cannot solve the problem alone. Not tomorrow, but for over a year, the unavailability of insurance for certain risks has held up progress and rebuilding of many businesses, but even more importantly, of new hopes and relationships necessary to solve the problems of disorder in our urban areas. The approach, using private industry, State participation and Federal assistance is a sound partnership.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. Chairman, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, before the House today, is most complex and far reaching.

There are no easy decisions in considering an omnibus bill, incorporating literally hundreds of provisions affecting nearly every American.

I have sponsored legislation authorizing a National Homeownership Foundation. This Foundation, with a Federal charter, would assist low- and moderate-income families in acquirng a home of their own. I am pleased that significant portions of the original National Homeownershp Foundation plan are incorporated into this omnibus housing bill.

The Foundation—sponsored by 119 Members of the House—is a complex plan, but simply stated: It would provide credit at accessible rates to low- and moderate-income families who have shown the capacity to take on the responsibility of homeownership. This Foundation is directly opposed to the New Deal and Great Society concepts of renter-oriented public housing. We know how dismally public housing has failed to meet the challenge of assisting the low- and moderate-income family achieve security.

The National Homeownership Foundation endured a hostile review by the administration, in spite of the success of parallel programs in agriculture. Secretary Robert Weaver of the Department of Housing and Urban Development went so far as to say the Foundation was "economically impossible." I am pleased the committee has ignored this advice and reported the National Homeownership Foundation, with modifications, in title I of the omnibus housing bill.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

Earlier in the 90th Congress, the House and Senate both passed versions of a national flood insurance program. The conferees have been unable to agree on a compromise—until now, it appeared national flood insurance was doomed for this year.

Fortunately, flood insurance is incorporated into this omnibus housing bill. This program was offered as an amendment in committee by the Republican leadership, adopted, and subsequently reported by the full committee.

I am particularly pleased by this development as a sponsor of flood insurance legislation in this Congress. My bill,

H.R. 3245, was introduced on January 23, 1967. Title XI of the bill under consideration today will incorporate the substance of the national flood insurance plan.

Various flood insurance proposals have been under consideration for 10 years. At last, it appears there is an opportunity for the Congress to agree on a program providing this essential protection to all Americans.

RIOT REINSURANCE PROGRAM

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 provides for a Federal reinsurance program in riot-affected areas. This program was recommended by the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas, and provides the groundwork for rebuilding in riot-stricken cities.

Riots are the most regrettable development, domestically, of this administration. There are ways to deal with riots; there must be more emphasis on law and order in American society. But, once riots occur, insurance must be available to rebuild and reinsure the damaged structures. Clearly, it is not the business of insurance companies to protect citizens from riots. That is the business of government—State, local, and Federal. A Federal reinsurance program, almost unanimously supported by the members of the insurance and business communities, will help protect the Nation's cities from the debilitation of riot.

THE BILL IN BALANCE

Mr. Chairman, I have reservations on several provisions in this bill. The rent supplements program is expanded—I would prefer it eliminated. The model cities program is a classic example of overestimating and underdelivering. Some of the public housing provisions would be better eliminated in favor of more emphasis on the National Homeownership Foundation.

But, on balance, the bill has these merits:

The beginning of what can become a great breakthrough in housing; the National Homeownership Foundation;

National flood insurance program;

Federal reinsurance in riot-affected areas;

Increased assistance in providing housing for the elderly;

College housing provisions;

Mortgage insurance for hospitals;

Authorization for the Farmers Home Administration to provide direct and insured loans for better rural housing.

Liberalized FHA financing; and a great deal more.

Clearly, there can be improvements in a bill of such scope and penetration. I intend to vote for this bill for I believe the Nation desperately needs much that is in it.

Mr. PRICE of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I suppose it is only natural that in the debate on the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 the press coverage and the speeches by Members of the House should emphasize the exciting new programs, proposed by President Johnson in his message on "The Crisis of the Cities" and reported favorably by the Banking and Currency Committee, to house low and moderate income Americans. I can appreciate that emphasis and I support these programs, too. There is no question that the construction of standard housing has been falling farther and farther behind the need which is created by new family formation and the deterioration of existing housing.

However, in our enthusiasm for new programs, I hope we will not forget the great promise that is embodied in the model cities program. This program which is not yet 2 years old is, to my way of thinking, even more exciting than programs designed to substantially increase the volume of housing. I say this because model cities is more than just a housing program. It is a people program. It is aimed not just at doing something about the problem of substandard houses but at doing something about the problems of substandard jobs, substandard incomes, substandard health, substandard local government.

The "urban problem" in both our big cities and our small towns is patently more than just a problem of housing—as important as that admittedly is. Unless something is done to upgrade the quality of the lives of the people who occupy that housing, unless something is done to upgrade the services to that housing, we are going to be disappointed that the building of the housing has an inadequate impact.

The model cities program is the only program authorized in this bill which provides a comprehensive total attack approach.

I am informed that 75 cities which have been selected for planning grants are now in various stages of planning. They will complete their comprehensive model cities plans this summer, fall, and winter. Upon successful completion of their plans they are immediately eligible for program grants to go into their first action year. These grants to the 75 first-round cities for their first action year will come from $200 million already appropriated plus $200 to $300 million from fiscal year 1969 appropriations which have passed the House and are currently in committee in the other body.

Now, in addition to this first round of 75 cities there are 164 cities which have made applications for inclusion in the second round. From these 164 applicants another 75 or so will be selected and announced some time this summer. This second 75 will immediately go into planning and be ready for program grants next spring and summer. The balance of the fiscal year 1969 model cities appropriation will be used to get some of them started on their first action year.

When fiscal year 1970 arrives—the year to which this authorization applies—there will be 150 cities eligible for model cities program grants. A billion dollars sounds like a lot of money—and is—but divide it 150 ways and suddenly it appears meager beside the kinds of problems our cities are facing.

A billion dollars stretched 150 ways will not really go very far, in and of itself, to solve the problems of our towns and cities. But I would stress, Mr. Chairman, that it is a critical 1 billion dollars. This money is critical to the coordinated comprehensive total attack approach that is unique to the model cities program. This money is the catalyst to get other things moving and to bringing about institutional reform. This money is the cement that will bind other component programs together. This money is the plaster that will fill in the cracks between other programs and allow local innovation.

I am so convinced of the validity of the model cities approach, Mr. Chairman, that I could not allow the debate on the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 to conclude without calling attention to the fact that it provides for the continuance of the model cities program.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, pursuant to House Resolution 1238, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, I demand a separate vote on the two Anderson of Illinois amendments, but at the same time, I ask unanimous consent, because of the similarity of the two amendments, that they be combined and a separate vote be taken on the combined Anderson of Illinois amendments.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, we object to that, because different Members are supporting different amendments.

The SPEAKER. Objection is heard.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, I renew my demand for a separate vote on each of the Anderson of Illinois amendments.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan demands a separate vote on each of the two so-called Anderson of Illinois amendments.

Is a separate vote demanded on any other amendment?

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I demand a separate vote on the second Brock amendment, the amendment to page 56 of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is a separate vote demanded on any other amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the first amendment on which a separate vote has been demanded.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 17, following line 3 add a new subsection (1) as follows:

"(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no assistance payments authorized to be contracted under this section shall be made on behalf of any family whose income exceeds 130 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings."

The SPEAKER. The question is on the amendment.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 271, nays 137, not voting 25, as follows:

So the amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk announced the following pairs:

On this vote:

Mr. Evins of Tennessee for, with Mr. Dingell against.

Mr. McMillan for, with Mr. Brademas against.

Mr. Gardner for, with Mr. King of California against.

Mr. Nelsen for, with Mr. Hawkins against.

Mr. MacGregor for, with Mr. Willis against.

Mr. Hansen of Idaho for, with Mr. Tunney against.

Until further notice:

Mr. Anderson of Tennessee with Mr. Bell.

Mr. Holland with Mr. Halleck.

Mr. Van Deerlin with Mrs. Heckler of Massachusetts.

Mr. McCarthy with Mr. Cederberg.

Mr. Waggonner with Mr. Moore.

Mr. Pickle with Mr. Resnick.

Mr. MACHEN and Mr. SLACK changed their votes from "nay" to "yea."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ALBERT). The Clerk will report the so-called Brock amendment, on which a separate vote has been demanded.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 56, line 21, strike out "20 per centum" and insert "25 per centum."

Mr. GERALD R. FORD (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GERALD R. FORD) there were—ayes 217, noes 112.

So the amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the so-called Anderson of Illinois amendment, on which a separate vote has been demanded.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 61, following line 22 add a new subsection (m) as follows:

"(m) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no interest reduction payments authorized to be contracted under this section shall be made with respect to families, occupying rental housing projects insured under this section, whose incomes at the time of the initial renting to the projects are in excess of 130 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings."

Mr. GERALD R. FORD (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the second Anderson of Illinois amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, will someone just explain briefly what it is.

Mr. ANDERSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, this is applying the same income test of 130 percent of public housing standards for the program under section 236, the rental and cooperative housing program.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. BROCK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. BROCK. I am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BROCK moves to recommit the bill (H.R. 17989) to the Committee on Banking and Currency, with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendments: On page 66, strike all of lines 16 through 23, and on page 67, strike all of lines 1 through 22, and renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

And,

Strike out section 412 (beginning on page 105, line 7, and ending on page 107, line 2).

And renumber the succeeding sections accordingly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 217, nays 193, not voting 23, as follows:

Mr. SCHADEBERG changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

Mr. POAGE. Mr. Speaker, I have a live pair with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PICKLE]. If he had been present, he would have voted "yea." I voted "nay." I withdraw my vote and vote "present."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 1238, the Committee on Banking and Currency is discharged from the further consideration of the bill S. 3497.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. PATMAN

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Motion offered by Mr. PATMAN: Strike out all after the enacting clause of S. 3497 and insert in lieu thereof the provisions of the bill H.R. 17989, as passed, as follows:

That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 2. The Congress affirms the national goal, as set forth in section 2 of the Housing Act of 1949, of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family".

The Congress finds that this goal has not been fully realized for many of the Nation's lower income families; that this is a matter of grave national concern; and that there exist in the public and private sectors of the economy the resources and capabilities necessary to the full realization of this goal.

The Congress declares that in the administration of those housing programs authorized by this Act which are designed to assist families with incomes so low that they could not otherwise decently house themselves, and of other Government programs designed to assist in the provision of housing for such families, the highest priority and emphasis should be given to meeting the housing needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality; and in the carrying out of such programs there should be the fullest practicable utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques.

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

SEC. 3. In the administration of the programs authorized by sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act, the below-market interest rate program under section 221(d)(3) of such Act, the low-rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that, to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction or rehabilitation of projects assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such projects.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROGRAMS

SEC. 4. The Congress finds that Federal aids to housing have not contributed fully to improvement in architectural standards. This objective has been contemplated in Federal housing legislation since the establishment of mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration.

The Congress commends the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its recent efforts to improve architectural standards through competitive design awards and in other ways but at the same time recognizes that this important objective requires high priority if Federal aid is to make its full communitywide contribution toward improving our urban environment.

The Congress further finds that even within the necessary budget limitations on housing for low and moderate income families architectural design could be improved not only to make the housing more attractive but to make it better suited to the needs of occupants.

The Congress declares that in the administration of housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing and to developing housing which will be of such quality as to reflect its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated, consistent with prudent budgeting.

ANNUAL REPORT ON AREAS OF PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT WHICH REQUIRE IMPROVEMENT

SEC. 5. The Secretary shall, as soon as practicable in each calendar year and beginning with an interim report no later than January 15, 1969, make a report to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency of the House of Representatives and the Senate identifying specific areas of program administration and management which require improvement, describing actions taken and proposed for the purpose of making such improvements, and recommending such legislation as may be necessary to accomplish such improvements. Each report shall include, but not be limited to, the following areas of program administration and management: uniformity and standardization in program requirements, simplification of program procedures, ways and means of expediting consideration of proposed projects and applications for assistance, the provision of more useful and specific assistance to communities, organizations and individuals seeking to utilize the Department's programs, and ways and means of combining or otherwise adapting the Department's programs to increase their usefulness in meeting the individual needs of applicants.

TITLE I—LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 101. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 235. (a) For the purpose of assisting low and moderate income families in acquiring homeownership or in acquiring membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic assistance payments on behalf of such homeowners and cooperative members. The assistance shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) To qualify for assistance payments, the homeowner or the cooperative member shall be of low or moderate income and satisfy eligibility requirements prescribed by the Secretary, and—

"(1) the homeowner shall be a mortgagor under a mortgage which meets the requirements of and is insured under subsection (i) or (j) (4) of this section: Provided, That a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i) (3) (A) of this section but insured under section 237 may qualify for assistance payments if such mortgage was executed by a mortgagor who is determined not to be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes (but otherwise eligible) under subsection (j) (4) of this section or under section 221(d) (2) or 234(c) and accepted as a reasonably satisfactory credit risk under section 237; or

"(2) the cooperative association of which the family is a member shall operate a housing project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been financed with a mortgage insured under section 213 and which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and the dwelling unit has had no previous occupant other than the family: Provided, That assistance payments may be made with respect to a dwelling unit in an existing cooperative project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, That a preference shall be given in contracting to make periodic assistance payments under this section to a family which qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the amount of the mortgage attributable to the dwelling unit shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

"(c) The assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a mortgagor shall be made during such time as the mortgagor shall continue to occupy the property which secures the mortgage: Provided, That assistance payments may be made on behalf of a homeowner who assumes a mortgage insured under subsection (j) (4) with respect to which assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner, if the homeowner is approved by the Secretary as eligible for receiving such assistance. The payment shall be in an amount not exceeding the lesser of—

"(1) the balance of the monthly payment for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium due under the mortgage remaining unpaid after applying 20 per centum of the mortgagor's income: Provided, That, in determining a mortgagor's income for the purposes of this paragraph, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $200 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of, and living with, the mortgagor, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such mortgagor; or

"(2) the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which the mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) Assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a family holding membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project shall be made only during such time as the family is an occupant of such project and shall be in amounts computed on the basis of the formula set forth in subsection (c) applying the cooperative member's proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage to the items specified in the formula.

"(e) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), (d), or (j)(7), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(f) Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for recertifications of the mortgagor's (or cooperative member's) income at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting the amount of such assistance payments within the limits of the formula described in subsection (c).

"(g) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he deems necessary to assure that the sales price of, or other consideration paid in connection with, the purchase by a homeowner of the property with respect to which assistance payments are to be made is not increased above the appraised value on which the maximum mortgage which the Secretary will insure is computed.

"(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make the assistance payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by mortgagee, to insure a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who meets the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection a mortgage shall meet the requirements of section 221(d)(2) or 234(c), except as such requirements are modified by this subsection.

"(3) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) involve a single-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of construction or substantial rehabilitation, or a two-family dwelling one of the units of which is to be occupied by the owner if the dwelling is purchased with the assistance of a nonprofit organization and is approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of substantial rehabilitation, or a one-family unit in a condominium project (together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities serving the project) which is released from a multifamily project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments with respect to such family unit and the unit has had no previous occupant other than the mortgagor: Provided, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project if the dwelling or family unit meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, or if assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner of the dwelling or family unit with respect to a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4): Provided further, That a preference in extending mortgage insurance under this subsection shall be given to a mortgagor who qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve a dwelling unit in an existing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 or in an existing project receiving the benefits of financial assistance under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(B) where it is to cover a one-family unit in a codominium project, have a principal obligation not exceeding $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively; and

"(C) be executed by a mortgagor who shall have paid (i) in the case of a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), at least $200, or (ii), in the case of any other family, at least 3 per centum (or such larger amount as the Secretary may require) of the Secretary's estimate of the costs of acquisition, in cash or its equivalent, which amount in either instance may be applied for the payment of settlements costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and other prepaid expenses.

"(j)(1) In addition to mortgages insured under the provisions of subsection (i), the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase of housing, and the rehabilitation of such housing if it is deteriorating or substandard, for subsequent resale to low or moderate income home purchasers who meet the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit organization, approved by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase (with the intention of subsequent resale), and rehabilitation where the housing involved is deteriorating or substandard, of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established; except that in a case not involving the rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing the property purchased may consist of one or more such dwellings or units;

"(B) be in a principal amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of any rehabilitation;

"(C) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market;

"(D) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (4)(E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

"(E) provide for the release of individual single-family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon their sale in accordance with paragraph (4).

"(3) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor shall have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that (A) the property involved is located in a neighborhood which is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (B) the purchase or rehabilitation of such property plus the mortgagor's related activities and the activities of other owners of housing in the neighborhood, together with actions to be taken by public authorities, will be of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created in the neighborhood.

"(4)(A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement, satisfactory to the Secretary, that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, after purchase and upon completion of any rehabilitation, to low or moderate income individuals or families meeting the eligibility requirements established by the Secretary under subsection (b).

"(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to low or moderate income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

"(i) be in a principal amount not in excess of that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved;

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the blanket mortgage; and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such blanket mortgage.

"(C) The price for which any individual dwelling is sold under this paragraph shall be in an amount equal to that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the dwelling plus such additional amount, not less than $200 (which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable.

"(D) Upon the sale under this paragraph of any individual dwelling, such dwelling shall be released from the lien of the blanket mortgage. Until all of the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage have been sold, the mortgagor shall hold and operate the dwellings remaining unsold at any given time, in such manner and under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, as though they constituted rental units.

"(E) Upon the sale under this paragraph of all the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage and the release of all individual dwellings from the lien of the blanket mortgage, the insurance of the blanket mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be charged by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(5) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(6) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and "single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (5)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

"(7) In addition to the assistance payments authorized under subsection (b), the Secretary may make such payments to a mortgagee on behalf of a nonprofit organization which is a mortgagor under the provisions of paragraph (1) in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(k) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make assistance payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (h).

"(l) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, no assistance payments authorized to be contracted under this section shall be made on behalf of any family whose income exceeds 130% of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for occupancy in public housing dwellings."

(b)(1) Section 221(d)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "not to exceed (i) $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed (i) $15,000 (or $17,500, if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)"; and

(B) by striking out "not to exceed $15,000" in the second proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $17,500 (or $20,000 if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)".

(2) Section 221(d)(2)(B) of such Act is amended—

(A) by inserting ", in cash or its equivalent" before the semicolon after "acquisition cost" in the first proviso; and

(B) by inserting before the semicolon after "appraised value" at the end thereof the following: ": Provided further, That, if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property, such mortgagor shall to the maximum extent feasible be given the opportunity to contribute the value of his labor as equity in such dwelling".

(c)(1) Section 221(h)(5)(B)(ii) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the principal mortgage or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the purchaser's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate, and provide for complete amortization within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such principal mortgage."

(2) Section 221(h)(4) of such Act is amended by striking out "$20,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$50,000,000".

(3) Section 221(h) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) In addition to the mortgages that may be insured under paragraphs (1) and (5), the Secretary is authorized to insure under this subsection, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, mortgages which are executed by individuals or families that meet the income criteria prescribed in paragraph (5)(A) and are executed for the purpose of financing the rehabilitation or improvement of single-famiy dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction that are owned and occupied in each instance by a mortgagor who has purchased the dwelling from a nonprofit organization of the type described in this subsection. To be eligible for such insurance, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be in a principal amount not exceeding the lesser of $15,000 or the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at 3 per centum per annum or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the mortgagor's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate;

"(C) involve a mortgagor that shall have paid on account of the property at the time of the rehabilitation such amount (which shall not be less than $200 in cash or its equivalent, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs) as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances; and

"(D) contain a provision that if the low-income mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time of commitment for insurance of the mortgage; except that the increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit organization which has been engaged in purchasing and rehabilitating deteriorating and substandard housing with financing under a mortgage insured under paragraph (1) of this subsection, (ii) a public housing agency having jurisdiction under the United States Housing Act of 1937 over the area where the dwelling is located, or (iii) a low-income purchaser approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary."

(4) The purchase of any individual dwelling, sold by a nonprofit organization pursuant to the provisions of section 221(h)(5) of the National Housing Act after the date of enactment of this section, may be financed with a mortgage insured under the provisions of section 235(j)(4) of such Act, but such mortgage shall bear interest at the rate provided in section 235(j)(2)(C) of such Act.

(d) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or section 235(j)(1)" after "subsection (h)(1)" each place it appears.

(e) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under section 235(i) or 235(j)(4) of the National Housing Act as he determines to be necessary to assist such mortgagors in meeting the responsibilities of homeownership. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

CREDIT ASSISTANCE

SEC. 102. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 236 (as added by section 201 of this Act) the following new section:

"SPECIAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE ASSISTANCE

"SEC. 237. (a) The purpose of this section is to help provide adequate housing for families of low and moderate income, including those who, for reasons of credit history, irregular income patterns caused by seasonal employment, or other factors, are unable to meet the credit requirements of the Secretary for the purchase of a single-family home financed by a mortgage insured under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), but who, through the incentive of homeownership and counseling assistance, appear to be able to achieve homeownership.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized upon application by the mortgagee to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

"(1) meet the requirements of section 203, 220(d)(3)(A), 221(d)(2), 221(h)(5), 221(i), 234(c), or 235(j)(4) except as such requirements are modified by this section;

"(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $15,000: Provided, That the Secretary may increase the amount to not exceed $17,500 in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require: Provided further, That no mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203(h) or 203(i) shall be eligible for insurance under this section if its principal obligation is in excess of the maximum limits prescribed in such section;

"(3) be executed by a mortgagor who the Secretary has determined, after a full and complete study of the case, would not be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), because of his credit standing, debt obligations, total annual income, or income characteristics, but who the Secretary is satisfied would be a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, consistent with the objectives stated in subsection (a), if he were to receive budget, debt management, and related counseling: Provided, That, in determining whether the mortgagor is a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, the Secretary shall review the credit history of the applicant giving special consideration to those delinquent accounts which were ultimately paid by the applicant and to extenuating factors which may have caused credit accounts of the applicant to become delinquent; and the Secretary shall also give special consideration to income characteristics of applicants whose total income over the two years prior to their applications has remained at levels of eligiblity (as required under paragraph (4) of this subsection), but who, because of the character of their seasonal employment or for other reasons, have not maintained continuous employment under one employer during that time; and

"(4) require monthly payments which, in combination with local real estate taxes on the property involved, do not exceed 25 per centum of the applicant's income, based on his average monthly income during the year prior to his application or the average monthly income during the three years prior to his application, whichever is higher.

"(d) The Secretary shall give preference in approving mortgage insurance applications under this section to families living in public housing units, especially those families required to leave public housing because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed income limits, and families eligible for residence in public housing who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under this section as he determines to be necessary to meet the objectives of this section. The Secretary may also provide such counseling to otherwise eligible families who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment to help them to save an amount necessary for that purpose.

"(f) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under this section and outstanding at one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (e) of this section."

(b) Section 226 of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "235(i), 237," after "234,".

RELAXATION OF MORTGAGE INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS IN CERTAIN URBAN NEIGHBORHOODS

SEC. 103. (a) Section 223 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title except section 212, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section of this title, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under any section of this title a mortgage executed in connection with the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in an older, declining urban area in which the conditions are such that one or more of the eligibility requirements applicable to the section of this title under which insurance is sought could not be met, if the Secretary finds that (1) the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such areas, and (2) the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration. The insurance of a mortgage pursuant to this subsection shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

(b) Section 203(l) of such Act is repealed.

SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 104. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 237 (as added by section 102 of this Act) the following new section:

"PAYMENT OF INSURANCE—SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

"SEC. 238. (a) (1) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203. The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (g), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(i) 235(j)(4), or 237, except that all references therein to the 'Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund', and all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, as may be appropriate.

"(2) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of insurance as provided in section 207(g) with respect to mortgages insured under section 207. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under sectition 235(j)(1) or 236, except that all references therein to the 'General Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund' and the premium charge provided in section 207(d) shall be payable only in cash or debentures of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

"(3) In lieu of the amount of insurance benefits computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection, the Secretary, in his discretion and in accordance with such regulations as he may prescribe, may (with respect to any mortgage loan acquired by him) compute and pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee in a total amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances approved by the Secretary and made previously by the mortgagee under the provisions of the mortgage.

"(b) There is hereby created a Special Risk Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237, and the Secretary is hereby authorized to advance to the fund the sum of $5,000,000 from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to the provisions of section 519. Such advance shall be repayable at such times and at such rates of interest as the Secretary deems appropriate. Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, inspection and other fees, service charges, and any other income received by the Secretary under sections 223(e), 235, 236, and 237, together with all earnings on the assets of the fund, shall be credited to the fund. All payments made pursuant to claims of mortgagees with respect to mortgages insured under sections 235, 236, and 237 or pursuant to section 223(e) or 233(a)(2), cash adjustments, the principal of and interest paid on debentures which are the obligation of the fund, expenses incurred in connection with or as a consequence of the acquisition and disposal of property acquired under such sections, and all administrative expenses in connection with the mortgage insurance operations under such sections shall be paid out of the fund. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be needed from time to time to cover losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237. Moneys in the fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed by, the United States, The Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligation of the fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtained from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued. An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations."

(b) Section 224 of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 238".

(c) Section 519(e) of such Act is amended by inserting after "section 213(k)" the following: ", or the provisions of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237".

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 105. (a) Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(l)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a plan of family unit ownership. Under such plan, each family unit shall be eligible for individual ownership and provision shall be included for the sale of the family units, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project, to low or moderate income purchasers. The Secretary shall obtain such agreements as he determines to be necessary to assure continued maintenance of the common areas and facilities. Upon such sale, the family unit and the undivided interest in the common areas shall be released from the lien of the project mortgage.

"(2)(A) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection mortgages financing the purchase of individual family units under the plan prescribed in paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) be executed by a mortgagor having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5);

"(ii) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed the Secretary's estimate of the appraised value of the family unit, including the mortgagor's interest in the common areas and facilities, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

"(iii) bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary (which may vary in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary promulgated pursuant to the last sentence of paragraph (4) of this subsection) but not less than the below-market rate in effect under the proviso of subsection (d)(5) at the date of the commitment for insurance; and

"(iv) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe, but not to exceed the lesser of forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-quarters of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the building improvements.

"(B) The price for which the individual family unit is sold to the low or moderate income purchaser shall not exceed the appraised value of the property, as determined under subparagraph (A)(ii), except that the purchaser shall be required to pay on account of the property at the time of purchase at least such amount, in cash or its equivalent (which shall be not less than 3 per centum of such price, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate.

"(3) Upon the sale of all of the family units covered by the project mortgage, and the release of all of the family units (including the undivided interest allocable to each unit in the common areas and facilities) from the lien of the project mortgage, the insurance of the project mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be collected by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(4) Any mortgage covering an individual family unit insured under this subsection shall contain a provision that, if the original mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the project mortgage; except that the requirement for an increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary, or (ii) a low or moderate income purchaser who has an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5). The mortgage shall also contain a provision that, if the Secretary determines that the annual income of the original mortgagor (or a purchaser described in clause (ii) of the preceding sentence) has increased to an amount enabling payment of a greater rate of interest, the interest rate of the individual mortgage may be increased up to the highest rate permissible under the regulations of the Secretary for mortgages insured under this section effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the mortgage.

"(5) For the purpose of this subsection—

"(1) the term 'mortgage', when used in relation to a mortgage insured under paragraph (2) of this subsection, includes a first mortgage given to secure the unpaid purchase price of a fee interest in, or a long-term lease-hold interest in, a one-family unit in a multifamily project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project; and

"(ii) the term 'common areas and facilities' includes the land and such commercial, community, and other facilities as are approved by the Secretary.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any rental project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a cooperative approved by the Secretary. Membership in such cooperative shall be made available only to those families having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at such below-market rate: Provided, That families residing in the rental project at the time of its conversion to a cooperative who do not meet such income limits may be permitted to become members in the cooperative under such special terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection cooperative mortgages financing the purchase of projects meeting the requirements of paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves;

"(ii) bear interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5); and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization within such term as the Secretary may prescribe."

(b) Section 221(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (i) of this section".

(c) Section 221(g)(2) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (1) of subsection (h)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (1) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (j),".

(d) Section 221(f) of such Act is amended by inserting after "subsection (h)" in the third sentence of the second paragraph the following: ", (i), or (j)".

ASSISTANCE TO NONPROFIT SPONSORS OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 106. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, information, advice, and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation by nonprofit organizations of housing for low or moderate income families. Assistance by the Secretary may include—

(1) the assembly, correlation, publication, and dissemination of information with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing, and

(2) the provision of advice and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing.

(b)(1) The Secretary is authorized to make loans to nonprofit organizations for the necessary expenses, prior to construction, in planning, and obtaining financing for, the rehabilitation or construction of housing for low or moderate income families under any federally assisted program. Such loans shall be made without interest and shall not exceed 80 per centum of the reasonable costs expected to be incurred in planning, and in obtaining financing for, such housing prior to the availability of financing, including, but not limited to, preliminary surveys and analyses of market needs, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. The Secretary shall require repayment of loans made under this subsection, under such terms and conditions as he may require, upon completion of the project or sooner, and may cancel any part or all of a loan if he determines that it cannot be recovered from the proceeds of any permanent loan made to finance the rehabilitation or construction of the housing.

(2) The Secretary shall determine prior to the making of any loan that the nonprofit organization meets such requirements with respect to financial responsibility and stability as he may prescribe.

(3) There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this subsection not to exceed $7,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $10,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this paragraph but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year.

(4) All funds appropriated for the purposes of this subsection shall be deposited in a fund which shall be known as the Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund, and which shall be available without fiscal year limitation and be administered by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the purposes of this subsection. Sums received in repayment of loans made under this subsection shall be deposited in such fund.

NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

SEC. 107. (a)(1) There is hereby created a body corporate to be known as the "National Homeownership Foundation" (hereinafter referred to as the "Foundation") to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families through such means as—

(A) encouraging the investment in, and sponsoring of, housing for lower income families;

(B) encouraging the establishment of programs of assistance and counseling to lower income families to enable them better to achieve and afford adequate housing;

(C) providing a broad range of technical assistance through publications and advisory services to public and private organizations which are carrying out, or are desirous of carrying out, programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families; and

(D) providing grants and loans to public and private organizations carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to help cover some of the expenses of such programs.

(2) The Foundation shall be deemed to be a corporation without members organized and established under the provisions of the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act, with all the rights, powers, and responsibilities thereof except as limited by this section and any amendments thereto. This section shall constitute the articles of incorporation and charter of the Foundation, which shall not be an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government. The Congress expressly reserves the exclusive right to alter or amend this charter. The Foundation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. The Foundation shall maintain it principal office in the District of Columbia.

(3) No part of the net earnings of the Foundation shall inure to the benefit of any private person, and no substantial part of its activities shall be devoted to attempting to influence legislation. The Foundation shall not participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office. The Foundation shall be operated and administered at all times as a charitable and educational foundation.

(4) No employee or officer of the Foundation shall receive compensation in excess of that received by or hereafter prescribed by law for heads of executive departments.

(5) The Foundation shall make maximum use of existing public and private agencies and programs, and in carrying out its functions the Foundation is authorized to contract with individuals, private corporations, organizations, and associations, and with agencies of the Federal, State, and local governments.

(6) The Foundation is authorized to receive donations and grants from individuals and from public and private organizations, foundations, and agencies.

(7) The Foundation may use only donated funds, or funds derived from payment of interest on loans made by it, for the principal and interest payments on any borrowings.

(b) (1) The Foundation shall have a Board of Directors consisting of eighteen members, fifteen of whom shall be appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The other three members shall be, ex officio, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. The President shall appoint one of the fifteen appointed members to serve as Chairman of the Board during his term of office as a member.

(2) Within thirty days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall appoint the fifteen appointed members of the Board. Not more than five of such members shall, at the time of their appointment, be serving full time as officers or employees of the Federal Government, or as officers or employees of any State or local government. Each appointed member of the Board shall hold office for a term of three years, except that (A) any member appointed to fill a vacancy prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term, and (B) the terms of the members first taking office shall expire, as designated by the President at the time of appointment, five at the end of the first year, five at the end of the second year, and five at the end of the third year after the date of appointment. Members of the Board, however, appointed shall be eligible for reappointment, but at no time shall there be more than five members of the Board who at the time of their appointment or reappointment were full-time officers or employees of the Federal Government or of any State or local government.

(3) Appointed members of the Board who are not employees of the Federal Government, while attending meetings or conferences of the Board or otherwise serving on business of the Board, shall be entitled to receive compensation at rates fixed by the President, but not exceeding $100 per day, including travel time, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(4) The Board shall appoint an Executive Director of the Foundation. The Executive Director shall be the chief executive officer of the Foundation and shall serve at the pleasure of the Board, and all other executive officers and employees of the Board shall be responsible to him. The Board shall also cause to be appointed a secretary, a treasurer, and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct properly the business of the Foundation, and shall provide for filling vacancies in such offices.

(5) The Board shall adopt bylaws for the Foundation which shall be made available for public inspection upon request.

(c) (1) The Foundation shall assist public and private organizations, at their request, in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families. To provide such assistance and to carry out the purposes of this section, the Foundation is authorized to—

(A) carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in the establishment of such programs;

(B) assist in the formation of organizations the purpose of which is the development and carrying out of such programs, including the establishment of local development funds for financing housing for lower income families through the pooling of moneys from private sources;

(C) identify and arrange for the technical and managerial assistance and personnel needed for the successful operation of such programs by public and private organizations;

(D) assist public and private organizations in obtaining the mortgage financing, insurance, and other requirements or aids necessary for conducting programs of housing construction, rehabilitation, or improvement for lower income families;

(E) arrange for, or provide on a limited basis, training for persons in the skills needed in administering programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families;

(F) encourage research and innovation, and collect and make available such information as may be desirable to further the purposes of this section, including but not limited to such activities as the sponsoring of seminars, conferences, and meetings, and the establishment of a continuing information program to acquaint lower income families with the means they can use to improve the quality of their housing and the homeownership and housing opportunities available to them;

(G) assist private and public organizations in establishing, in connection with their homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families, counseling and similar activities designed to advise lower income families of the means available to better themselves economically through job training and manpower development programs; and

(H) perform other similar services in order to further the purposes of this section.

(2) The Foundation may, if it deems it appropriate, charge a reasonable fee for any assistance or services provided under this subsection.

(d) (1) In order to assist public and private organizations which are carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to fill unmet needs, initiate exceptional programs, and experiment with new approaches and programs, the Foundation is authorized, subject to such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, to make grants and loans to such organizations to help defray the following expenses:

(A) organizational and administrative expenses incurred in commencing the operation of a program, or in expanding an existing program, to the extent that the activities are related to providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families;

(B) necessary preconstruction costs incurred for architectural assistance, land options, application fees, and similar items; and

(C) the cost of carrying out programs providing counseling or similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided, in order to enable those families better to achieve and afford adequate housing, in such matters as home management, budget management, and home maintenance.

(2) In order to be eligible for a grant or loan under this subsection, the organization seeking such assistance shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Foundation that the funds requested are not otherwise available from Federal sources: Provided, That a grant or loan under this subsection may be provided to help cover that portion of the cost of an eligible activity not covered by Federal funds.

(3) The Foundation shall encourage cooperation between public and private organizations carrying out programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families and the neighborhoods and communities affected by such programs. To help assure such cooperation and in order to coordinate, to the maximum extent feasible, any construction or rehabilitation activities with the development goals of the neighborhood or community affected, no application for a loan or grant under this subsection shall be considered unless such application has been submitted to the governing body of the community affected, or to such other entity of local government as may be designated by the governing body, for such recommendations as the local governing body or its designee may desire to make. Any recommendations so made shall be given careful consideration by the Foundation before taking final action on any such application. If, upon the expiration of thirty days after any such application has been submitted to such governing body or its designee, such body or designee fails to provide such recommendations, the application may be considered without the benefit of such recommendations.

(e) The Foundation shall coordinate its activities and consult with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and other Federal departments and agencies engaged in providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(f) (1) Not later than one hundred and twenty days after the close of each fiscal year, the Foundation shall prepare and submit to the President and to the Congress a full report of its activities during such year. Such report shall include an account of the Foundation's experiences with the efforts of private and public organizations to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, together with such recommendations as it deems appropriate.

(2) Whenever in its judgment the general unavailability of mortgage funds is sufficiently serious to deter the Foundation from carrying out its objective of expanding homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, the Foundation shall, in its annual report or in a separate report to the President and the Congress, state its findings and make such recommendations for alternate means of financing housing for such families as it deems appropriate.

(g)(1) The financial transactions of the Foundation shall be audited by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commerial corporate transactions and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, accounts, financial records, reports, files, and all other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by the Foundation and necessary to facilitate the audit, and they shall be afforded full facilities for verifying transactions with the balance or securities held by depositories, fiscal agents, and custodians. The audit shall cover the fiscal year corresponding to that of the United States Government.

(2) A report of each such audit shall be made by the Comptroller General to the Congress not later than January 15 following the close of the fiscal year for which the audit was made. The report shall set forth the scope of the audit and shall include a statement of assets and liabilities, capital, and surplus or deficit; a statement of sources and application of funds; and such comments and information as may be deemed necessary to keep the Congress informed of the operations and financial condition of the Foundation, together with such recommendations with respect thereto as the Comptroller General may deem advisable. The report shall also show specifically any program, expenditure, or other financial transaction or undertaking, observed in the course of the audit, which, in the opinion of the Comptroller General, has been carried on or made without authority of law. A copy of each report shall be furnished to the President and to the Foundation at the time submitted to the Congress.

(h) Funds of the Foundation shall be deposited, to the extent practicable, in accounts with financial institutions which are actively engaged in making loans or are otherwise carrying on activities in furtherance of homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(i) There is authorized to be appropriated to the Foundation not to exceed $10,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section. Appropriations made hereunder shall remain available until expended.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 108. (a) In order to encourage the use of new housing technologies in providing decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families; to encourage large-scale experimentation in the use of such technologies; to provide a basis for comparison of such technologies with existing housing technologies in providing such housing; and to evaluate the effect of local housing codes and zoning regulations on the large-scale use of new housing technologies in the provision of such housing, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") shall institute a program under which qualified organizations, public and private, will submit plans for the development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies, on Federal land which has been made available by the Secretary for the purposes of this section, or on other land where (1) local building regulations permit the construction of experimental housing, or (2) State or local law permits variances from building regulations in the construction of experimental housing for the purpose of testing and developing new building technologies.

(b) The Secretary shall approve not more than five plans utilizing new housing technologies which are submitted to him pursuant to the program referred to in subsection (a) and which he determines are most promising in furtherance of the purposes of this section. In making such determination the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the potential of the technology employed for producing housing for lower income families on a large scale at a moderate cost;

(2) the extent to which the plan envisages environmental quality;

(3) the possibility of mass production of the technology; and

(4) the financial soundness of the organization submitting the plan, and the ability of such organization, alone or in combination with other organizations, to produce at least one thousand dwellings units a year utilizing the technology proposed.

(c) In approving projects for mortgage insurance under section 233(a)(2) of the National Housing Act (as added by subsection (f) of this section), the Secretary shall seek to achieve the construction of at least one thousand dwelling units a year over a five-year period for each of the various types of technologies proposed in approved plans under subsection (b). The Secretary shall evaluate each project with respect to which assistance is extended pursuant to this section with a view to determining (1) the detailed cost breakdown per dwelling unit, (2) the environmental quality achieved in each such unit, and (3) the effect which local housing codes and zoning regulations have, or would have if applicable, on the cost per dwelling unit.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, any land which is excess property within the meaning of such Act and which is determined by the Secretary to be suitable in furtherance of the purposes of this section may be transferred to the Secretary upon his request.

(e) The Secretary shall, at the earliest practicable date, report his findings with respect to projects assisted purusant to this section (including evaluations of each such project in accordance with subsection (c), together with such recommendations for additional legislation as he determines to be necessary or desirable to expand the available supply of decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families through the use of technologies the efficacy of which has been demonstrated under this section.

(A) by inserting "(1)" after "(a)",

(B) by redesignating clauses (1), (2), and (3) as clauses (A), (B), and (C), respectively, and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The Secretary is further authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties in projects to be carried out in accordance with plans approved by the Secretary under section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.".

(2) Section 233(c) of such Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any authority which the Secretary may exercise in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, insured under any other section of this title (including payments to reduce rentals for, or to facilitate homeownership by, lower income families) may be exercised in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, meeting the requirements of such other section (except as specified in subsection (b)), which is insured under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as if the mortgage insured under this section was insured under such other section."

INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR HOMEOWNERS

SEC. 109. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, to develop a plan for the establishment at the earliest practicable date of an insurance program to help homeowners in meeting mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity. Such insurance program shall be designed to protect mortgagors against foreclosure due to curtailment of income resulting from factors beyond their effective control, including such factors as death, disability, illness, and unemployment. Such insurance program shall also be designed to be actuarially sound through the use of premiums, fees, extended or increased payment schedules, or other similar methods, in conjunction with such Federal participation as may be necessary.

(b) Within six months following the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on his actions under this section, and shall recommend to the Congress such legislation as he deems appropriate to authorize him to enter into agreements with any insurance company, or any corporation or joint enterprise formed to provide home mortgage insurance protection, for the purpose of reinsuring insurance reserve funds, subsidizing premium payments on behalf of lower income mortgagors, or otherwise making possible the insurance protection of homeowners in accordance with subsection (a). In preparing such recommendations the Secretary shall consult with other agencies or instrumentalities of the United States which insure or guarantee home mortgages in order that such legislation as may be recommended affords equal benefits to mortgagors participating in their programs.

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

PART A—PRIVATE HOUSING

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 201. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 235 (as added by section 101 of this Act) the following new section:

"RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 236. (a) For the purpose of reducing rentals for low and moderate income families, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by low and moderate income families, which shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) Interest reduction payments with respect to a project shall only be made during such time as the project is operated as a rental housing project and is subject to a mortgage which meets the requirements of, and is insured under, subsection (j) of this section: Provided, That interest reduction payments may be made with respect to a rental or cooperative housing project owned by a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, and which, prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation, is approved for receiving the benefits of this section.

"(c) The interest reduction payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a project owner shall be in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the project owner as a mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such project owner would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(e) As a condition for receiving the benefits of interest reduction payments the project owner shall operate the project in accordance with such requirements with respect to tenant elegibility and rents as the Secretary may prescribe. Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for review of tenant incomes at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable).

"(f) For each dwelling unit there shall be established with the approval of the Secretary (1) a basic rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal and interest due under a mortgage bearing interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum; and (2) a fair market rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage covering the project. The rental for each dwelling unit shall be at the basic rental charge or such greater amount, not exceeding the fair market rental charge, as represents 25 per centum of the tenant's income.

"(g) The project owner shall, as required by the Secretary, accumulate, safeguard, and periodically pay to the Secretary all rental charges collected in excess of the basic rental charges. Such excess charges shall be deposited by the Secretary in a fund which may be used by him as a revolving fund for the purpose of making interest reduction payments with respect to any rental housing project covered by a mortgage insured under this section, subject to limits approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (i). Moneys in such fund not needed for current operations may be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

"(h) In addition to establishing the requirements specified in subsection (e), the Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section.

"(i) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make interest reduction payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) which meets the requirements of this subsection. Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(2) As used in this subsection—

"(A) the terms 'family' and 'families' shall have the same meaning as in section 221;

"(B) the term 'elderly or handicapped families' shall have the same meaning as in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; and

"(C) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortgagee', and 'mortgagor' shall have the same meaning as in section 201.

"(3) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements specified in subsections (d)(1) and (d)(3) of section 221, except as such requirements are modified by this subsection. In the case of a project financed with a mortgage insured under this subsection which involves a mortgagor other than a cooperative or a private nonprofit corporation or association and which is sold to a cooperative or a nonprofit corporation or association, the Secretary is further authorized to insure under this subsection a mortgage given by such purchaser in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves.

"(4) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) be executed by a private mortgagor eligible under subsection (d)(3) or (e) of section 221;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market; and

"(C) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(5) The property or project shall—

"(A) comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of the property for mortgage insurance and may include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deems adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants and the surrounding neighborhood: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Secretary to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Secretary shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community: Provided further, That, in the case of a project designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicapped families, the project may include related facilities for use by elderly or handicapped families, including cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms, workshops, infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, and other essential service facilities;

"(B) include five or more dwelling units; and

"(C) be designed primarily for use as a rental project to be occupied by low and moderate income families or by elderly or handicapped families: Provided, That low and moderate income persons who are less than sixty-two years of age shall be eligible for occupancy in such a project, but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

"(6) With the approval of the Secretary, the mortgagor may sell the individual dwelling units to low and moderate income or elderly or handicapped purchasers. The Secretary may consent to the release of the mortgagor from his liability under the mortgage and the credit instrument secured thereby, or consent to the release of parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, and the mortgage may provide for such release.

"(k) As used in this section the term 'tenant' includes a member of a cooperative; the term 'rental housing project' includes a cooperative housing project; and the terms 'rental' and 'rental charge' mean, with respect to members of a cooperative, the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

"PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

"SEC. 240. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure loans made by financial institutions for the purpose of financing purchases by homeowners of the fee simple title to property on which their homes are located.

"(b) As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'financial institution' means a lender approved by the Secretary as eligible for insurance under section 2 or a mortgage approved under section 203(b)(1); and

"(2) the term 'homeowner' means a lessee under a long-term ground lease.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a loan shall—

"(1) relate to property on which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-, two-, three-, or four-family residence;

"(2) not exceed the cost of purchasing the fee simple title, or $10,000 per family unit, whichever is the lesser;

"(3) be limited to an amount which when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property (as determined by the Secretary) creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the applicable mortgage limit prescribed in section 203(b);

"(4) bear interest at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not to exceed 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions, and such other charges (including service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees) as may be approved by the Secretary;

"(5) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed twenty years from the beginning of amortization of the loan or three-quarters of the remaining economic life of the home, whichever is the lesser; and

"(6) comply with such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(d) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (5), (6), (7), (8), and (10) of section 220 (h) shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, and as applied to loans insured under this section, references in those paragraphs to 'home improvement loans' and 'this subsection' shall be construed to refer to loans under this section."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464(c)) is amended by adding immediately before the last paragraph the following new paragraph:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under section 240 of the National Housing Act, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

SUPPLEMENTAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR PROJECTS FINANCED WITH FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 307. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 240 (as added by section 304 of this Act) the following new section:

"SUPPLEMENTAL LOANS FOR MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 241. (a) With respect to a multifamily project or group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure, and to insure, supplemental loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. As used in this section, 'supplemental loan' means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing improvements or additions to such project or facility: Provided, That a loan involving a nursing home covered by a mortgage insured under section 232 or a loan involving a group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under title XI may also be made for the purpose of financing equipment to be used in the operation of such nursing home or facility.

"(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a supplemental loan shall—

"(1) be limited to 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements, additions, and equipment, except that such amount, when added to the outstanding balance of the mortgage covering the project or facility, shall not exceed the maximum mortgage amount insurable under the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering such project or facility is insured;

"(2) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage;

"(3) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions;

"(4) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

"(5) be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 without regard to the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured; and

"(6) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(c) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, except that (1) all references to the term 'mortgage' shall be construed to refer to the term 'loan' as used in this section, (2) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 213 that is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of such fund, and (3) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

"(7) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(8) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (7)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner."

HOUSING IN OUTLYING AREAS

SEC. 317. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "not in excess of $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not in excess of $15,000".

COOPERATION WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN CONNECTION WITH SECTION 221(d)(3) PROJECTS

SEC. 318. Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new subsections added by section 105 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(k) Upon receiving any application for the insurance of a mortgage under subsection (d)(3), the Secretary shall notify the governing body of the locality where the project involved is or will be situated, requesting that such governing body submit a statement of the impact which such project will have on public services provided by the local government and its agencies together with a statement of the relationship of such project to any locally adopted master plans. After receiving and considering the statement submitted by the local governing body (or after the expiration of a reasonable period of time if no such statement is submitted), the Secretary may approve the mortgage for insurance in accordance with the provisions of this section if he finds that the project involved is consistent with any comprehensive planning which may have ben developed for the area and with any locally adopted master plans."

TITLE IV—URBAN RENEWAL

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 401. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after the title heading the following new subheading:

"PART A—URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS, DEMOLITION PROGRAMS, AND CODE ENFORCEMENT PROGRAMS"

(b) Title I of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"PART B—NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

"PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

"SEC. 131. (a) To facilitate more rapid renewal and development of urban areas on an effective scale, and to encourage more efficient and flexible utilization of public and private development opportunities by local communities in such areas, the Secretary is authorized to make financial assistance available under this title to local public agencies for undertakings and activities which are carried out under a neighborhood development program approved by him pursuant to this part.

"(b) A neighborhood development program shall consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas which are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments in accordance with the provisions of this title for planning and carrying out urban renewal projects, except as modified by the provisions of this part.

"(c) No application for financial assistance in planning and carrying out a neighborhood development program shall be approved by the Secretary unless—

"(1) the governing body of the locality has, by resolution or ordinance, approved the proposed program and the annual increment covered by the application and authorized the filing of the application for financial assistance; and

"(2) the Secretary has concluded that there is the necessary capacity to carry out the undertakings and activities included under the program.

"FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 132. (a) Upon the approval of a neighborhood development program by the Secretary, the cost of any undertakings and activities authorized as part of the program shall be financed in accordance with the loan, capital grant, and project cost provisions of part A, except that—

"(1) net project cost may be calculated on the basis of costs incurred and proceeds derived for the account of the program during a specified twelve-month period, and may be recalculated for succeeding periods of twelve months to reflect additional costs and additional proceeds since the date of the last computation or recomputation; and

"(2) if property has been acquired but not disposed of prior to the computation or recomputation of net project cost, temporary loans made or secured under this title to finance undertakings or activities included in the program may remain outstanding until the property has been disposed of and the proceeds thereof, together with additional funds becoming available to the program, are sufficient to permit repayment of the loans.

"(b) In the event that gross project cost as computed for a specified twelve-month period is exceeded, with respect to that period, by the sum of (1) the sales price of land or other property sold, and (2) the imputed capital value of land or other property leased or retained by the local public agency in accordance with the provisions of the urban renewal plan, the local public agency shall pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess (or three-fourths in the case of a program on a three-fourths grant basis), which amount shall be available to the Secretary for grant payments under section 103.

"LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

"SEC. 133. (a) For the purpose of determining the eligibility of local grants-in-aid in connection with undertakings and activities carried out under a neighborhood development program, the three-year period referred to in the second paragraph of section 110(d) shall be deemed to be a period of three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; and the seven-year period referred to in clause (1) of section 112(b) shall be deemed to be a period of seven years prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed.

"(b) No portion of the cost of a public improvement or public facility (to the extent otherwise eligible) may be included as a local grant-in-aid in computing the gross project cost of an approved program for any twelve-month period—

"(1) prior to commencement of construction of the improvement or facility, or

"(2) in excess of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

"(c) The provisions of section 104 with respect to the pooling of local grants-in-aid among the various projects undertaken by a local public agency shall not be applicable with respect to any excess local grants-in-aid resulting from the urban renewal projects contained in a neighborhood development program.

"GENERAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 134. (a) For purposes of this part—

"(1) the workable program requirement in section 101(c) shall apply to the authorization, rather than the execution, of any contract for loans or capital grants;

"(2) capital grants on a three-fourths basis may only be made under section 103(a)(2)(B);

"(3) the relocation requirements specified in section 105(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program;

"(4) section 106(g) (relating to transient housing) shall apply to activities undertaken under approved programs, except that the determination as to need for transient housing shall be made with respect to any sale or lease of land for construction of such housing prior to such sale or lease; and

"(5) the requirement concerning demolition and removal of buildings and improvements stated in clause (A) of the sentence following paragraph (10) of section 110(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program.

"(b) The approval by the Secretary of financial assistance for one or more annual increments of a neighborhood development program shall not be considered as obligating him to provide financial assistance for any subsequent annual increments.

"(c) The urban renewal plan referred to in section 110(b) may cover one or more of the urban renewal areas covered by a neighborhood development program and such plan may be modified from time to time to cover additional urban renewal areas added to the program. The Secretary may establish such requirements as he deems appropriate prescribing the scope and content of such plan, taking into consideration, among other matters, the degree of detail needed in the plan to properly and expeditiously carry out the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment of a neighborhood development program."

(c) Notwithstanding any requirement or condition to the contrary in section 6 or 20 (i) of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945 or in any other provision of law, the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency may plan and undertake neighborhood development programs under part B of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 (as added by this section), subject to all of the provisions of such Act of 1945 to the extent not inconsistent with such part B, and any such program shall be regarded as complying with the requirements of such sections 6 and 20 (i) and of such other provision of law if it meets the applicable requirements established under such part B.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 402. (a) Section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out everything in the first sentence after "exceed" and inserting in lieu thereof "$7,600,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969".

(b) Section 103(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "$250,000,000' in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "$600,000,000".

SEC. 403. (a) The second sentence of section 115 (a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the words "a structure" and "such structure" and inserting in lieu thereof "real property" and "such real property", respectively.

(b) Section 115(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$3,000".

(c) Section 115(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(a)", and by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"(2) In addition to the authority conferred by paragraph (1), and notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make real property owned and occupied by such individual or family conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes. No grants shall be made under this paragraph in the case of any property unless such property is in an area within a locality (other than an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement is being carried out pursuant to section 117) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation.

(d) Section 115 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection (b) as follows:

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)), through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), who owns and occupies real property which has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act. Such grants may only be made to rehabilitate such property to the extent which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by such plan and only where the property is located in an area which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation."; and

(2) by striking out "subsection (b)" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (c)".

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 404. Section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out (1) "guidance purposes, and", and (2) the proviso at the end thereof.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 405. Section 107(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting "or other approved purchaser or lessee," after "public body or agency.";

(2) by inserting ", section 221(h)(1), section 235(j)(1), or section 236" after "or (d)(4)";

(3) by inserting "or lessee" after "a purchaser" and after "such purchaser", and "or lease" after "purchase";

(4) by striking out "rental or cooperative"; and

(5) by striking out "moderate" and inserting in lieu thereof "low or moderate".

CAPITAL GRANTS FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN OPEN LAND PROJECTS

SEC. 406. Section 103(a)(1) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", except that he may contract for such a grant in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of pursuant to section 107 and the fair value of the land without regard to such section".

URBAN RENEWAL LOAN CONTRACTS

SEC. 407. (a) Section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "at interest rates lower than provided in the loan contract" in the first sentence; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ": Provided, That, if at any time during the undertaking of the project, the interest rate on such a loan from a source other than the Federal Government is greater than the rate at which funds could be made available under the Federal loan contract, the Secretary may make a supplemental grant to the local public agency in the amount of the difference between the interest cost from such sources and the interest cost at the contract rate, and no part of the amount of any such grant shall be required to be contributed as a part of the local grant-in-aid".

(b) Loan contracts outstanding on the date of enactment of this section may be amended to incorporate the provisions authorized by the amendment contained in subsection (a) without regard to the proviso in section 110(g) of the Housing Act of 1949.

PROJECT COMPLETION PRIOR TO DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

SEC. 408. (a) Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) Upon a determination by the Secretary that (1) not more than 5 per centum of the total area of land acquired as part of an urban renewal project remains to be disposed of, (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of such land in the near future, (3) all other project activities are completed, and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan, the urban renewal project may be deemed completed, and the net project cost may be computed and the capital grant paid."

(b) Section 110(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "or for subsequent disposition or retention as provided under section 106(i)".

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 409. (a) The first sentence of section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended to read as follows: "There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $150,000,000 for each fiscal year which shall constitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section."

(b) Section 312(h) of such Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1969" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1973".

(c) Section 312(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners and tenants of property to finance the rehabilitation of such property. No loan shall be made under this section unless—

"(1)(A) the property is situated in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activity is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949, and the rehabilitation is required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area and, in addition, to generally improve the condition of the property; or

"(B)(i) the property is in an area (other than an area described in subparagraph (A)) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation and (ii) the property is residential, owner-occupied, and in need of substantial rehabilitation;

"(2) the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions; and

"(3) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan."

(d) Section 312 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1)(B) in subsection (a) (as amended by subsection (c) of this section), and by inserting after such paragraph (1)(B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C)(i) the property has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act, (ii) the loan is made to the owner or tenant of the property to finance rehabilitation which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards, and (iii) the property is located in an area which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation;"; and

(2) by striking out "or" after "applicable codes" in subsection (b)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof a comma, and by inserting after "urban renewal plan" in such subsection ", or a Statewide property insurance plan".

(e) Section 312(a) of such Act (as amended by the preceding provisions of this section) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, no loan shall be made under this section to any person whose annual income, as determined pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Secretary, exceeds the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with below-market interest rate mortgages insured (in the area involved) under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act."

DEMOLITION GRANTS

SEC. 410. (a) The first sentence of section 116(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "unsound" the following: ", a harborage or potential harborage of rats,".

(b) Section 116(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the comma at the end of clause (2) the following: "or will be consistent with a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood,".

AIR RIGHTS SITES IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

(b) Section 110(c)(7) of such Act is amended by striking out "for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN RESIDENTIAL URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 412. Section 105(f) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(f) A majority of the housing units provided in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects as will be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals: Provided, That the units in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects which are for low income families or individuals shall constitute at least 20 per centum of the units in such projects."

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS IN CASE OF INDIAN TRIBES

SEC. 413. Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "1964" in the second proviso the following: "or, in the case of an Indian tribe, band, or nation, commencing January 1, 1969".

RULE FOR DETERMINING ACQUISITION PRICE OF PROPERTY DAMAGED BY LIMESTONE QUARRY SUBSIDENCE

SEC. 414. (a) The last paragraph of section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "underlying coal mines, or" and inserting in lieu thereof "underlying coal mines, because of limestone quarry subsidence, or because of".

(b) Any contract under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 executed prior to the date of the enactment of this Act may be amended to provide for payment of the increased amounts authorized under subsection (a) with respect to any uncompleted project if the project included acquisitions which, under any State or local law in effect on such date, would involve expenditures by a local public agency that could not otherwise be included in the cost of such project.

SEC. 415. Section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting the following before the period at the end of that section: ": Provided, That the Secretary may, in addition to authorizing a local public agency to make grants as prescribed in Section 115, make such grants through the utilization of local private nonprofit agencies."

RELOCATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 416. Section 114(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out the first sentence of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may pay to or on behalf of any displaced family, displaced individual sixty-two years of age or over, or displaced handicapped individual, monthly payments over a period not to exceed twenty-four months in an amount not to exceed $500 in the first twelve months and $500 in the second twelve months to assist such displaced family or individual to secure a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling."

(2) by striking out "relocation adjustment" in the second sentence of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "additional."

(3) by striking out the second proviso in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Provided further, That additional payments under this paragraph may be paid on a lump sum or other than monthly basis in cases in which the small size of the payments that would otherwise be required do not warrant a number of separate payments or in other cases in which other than monthly payments are determined warranted by the Secretary: And provided further, That no payment received under this paragraph shall be considered as income for the purpose of determining the eligibility or the extent of eligibility of any person for assistance under the Social Security Act or any other Federal Act."

(4) by inserting a new paragraph (3) as follows:

"(3) In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may make a payment to a displaced family or individual, who does not receive the additional payment authorized under paragraph (2) and who is the owner of real property which is acquired for a project assisted under this title and which is improved by a single- or two-family dwelling occupied by the owner for a period of not less than one year prior to the initiation of negotiations for the acquisition of such property. Such payment, not to exceed $5,000, shall be an amount which, when added to the acquisition payment, equals the average price required for a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling of modest standards adequate to size to accommodate the displaced owner, reasonably accessible to public services and places of employment and available on the private market: Provided, That such payment may be made only to a displaced owner who purchases and occupies a dwelling within one year subsequent to the date on which he is required to move from the dwelling acquired for the project: Provided further, That no such payment may be made if the owner-occupant receives a payment required by the State law of eminent domain which is determined by the Secretary to have substantially the same purpose and effect as this paragraph and to be part of the cost of the project for which Federal financial assistance is available."

TITLE V—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

SEC. 501. Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

"SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems, including those resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas and the out-migration from and lack of coordinated development of resources and services in rural areas; to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban and rural development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs and techniques on an areawide basis, and to engage private consultants where their professional services are deemed appropriate by the assisted governments, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

"(1) State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more, according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after September 2, 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection, and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

"(2) State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies for metropolitan or regional planning, and to cities within metropolitan areas for planning which is a part of comprehensive metropolitan planning and which shall supplement and be coordinated with State, metropolitan, and regional planning;

"(3)(A) economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, and

"(B) cities, other municipalities, and counties which (i) are situated in redevelopment areas or economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, or (ii) have suffered substantial damage as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes', approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855a), has determined to be a major disaster;

"(4) official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act;

"(5) States for State and interstate comprehensive planning and for research and coordination activity related thereto, including technical and other assistance for the establishment and operation of intrastate and interstate planning agencies;

"(6) State planning agencies for assistance to district planning, or planning for areas within districts, carried on by or for district planning agencies;

"(7) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency eixsts) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

"(8) official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

'(9) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation;

"(10) the Appalachian Regional Commission, established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for the Appalachian region as defined by section 403 of such Act (or State agencies or instrumentalities participating in such planning); and

"(11) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire areas having common or related development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense. Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other areas and reducing transportation needs. Planning carried out with assistance under this section shall also include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans, and this consideration of the housing needs and land use requirements for housing in each comprehensive plan shall take into account all available evidence of the assumptions and statistical basis upon which the projection of zoning, community facilities, and population growth is based, so that the housing needs of both the region and the local communities studied in the planning will be adequately covered in terms of existing and prospective in-migrant population growth. Funds available under this section shall be in addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other federally aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Transportation under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

"(b) A planning grant made under subsection (a) shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be made for up to 75 per centum of such estimated cost when made for planning primarily for (1) redevelopment areas, local development districts, or economic development districts, or portions thereof, described in paragraphs (3)(A) and (11) of subsection (a), (2) areas described in subsection (a)(8), and (3) the Appalachian region, as described in subsection (a) (10). All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this section. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section not to exceed $265,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to excede $390,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Of the amount available prior to July 1, 1969, $20,000,000 may be used only for district planning grants under subsection (a) (6), which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended: Provided, That of any funds appropriated under this section, not to exceed an aggregate of $10,000,000 plus 5 per centum of the funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects, undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified regional, district, or metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

"(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportation planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, districts, regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefor. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and publish information on related problems.

"(e) In the exercise of his responsibilities under this section, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities and other comprehensively planned activities. He shall, particularly, consult with the Secretary of Agriculture prior to his approval of any district planning grants under subsections (a) (6) and (g). The Secretary of Agriculture may provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of such districts and the carrying out of such planning.

"(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

"(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials representative of the political jurisdictions within the metropolitan area, region, or district for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop metropolitan, regional, and district plans and programs, and engage in such other activities including implementation of such plans as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan, regional, or district problems in such areas, regions, or districts. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area, region, or district including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resources development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

"(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropriate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary or appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balanced and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable to those used in establishing the national register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (11) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.

"(i) As used in this section—

"(1) The term 'metropolitan area' means a standard metropolitan statistical area, as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject, however, to such modifications or extensions as the Secretary deems to be appropriate for the purposes of this section.

"(2) The term 'region' includes (A) all or part of the area of jurisdiction of one or more units of general local government, and (B) one or more metropolitan areas.

"(3) The term 'district' includes all or part of the area of jurisdiction of (A) one or more counties, and (B) one or more other units of general local government, but does not include any portion of a metropolitan area.

"(4) The term 'comprehensive planning' includes the following:

"(A) preparation, as a guide for governmental policies and action, of general plans with respect to (i) the pattern and intensity of land use, (ii) the provision of public facilities (including transportation facilities) and other government services, and (iii) the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources;

"(B) long-range physical and fiscal plans for such action;

"(C) programing of captial improvements and other major expenditures, based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for such expenditures in the earlier years of the program;

"(D) coordination of all related plans and activities of the State and local governments and agencies concerned; and

"(E) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Comprehensive planning for the purpose of districts shall not include planning for or assistance to establishments in relocating from one area to another or assist subcontractors whose purpose is to divest, or whose economic success is dependent upon divesting, other contractors or subcontractors of contracts theretofore customarily performed by them; Provided, That this limitation shall not be construed to phohibit assistance for the expansion of an existing business entity through the establishment of a new branch, affiliate, or subsidiary of such entity, if the Secretary finds that the establishment of such branch, affiliate or subsidiary will not result in an increase in unemployment in the area of original location or in any other area where such entity conducts business operations, unless the Secretary has reason to believe that such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary is being established with the intention of closing down the operations of the existing business entity in the area of its original location or in any other area where it conducts such operations.

"(5) The term 'State planning agencies' includes official State planning agencies and (in States where no such planning agency exists) agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary.

"(6) The terms 'metropolitan planning agencies', 'regional planning agencies', and 'district planning agencies' mean official metropolitan, regional, and district planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning), and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local law or interstate compact to perform metropolitan, regional, or district planning, respectively: Provided, That such agencies and instrumentalities shall, to the greatest practicable extent, be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to engage in planning."

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 502. (a) The heading of title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended to read as follows: "TITLE II—PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT".

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

"SEC. 201. (a) The Congress hereby finds that the welfare of the Nation and of its people is directly dependent upon the sound and orderly development and the effective organization and functioning of our State and local governments.

"It further finds that it is essential that our State and local governments prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.

"It further finds that our State and local governments are especially handicapped in this task by the complexity and scope of governmental services required, the multiplicity of political jurisdictions and agencies involved, and the inadequacy of the operational and administrative arrangements available for cooperation among them.

"It further finds that present requirements for areawide planning and programing in connection with various Federal programs have materially assisted in the solution of areawide problems, but that greater coordination of Federal programs and additional participation and cooperation are needed from the States and localities in perfecting and carrying out such efforts.

"(b) It is the purpose of this title to provide through greater coordination of Federal programs, and through supplementary grants for certain federally assisted development projects, additional encouragement and assistance to States and localities for making comprehensive areawide planning and programing effective."

(c) Section 202 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(d)(1) Section 205 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan development" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide development".

(2) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan areas" and "metropolitan area" and inserting in lieu thereof "areas" and "area", respectively.

(3) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitanwide" each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(4) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan planning" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide planning".

(5) Such section is further amended by inserting "where appropriate," after "(B)" in subsection (c)(1).

(6) Such section is further amended by striking out "within the metropolitanwide area" in subsection (f).

(e)(1) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 208 of such Act are amended by striking out "Metropolitan" and inserting in lieu thereof "Areawide".

(2) Paragraph (7) of such section is amended—

(A) by striking out "or metropolitan or regional" and inserting in lieu thereof ", metropolitan, regional, or district"; and

(B) by striking out "metropolitan" in the parenthetical phrase.

(f) Section 206(b) of such Act is amended by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 503. (a) Section 701 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities" in clause (3) and inserting in lieu thereof "in the future for public purposes".

(b) Section 704 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

"SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loans or other financial obligations incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not in excess of the lesser of (1) five years from the date of acquisition of such land or (2) the period of time between the date on which the land was acquired and the date its use began for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That where all or any portion of the cost of such land is not financed through borrowings, the amount of the grant shall be computed on the basis of the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges that the Secretary determines would have been required.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the land will be utilized for a public purpose within a reasonable period of time and that such utilization will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area. The Secretary shall in all cases require that land acquired with the assistance of a grant under this section be utilized for a public purpose within five years after the date on which a contract to make such grant is entered into, unless the Secretary (1) determines that due to unusual circumsances a longer period of time is necessary and in the public interest, and (2) reports such determination promptly to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

"(d) No land acquired with assistance under this sectiion shall, without approval of the Secretary, be diverted from the purpose originally approved. The Secretary shall approve no such diversion unless he finds that the diversion is in accord with the then applicable comprehensive plan for the area. In cases of a diversion of land to other than a public purpose, the Secretary may require repayment of the grant, or substitution of land of approximately equal fair market value, whichever he deems appropriate. An interim use of the land for a public or private purpose in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, or approved by him, shall not constitute a diversion within the meaning of this subsection.

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no project for which land is acquired with assistance under this section shall, solely as a result of such advance acquisition, be considered ineligible for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program, and the amount of the purchase price paid for the land by the recipient of a grant under this section may be considered an eligible cost for the purpose of such other Federal loan or grant program."

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The board of directors of the corporation shall have the power to select and appoint or employ such officers, attorneys, employees, and agents, to vest them with such powers and duties, and to fix and to cause the corporation to pay such compensation to them for their services, as it may determine; and any such action shall be without regard to the Federal civil service and classification laws. Appointments, promotions, and separations so made shall be based on merit and efficiency, and no political test or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration. Each officer and employee of the corporation who is employed by the corporation prior to the termination of the transitional period referred to in section 710(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and who on the day previous to the beginning of such employment will have been subject to the civil service retirement law (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, United States Code) shall, so long as his employment by the corporation continues without a break in continuity of service, continue to be subject to such law; and for the purpose of such law his employment by the corporation without a break in continuity of service shall be deemed to be employment by the Government of the United States. The corporation shall contribute to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund a sum as provided by section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code, except that such sum shall be determined by applying to the total basic pay (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 8331(3) and except as hereinafter provided) paid to the employees of the corporation who are covered by the civil service retirement law, the per centum rate determined annually by the United States Civil Service Commission to be the excess of the total normal cost per centum rate of the civil service retirement system over the employee deduction rate specified in section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code. The corporation shall also pay into the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund such portion of the cost of administration of the fund as is determined by the United States Civil Service Commission to be attributable to its employees. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, there shall not be considered for the purposes of the civil service retirement law that portion of the basic pay in any one year of any officer or employee of the corporation which exceeds the basic pay provided for in section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, on the last day of such year. Except as provided in this subsection, the corporation shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code."

(cc) Section 309(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "body corporate created by section 302" and inserting in lieu thereof "bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)";

(2) by inserting ", 'Government National Mortgage Association'," immediately following " 'Federal National Mortgage Association' "; and

(3) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Violations of the foregoing sentence may be enjoined by any court of general jurisdiction at the suit of the proper body corporate. In any such suit, the plaintiff may recover any actual damages flowing from such violation, and, in addition, shall be entitled to punitive damages (regardless of the existence or nonexistence of actual damages) of not exceeding $100 for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated."

(dd) Section 309(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositaries, custodians, and fiscal agents for each of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2), for its own account or as fiduciary, and such banks shall be reimbursed for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon; and each of such bodies corporate may itself act in such capacities, for its own account or as fiduciary, and for the account of others."

(ee) Section 309 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have general regulatory power over the Federal National Mortgage Association and shall make such rules and regulations as shall be necessary and proper to insure that the purposes of this title are accomplished. No stock, obligation, security, or other instrument shall be issued by the corporation without the prior approval of the Secretary. The Secretary may require that a reasonable portion of the corporation's mortgage purchases be related to the national goal of providing adequate housing for low and moderate income families, but with reasonable economic return to the corporation. The Secretary may examine and audit the books and financial transactions of the corporation, and he may require the corporation to make such reports on its activities as he deems advisable."

(ff) Section 311 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "either of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following: "All stock, obligations, securities, participations, or other instruments issued pursuant to this title shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission; but all such issuances shall be made only with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development."

PARTICIPATIONS

SEC. 703. Section 302(c)(5) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following: "In the event that the insufficiency required by the trustee is on account of principal maturities of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection, or pursuant hereto, the trustee is authorized to elect to issue additional beneficial interests or participations for refinancing purposes in lieu of requiring any trustor or trustors to make payments to the trustee from appropriated funds or other sources. Each such issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be in an amount determined by the trustee but not in excess of the aggregate amount which the trustee would otherwise require the trustor or trustors to pay from appropriated funds or other sources, and may be issued without regard to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection. All refinancing issues of beneficial interests or participations shall be deemed to have been issued pursuant to the authority contained in the appropriation Act or Acts under which the beneficial interests or participations were originally issued."

MORTGAGE-BACKED SECURITIES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d) To provide a greater degree of liquidity to the mortgage investment market and an additional means of financing its operations under this section, the corporation is authorized to set aside any mortgages held by it under this section, and, upon approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and sell securities based upon the mortgages so set aside. Securities issued under this subsection may be in the form of debt obligations or trust certificates of beneficial interest, or both. Securities issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Securities issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Mortgages set aside pursuant to this subsection shall at all times be adequate to enable the corporation to make timely principal and interest payments on the securities issued and sold pursuant to this subsection."

(b) Section 306 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on such trust certificates or other securities as shall (1) be issued by the corporation under section 304(d), or by any other issuer approved for the purposes of this subsection by the Association, and (2) be based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any trust or other security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any security guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the right satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any mortgage or mortgages constituting the trust or pool against which the guaranteed securities are issued; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed securities, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constitute such trust or pool shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatisfied rights of the holders of the securities based on and backed by such trust or pool. The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection."

SUBORDINATED AND CONVERTIBLE OBLIGATIONS

SEC. 705. Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding thereto (after subsection (d) as added by section 704 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(e) For the purposes of this section, the corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, obligations which are subordinated to any or all other obligations of the corporation, including subsequent obligations. The obligations issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and may be made redeemable at the option of the corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations. Any of such obligations may be made convertible into shares of common stock in such manner, at such price or prices, and at such time or times as may be stipulated therein. The total principal amount of such subordinated obligations which may be outstanding at any one time shall not exceed two times the sum of (1) the capital of the corporation represented by its outstanding common stock and (2) its surplus and undistributed earnings at such time. The outstanding total principal amount of such obligations which are entirely subordinated to the obligations of the corporation issued or to be issued under subsection (b) shall be deemed to be capital of the corporation for the purpose of determining the aggregate amount of obligations issued under subsection (b) which may be outstanding at any one time. Obligations issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the corporation. The corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price."

SPECIAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 706. Section 305(c) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" after "July 1, 1967,"; and

(2) by striking out the period and inserting in lieu thereof ", and by $500,000,000 in July 1, 1969."

(g) Section 6(b) of the Participation Sales Act of 1966 is amended by striking out "secondary market operations carried on by the Federal" and inserting in lieu thereof "the Government".

(h) Section 1820(e) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by striking out "Federal National" in three places and inserting in lieu thereof, in each such place, "Government National".

(i) Section 709 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking out "Federal National Mortgage Association" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof, in each such place, "Government National Mortgage Association".

(j) Section 5136 of the Revised Statutes is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

(k) Section 11(h) of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association, in the stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

(l) Section 16 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

(m) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association," immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association" and by inserting "or the stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association" immediately after "any other agency of the United States".

(n) Section 8(8)(E) of the Federal Credit Union Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 708. The amendments made by this title shall be effective from and after a date, no more than one hundred and twenty days following the date of enactment of this Act, as established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Notice of the establishment of such effective date shall be published in the Federal Register at least thirty days prior thereto.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 709. (a) No cause of action by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association existing prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. Any such cause of action may thereafter be asserted by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act.

(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association, or any officer thereof in his official capacity, prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. A court may at any time thereafter during the pendency of any such litigation, on its own motion or that of any party, order that the litigation may be maintained by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act or the appropriate corresponding officer thereof.

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 710. (a) On the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, each share of outstanding nonvoting common stock, with a par value of $100 per share, of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be changed into and shall become one share of voting common stock, without par value, of such corporation.

(b)(1) The provisions of section 308(b) of the National Housing Act (is added by section 702(y)(7) of this Act) shall be applicable only to the extent that its provisions do not conflict with this subsection.

(2) For a transitional period after the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, the board of directors of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall consist of nine persons. For a term expiring on the date of the first annual meeting of the corporation's stockholders, all members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. For a term beginning on such date, seven members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary, and two members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For subsequent terms beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, five members shall be appointed by the Secretary, and four members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For each term beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, the Secretary shall appoint as a member of the board the president of the corporation. During the transitional period, the president of the corporation shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may be removed from office by the President for good cause.

(3) The transitional period referred to in paragraph (2) shall come to an end at such time as the board of directors shall find, with the approval of the Secretary, that not less than one-third of the corporation's common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses; but in no event shall it end sooner than May 1, 1970, or later than May 1, 1973.

(c) From the effective date established pursuant to section 708 and until the retirement of the last of the outstanding shares of its preferred stock, the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be deemed to be a wholly owned corporation for the purposes of the Government Corporation Control Act. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the financial transactions of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall continue to be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office for such period as there may be outstanding obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association which are guaranteed as to principal or interest by the Government National Mortgage Association.

(d) Those persons who are the officers and employees of the Federal National Mortgage Association immediately prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall become the officers and employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such date. The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Government National Mortgage Association shall provide by contract for the conditions and methods under which and by which the Federal National Mortgage Association during the transitional period may employ those individuals who are employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date; and may provide by contract for the operation by either of such corporations of any of the functions of the other. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make every reasonable effort to place in other comparable Federal positions any individuals who are career or career-conditional employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date and who are subsequently during the transitional period neither employed by the Federal National Mortgage Association nor retained by the Government National Mortgage Association.

TITLE VIII—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

SEC. 801. The Congress finds that the volume of housing being produced for families and individuals of low or moderate income must be increased to meet the national goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family, and declares that it is the policy of the United States to encourage the widest possible participation by private enterprise in the provision of housing for low or moderate income families. The Congress has therefore determined that one or more private organizations should be created to encourage maximum participation by private investors in programs and projects to provide low and moderate income housing.

CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

SEC. 802. (a) There is hereby authorized to be created a private corporation for profit (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "corporation"). The corporation will not be an agency or establishment of the United States Government. The corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this title and, to the extent consistent with this title, to the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29–901 et seq.).

(b) Whenever the President finds it in the national interest to do so, he may cause the creation of an additional corporation or additional corporations to carry out the purposes of this title. All the provisions of this title shall thereupon become applicable to each such corporation, and to the limited partnership formed by it pursuant to section 807.

(c) Nothing in this title shall be construed to preclude private persons from creating other corporations and organizing other partnerships, joint ventures, or associations for the purposes set forth in this title as the purposes of the corporation and the partnership described in section 807.

PROCESS OF ORGANIZATION

SEC. 803. (a) The President of the United States shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, incorporators of the corporation, one of whom shall be designated by the President to serve as chairman. The incorporators shall serve as the initial board of directors until the first annual meeting of stockholders or until their successors are elected and have qualified.

(b) The incorporators shall take whatever actions are necessary or appropriate to establish the corporation, including the filing of articles of incorporation as approved by the President.

(c) The incorporators shall also arrange for an initial offering of shares of stock in the corporation and of interests in the partnership described in section 807 of this title. If the incorporators deem it advisable in order to carry out the purposes of this title, the initial offering may be made upon terms which require the purchase of other securities of the corporation or of interests in such partnership.

DIRECTORS

SEC. 804. The corporation shall have a board of directors (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "board"), consisting of fifteen members. Three members of the board shall be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, effective on the date on which the other members are elected, and for terms of three years or until their successors have been appointed and have qualified, except that the first three members of the board so appointed shall continue in office for terms of one, two, and three years, respectively, and any member so appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the director whom he succeeds. Twelve members of the board shall be elected by the stockholders.

FINANCING THE CORPORATION

SEC. 805. The corporation shall have the power to create and issue the number of shares stated in its articles of incorporation. Such shares may be divided into one or more classes, any or all of which classes may consist of shares with par value or shares without per value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, and special or relative rights and such limitations, restrictions, or qualifications thereof as shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation may limit or deny the voting power of the shares of any class.

PURPOSES AND POWERS OF THE CORPORATION

SEC. 806. (a) In order to achieve the objectives and carry out the purposes of this title, the corporation is authorized to—

(1) plan, initiate, and carry out, pursuant to Federal programs or otherwise, the building or rehabilitation of housing and related facilities primarily for the benefit of families and individuals of low or moderate income;

(2) buy, own, manage, lease, or otherwise acquire or dispose of property in connection with the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1); and

(3) provide such funds as may be necessary to accomplish the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1).

(b) Included in the activities authorized to the corporation for the accomplishment of the purposes indicated in subsection (a) of this section are, among others not specifically named—

(1) to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, joint ventures, and other associations with individuals, corporations, and private and governmental agencies, organizations, and institutions;

(2) to act as manager or general partner of any such partnership, venture, or association;

(3) to conduct or contract for research and studies related to the development, demonstration, and evaluation of improved techniques and methods of constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing;

(4) to provide technical assistance to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others with respect to the planning, financing, construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, and management of housing for low and moderate income families and individuals;

(5) to make loans or grants, including grants of interests in housing and related facilities, to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others, in carrying out its activities under subsection (a) of this section; and

(6) to hire or accept the voluntary services of consultants, experts, advisory boards, and panels to aid the corporation in carrying out the purposes of this title.

(c) To carry out the foregoing purposes and engage in the foregoing activities, the corporation shall have the usual powers conferred upon a stock corporation by the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act.

(d) Nothing in this title shall have the effect of waiving or otherwise affecting the applicability of the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 267a—276a-5), or any other law requiring compliance with labor standards, in the case of any construction to which such provisions would otherwise apply.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

SEC. 807. (a) The corporation is authorized to arrange for the formation, as a separate organization, of a limited partnership (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "partnership") under the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–401 et seq.) for the purpose of engaging in any of the activities authorized for the corporation under section 906 of this title, and to enter into a partnership agreement governing the affairs of such limited partnership.

(b) The partnership shall be subject to the provisions, to the extent consistent with this title, of (1) the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act and (2) those provisions of the District of Columbia Uniform Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–301 et seq.) made applicable by section 6(2) of that Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–305(2)). Notwithstanding any inconsistency between the provisions of such Acts, or of any other law, and the provisions of this section, the partnership organized pursuant to this section shall be deemed to have the legal status of a limited partnership.

(c) The partnership is authorized to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures organized under applicable State or local law for the purpose of engaging in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in particular localities.

(d) The corporation shall be the general partner in the partnership. The capital of the partnership and the contributions of the partners shall be in such amounts and at such times as are set forth in or pursuant to the partnership agreement.

(e) The partnership agreement shall include provisions designed to assure that (1) the partnership shall participate in low and moderate income housing developments, projects or undertakings in a manner designed to encourage the participation therein of local interests, and (2) in any such development, project, or undertaking the partnership shall not subscribe to more than 25 per centum (including equity investments made in services or property) of the aggregate initial equity investment unless, in the judgment of the corporation as general partner, the balance of the required equity investment is not readily obtainable from other responsible investors residing or doing business in the local community.

(f) The partnership agreement may without limitation (1) permit each of the stockholders of the corporation to become a member of the partnership as a limited partner, (2) authorize the inclusion of other limited partners in addition to the stockholders of the corporation, (3) provide that the assignee of the partnership interest of a limited partner of the partnership who is also a stockholder of the corporation may not become a substituted limited partner unless he also acquires the assignor's stock of the corporation, and (4) include provisions requiring that the corporation as a general partner approve the substitution or addition of a member of the partnership.

(g) A corporation which is a limited partner in the partnership shall not become liable as a general partner by reason of the fact that (1) such corporation is a holder of shares of voting stock of the corporation constituting not more than 5 per centum of the total number of outstanding shares of such stock and exercises any of the rights (including voting rights) of a holder of such shares, and/or (2) a person who is an officer or director of such corporation (or of another corporation which controls or is subject to the control of, or is under common control with, such corporation) is a director of the corporation and performs the duties of that office. The interest of a limited partner in the partnership shall not be treated as a stock interest in the corporation, notwithstanding that such interest of a limited partner may be proportionate to his stock interest in the corporation.

(h) The certificate of the partnership and any amendment thereof required by the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act shall be executed and acknowledged by the corporation as member and by each other member of the partnership or his attorney-in-fact duly authorized by power of attorney in writing. The corporation may execute and acknowledge the certificate and any amendment thereof as attorney-in-fact for any member, member to be substituted or added, or assigning member, by whom the certificate or amendment is required to be executed and acknowledged and who has appointed the corporation as such attorney.

REPORT TO CONGRESS AND RECORDS

SEC. 808. (a) The corporation shall submit an annual report to the President for transmittal to the Congress within six months after the end of its fiscal year. The report shall include a comprehensive and detailed report of the operations, activities, and financial condition of the corporation and the partnership under this title.

(b) The accounts of the corporation and of the partnership shall be audited annually in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards by independent certified public accountants or independent licensed public accountants certified or licensed by a regulatory authority of a State or other political subdivision of the United States.

ANTITRUST LAWS

SEC. 809. Nothing contained herein shall affect the applicability of the Federal antitrust laws to the activities of the corporation and the parnership created under this title and of the persons participating therein or in partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures with either of them.

RIGHT TO REPEAL, ALTER, OR AMEND

SEC. 810. The right to repeal, alter, or amend this title at any time is expressly reserved.

AMENDMENT TO BANKING LAWS

SEC. 811. Paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "Notwithstanding any other provision in this paragraph, the association may purchase for its own account shares of stock issued by a corporation authorized to be created pursuant to title VIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and may make investments in a partnership, limited partnership, or joint venture formed pursuant to section 807(a) or 807(c) of that Act."

TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

SEC. 901. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"LOANS TO PROVIDE OCCUPANT-OWNED, RENTAL, AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

"SEC. 521. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 502, 517(a), and 515, loans to persons of low or moderate income under section 502 or 517(a)(1), and loans under section 515 to provide rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for persons and families of low or moderate income or elderly persons and elderly families, shall bear interest at a rate prescribed by the Secretary at not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum: Provided, That such a loan may be made only when the Secretary determines that the needs of the applicant for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources including assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act: Provided further, That interest on loans under section 502 or 517(a) to victims of natural disasters shall not exceed the rate which would be applicable to such loans under section 502 without regard to this section.

"(b) Housing and related facilities provided with loans described in subsection (a) shall be located in rural areas; and applicants eligible for such loans under section 502 or 517(a)(1), or for occupancy of housing provided with such loans under section 515, shall include otherwise qualified nonrural residents who will become rural residents.

"(c) There shall be reimbursed to the Rural Housing Insurance Fund by annual appropriations the amounts by which nonprincipal payments made from the fund during each fiscal year to the holders of insured loans described in subsection (a) exceed interest due from the borrowers during each year; and the Secretary from time to time may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 517(h) to obtain amounts equal to such reimbursed excess payments, pending the annual reimbursement by appropriation."

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 902. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 521 (as added by section 901 of this Act) the following new section:

"HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

"SEC. 522. (a) Upon the application of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization, the Secretary is authorized, after consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and after the Secretary determines that the housing and related facilities cannot reasonably be provided in any other way, to provide financial and technical assistance for the establishment, in rural areas, of housing and related facilities for trainees and their families who are residents of a rural area and have a rural background, while such trainees are enrolled and participating in training courses designed to improve their employment capability. The selection of training sites and location of housing shall be made with due regard to the economic viability of the area, and only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Government agencies having primary responsibility for administering related programs.

"(b) Housing and related facilities assisted under this section shall be safe and sanitary, constructed in the most economical manner, and of modest design, giving due consideration to the purposes to be served and the needs of the occupants, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary, include mobile family quarters. Design and location shall be such as to facilitate, as feasible, the use of such housing and related facilities for other purposes when no longer needed for the primary purpose.

"(c) The applicant shall contribute the necessary land, or funds to acquire such land, from its own resources, including land acquired by donation or from funds repayable under subsection (e) or borrowed from other sources.

"(d) No financial assistance shall be made available under this section unless, to the extent and for the periods required by the Secretary, the applicant agrees that—

"(1) such housing will be maintained at all times in a safe and sanitary condition in accordance with standards prescribed by State or local law, or, in the absence of such standards, with requirements prescribed by the Secretary;

"(2) priority shall be given at all times, in granting occupancy of such housing and facilities, to the trainees, and their families described in subsection (a); and

"(3) rentals charged them shall not exceed amounts approved by the Secretary after considering the portion of the actual total family income which the family can afford to pay for rent while meeting its other immediate needs during occupancy.

"(e) The Secretary may make advances pursuant to any contract for financial assistance under this section at such times and in such manner as may be specified in the contract. Such advances for the purchase of land shall be repayable with interest and within a period not to exceed thirty-three years and may be made upon such security, if any, as the Secretary requires. Advances for other purposes may be made repayable with or without interest or nonrepayable, as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the anticipated income and cost of operation of the housing and related facilities and the ability of each applicant to finance such facilities. Any advances shall be limited to cover the capital costs of constructing such facilities, plus interest on borrowings to cover such costs.

"(f) Should housing and related facilities assisted pursuant to a contract under this section be sold to an ineligible transferee or diverted to a use other than its primary purpose within a period specified in the contract, all advances made under such contract shall be repaid to the Secretary, up to the amount of the sales price or the fair value of the property as determined by the Secretary, whichever is higher, with interest from the date of the sale or diversion. If no suitable alternate use of the property is available, as determined by the Secretary, after the purpose of this section can no longer be served, the property shall be returned to its original condition by the recipient of the assistance.

"(g) Interest charged on advances made under this section shall be at a rate, prescribed by the Secretary, which shall be not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum, as determined by the Secretary.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to insure that Federal funds expended under this section are not wasted or dissipated.

"(i) As used in this section (1) the term 'related facilities' shall include any necessary community rooms or buildings, infirmaries, utilities, access roads, water and sewer services, and the minimum fixed or movable equipment determined by the Secretary to be necessary to make the housing reasonably habitable by trainees and their families; and (2) the term 'trainee' means any person receiving training under any federally assisted training program.

"(j) All laborers and mechanics employed in connection with the provision of housing and related facilities assisted under this section, where such housing includes 8 or more dwelling units, shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5); and no assistance shall be extended under this section with respect to such housing and the related facilities without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work involved. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this subsection, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1267) and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (40 U.S.C. 276c).

"(k) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section."

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 903. Section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and (e)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(e)"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and (f) such sums as may be required by the Secretary to administer the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act".

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR BUILDING SITES

SEC. 904. Section 514(f)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" before "(B)", and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof the following: "and (C) land necessary for an adequate site".

MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

SEC. 905. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 522 (as added by section 902 of this Act) the following new section:

"MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

"SEC. 523. (a) The purposes of this section are (1) to make financial assistance available on reasonable terms and conditions in rural areas and small towns to needy low-income individuals and their families who, with the benefit of technical assistance and overall guidance and supervision, participate in approved programs of mutual or self-help housing by [illegible]ring and developing necessary land, acquiring building materials, providing their own labor, and working cooperatively with others for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for themselves, their families, and others in the area or town involved, and (2) to facilitate the efforts of both public and private nonprofit organizations providing assistance to such individuals to contribute their technical and supervisory skills toward more effective and comprehensive programs of mutual or self-help housing in rural areas and small towns wherever necessary.

"(b) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized—

"(1)(A) to make grants to, or contract with, public or private nonprofit corporations, agencies, institutions, organizations, and other associations approved by him, to pay part or all of the costs of developing, conducting, administering, or coordinating effective and comprehensive programs of technical and supervisory assistance which will aid needy low-income individuals and their families in carrying out mutual or self-help housng efforts;

"(B) to establish the Self-Help Housing Land Development Fund, referred to herein as the Self-Help Fund, to be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for making loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to public or private nonrofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to families, nonprofit organizations, and cooperatives eligible for assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act or section 521 of this act. Such a loan, with interest at a rate not to exceed 3 percent per annum, shall be repaid within a period not to exceed two years from the making of the loan, or within such additional period as may be authorized by the Secretary in any case as being necessary to carry out the purposes hereof.

"(2) to make loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to needy low-income individuals participating in programs of mutual or self-help housing approved by him, for the acquisition and development of land and for the purchase of such other building materials as may be necessary in order to enable them, by providing substantially all of their own labor, and by cooperating with others participating in such programs, to carry out to completion the construction of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for such individuals and their families, subject to the following limitations:

"(A) there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan;

"(B) the amount of the loan, together with other funds which may be available, is adequate to achieve the purpose for which the loan is made;

"(C) the credit assistance is not otherwise available on like terms or conditions from private sources or through other Federal, State, or local programs;

"(D) the loan bears interest at a rate not to exceed 3 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, plus such additional charge, if any, toward covering other costs of the loan program as the Secretary may determine to be consistent with its purposes; and

"(E) the loan is repayable within not more than thirty-three years.

"(c) In determining whether to extend financial assistance under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other factors, the suitability of the area within which construction will be carried out to the type of dwelling which can be provided under mutual or self-help housing programs, the extent to which the assistance will facilitate the provision of more decent, safe, and sanitary housing conditions than presently exist in the area, the extent to which the assistance will be utilized efficiently and expeditiously, the extent to which the assistance will effect an increase in the standard of living of low-income individuals participating in the mutual or self-help housing program, and whether the assistance will fulfill a need in the area which is not otherwise being met through other programs, including those carried out by other Federal, State, or local agencies.

"(d) As used in this section, the term 'construction' includes the erection of new dwellings, and the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to establish appropriate criteria and procedures in order to determine the eligibility of applicants for the financial assistance provided under this section, including criteria and procedures with respect to the periodic review of any construction carried out with such financial assistance.

"(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1968, and ending prior to July 1, 1973, such sums, not in excess of $5,000,000 for any such fiscal year, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section. No grant or loan may be made or contract entered into under the authority of this section after June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a commitment or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date.

"(g) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of subsection (b)(1)(B) not to exceed $1,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $2,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amount so authorized to be appropriated for any fiscal year which is not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year or years. Amounts appropriated under this subsection shall be deposited in the Self-Help Fund, which shall be available without fiscal year limitation for making loans under subsection (b)(1)(B). Instruments and property acquired by the Secretary in or as a result of making such loans shall be assets of the Self-Help Fund. Sums received from the repayment of such loans shall be deposited in and be a part of the Self-Help Fund."

TITLE X—URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1001. This title may be cited as the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1002. (a) The Congress finds that (1) the vitality of many American cities is being threatened by the deterioration of their inner city areas; responsible owners of well-maintained residential, business, and other properties in many of these areas are unable to obtain adequate property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils; the lack of such insurance coverage accelerates the deterioration of these areas by discouraging private investment and restricting the availability of credit to repair and improve property therein; and this deterioration poses a serious threat to the national economy; (2) recent riots and other civil commotion in many American cities have brought about abnormally high losses to the private property insurance industry for which adequate reinsurance cannot be obtained at reasonable cost, and the risk of such losses will make most lines of property insurance even more difficult to obtain; (3) the capacity of the private property insurance industry to provide adequate insurance is threatened, and the continuity of such property insurance protection is essential to the extension of credit in these areas; and (4) the national interest demands urgent action by the Congress to assure that essential lines of property insurance, including lines providing protection against riot and civil commotion damage will be avalable to property owners at reasonable cost.

(b) The purposes of this title are, therefore, to (1) encourage and assist the various State insurance authorities and the property insurance industry to develop and carry out statewide programs which will make necessary property insurance coverage against the fire, crime, and other perils more readily available for residential, business, and other properties meeting reasonable underwriting standards; and (2) provide a Federal program of reinsurance against abnormally high property insurance losses resulting from riots and other civil commotion, placing appropriate financial responsibility upon the States to share in such losses.

AMENDMENT OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1003. The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

"PROGRAM AUTHORITY

"SEC. 1201. (a) The Secretary is authorized to establish and carry out the programs provided for in parts A, B, and C of this title.

"(b)(1) The powers of the Secretary under this title shall terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary—

"(A) to continue reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1223(b) until April 30, 1976;

"(B) to process, verify, and pay claims for reinsured losses and perform other necessary functions in connection therewith; and

"(C) to complete the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"(2) On April 30, 1976, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, for its approval, a plan for the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"ADVISORY BOARD; MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION, AND EXPENSES

"SEC. 1202. (a)(1) There is established an Advisory Board (hereinafter called the 'Board') consisting of nineteen members appointed by the Secretary. Members of the Board shall be selected from among representatives of the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments including State insurance authorities, and the Federal Government. Of these members of the Board, not more than six shall be regular full-time employees of the Federal Government, and not less than four shall be representatives of the private insurance industry and not less than four shall be representatives of State insurance authorities.

"(2) The Secretary shall designate a Chairman and a Vice Chairman of the Board.

"(3) Each member shall serve for a term of two years or until his successor has been appointed, except that no person who is appointed while a full-time employee of a State or the Federal Government shall serve in such position after he ceases to be so employed, unless he is reappointed.

"(4) Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of that term.

"(b) The Chairman shall preside at all meetings, and the Vice Chairman shall preside in the absence or disability of the Chairman. In the absence of both the Chairman and Vice Chairman, the Secretary may appoint any member to act as Chairman pro tempore. The Board shall meet at such times and places as it or the Secretary may fix and determine, but shall hold at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Chairman or any three members of the Board, or at the call of the Secretary.

"(c) The Board shall review general policies and shall advise the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform such other functions as are specified in this title.

"(d) The members of the Board shall not, by reason of such membership, be deemed to be employees of the United States, and such members, except those who are regular full-time employees of the Government, shall receive for their services, as members, the per diem equivalent to the rate for grade GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, when engaged in the performance of their duties, and each member of the Board shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1203. (a) When used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

"(1) 'environmental hazard' means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner;

"(2) 'essential property insurance' means insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire policies and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the State insurance authority and the Secretary, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations of property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, or theft, as the Secretary by rule shall designate. Such insurance shall not include automobile insurance and shall not include insurance on such types of manufacturing risks as may be excluded by the State insurance authority;

"(3) 'inspection facility', with respect to any State, means any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under fair access to insurance requirements plans under part A;

"(4) 'insurer' includes any insurance company or group of companies under common ownership which is authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

"(5) 'pool' means any pool or association of insurance companies in any State which is formed, associated, or otherwise created for the purpose of making property insurance more readily available;

"(6) 'losses resulting from riots or civil disorders' means losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered under section 1221, as determined under regulations of the Secretary;

"(7) 'property owner', with respect to any real, personal, or mixed real and personal property, means any person having an insurable interest in such property;

"(8) 'person' includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, or association, or any other organized group of persons;

"(9) 'reinsured losses' means losses on reinsurance claims and all direct expenses incurred in connection therewith including, but not limited to, expenses for processing, verifying, and paying such losses;

"(10) 'standard line of property insurance' includes—

"(A) fire and extended coverage;

"(B) vandalism and malicious mischief;

"(C) other allied lines of fire insurance;

"(D) burglary and theft;

"(E) those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to those provided for in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

"(F) inland marine;

"(G) glass;

"(H) boiler and machinery;

"(I) ocean marine;

"(J) aircraft physical damage; and

"(K) such other lines generally offered to the public which include protection against damage from riot or civil commotion as the Secretary by regulation may designate;

"(11) 'State' means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific;

"(12) 'urban area' includes any municipality or other political subdivision of a State, subject to population or other limitations defined in rules and regulations of the Secretary and such additional areas as may be designated by the State insurance authority; and

"(13) 'year' means a calendar year, fiscal year of a company, or such other period of twelve months as may be designated by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to define, by rules and regulations, any technical or trade term, insofar as such definition is not inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

"PART A—STATEWIDE PLANS TO ASSURE FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

"FAIR PLANS

"SEC. 1211. (a) Each insurer reinsured under this title shall cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is to acquire such reinsurance in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

"(b) Such plans must be approved by the State insurance authority, or be authorized or required by State law, and shall be designed to make essential property insurance more readily avilable in, but not necessarily limited to, urban areas. Such plans may vary in detail from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans shall contain provision that—

"(1) no risk shall be written at surcharged rates or be denied insurance coverage for essential property insurance unless there has first been an inspection of the risk, without cost to the owner, by an inspection facility and a determination by the insurer, based on information in the inspection report and other sources, that the risk does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate;

"(2) inspections under the plan may be requested by the property owner or his representative, the insurer, or the insurance agent, broker or other producer, and such requests need not be made in writing;

"(3) the absence of a building owner or his representative during an inspection shall not preclude a tenant seeking insurance from obtaining an inspection under the plan;

"(4) following the inspection, a copy of the inspection report shall be promptly sent by the inspection facility to the insurer or insurers, or to an all-industry placement facility referred to under section 1212, as may be designated by the person requesting the inspection;

"(5) after the inspection report is received by an insurer, it shall promptly determine if the risk meets reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate, and shall promptly return to the inspection facility the inspection report and provide an action report setting forth—

"(A) (i) the amount of coverage it agrees to write; and if the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge (if such a surcharge is authorized by the State insurance authority), the improvements necessary before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged premium rate; and

"(ii) the amount of coverage it agrees to write if certain improvements specified in the action report are made; or

"(B) the specific reasons it declines to write coverage;

"(6) if the insurer declines the risk, or agrees to write the coverage sought on condition that the property will be improved, it shall also promptly send a copy of both the inspection and action reports to the property owner and the State insurance authority, and at the time the insurer sends such reports to the property owner, it shall also explain his right, under applicable State laws, to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority, setting forth the procedures to be followed for such appeal;

"(7) all policies written pursuant to the plan shall be promptly written after inspection or reinspection and shall be separately coded so that appropriate records may be compiled for purposes of performing loss prevention and other studies of the operation of the plan;

"(8) the inspection facility shall submit to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary periodic reports setting forth information, by individual insurers, including the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and such other information as the State insurance authority may request;

"(9) notice will be given to any policyholder a reasonable time prior to the cancellation or nonrenewal of any risk eligible under the plan (except in case of nonpayment of premium or evidence of incendiarism), to allow ample time for an application for new coverage to be made and a new policy to be written under the plan, and the insurer shall, in writing, explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining an inspection under the plan in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal; and

"(10) a continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

"ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

"SEC. 1212. Any plan under this part shall include an all-industry placement facility doing business with every insurer participating in the plan in the State, and shall provide that this facility shall perform certain functions including, but not limited to, the following:

"(1) seeking, upon request by or on behalf of any property owner requesting an inspection under the plan, to distribute the risks involved equitably among the insurers with which it is doing business; and

"(2) seeking to place insurance up to the full insurable value of the risk to be insured with one or more insurers with which it is doing business, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

"INDUSTRY COOPERATION

"SEC. 1213. (a) Every insurer seeking reinsurance under this title shall file a statement with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is participating in a plan under this part, pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan, and shall file a copy of such statement with the Secretary.

"(b) No insurer acquiring reinsurance under this title shall direct any agent or broker or other producer not to solicit business through such a plan, nor shall any agent, broker, or other producer be penalized by such insurer in any way for submitting applications for insurance to an insurer under the plan.

"PLAN EVALUATION

"SEC. 1214. (a) In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, each State insurance authority shall—

"(1) transmit to the Secretary any proposed or adopted plan, or amendments thereto; and

"(2) advise the Secretary, from time to time, concerning the operation of the plan, its effectiveness in providing essential property insurance, and the need to form a pool of insurers or adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State.

"(b) The Secretary may, after full consultation with the Board, by rules and regulations, modify the plan criteria set forth under this part if it finds, on the basis of experience, that such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title. The Secretary may also, with respect to any State, waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria, upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law.

"PART B—REINSURANCE COVERAGE

"REINSURANCE OF LOSSES FROM RIOTS OR CIVIL DISORDERS

"SEC. 1221. (a) (1) The Secretary is authorized to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders in any one or more States.

"(2) Reinsurance shall be offered to any such insurer or pool only on all standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 1203(a)(10) together, and any insurer or pool purchasing such reinsurance shall also be eligible to purchase reinsurance on any one or more standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (F) through (J) of section 1203(a)(10) or which may be designated by regulation pursuant to subparagraph (K) of that section.

"(b) Reinsurance coverage under this section may be provided immediately following the enactment of this title to any insurer or pool in any State on a temporary basis, and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, and coverage under such terms and conditions may be bound with respect to any such insurer or pool by means of a written binder which shall remain in force not more than ninety days and shall expire at the earlier of either—

"(1) the termination of such ninety-day period, or

"(2) the effective date of any governing contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into between the insurer or pool and the Secretary under section 1222 for the purpose of providing reinsurance coverage against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders.

"(c) No reinsurance shall be offered to any insurer or pool in a State after the expiration of the written binder entered into under subsection (b), unless there is in effect in such State a plan as set forth under part A and the insurer or pool is participating in such plan, and unless, in the case of an insurer in a State where a pool has been established pursuant to State law, the insurer is participating in such a pool.

"REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS AND PREMIUMS

"SEC. 1222. (a) During the first year following the date of the enactment of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement with any insurer or pool for reinsurance coverage, in consideration of payment of such premiums, fees, or other charges by insurers or pools which the Secretary, after full consultation with the Board, deems to be adequate to obtain aggregate reinsurance premiums for deposit in the National Insurance Development Fund established under section 1233 in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during the calendar year 1967, on the assumption that a substantial proportion of the property insurance written will be reinsured under this title, and thereafter the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found after full consultation with the Board and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that such action is necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title.

"(b) Reinsurance offered under this title shall reimburse an insurer or pool for its total proved and approved claims for covered losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement, over and above the amount of the insurer's or pool's retention of such losses as provided in such reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into under this section.

"(c) Such contracts, agreements, treaties, or other arrangements may be made without regard to section 3679(a) of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665(a)), and shall include any terms and conditions which the Secretary deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. The premium rates, terms, and conditions of such contracts with insurers or pools, throughout the country, in any one year shall be uniform.

"(d) Any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement for reinsurance under this section shall be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter, and shall be entered into within ninety days after the date of the enactment of this title or within ninety days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within ninety days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance eligible for reinsurance in a State which it was not authorized to write in the preceding year.

"CONDITIONS OF REINSURANCE

"SEC. 1223. (a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b), reinsurance shall not be offered by the Secretary in a State or be applicable to insurance policies written in that State by an insurer—

"(1) after one year following the date of the enactment of this title, or, if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year, by the close of its next regular session, in any State which has not adopted appropriated legislation, retroactive to the date of the enactment of this title, under which the State, its political subdivisions, or a governmental corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, will reimburse the Secretary, in an amount up to 5 per centum of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in that State during the current year, such that the Secretary may be reimbursed for amounts paid by him in respect to reinsured losses that occurred in that State during a calendar year in excess of (A) reinsurance premiums received in that State during the same calendar year plus (B) the excess of (i) the total premiums received by the Secretary for reinsurance in that State during a preceding period measured from the end of the most recent calendar year with respect to which the Secretary was reimbursed for losses under this title over (ii) any amounts paid by the Secretary for reinsured losses that occurred during this same period;

"(2) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds that there has not been adopted by the State, or the property insurance industry in that State, a suitable program or programs, in addition to plans under part A, to make essential property insurance available without regard to environmental hazards, and that such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; except that this paragraph shall not become effective until two years after the date of the enactment of this title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine;

"(3) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary, or the State insurance authority, finds that such insurer is not fully participating—

"(A) in the plan in the State;

"(B) where it exists, in a pool; and

"(C) where it exists, in any other program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State;

"(4) following a merger, acquisition, consolidation or reorganization involving one or more insurers having lines of property insurance in the State reinsured under this title and one or more insurers with or without such reinsurance, unless the surviving company—

"(A) meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance, other than as provided under section 1222(d); and

"(B) within ten days pays any reinsurance premiums due; or

"(5) upon receipt of notice from the insurer or pool that it desires to cancel its reinsurance agreement with the Secretary in the State.

"(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, reinsurance may be continued for the term of the policies written prior to the date of termination or nonrenewal of reinsurance under this section, for as long as the insurer pays reinsurance premiums annually in such amounts as are determined under section 1222, based on the annual premiums earned on such reinsured policies, and for the purpose of this subsection, the renewal, extension, modification, or other change in a policy, for which any additional premium is charged, shall be deemed to be a policy written on the date such change was made.

"RECOVERY OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

"SEC. 1224. (a) The Secretary, in a suit brought in the appropriate United States district court, shall be entitled to recover from any insurer the amount of any unpaid premiums lawfully payable by such insurer to the Secretary.

"(b) No action or proceeding shall be brought for the recovery of any premium due to the Secretary for reinsurance, or for the recovery of any premium paid to the Secretary in excess of the amount due to him, unless such action or proceeding shall have been brought within five years after the right accrued for which the claim is made, except that, where the insurer has made or filed with the Secretary a false or fraudulent annual statement, or other document with the intent to evade, in whole or in part, the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until its discovery by the Secretary.

"PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

"CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1231. (a) All reinsurance claims for losses under this title shall be submitted by insurers in accordance with such terms and conditions as may be established by the Secretary.

"(b)(1) Upon disallowance of any claim under color of reinsurance made available under this title, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the claim arose.

"(2) Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant received written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.

"FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

"SEC. 1232. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the reinsurance program under this title, and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with any insurer, pool, or other person, for the purpose of providing for the performance of any or all of the following functions:

"(1) estimating or determining any amounts of payments for reinsurance claims;

"(2) receiving and disbursing and accounting for funds in making payments for reinsurance claims;

"(3) auditing the records of any insurer, pool, or other person to the extent necessary to assure that proper payments are made;

"(4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance payments, including the total amount of proved and approved claims which may be payable to any insurer, and the total amount of remiums earned by any insurer in the resective States for reinsured lines of property insurance; and

"(5) otherwise assisting in any manner provided in the contract to further the purposes of this title.

"(b) (1) Any such contract may require the insurer, pool, or other person, or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amounts as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

"(2) In the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States—

"(A) no individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section; and

"(B) no officer of the United States disbursing funds shall be liable with respect to any otherwise proper payment by him if it was based on a voucher signed by an individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments.

"NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

SEC. 1233. (a) To carry out the programs authorized under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a National Insurance Development Fund (hereinafter called the 'fund') which shall be available without fiscal year limitations—

"(1) to make such payments as may, from time to time, be required under reinsurance contracts under this title;

"(2) to pay such administrative expenses as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title; and

"(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums, including interest thereon, as may be borrowed from him for purposes of such programs under section 520(b).

"(b) The fund shall be credited with—

"(1) reinsurance premiums, fees, and other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with reinsurance provided under part B;

"(2) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund;

"(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

"(4) receipts from any other source which may, from time to time, be credited to the fund; and

"(5) funds borrowed by the Secretary under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

"(c) If, after any amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced (including interest thereon at the rate prescribed under section 520(b)), the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

"(d) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations.

"RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENT, AND AUDITS

"SEC. 1234. (a) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall furnish the Secretary with such summaries and analyses of information in its records as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, in such form as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall, by rules and regulations, prescribe. The Secretary shall make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

"(b) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall file with the Secretary a true and correct copy of any annual statement, or amendment thereof, filed with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files such statement or amendment with such State insurance authority.

"(c) Any insurer or other person executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under section 1222 or section 1232 shall keep reasonable records which fully disclose the total costs of the programs undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

"(d) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of investigation, audit, and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of any insurer or other person that are pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to the Secretary. Such audits shall be conducted to the maximum extent feasible in cooperation with the State insurance authorities and through the use of their examining facilities.

"STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

"SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized and directed to conduct a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure—

"(1) an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas; and

"(2) adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas.

"(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of this study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and Congress no later than one year following the date of the enactment of this title.

"OTHER STUDIES

"SEC. 1236. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title including, but not limited to, inquires concerning—

"(1) the operation of plans under part A;

"(2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas;

"(3) the market for private reinsurance; and

"(4) loss prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

"(b) To such extent and under such circumstances as he deems appropriate, the Secretary may conduct any study authorized under this section in cooperation with State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry.

"GENERAL POWERS

"SEC. 1237. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c)(2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950.

"SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

"SEC. 1238. The Secretary may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a reimbursable basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, except that any such agency having custody of any data relating to any of the matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall, to the extent permitted by law upon request of the Secretary, make such data available to the Secretary.

"ADVANCE PAYMENTS

"SEC. 1239. Any payments which are made under the authority of this title may be made, after necessary adjustments on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments in advance or by way of reimbursement. Payments may be made in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

"TAXATION

"SEC. 1240. (a) The National Insurance Development Fund, including its reserves, surplus, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any State, or any subdivision thereof, except that any real property acquired by the Secretary as a result of reinsurance shall be subject to taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"(b) Any measures undertaken by an State to meet or to fund its obligations under section 1223(a)(1) shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

"APPROPRIATIONS

"SEC. 1241. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title."

FINANCING

SEC. 1004. Section 520(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "necessary" in the first sentence, and by striking out the period at the end of such sentence and inserting in lieu thereof ", and (2) to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII of this Act: Provided, however, That borrowings to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII shall be limited to $150,000,000 or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine."

TITLE XI—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA INSURANCE PLACEMENT ACT

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1101. This title may be cited as the "District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act".

DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1102. The purposes of this title are—

(1) to assure stability in the property insurance market for property located in the District of Columbia;

(2) to assure the availability of basic property insurance as defined by this title;

(3) to encourage maximum use, in obtaining basic property insurance, of the normal insurance market provided by authorized insurers; and

(4) to provide for the equitable distribution among insurers of the responsibility for insuring qualified property for which basic property insurance cannot be obtained through the normal insurance market by authorizing the establishment of a joint underwriting association.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1103. As used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires—

(a) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or his designated agent.

(b) "Basic property insurance" means insurance against direct loss to property caused by perils as defined and limited in the standard fire policy and extended coverage endorsement thereon as approved by the Commissioner, and such other property insurance coverages, including, but not limited to, vandalism and malicious mischief, burglary, theft, and robbery, for such types, classes, and locations of property as may be designated by the Commissioner pursuant to the procedures set out in section 1105 of this title, but shall not include insurance on automobiles.

(c) "Environmental hazard" means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner.

(d) "Inspection bureau" means the rating bureau or other organization designated by the Commissioner to perform inspections to determine the condition of the properties for which basic property insurance is sought.

(e) "Industry Placement Facility" means the facility formed by all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing basic property insurance (including homeowners and commercial multiperil policies) within the District of Columbia to assist agents, brokers, and applicants in securing basic property insurance.

(f) "Premiums written" means gross direct premiums charged with respect to property in the District of Columbia on all policies of basic property insurance and the basic property insurance premium components of all multiperil policies, less all premiums and dividends returned, paid, or credited to policyholders or the unused or unabsorbed portions of premium deposits.

(g) "Property owner" means any person having an insurable interest in real, personal, or mixed real and personal property.

INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

SEC. 1104. (a) Within thirty days after the effective date of this title all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies, shall establish an Industry Placement Facility to formulate and administer a program, subject to disapproval by the Commissioner in whole or in part, to seek the equitable apportionment among such insurers of basic property insurance which may be afforded applicants in the District of Columbia whose property is insurable in accordance with reasonable underwriting standards and who individually or through their insurance agent or broker request the aid of the Facility to procure such insurance. The Facility shall seek to place insurance with one or more participating companies up to the full insurable value of the risk, if requested, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

(b) The Facility may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, provide, as part of its program for the equitable distribution of commercial risks and dwelling risks among insurers.

(c) Each such insurer shall participate in the Industry Placement Facility program in accordance with the established rules of the program as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the established rules of the program, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 1105. (a) The Industry Placement Facility shall on its own motion, or within thirty days after a request by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner such proposed rules and regulations applicable to insurers, agents and brokers deemed necessary to assure all property owners fair access to basic property insurance through the normal insurance markets, including, but not limited to, rules and regulations concerning—

(1) the manner and scope of inspections of risks by an inspection bureau;

(2) the preparation and filing of inspection reports and reports on actions taken in connection with inspected risks, and summaries thereof;

(3) the operation of an Industry Placement Facility, including but not limited to rules and regulations concerning—

(A) the basic property insurance coverages of such facility;

(B) the reasonable effort to obtain insurance in the normal commercial market required by an applicant before recourse to the Facility; and

(C) the appeals procedure within the Facility for any applicant for insurance regarding any ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the Facility.

(b) The Commissioner may adopt such of the rules submitted pursuant to subsection (a) of this section as he approves. If the Commissioner disapproves any proposed rule submitted he may require the Facility to submit a revision thereof within such time as he may designate, but no less than five days. If the Facility fails to submit a proposed rule, or revision thereof, within the designated time, or if a revised rule is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner may adopt such rule covering the proposed general subject matter as he shall deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

JOINT UNDERWRITING ASSOCIATION

SEC. 1106. (a) The Commissioner is authorized to establish by order a joint underwriting association if he finds, after notice and hearing, that such association is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. Such joint underwriting association shall consist of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner or any component thereof in multiperil policies.

(b) Every such insurer shall be and remain a member of the association and shall comply with all requirements of membership as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the requirements of membership, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

(c)(1) Within sixty days following the effective date of the order of the Commissioner under this section the association shall submit to him a proposal plan of operation, consistent with the provisions of this Act, which shall provide for economical, fair, and nondiscriminatory administration of the association and for the prompt and efficient provision of reinsurance for such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner without regard to environmental hazards, including, but not limited to, provisions concerning—

(A) preliminary assessment of all members for initial expenses necessary to commence operations;

(B) establishment of necessary facilities;

(C) management and operation of the association;

(D) assessment of members to defray losses and expenses;

(E) commission arrangements;

(F) reasonable underwriting standards;

(G) assumption and cession of reinsurance; and

(H) such other matters as the Commissioner may designate.

(2) The plan of operation shall be subject to approval by the Commissioner in whole or in part. If the Commissioner disapproves all or any part of the proposed plan of operation, the association shall within thirty days thereafter submit for his review an appropriately revised plan of operation and if the association fails so to do, or if the revised plan so filed is unacecptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner shall promulgate a plan of operation.

(3) The association may, on its own initiative, amend such plan, subject to approval by the Commissioner, and shall amend such plan at the direction of the Commissioner if he finds such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(d) All members of the association shall participate in its writings, expenses, profits, and losses, or in such categories thereof as may be separately established by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner, in the proportion that the premiums written by each such member (but excluding premiums for insurance on automobiles) during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums written in the District of Columbia by all members of the association, or in accordance with such other formula as devised by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner. Such participation by each insurer in the association shall be determined annually on the basis of such premiums written during the preceding calendar year as disclosed in the annual statements and other reports filed by the insurer with the Commissioner.

(e) The association shall be governed by a board of eleven directors, elected annually by cumulative voting by the members of the association, whose votes in such election shall be weighted in accordance with the proportionate amount of each member's net direct premiums written in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar year. The first board shall be elected at a meeting of the members or their authorized representatives, which shall be held within thirty days after the effective date of the order under this section establishing the association, at a time and place designated by the Commissioner.

EXAMINATION BY COMMISSIONER

SEC. 1107. The operation of the inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and any joint underwriting association shall at all times be subject to the supervision and regulation of the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the power of visitation of and examination into such operations and free access to all the books, records, files, papers, and documents that relate to such operations, may summon and qualify witnesses under oath, and may examine directors, officers, agents, or employees or any otehr person having knowledge of such operations.

WAIVER OF LIABILITY

SEC. 1108. There shall be no liability on the part of, and no cause of action of any nature shall arise against insurers, the inspection bureau, the "Industry Placement Facility, the joint underwriting association or their agents or employees, or any officer or employee of the District of Columbia, for any statements made in good faith by them concerning the insurability of property in any reports or other communications or at the time of the hearings conducted in connection therewith, or in the findings with respect thereto required by the provisions of this title. The reports and communications of the inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and joint underwriting association with respect to individual properties shall not be open to inspection by, or otherwise available to, the public.

ANNUAL REPORTS BY ASSOCIATION

SEC. 1109. The association shall file with the Commissioner, annually on or before the 1st day of March, a statement which shall contain information with respect to its transactions, conditions, operations, and affairs during the preceding year. Such statement shall contain such matters and information as are prescribed by the Commissioner and shall be in such form as is approved by him. The Commissioner may at any time require the association to furnish him with additional information with respect to its transactions, condition or any matter connected therewith which he considers to be material and which will assist him in evaluating the scope, operation, and experience of the association.

APPEALS

SEC. 1110. (a) Any applicant for insurance and any affected insurer may appeal to the Commissioner within ninety days after any final ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the inspection bureau, Industry Placement Facility, or joint underwriting association, following exhaustion of remedies available within such bureau, facility, or association.

(b) All final orders or decisions of the Commissioner made pursuant to this Act shall be subject to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals pursuant to section 11–742 of the District of Columbia Code.

REIMBURSEMENT OF NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

SEC. 1111. (a) In order to carry out the purposes of this Act and to make available to insurers who participate hereunder reinsurance against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders afforded under the National Insurance Development Corporation Act of 1968, the Commissioner is authorized to assess each insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia an amount, in the proportion that the premiums earned by each such company, on lines reinsured by the National Insurance Development Corporation, during the preceding calendar year bears to the aggregate premiums earned on those lines in the District of Columbia by all insuarnce companies, sufficient to provide a fund to reimburse the Corporation in the manner set forth in section 1223(a)(1) of the National Insurance Development Corporation Act of 1968. Such fund may be added to or such a fund may be created by moneys appropriated therefor by the Congress.

(b) Insurers shall add to the premium rate an amount, to be approved by the Commissioner, sufficient to recover within not more than three years, any amounts assessed pursuant to subsection (a) of this section during the preceding calendar year. Such amount shall be a separate charge to the insured in addition to the premium to be paid and shall be reflected as such in the policy of insurance: Provided, That no commission shall be paid thereon to any agent or broker producing or selling the policy of insurance wherein such amount is added.

DELEGATION

SEC. 1112. The Commissioner is authorized to delegate any of the functions vested in him by this title.

JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1113. Section 11–742(a) of the District of Columbia Code is amended (a) by striking "and" immediately following clause (9); (b) by striking the period following clause (10) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and (c) by adding the following:

"(11) final orders and decisions of the Commissioner under the provisions of the District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act."

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1114. This title shall be effective upon a determination by the Commissioner that the Congress has enacted legislation providing Federal reinsurance against losses from civil disorders.

TITLE XII—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1201. This title may be cited as the "National Flood Insurance Act of 1968".

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1202. (a) The Congress finds that (1) from time to time flood disasters have created personal hardships and economic distress which have required unforeseen disaster relief measures and have placed an increasing burden on the Nation's resources; (2) despite the installation of preventive and protective works and the adoption of other public programs designed to reduce losses caused by flood damage, these methods have not been sufficient to protect adequately against growing exposure to future flood losses; (3) as a matter of national policy, a reasonable method of sharing the risk of flood losses is through a program of flood insurance which can complement and encourage preventive and protective measures; and (4) if such a program is initiated and carried out gradually, it can be expanded as knowledge is gained and experience is appraised, thus eventually making flood insurance coverage available on reasonable terms and conditions to persons who have need for such protection.

(b) The Congress also finds that (1) many factors have made it uneconomic for the private insurance industry alone to make flood insurance available to those in need of such protection on reasonable terms and conditions; but (2) a program of flood insurance with large-scale participation of the Federal Government and carried out to the maximum extent practicable by the private insurance industry is feasible and can be initiated.

(c) The Congress further finds that (1) a program of flood insurance can promote the public interest by providing appropriate protection against the perils of flood losses and encouraging sound land use by minimizing exposure of property to flood losses; and (2) the objectives of a flood insurance program should be integrally related to a unified national program for flood plain management and, to this end, it is the sense of Congress that within two years following the date of the enactment of this Act the President should transmit to the Congress for its consideration any further proposals necessary for such a unified program, including proposals for the allocation of costs among beneficiaries of flood protection.

(d) It is therefore the purpose of this title to (1) authorize a flood insurance program by means of which flood insurance, over a period of time, can be made available on a nationwide basis through the cooperative efforts of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry, and (2) provide flexibility in the program so that such flood insurance may be based on workable methods of pooling risks, minimizing costs, and distributing burdens equitably among those who will be protected by flood insurance and the general public.

(e) It is the further purpose of this title to (1) encourage State and local governments to make appropriate land use adjustments to constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage and minimize damage caused by flood losses, (2) guide the development of proposed future construction, where practicable, away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards, (3) encourage lending and credit institutions, as a matter of national policy, to assist in furthering the objectives of the flood insurance program, (4) assure that any Federal assistance provided under the program will be related closely to all flood-related programs and activities of the Federal Government, and (5) authorize continuing studies of flood hazards in order to provide for a constant reappraisal of the flood insurance program and its effect on land use requirements.

AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FLOOD INSURANCE ACT OF 1956

SEC. 1203. (a) The second sentence of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (79 Stat. 1078) is amended—

(1) by striking out "rate" the second time it appears in such sentence, and inserting in lieu thereof "market yield", and

(2) by striking out "as of the last day of", and inserting in lieu thereof "during".

(b) Section 15(e) of such Act is further amended by striking out the last sentence thereof.

(c) Sections 2 through 14, subsections (a) through (d), and (f) and (g) of section 15, and sections 16 through 23 of such Act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER I—THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

BASIC AUTHORITY

SEC. 1204. (a) To carry out the purposes of this title, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Developemnt is authorized to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program which will enable interested persons to purchase insurance against loss resulting from physical damage to or loss of real property or personal property related thereto arising from any flood occurring in the United States.

(b) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent practicable, encourage and arrange for—

(1) appropriate financial praticipation and risk sharing in the program by insurance companies and other insurers, and

(2) other appropirate participation, on other than a risk-sharing basis, by insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, in accordance with the provisions of chapter II.

SCOPE OF PROGRAM AND PRIORITIES

SEC. 1205. (a) In carrying out the flood insurance programs the Secretary shall afford a priority to making flood insurance available to cover residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families and business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns.

(b) If on the basis of—

(1) studies and investigations undertaken and carried out and information received or exchanged under section 1108, and

(2) such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary determines that it would be feasible to extend the flood insurance program to cover any types or classes of—

(A) other residential properties,

(B) other business properties,

(C) agricultural properties,

(D) properties occupied by private nonprofit organizations, or

(E) properties owned by State and local governments and agencies thereof,

he shall transmit such determination to the Congress together with his recommendations with respect to any such extension of the program.

(c) The Secretary shall make flood insurance available in only those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have—

(1) evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program, and

(2) given satisfactory assurance that by June 30, 1970, permanent land use and control measures will have been adopted for the State or area (or subdivision) which are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use developed under section 1261, and that the application and enforcement of such measures will commence as soon as technical information on floodways and on controlling flood elevations is available.

NATURE AND LIMITATION OF INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1206. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1218, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1231, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, provide by regulation for general terms and conditions of insurability which shall be applicable to properties eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1106, including—

(1) the types, classes, and locations of any such properties which shall be eligible for flood insurance;

(2) the nature and limits of loss or damage in any areas (or subdivisions thereof) which may be covered by such insurance;

(3) the classification, limitation, and rejection of any risks which may be advisable;

(4) appropriate minimum premiums;

(5) appropriate loss-deductibles; and

(6) any other terms and conditions relating to insurance coverage or exclusion which may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) In addition to any other terms and conditions under subsection (a), such regulations shall provide that—

(1) any flood insurance coverage based on chargeable premium rates under section 1208 which are less than the estimated premium rates under section 1207(a)(1) shall not exceed—

(A) in the case of residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families—

(i) $17,500 aggregate liability for any dwelling unit, and $30,000 for any single dwelling structure containing more than one dwelling unit, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit;

(B) in the case of business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns, an aggregate liability with respect to any single structure, including any contents thereof related to premises of small business occupants (as that term is defined by the Secretary), which shall be equal to (i) $30,000 plus (ii) $5,000 multiplied by the number of such occupants and shall be allocated among such occupants (or among the occupant or occupants and the owner) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary; except that the aggregate liability for the structure itself may in no case exceed $30,000; and

(C) in the case of any other properties which may became eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1205—

(i) $30,000 aggregate liability for any single structure, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit in the case of residential properties, or per occupant (as that term is defined by the Secretary) for any contents related to the premises occupied in the case of any other properties; and

(2) any flood insurance coverage which may be made available in excess of any of the limits specified in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (1) (or allocated to any person under subparagraph (B) of such paragraph) shall be based only on chargeable premium rates under section 1208 which are not less than the estimated premium rates under section 1207 (a) (1) and the amount of such excess coverage shall not in any case exceed in amount is equal to the applicable limit so specified (or allocated).

ESTIMATES OF PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1207. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake and carry out such studies and investigations and receive or exchange such information as may be necessary to estimate, and shall from time to time estimate, on an area, subdivision, or other appropriate basis—

(1) the risk premium rates for flood insurance which—

(A) based on consideration of the risk involved and accepted actuarial principles, and

(B) including—

(i) the applicable operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1211 and reflected in such rates, and

(ii) any administrative expenses (or portion of such expenses) of carrying out the flood insurance program which, in his discretion, should properly be reflected in such rates, would be required in order to make such insurance available on an actuarial basis for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage is available under section 1205(a) (or is recommended to the Congress under section 1205(b));

(2) the rates, if less than the rates estimated under paragraph (1), which would be reasonable, would encourage prospective insureds to purchase flood insurance, and would be consistent with the purposes of this title; and

(3) the extent, if any, to which federally assisted or other flood protection measures initiated after the date of the enactment of this title affect such rates.

(b) In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible and on a reimbursement basis, utilize the services of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, and, as appropriate, other Federal departments or agencies, and for such purposes may enter into agreements or other appropriate arrangements with any persons.

(c) The Secretary shall give priority to conducting studies and investigations and making estimates under this section in those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program.

ESTABLISHMENT OF CHARGEABLE PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1208. (a) On the basis of estimates made under section 1108 and such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1218, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1231, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, prescribe by regulation—

(1) chargeable premium rates for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage shall be available under section 1205 (at less than the estimated risk premium rates under section 1207(a)(1), where necessary), and

(2) the terms and conditions under which, and the areas (including subdivisions thereof) within which, such rates shall apply.

(b) Such rates shall, insofar as practicable, be—

(1) based on a consideration of the respective risks involved, including differences in risks due to land use measures, floodproofing, flood forecasting, and similar measures.

(2) adequate, on the basis of accepted actuarial principles, to provide reserves for anticipated losses, or, if less than such amount, consistent with the objective of making flood insurance available where necessary at reasonable rates so as to encourage prospective insureds to purchase such insurance and with the purposes of this title, and

(3) stated so as to reflect the basis for such rates, including the differences (if any) between the estimated risk premium rates under section 1207(a)(1) and the estimated rates under section 1207(a)(2).

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the chargeable rate with respect to any property, the construction or substantial improvement of which the Secretary determines has been started after the identification of the area in which such property is located has been published under paragraph (1) of section 1260, shall not be less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate for such area (or subdivision thereof) under section 1207(a)(1).

(d) In the event any chargeable premium rate prescribed under this section—

(1) is a rate which is not less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate under section 1207(a)(1), and

(2) includes any amount for administrative expenses of carrying out the flood insurance program which have been estimated under clause (ii) of section 1207(a)(1)(B), a sum equal to such amount shall be paid to the Secretary, and he shall deposit such sum in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1210.

FINANCING

SEC. 1209. (a) All authority which was vested in the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by virtue of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1084) (pertaining to the issue of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury), as amended by subsections (a) and (b) of section 1202 of this Act, shall be available to the Secretary for the purpose of carrying out the flood insurance program under this title; except that the total amount of notes and obligations which may be issued by the Secretary pursuant to such authority shall not exceed $150,000,000, and all authority of the Secretary to issue notes and obligations under said section 15(e) beyond such sum is hereby rescinded.

(b) Any funds borrowed by the Secretary under this authority shall, from time to time, be deposited in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1210.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 1210. (a) To carry out the flood insurance program authorized by this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish in the Treasury of the United States a National Flood Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") which shall be available, without fiscal year limitation—

(1) for making such payments as may, from time to time, be required under section 1234;

(2) to pay reinsurance claims under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1235;

(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums as may be borrowed from him (together with interest) in accordance with the authority provided in section 1209; and

(4) for the purposes specified in subsection (d) under the conditions provided therein.

(b) The fund shall be credited with—

(1) such funds borrowed in accordance with the authority provided in section 1209 as may from time to time be deposited in the fund;

(2) premiums, fees, or other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1235;

(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

(4) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund pursuant to subsection (c);

(5) such sums as are required to be paid to the Secretary under section 1208(d); and

(6) receipts from any other operations under this title (including premiums under the conditions specified in subsection (d), and salvage proceeds, if any, resulting from reinsurance coverage).

(c) If, after—

(1) all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated, and

(2) any outstanding amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations authorized under section 1276 (a) (2) (B) have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced, with interest accrued at the rate prescribed under section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956, as in effect immediately prior to the enactment of this title,

the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

(d) In the event the Secretary makes a finding in accordance with the provisions of section 1240 that operation of the flood insurance program, in whole or in part, should be carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, the fund shall be available for all purposes incident thereto, including—

(1) costs incurred in the adjustment and payment of any claims for losses, and

(2) payment of applicable operating costs set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1211,

for so long as the program is so carried out, and in such event any premiums paid shall be deposited by the Secretary to the credit of the fund.

(e) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations.

OPERATING COSTS AND ALLOWANCES

SEC. 1211. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time negotiate with appropriate representatives of the insurance industry for the purpose of establishing—

(1) a current schedule of operating costs applicable both to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers and to insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations participating on other than a risk-sharing basis, and

(2) a current schedule of operating allowances applicable to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers, which may be payable in accordance with the provisions of chapter II, and such schedules shall from time to time be prescribed in regulations.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a)—

(1) The term "operating costs" shall (without limiting such term) include—

(A) expense reimbursements covering the direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred in connection with selling and servicing flood insurance coverage;

(B) reasonable compensation payable for selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, or commissions or service fees paid to producers;

(C) loss adjustment expenses; and

(D) other direct, actual, and necessary expenses which the Secretary finds are incurred in connection with selling or servicing flood insurance coverage; and

(2) the term "operating allowances" shall (without limiting such term) include amounts for profit and contingencies which the Secretary finds reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

SEC. 1212. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe regulations establishing the general method or methods by which proved and approved claims for losses may be adjusted and paid for any damage to or loss of property which is covered by flood insurance made available under the provisions of this title.

DISSEMINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE INFORMATION

SEC. 1213. The Secretary shall from time to time take such action as may be necessary in order to make information and data available to the public, and to any State or local agency or official, with regard to—

(1) the flood insurance program, its coverage and objectives, and

(2) estimated and chargeable flood insurance premium rates, including the basis for and differences between such rates in accordance with the provisions of section 1208.

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN DUPLICATIONS OF BENEFITS

SEC. 1214. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, no Federal disaster assistance shall be made available to any person—

(1) for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction or damage is covered by a valid claim which may be adjusted and paid under flood insurance made available under the authority of this title, or

(2) except in the situation provided for under subsection (b), for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered by a valid claim under flood insurance which had been made available under the authority of this title, if—

(A) such loss, destruction, or damage occurred subsequent to one year following the date flood insurance was made available in the area (or subdivision thereof) in which such property or the major part thereof was located, and

(B) such property was eligible for flood insurance under this title at that date;

and in such circumstances the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered shall be presumed (for purposes of this subsection) to be an amount not less than the maximum limit of insurable loss or damage applicable to such property in such area (or subdivision thereof), pursuant to regulations under section 1206, at the time insurance was made available in such area (or subdivision thereof).

(b) In order to assure that the provisions of subsection (a)(2) will not create undue hardship for low-income persons who might otherwise benefit from the provision of Federal disaster assistance, the Secretary shall provide by regulation for the circumstances in which the provisions of subsection (a)(2) shall not be applicable to any such persons.

(c) For purposes of this section, "Federal disaster assistance" shall include any Federal financial assistance which may be made available to any person as a result of—

(1) a major disaster (within the meaning of that term as determined by the President pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to State and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g)),

(2) a natural disaster, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 321 of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 (7 U.S.C. 1961), or

(3) a disaster with respect to which loans may be made under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)).

(d) For purposes of section 10 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1320), the term "financial assistance" shall be deemed to include any flood insurance which is made available under this title.

STATE AND LOCAL LAND USE CONTROLS

SEC. 1215. After June 30, 1970, no new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title in any area (or subdivision thereof) unless an appropriate public body shall have adopted permanent land use and control measures) with effective enforcement provisions) which the Secretary finds are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use under section 1261.

PROPERTIES IN VIOLATION OF STATE AND LOCAL LAW

SEC. 1216. No new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title for any property which the Secretary finds has been declared by a duly constituted State or local zoning authority, or other authorized public body, to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances which are intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development occupancy in flood-prone areas.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROGRAMS

SEC. 1118. In carrying out this title, the Secretary shall consult with other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, and with interstate, State, and local agencies having responsibilities for flood control, flood forecasting, or flood damage prevention, in order to assure to the maximum extent practicable that the programs of such agencies and the flood insurance program authorized under this title are mutually consistent.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

SEC. 1119. (a) The Secretary shall appoint a flood insurance advisory committee, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and such committee shall advise the Secretary in the preparation of any regulations prescribed in accordance with this title and with respect to policy matters arising in the administration of this title, and shall perform such other responsibilities as the Secretary may, from time to time, assign to such committee.

(b) Such committee shall consist of not more than fifteen persons and such persons shall be selected from among representatives of—

(1) the insurance industry,

(2) State and local governments,

(3) lending institutions,

(4) the homebuilding industry, and

(5) the general public.

(c) Members of the committee shall, while attending conferences or meetings thereof, be entitled to receive compensation at a rate fixed by the Secretary but not exceeding $100 per day, including traveltime, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as is authorized under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

INITIAL PROGRAM LIMITATION

SEC. 1219. The face amount of flood insurance coverage outstanding and in force at any one time under this title shall not exceed the sum of $2,500,000,000.

REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

SEC. 1220. The Secretary shall include a report of operations under this title in the annual report to the President for submission to the Congress required by section 8 of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act.

CHAPTER II—ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 1230. Following such consultation with representatives of the insurance industry as may be necessary, the Secretary shall implement the flood insurance program authorized under chapter I in accordance with the provisions of part A of this chapter and, if a determination is made by him under section 1240, under part B of this chapter.

PART A—INDUSTRY PROGRAM WITH FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

INDUSTRY FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1231. (a) The Secretary is authorized to encourage and otherwise assist any insurance companies and other insurers which meet the requirements prescribed under subsection (b) to form, associate, or otherwise join together in a pool—

(1) in order to provide the flood insurance coverage authorized under chapter I; and

(2) for the purpose of assuming, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, such financial responsibility as will enable such companies and other insurers, with the Federal financial and other assistance available under this title, to assume a reasonable proportion of responsibility for the adjustment and payment of claims for losses under the flood insurance program.

(b) In order to promote the effective administration of the flood insurance program under this part, and to assure that the objectives of this title are furthered, the Secretary is authorized to prescribe appropriate requirements for insurance companies and other insurers participating in such pool including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for capital or surplus or assets.

AGREEMENTS WITH FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1232. (a) The Secretary is authorized to enter into such agreements with the pool formed or otherwise created under this part as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) Such agreements shall specify—

(1) the terms and conditions under which risk capital will be available for the adjustment and payment of claims,

(2) the terms and conditions under which the pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein) shall participate in premiums received and profits or losses realized or sustained,

(3) the maximum amount of profit, established by the Secretary and set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1212, which may be realized by such pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein),

(4) the terms and conditions under which operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1212 may be paid, and

(5) the terms and conditions under which premium equalization payments under section 1234 will be made and reinsurance claims under section 1235 will be paid.

(c) In addition, such agreements shall contain such provisions as the Secretary finds necessary to assure that—

(1) no insurance company or other insurer which meets the requirements prescribed under section 1231(b), and which has indicated an intention to participate in the flood insurance program on a risk-sharing basis, will be excluded from participating in the pool,

(2) the insurance companies and other insurers participating in the pool will take whatever action may be necessary to provide continuity of flood insurance coverage by the pool, and

(3) any insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations will be permitted to cooperate with the pool as fiscal agents or otherwise, on other than a risk-sharing basis, to the maximum extent practicable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1233. The insurance companies and other insurers which form, associate, or otherwise join together in the pool under this part may adjust and pay all claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance in accordance with the provisions of this title and, upon the disallowance by any such company or other insurer of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, may institute an action on such claim against such company or other insurer in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PREMIUM EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 1234. (a) The Secretary, on such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe, shall make periodic payments to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1231, in recognition of such reductions in chargeable premium rates under section 1208 below estimated premium rates under section 1207(a)(1) as are required in order to make flood insurance available on reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) Such payments shall be based only on the aggregate amount of flood insurance retained by the pool after ceding reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1235, and shall not exceed an aggregate amount in any payment period equal to the sum of the following:

(1) an amount for losses which bears the same ratio to the amount of all proved and approved claims for losses under this title during any designated period as the amount equal to the difference between—

(A) the sum of all premium payments for flood insurance coverage in force under this title during such designated period which would have been payable during such period if all such coverage were based on estimated risk premium rates under section 1207(a)(1) (excluding any administrative expenses which may be reflected in such rates, as specified in clause (ii) of section 1207(a)(1)(B)), and

(B) the sum of the premium payments actually paid or payable for such insurance under this title during such period,

bears to the amount specified in clause (A); and

(2) subject to the terms and conditions specified in the agreements entered into with the pool under section 1232, a proportionate amount for appropriate operating costs and allowances (as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1211) during any designated period which bears the same ratio to the total amount of such operating costs and allowances during such period as the ratio specified in paragraph (1).

(c) Designated periods under this section and the methods for determining the sum of premiums paid or payable during such periods shall be established by the Secretary.

REINSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized to take such action as may be necessary in order to make available, to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1231, reinsurance for losses (due to claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance) which are in excess of losses assumed by such pool in accordance with the excess loss agreement entered into under subsection (c).

(b) Such reinsurance shall be made available pursuant to contract, agreement, or any other arrangement, in consideration of such payment of a premium, fee, or other charge as the Secretary finds necessary to cover anticipated losses and other costs of providing such reinsurance.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to negotiate an excess loss agreement, from time to time, under which the amount of flood insurance retained by the pool, after ceding reinsurance, shall be adequate to further the purposes of this title, consistent with the objective of maintaining appropriate financial participation and risk sharing to the maximum extent practicable on the part of participating insurance companies and other insurers.

(d) All reinsurance claims for losses in excess of losses assumed by the pool shall be submitted on a portfolio basis by such pool in accordance with terms and conditions established by the Secretary.

PART B—GOVERNMENT PROGRAM WITH INDUSTRY ASSISTANCE

FEDERAL OPERATION OF THE PROGRAM

SEC. 1240. (a) If at any time, after consultation with representatives of the insurance industry, the Secretary determines that operation of the flood insurance program as provided under part A cannot be carried out, or that such operation, in itself, would be assisted materially by the Federal Government's assumption, in whole or in part, of the operational responsibiilty for flood insurance under this title (on a temporary or other basis), he shall promptly undertake any necessary arrangements to carry out the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, utilizing, as may be practical for purposes of providing flood insurance coverage, insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, as fiscal agents of the United States.

(b) Upon making the determination referred to in subsection (a), and at least thirty days prior to implementing the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress and such report shall—

(1) state the reasons for such determination,

(2) be supported by pertinent findings,

(3) indicate the extent to which it is anticipated that the insurance industry will be utilized in providing flood insurance coverage under the program, and

(4) contain such recommendations as the Secretary deems advisable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1241. In the event the program is carried out as provided in section 1240, the Secretary shall be authorized to adjust and make payment of any claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance, and upon the disallowance by the Secretary of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance by the Secretary, may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

SERVICES BY INSURANCE INDUSTRY

SEC. 1145. (a) In administering the flood insurance program under this chapter, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropiate arrangements which may, from time to time, be necessary for the purpose of utilizing, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, the facilities and services of any insurance companies or other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, or insurance adjustment organizations; and such contracts, agreements, or arrangements may include provision for payment of applicable operating costs and allowances for such facilities and services as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1211.

(b) Any such contracts, agreements, or other arrangements may be entered into without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

USE OF INSURANCE POOL, COMPANIES, OR OTHER PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS

SEC. 1246. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the flood insurance program and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any Federal funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with pool formed or otherwise created under section 1231, or any insurance company or other private organization, for the purpose of securing performance by such pool, company, or organization of any or all of the following responsibilities:

(1) estimating and later determining any amounts of payments to be made;

(2) receiving from the Secretary, disbursing, and accounting for funds in making such payments;

(3) making such audits of the records of any insurance company or other insurer, insurance agent or broker, or insurance adjustment organization as may be necessary to assure that proper payments are made; and

(4) otherwise assisting in such manner as the contract may provide to further the purposes of this title.

(b) Any contract with the pool or an insurance company or other private organization under this section may contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary finds necessary or appropriate for carrying out responsibilities under subsection (a), and may provide for payment of any costs which the Secretary determines are incidental to carrying out such responsibilities which are covered by the contract.

(c) Any contract entered into under subsection (a) may be entered into without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

(d) No contract may be entered into under this section unless the Secretary finds that the pool, company, or organization will perform its obligations under the contract efficiently and effectively, and will meet such requirements as to financial responsibility, legal authority, and other matters as he finds pertinent.

(e) (1) Any such contract may require the pool, company, or organization or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amount as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(2) No individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section.

(3) No officer disbursing funds shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment by him under this section if it was based upon a voucher signed by an individual designated to certify payments as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(f) Any contract entered into under this section shall be for a term of one year, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of an intention to terminate at the end of the current term; except that the Secretary may terminate any such contract at any time (after resonable notice to the pool, company, or organization involved) if he finds that the pool, company, or organization has failed substantially to carry out the contract, or is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the flood insurance program authorized under this title.

SETTLEMENT AND ARBITRATION

SEC. 1247. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make final settlement of any claims or demands which may arise as a result of any financial transactions which he is authorized to carry out under this chapter, and may, to assist him in making any such settlement, refer any disputes relating to such claims or demands to arbitration, with the consent of the parties concerned.

(b) Such arbitration shall be advisory in nature, and any award, decision, or recommendation which may be made shall become final only upon the approval of the Secretary.

RECORDS AND AUDITS

SEC. 1248. (a) The flood insurance pool formed or otherwise created under part A of this chapter, and any insurance company or other private organization executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under part B of this chapter or this part, shall keep such records as the Secretary shall prescribe, including records which fully disclose the total costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit.

(b) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of the pool and any such insurance company or other private organization that are pertinent to the costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered.

CHAPTER III—COORDINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE WITH LAND-MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS IN FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

IDENTIFICATION OF FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

SEC. 1260. The Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any agreements or other arrangements with the Secretaries of the Army, the Interior, Agriculture, and Commerce, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the heads of other Federal departments or agencies, on a reimbursement basis, or with the head of any State or local agency, or enter into contracts with any persons or private firms, in order that he may—

(1) identify and publish information with respect to all flood plain areas, including coastal areas located in the United States, which have special flood hazards, within five years following the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(2) establish flood-risk zones in all such areas, and make estimates with respect to the rates of probable flood-caused loss for the various flood-risk zones for each of these areas, within fifteen years following such date.

CRITERIA FOR LAND MANAGEMENT AND USE

SEC. 1261. (a) The Secretary is authorized to carry out studies and investigations, utilizing to the maximum extent practicable the existing facilities and services of other Federal departments or agencies, and State and local governmental agencies, and any other organizations, with respect to the adequacy of State and local measures in flood-prone areas as to land management and use, flood control, flood zoning, and flood damage prevention, and may enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements to carry out such authority.

(b) Such studies and investigations shall include, but not be limited to, laws, regulations, or ordinances relating to encroachments and obstructions on stream channels and floodways, the orderly development and use of flood plains of rivers or streams, floodway encroachment lines, and flood plain zoning, building codes, building permits, and subdivision or other building restrictions.

(c) On the basis of such studies and investigations, and such other information as he deems necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time develop comprehensive criteria designed to encourage, where necessary, the adoption of permanent State and local measures which, to the maximum extent feasible, will—

(1) constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage where appropriate,

(2) guide the development of proposed construction away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards,

(3) assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and

(4) otherwise improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas, and he shall work closely with and provide any necessary technical assistance to State, interstate, and local governmental agencies, to encourage the application of such criteria and the adoption and enforcement of such measures.

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN INSURED PROPERTIES

SEC. 1262. The Secretary may, when he determines that the public interest would be served thereby, enter into negotiations with any owner of real property or interest therein in which—

(1) was located in any flood-risk area, as determined by the Secretary,

(2) was covered by flood insurance under the flood insurance program authorized under this title, and

(3) was damaged subtantially beyond repair by flood while so covered,

and may purchase such property or interests therein, for subsequent transfer, by sale, lease, donation, or otherwise, to any State or local agency which enters into an agreement with the Secretary that such property shall, for a period not less than forty years following transfer, be used for only such purposes as the Secretary may, by regulation, determine to be consistent with sound land management and use in such area.

CHAPTER IV—APPROPRIATIONS AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1270. As used in this title—

(1) the term "flood" shall have such meaning as may be prescribed in regulations of the Secretary, and may include inundation from rising waters or from the overflow of streams, rivers, or other bodies of water, or from tidal surges, abnormally high tidal water, tidal waves, tsunamis, hurricanes, or other severe storms or deluge;

(2) the terms "United States" (when used in a geographic sense) and "State" include the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands;

(3) the terms "insurance company", "other insurer", and "insurance agent or broker" include any organizations and persons authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

(4) the term "insurance adjustment organization" includes any organizations and persons engaged in the business of adjusting loss claims arising under insurance policies issued by any insurance company or other insurer;

(5) the term "person" includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, including State and local governments and agencies thereof; and

(6) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

STUDIES OF OTHER NATURAL DISASTERS

SEC. 1271. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the extent to which insurance protection against earthquakes or any other natural disaster perils, other than flood, is not available from public or private sources, and the feasibility of such insurance protection being made available.

(b) Studies under this section shall be carried out, to the maximum extent practicable, with the cooperation of other Federal departments and agencies and State and local agencies, and the Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any necessary agreements or other arrangements with such other Federal departments and agencies (on a reimbursement basis) and such State and local agencies.

PAYMENTS

SEC. 1172. Any payments under this title may be made (after necessary adjustment on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments) in advance or by way of reimbursement, and in such installments and on such conditions, as the Secretary may determine.

GOVERNMENT CORPORATION CONTROL ACT

SEC. 1273. The provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act shall apply to the program authorized under this title to the same extent as they apply to wholly owned Government corporations.

FINALITY OF CERTAIN FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

SEC. 1274. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law—

(1) any financial transaction authorized to be carried out under this title, and

(2) any payment authorized to be made or to be received in connection with any such financial transaction, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

SEC. 1275. Any administrative expenses which may be sustained by the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program authorized under this title may be paid out of appropriated funds.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1276. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may from time to time be necessary to carry out this title, including sums—

(1) to cover administrative expenses authorized under section 1275;

(2) to reimburse the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1210 for—

(A) premium equalization payments under section 1134 which have been made from such fund; and

(B) reinsurance claims paid under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1235; and

(3) to make such other payments as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) All such funds shall be available without fiscal year limitation.

TITLE XIII—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1301. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 307 of this Act) the following new section:

"MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

"SEC. 242. (a) The purpose of this section is to assist the provision of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill or who otherwise require medical care and related services of the kind customarily furnished only (or most effectively) by hospitals.

"(b) For the purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'hospital' means a facility—

"(A) which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care);

"(B) not more than 50 per centum of the total patient days of which during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescent and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis; and

"(C) which is owned and operated by one or more nonprofit corporations or associations no part of the net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; and

"(2) the terms 'mortgage' and 'mortgagor' shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207(a) of this Act, except that the mortgage, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

"(d) In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:

"(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

"(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $25,000,000, and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated replacement cost of the property or project, including equipment to be used in the operation of the hospital, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

"(3) The mortgage shall—

"(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe (except that in the case of a mortgage which covers equipment the maturity may not exceed the reasonable use expectancy of such equipment), and

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

"(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this secton unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which is located the hospital covered by the mortgage, a certification that (1) there is a need for such hospital, and (2) there are in force in such State or the political subdivision of the State in which the proposed hospital would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. No such mortgage shall be insured under this section unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

"(e) The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property or project from the lien of any mortgage insured under this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(f) The activities and functions provided for in this section shall be carried out by the agencies involved so as to encourage programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population.

"(g) Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this title, the Secretary may insure under this section a mortgage which provides permanent financing or refinancing of existing mortgage indebtedness in the case of a hospital whose permanent financing is presently lacking, if the construction of such hospital was completed between January 1, 1966, and the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(h) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section and all references therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 1302. Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the fifth sentence the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 242, except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project, voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation or association undertaking the construction; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under section 242 shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be."

TITLE XIV—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

REAFFIRMATION OF GOAL

SEC. 1401. The Congress finds that the supply of the Nation's housing is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal, established in the Housing Act of 1949, of the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family". The Congress reaffirms this national housing goal and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of twenty-six million housing units, six million of these for low and moderate income families.

ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

SEC. 1402. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall annually submit to the President and to the Council of Economic Advisers in time to provide basic material for the Economic Report of the President a report of (1) his estimate of the number of standard housing units produced through new construction and rehabilitation, private and public, in the preceding year, (2) his estimate of the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families, (3) his assessment of whether the ten-year housing goal set forth above is being met, (4) his recommendation of the current annual goal to meet the ten-year goal, and (5) his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions necessary to achieve the ten-year goal.

TITLE XV—MISCELLANEOUS

(b) Section 111(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the third time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $1,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970".

(c) Section 111(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANT PROGRAM

SEC. 1502. (a) Section 314(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended—

(1) by striking out in the first sentence "to public bodies, including cities and other political subdivisions," and inserting in lieu thereof "to public bodies (including cities and other political subdivisions) and nonprofit organizations,";

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "In the case of any such grant to a nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall require that the assisted activities and undertakings are not inconsistent with the program of the local public agency."; and

(3) by striking out in the second sentence "No such grant shall exceed two-thirds of the cost, as determined or estimated by said Secretary, of such activities or undertakings," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "No such grant shall exceed 90 per centum of the cost, as determined or estimated by the Secretary, of the assisted activities or undertakings,".

(b) Section 314(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "$10,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof $20,000,000".

AUTHORIZATION FOR URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICES PROGRAM

SEC. 1503. (a) The first sentence of section 906 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by striking out "and not to exceed $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969, and not to exceed $15,000,000 for fiscal year 1970".

(b) The second sentence of section 906 of such Act is amended to read as follows: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 1504. (a) Section 1010(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ", which amounts shall be increased in subsequent fiscal years by such sums as may be necessary".

(b) Section 1010(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "two years" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "three years".

COLLEGE HOUSING

SEC. 1505. (a) The heading of section 401 of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "LOANS" and inserting in lieu thereof "ASSISTANCE IN THE FORM OF LOANS OR ANNUAL GRANTS".

(b) Section 401(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) To assist educational institutions in providing housing and other educational facilities for students and faculties, the Secretary may make loans of funds to such institutions for the construction or purchase of such facilities or may, as an alternative to all or part of the loan (in the case of any such institution), make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase: Provided, That no such assistance shall be provided unless (1) the educational institution involved is unable to secure the necessary funds for the construction or purchase from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2) the Secretary finds that any such construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that any such facilities are not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials."

(c) Section 401(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "(c)";

(2) by striking out "of (1)" and "or (2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "of (A)" and "or (B)", respectively; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any housing or other educational facilities shall be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and provision for such grants shall be embodied in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such period. Each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between (A) the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of the loan, on the amount borrowed from other sources for the construction of such facilities, and (B) the average annual debt service which the institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, with respect to such amounts if the applicable interest rate were the rate specified in paragraph (1): Provided, That the amount on which such grant is based shall be approved by the Secretary but in no event shall exceed the total development cost of the facilities."

(d) Section 401(d) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(d)", and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted with loans made hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section."

(e) Section 401(f) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(f)(1) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the payment of annual grants to educational institutions in accordance with this section.

"(2) Contracts for annual grants under this section shall not be entered into in an aggregate amount greater than is authorized in appropriation Acts; and in any event the total amount of annual grants which may be paid to educational institutions in any year pursuant to contracts entered into under this section shall not exceed $10,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969."

(f) Section 403 of such Act is amended by striking out "the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "the amount of the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans, and not more than 12½ per centum of the funds provided for in this title for grants."

(g)(1) Section 401(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case of any loan which is made under this section to a nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation referred to in clause (5) of section 404(b), or which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under this section, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by the educational institution (referred to in clause (1) of such section) at which such corporation is located, and that, in the event of the dissolution of such corporation, title to the housing constructed with such loan will vest in such educational institution."

(2) Clause (3)(B) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "of any loan secured under this title" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "of any loan which is made under section 401, or is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(3) Clause (4) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "to obtain loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "to obtain loans or grants".

(4) The second paragraph of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after "clause (5) of this subsection," the following: "and in the case of any loan which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(h) Section 404(c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; except that in the case of the purchase of facilities such term means the cost as approved by the Secretary".

(i) The last sentence of paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) (appearing immediately before the sentence added by section 811 of this Act) is amended by inserting after "the Asian Development Bank" the following: ", or obligations issued by any State or political subdivision or any agency of a State or political subdivision for housing, university, or dormitory purposes,".

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

SEC. 1506. (a) Section 202(a) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended—

(1) by inserting in paragraph (1) after "corporations," the following: "limited profit sponsors,";

(2) by inserting in paragraph (2) after "(as defined in subsection (d)(2))," the following: "to any limited profit sponsor approved by the Secretary,"; and

(3) by inserting in paragraph (3) after "Secretary" the following: ", except that in the case of other than a corporation, consumer cooperative, or public body or agency the amount of the loan shall not exceed 90 per centum of the development cost".

(b) Section 202(c)(3) of such Act is amended by striking out "full".

(c) Section 202(e) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "prior to the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961" and inserting in lieu thereof "prior to July 1, 1967 (whether or not the insurance has actually been granted)";

(2) by inserting "or refinancing" after "financing";

(3) by inserting "foreclosure or" after "avoid"; and

(4) by inserting "tenants or" before "prospective tenants".

INTERNATIONAL HOUSING

SEC. 1509. Section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 604. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations and assemble such data from other nations, through participation in international conferences and other means, where such exchange or assembly is deemed by him to be beneficial in carrying out his responsibilities under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act or other legislation. In carrying out his responsibilities under this subsection the Secretary may—

"(1) pay the expenses of participation in activities conducted under authority of this section including, but not limited to, the compensation, travel expenses, and per diem in lieu of subsistence of persons serving in an advisory capacity while away from their homes or regular places of business in connection with attendance at international meetings and conferences, or other travel for the purpose of exchange or assembly of data relating to housing and urban planning and development; but such travel expenses shall not exceed those authorized for regular officers and employees traveling in connection with said activities; and

"(2) accept from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations, funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations to be utilized jointly in carrying out activities under this section.

"(b) International programs and activities carried out by the Secretary under the authority provided in subsection (a) shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for the purpose of assuring that such authority shall be exercised in a manner consistent with the foreign policy of the United States."

ELIGIBILITY FOR RENT SUPPLEMENT PAYMENTS

SEC. 1510. Notwithstanding any other provision of law respecting the date after which a mortgage must have been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make, and contract to make, rent supplement payments under the provisions of section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to the owners of the housing projects known as the 114th Street rehabilitation project and the 114th Street rehabilitation project numbered 2, in New York City, New York (project numbers 012–33501 and 012–33512).

CONSOLIDATION OF LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SEC. 1511. All projects now operated and maintained by the National Capital Housing Authority pursuant to title I of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act are deemed to be low-rent housing projects and may be consolidated, pursuant to section 15(6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into any contract for annual contributions covering projects maintained and operated pursuant to title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN GARDEN CITY, MICHIGAN

SEC. 1512. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Florence Primary School in Garden City, Michigan, local expenditures made in connection with such school shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward the Cherry Hill urban renewal project (Mich. R–46) for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

SEC. 1513. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the storm drainage system in the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project (Calif. R–67) in Sacramento, California, local expeditures made in connection with such storm drainage system located in that project shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward that project for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

SELF-HELP STUDIES

SEC. 1514. (a) Section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by inserting after the words "improved means" the following: ", including the study of self-help in the construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance of housing for low-income persons and families and the methods of selecting, involving, and directing such persons and families in self-help activities,".

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make a report to the Congress, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, setting forth the results of the self-help studies and demonstrations carried out under section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961, together with such recommendations as he deems appropriate.

EARTHQUAKE STUDY

SEC. 1515. Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "three years after the appropriation of funds for this study" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1969".

HOME OWNERS' LOAN ACT OF 1933

SEC. 1516. (a) Section 5(b) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended to read as follows:

"(b)(1) An association may raise capital in the form of such savings deposits, shares, or other accounts, for fixed, minimum, or indefinite periods of time (all of which are referred to in this section as savings accounts and all of which shall have the same priority upon liquidation) as are authorized by its charter or by regulations of the Board, and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized. Holders of savings accounts and obligors of an association shall, to such extent as may be provided by its charter or by regulations of the Board, be members of the association, and shall have such voting rights and such other rights as are thereby provided. Except as may be otherwise authorized by the association's charter or regulation of the Board in the case of savings accounts for fixed or minimum terms of not less than thirty days, the payment of any savings account shall be subject to the right of the association to require such advance notice, not less than thirty days, as shall be provided for by the charter of the association or the regulations of the Board. The payment of withdrawals from savings accounts in the event an association does not pay all withdrawals in full (subject to the right of the association to require notice) shall be subject to such rules and procedures as may be prescribed by the association's charter or by regulation of the Board, but any association which, except as authorized in writing by the Board, fails to make full payment of any withdrawal when due shall be deemed to be in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact business within the meaning of subsection (d) of this section. Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association, but the Board may by regulation provide for withdrawal or transfer of savings accounts upon nontransferrable order or authorization.

"(2) To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended—

(1) by striking out "shares" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "savings accounts or securities"; and

(2) by inserting after the first semicolon in the second proviso the following words: "or in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;".

(c) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding immediately after the second paragraph thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subjection, but subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe, any such association may make and invest in—

"(A) any loan not exceeding $5,000 for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, or

"(B) any loan for the purpose of mobile home financing."

(d) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"Any such association may invest in loans, or interests in loans secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly."

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK ACT

SEC. 1517. Section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1432), is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 12.", and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) Subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board, one or more Federal home loans banks may acquire, hold, or dispose of, in whole or in part, or facilitate such acquisition, holding, or disposition by members of any such bank of, housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections."

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 1518. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), (9), and (10)".

(b) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "clauses (2), (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "clauses (2), (3), (7)".

(c) Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "and (9)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(9), and (10)".

(d) Section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage" immediately after "twenty-five years".

(e) Section 213(o) of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof four new sentences as follows: "Moneys in the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Secretary may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligations of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this subsection. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(f) Section 810(e) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "private corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor approved by the Secretary", and

(2) by striking out "corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the third and fourth sentences and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor".

(g) Section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "corporations restricted by" and inserting in lieu thereof "corporations or other legal entities restricted by or under".

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN].

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read a third time and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H.R. 17989) was laid on the table.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON S. 3497, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 3497) to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, insist on the House amendment, and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas? The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. PATMAN, BARRETT, Mrs. SULLIVAN, Messrs. REUSS, ASHLEY, MOORHEAD, WIDNALL, Mrs. DWYER, and Mr. BROWN of Michigan.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Arrington, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H.R. 12120) entitled "An act to assist courts, correctional systems, and community agencies to prevent, treat, and control juvenile delinquency; to support research and training efforts in the prevention, treatment, and control of juvenile delinquency; and for other purposes," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. CLARK, Mr. RANDOLPH, Mr. NELSON, Mr. JAVITS, and Mr. PROUTY to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate disagrees to the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 3418) entitled "An act to authorize appropriations for the fiscal years 1970 and 1971 for the construction of certain highways in accordance with title 23 of the United States Code, and for other purposes," requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. RANDOLPH, Mr. GRUENING, Mr. JORDAN of North Carolina, Mr. BAYH, Mr. YOUNG of Ohio, Mr. COOPER, Mr. FONG, and Mr. JORDAN of Idaho to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

MARITIME AUTHORIZATION—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. LENNON filed the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 15189) to authorize appropriations for certain maritime programs of the Department of Commerce:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 1678)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 15189) to authorize appropriations for certain maritime programs of the Department of Commerce, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1 and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "$200,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2 and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "$10,960,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 15189) to authorize appropriations for certain maritime programs of the Department of Commerce, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

Amendment No. 1: Paragraph (a) of the first section of the House bill authorized an appropriation of $237,470,000 for acquisition, construction, or reconstruction of vessels and construction-differential subsidy and cost of national defense features incident to the construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning of ships. Senate amendment No. 1 struck out the House figure and proposed an authorization of $119,800,000. The House recedes with an amendment which provides an authorization of $200,000,000.

Amendment No. 2: Paragraph (c) of the first section of the House bill authorized an appropriation of $11,000,000 for research and development activities. Senate amendment No. 2 struck out the House figure and proposed an authorization of $6,700,000. The House recedes with an amendment which provides an authorization of $10,960,000.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. GERALD R. FORD asked was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, I have asked for this time to ask the distinguished majority leader about the program for tomorrow and the remainder of the week.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ALBERT. In response to the inquiry of the minority leader, we have three conference reports to be called up as the first order of business tomorrow, as follows:

First, the Department of the Interior appropriations; second, the International Claims Settlement Act; and third, the Military Construction Authorization Act.

We will then proceed to the consideration of the bill S. 3293, the Defense Procurement Authorization Act, fiscal year 1969, which is under a 2-hour rule.

On Friday, we have scheduled H.R. 15758, to amend the Public Health Service Act. We intend to finish that bill.

There may be additions to Friday's program tomorrow. We are moving over until next week the following:

First, the foreign aid bill; and second, the State Firearms Control Assistance Act of 1968.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I thank the distinguished majority leader.

A RESOLUTION TO ADD FOUR WORDS TO THE FIFTH AND ONE WORD TO THE SIXTH ARTICLE OF THE AMENDMENT TO THE U.S. CONSTITUTION

(Mr. ROUSH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROUSH. Mr. Speaker, I am today introducing in the House of Representatives a resolution to add four words to the fifth and one word to the sixth article of the amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The fifth amendment protection against a criminal defendant's testifying against himself would continue under all circumstances "except in open court."

To the sixth amendment requirement that a criminal defendant be informed of the "nature and cause of the accusation" would be added to the requirement that he be informed of the "evidence" of the accusation.

My proposal, then, might be called "The tell it like it is" amendment.

The administration of criminal justice is far too serious to be governed by a game of hide-and-seek. The basic question which has bothered me since my law school days is, "Why the big secret when it comes to ascertaining truth in a criminal case?"

Why should the State's evidence be a secret to spring as a surprise on the defendant in court? Why, once in open court, with the full protection of due process, rules of evidence, counsel and all the world looking on, should the defendant not be required simply to tell what he knows relevant to his case?

In other words, my proposal would open the door both ways to prosecution and defense for the purpose of shedding reasonable light on truth.

Without doubt some will charge that I want to deny logical rights to a criminal land to the South Carolina State Commission of Forestry so as to permit such Commission, subject to a certain condition, to exchange such lands (S. Rept. 1380). p. S8423

Began consideration of S. 1385, relating to the disposition by the Secretary of the Interior of moneys obtained from the sale of materials from public lands. p. S8536

16. OCEANOGRAPHY. The Commerce Committee reported with amendments H. R. 13781, to authorize funds for sea-grant colleges and ocean exploration (S. Rept. 1381). p. S8423

17. TRANSPORTATION. The Commerce Committee reported with amendment S. 858, to amend the Interstate Commerce Act, with respect to recovery of a reasonable attorney's fee in case of successful maintenance of an action for recovery of damages sustained in transportation of property (S. Rept. 1389). pp. S8423-4

18. GRAINS. Passed as reported H. R. 15794, to provide for United States standards and a national inspection system for grain (pp. S8405-7). At the request of Sen. Mansfield an excerpt from the report listing the significant changes made by the bill was inserted as follows:

"(1) Inspection would not be required for any shipment of grain in domestic commerce, except grain in a container bearing a grade designation;

"(2) Additional inspection services, such as inspection of U.S. grain in Canadian ports (now furnished under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946), protein tests, and weighing of sacked grain, would be available upon request (now only grading services in the United States are available under the act);

"(3) The lead time for effecting changes in the standards would be increased from 90 days to 1 year;

"(4) Submitted samples could be used in lieu of official samples in official inspection of interstate shipments and of grain in Canadian ports;

"(5) Samplers and laboratory technicians employed by official inspection agencies would be required to have licenses;

"(6) Inspectors' licenses would be issued for 3-year periods (instead of permanently); and

"(7) New enforcement procedures would be provided, including refusal of inspection service; examination of records; subpena power; exemption from prosecution of witnesses compelled to give self-incriminating testimony; additional specified offenses; and increased penalties."

19. TRADE. Passed with amendment S. 3065, to provide for temporary injunctions or restraining orders for certain violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act. pp. S8465-80, S8502

The Commerce Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) S. 3704, to continue authority to promote U. S. foreign commerce through the use of mobile trade fairs (amended). p. D666

20. HOUSING. Conferees were appointed on S. 3497, the housing bill (p. S8480). House conferees have been appointed.

21. APPROPRIATIONS. Both Houses agreed to the conference report on H. R. 17354, the Interior and related agencies appropriation bill, 1969 (includes Forest Service) (pp. S8497-8502, H6324-30). This bill will now be sent to the President.

22. MILITARY CONSTRUCTION. Both Houses agreed to the conference report on H. R. 16703, the military construction authorization bill which includes CCC debt payment for prior years military family housing overseas (pp. S8516-17, H6334-41). This bill will now be sent to the President.

23. HEALTH; SAFETY. The Commerce Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 10790, to provide for the protection of the public health from radiation emissions from electronic devices (amended). p. D665

Sen. Magnuson commended the Council on Family Health for its efforts in helping to educate the public and in developing additional approaches to bring safety to every home. pp. S8412-3

24. WILDLIFE. The Commerce Committee voted to report (but did not actually report) H. R. 25, authorizing cooperation with the States in protecting and developing estuarine area of the counties which have sporting, scenic, or recreational value (amended). p. D666

25. FOREIGN CURRENCIES. Received from this Dept. a report of agreements signed in May and June 1968 for use of foreign currencies. p. S8421

26. WATERSHEDS. Received from this Dept. plans for works of improvement on various watershed projects; to Agriculture and Forestry and Public Works Committees. pp. S8421-1

27. AGING. Sen. Moss announced hearings before the Special Committee on Aging on the "Usefulness of the Model Cities Program to the Elderly," to begin on July 23. p. S8439

28. FLOOD CONTROL. Sen. Mansfield commended Senate passage of the public works rivers and harbors-flood control authorization bill. p. S8444

29. BUDGET. Sen. Case stated "the proliferation of Federal programs and dollars has not...disposed of our problems" and inserted an article, "How Much Can the Federal Budget Do? p. S8445

30. ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES. Sen. Yarborough stated "man is exploiting his environment to the fullest with little regard for the consequences of this development", and inserted articles on the subject. pp. S8457-8

31. POLLUTION. Sen. Bayh discussed efforts by major industries in Indiana to reduce air and water pollution and inserted an article on the subject. pp. S8460-2

32. FARM LABOR. Sen. Morse inserted material reflecting the views of farmers concerning the matter of extension of the National Labor Relations Act provisions to agricultural workers. pp. S8481-71

tion and look closely at whether the Commission has presented all the prima facie evidence in the case. And I do not think it is mandatory on the court—I may be wrong—that just because the Commission says it has "reason to believe," even though the prima facie case is not what it ought to be or one that would cause a reasonable person to have "reason to believe" that the court would be bound by it.

Mr. HRUSKA. Mr. President, I am glad the Senator from Washington made the remarks he has just made. It shows that he is a very careful lawyer.

Mr. MAGNUSON. It also require that the injunction be to the "interest of the public." That is a pretty broad test.

Mr. HRUSKA. Mr. President, so that I understand correctly, it is the position and the interpretation of the chairman of the committee that the provisions of the bill would enable the judge to look at the recitations and the showing made by the Commission and defendant, and that he would want to be persuaded and satisfied from all of these circumstances that a case of flagrant abuse does exist and therefore should be stopped.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I do not have cases here. However, I understand that the court on many occasions has refused to act upon a Commission. But application for injunctive relief. But it is clear that it would involve determining whether the Commission has presented a prima facie case, and also—as the bill states—it must consider whether the granting of injunctive relief would be "to the interest of the public." In determining whether this requirement is satisfied, the committee intends that a court should employ its customary balancing test, by weighting the potential harm to consumers from continuation of the challenged conduct against the injury which a defendant might suffer if his conduct is enjoined unfairly.

I do not know how they can define it plainer than that.

Mr. HRUSKA. That is fine. I think that is a declaration and a restatement of the sense of the amendment which I will offer later.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, only if the court is satisfied that these two conditions have been met, has the Commission made the "proper showing" necessary to justify the issuance of an injunction.

Mr. HRUSKA. What proper showing? A proper showing that the Commission is satisfied or that the court is satisfied?

Mr. MAGNUSON. No. The court would have to be satisfied that these two conditions have been met.

Mr. HRUSKA. Then that would be very fine. I hope that the memorandum to which the Senator has referred will be preserved as against the time when I would like to confer with him and show him the language of my amendment. I believe it will be within the memorandum to which he referred and should render the amendment acceptable to him.

It is my hope that there will be a favorable action upon the amendment of the Senator from New Hampshire. It will, however, be preliminary to my amendment which I intend to follow up on at a later time during the debate.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. HRUSKA. I yield.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, the Senator from Nebraska was not present when I stated the portion of the bill that I am attempting to deal with. It is in the very last part. It states: "Upon a proper showing, a temporary injunction or restraining order shall be granted without bond."

My amendment would provide that it must be a preliminary injunction which calls for notice.

I stated that if the amendment is not agreed to, I would offer immediately another amendment which would require a bond, because it seems to be only ordinary commonsense to me that if we are going to deal with a businessman or concern and operate upon him in an ex parte proceeding and deal with a temporary injunctive process, one of two things should be involved: He should either have notice and an opportunity to present his case or, if he does not, there should be a bond so that if irreparable injury is caused him or his business, he has recourse. One or the other condition should be involved.

If my amendment is agreed to, I will be satisfied. If the amendment is rejected, I intend immediately to offer another amendment which would require a bond.

Mr. HRUSKA. Mr. President, I hope it will not be necessary for me to support the second amendment the Senator will offer. It is my hope that his first amendment will be agreed to.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, I merely explain that because the Senator from Nebraska has an amendment he intends to offer.

Mr. HRUSKA. The Senator is correct. The amendment I am seeking to offer would go particularly to the words "proper showing." What does a proper showing consist of?

Mr. COTTON. I understand that. However, I hope the Senator will not have to offer it now. I hope the Senator will let me get a quick vote on my second amendment before he offers his amendment.

Mr. HRUSKA. That will be fine.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I would think a proper showing would mean that the judge would be convinced. I also would suppose that before the Federal Trade Commission went into court they would make up their minds. Many times they have gone into court and the judge would say: "No. I will not grant the injunction."

Mr. HRUSKA. That is fine. Then the Senator will not have any objection to the amendment I may offer.

Mr. MAGNUSON. The Commission would have made up their minds that they have reason to believe these facts.

Mr. HRUSKA. And that is why they are in court.

Mr. MAGNUSON. The Senator is correct. And if the court decides that matter, it must be exercising some discretion.

Mr. HRUSKA. That is why I say in the amendment, to make the colloquy clear, the following:

> Upon proper showing, the court, in its sound discretion, may grant a preliminary injunction or restraining order without bond as it shall deem just in the premises, under the same conditions and principles as injunctive relief against conduct or threatened conduct that will cause loss or damage is granted by courts of equity and upon a showing that the danger of irreparable loss or damage to the public is over immediately.

I submit that is a paraphrasing of what the Senator said relating to the exercise by the court of its sound, judicial discretion.

Mr. MAGNUSON. And it would be in the public interest.

Mr. HRUSKA. The Senator is correct.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I wanted it to be clear. I think we are all in close agreement about this matter. We are making a good legislative history and understand what we mean. However, we are using language that is identical in the injunction provisions of the Flammable Fabrics Act. Nobody offered an amendment to that language. The language in the Fur Products Labeling Act—and I handled both of these measures on the floor—is identical. There was no amendment offered to that language. It is identical.

The same language is in the Wool Labeling Act. All of those laws are administered by the Commission. The language is identical to the injunctive provisions contained in the Federal Power Act. Now we are proposing to change it.

I think that as a matter of policy, we ought to have the language in all of them or in none of them.

Mr. HRUSKA. The courts are the ones who have changed it. The courts have said in some instances that it is enough for the Commission to be satisfied. In other instances, they have said that the court must be satisfied.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, how are we going to legislate satisfaction in a court?

Mr. HRUSKA. By agreeing to my amendment.

Mr. MAGNUSON. It would just give the court authority which it now has. The court can turn it down now.

Mr. HRUSKA. Some courts say that they do not have this power. All they have to do is to consider that the Commission recites in its application that it, the Commission, is convinced that the case is one of flagrant abuse and detrimental to the interest of the public. That is all they have to show.

I know that the Senator from Washington would not be satisfied with that interpretation.

Mr. MAGNUSON. All that the Commission has to say is: "Mr. Judge, we have reason to believe," and the judge can say it is mandatory and grant the injunction.

Mr. HRUSKA. Exactly. And that is what the court said.

Mr. MAGNUSON. That is not what many courts have done.

Mr. HRUSKA. That is what the court said in the case of Federal Trade Commission against Rhodes Pharmacal Co. The court said:

> We think it is fair to say that all the Commission had to show was a justifiable basis for believing. . . .

And then the injunction must issue.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I suppose they have denied injunctions, too.

I know some Federal judges who would not grant a temporary restraining order under any circumstances. They would rather let it be appealed. I know others who will say, "You have not made a prima facie case."

Some judges may accept what the Senator has read. They do not even need to say anything. All that is necessary is to bring the paper in and say, "We have reason to believe."

Mr. HRUSKA. And it is that contingency that the amendment seeks to prevent.

Mr. MAGNUSON. In any event, we have made some legislative history.

Mr. HRUSKA. That is correct.

Mr. MAGNUSON. If that is to be the policy, I hope the Senator from Nebraska, who is a prominent member of the Committee on the Judiciary, would seek to have that language included in all the other acts.

Mr. HRUSKA. I would be in favor of it. I believe it should be done, Mr. President. That is not to say that the Senator from Washington did not do a good job in the other acts.

We get into trouble because of the inconsistent rulings within the Federal judiciary system in construing those acts.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I have heard many times that when the Federal Trade Commission comes in, the Federal judges think they ought to go along with the Federal Government.

Mr. HRUSKA. Because of their expertise.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Because of their expertise, and because they are part of it. But my experience with Federal judges is that they are the most independent people in the world once they get on the bench.

AUTO THEFT PREVENTION ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HOLLINGS in the chair). The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated.

The BILL CLERK. A bill (H.R. 14935) to amend title 39, United States Code, to regulate the mailing of master keys for motor vehicle ignition switches, and for other purposes.

Mr. BYRD of West Virginia. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside and that the Senate continue its consideration of S. 3065.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT OF THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 3665) to amend the Federal Trade Commission Act, as amended, by providing for temporary injunctions or restraining orders for certain violations of that act.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, I am sure that all 100 Members of the Senate have listened to these arguments and will be able to vote with full knowledge. I hope we can vote at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from New Hampshire. On this question the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. BYRD of West Virginia. I announce that the Senator from Nevada [Mr. CANNON], is absent on official business.

I also announce that the Senator from Alaska [Mr. BARTLETT], the Senator from Idaho [Mr. CHURCH], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. FULBRIGHT], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. HARRIS], the Senator from Indiana [Mr. HARTKE], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY], the Senator from Ohio [Mr. LAUSCHE], the Senator from Missouri [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MCCARTHY], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. MCCLELLAN], the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. MCGOVERN], and the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. MONDALE], are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Alaska [Mr. BARTLETT], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. HARRIS], the Senator from Alaska [Mr. GRUENING], and the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. LONG] would each vote "nay."

Mr. KUCHEL. I announce that the Senator from Colorado [Mr. ALLOTT] is absent on official business.

The Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS] and the Senators from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN and Mr. PERCY] are necessarily absent.

If present and voting, the Senator from Colorado [Mr. ALLOTT] and the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PERCY] would each vote "yea."

On this vote, the Senator from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN] is paired with the Senator from New York [Mr. JAVITS]. If present and voting, the Senator from Illinois would vote "yea" and the Senator from New York would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 42, nays 37, as follows:

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives on S. 3497.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HOLLINGS in the chair) laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 3497) to assist in the provisions of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert:

(For text of the amendment see House proceedings of July 10, 1968, pages H6267–H6301, inclusive, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.)

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I move that the Senate disagree to the amendment of the House and ask a conference with the House of Representatives thereon, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer (Mr. HOLLINGS in the chair), appointed Mr. SPARKMAN, Mr. PROXMIRE, Mr. WILLIAMS of New Jersey, Mr. MUSKIE, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. TOWER, and Mr. PERCY conferees on the part of the Senate.

Mr. COTTON. Mr. President, I move that the vote by which the amendment was adopted be reconsidered.

Mr. HRUSKA. Mr. President, I move that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Bartlett, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 17354) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and for other purposes; that the House receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 6, 7, 8, 11, and 36 to the bill, and concurred therein.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 9063) to amend the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, to provide for the timely determination of certain claims of American nationals, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House insisted upon its amendments

HOUSE

1. FHA LOANS. The Rules Committee reported a resolution for the consideration of H. R. 18209, to provide for loans to supplement farm income and to provide for additional recreation loans, extend the period for water and sewer grants prior to completion of a comprehensive plan, increase the amount of unsold insured loans that may be made out of the fund, raise the aggregate annual limits on grants, and remove the annual ceiling on insured loans. p. ilies for which the national goal has not become a reality; and in the carrying out of such programs there should be the fullest practicable utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques.

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

SEC. 3. In the administration of the programs authorized by sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act, the below-market interest rate program under section 221 (d) (3) of such Act, the low-rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall—

(1) require, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor, that to the greatest extent feasible opportunities for training and employment arising in connection with the planning, construction, rehabilitation, and operation of housing assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing; and

(2) require, in consultation with the Administrator of the Small Business Administration, that to the greatest extent feasible contracts for work to be performed pursuant to such programs shall, where appropriate, be awarded to business concerns, including but not limited to individuals or firms doing business in the fields of design, architecture, building construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, or repair, located in or owned in substantial part by persons residing in the area of such housing.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROGRAMS

SEC. 4. The Congress finds that Federal aids to housing have not contributed fully to improvement in architectural standards. This objective has been contemplated in Federal housing legislation since the establishment of mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration.

The Congress commends the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its recent efforts to improve architectural standards through competitive design awards and in other ways but at the same time recognizes that this important objective requires high priority if Federal aid is to make its full communitywide contribution toward improving our urban environment.

The Congress further finds that even within the necessary budget limitations on housing for low and moderate income families architectural design could be improved not only to make the housing more attractive but to make it better suited to the needs of occupants.

The Congress declares that in the administration of housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing and to developing housing which will be of such quality as to reflect its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated, consistent with prudent budgeting.

ANNUAL REPORT ON AREAS OF PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT WHICH REQUIRE IMPROVEMENT

SEC. 5. The Secretary shall, as early as practicable in the calendar year 1969 and in the calendar year 1970, make a report to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency of the House of Representatives and the Senate identifying specific areas of program administration and management which require improvement, describing actions taken and proposed for the purpose of making such improvements, and recommending such legislation as may be necessary to accomplish such improvements. Each such report shall include, but not be limited to, the following areas of program administration and management: uniformity and standardization in program requirements, simplification of program procedures, ways and means of expediting consideration of proposed projects and applications for assistance, the provision of more useful and specific assistance to communities, organizations and individuals seeking to utilize the Department's programs, and ways and means of combining or otherwise adapting the Department's programs to increase their usefulness in meeting the individual needs of applicants.

TITLE I—LOWER INCOME HOUSING

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 101. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 235. (a) For the purpose of assisting lower income families in acquiring homeownership or in acquiring membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic assistance payments on behalf of such homeowners and cooperative members. The assistance shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) To qualify for assistance payments, the homeowner or the cooperative member shall be of lower income and satisfy eligibility requirements prescribed by the Secretary, and—

"(1) the homeowner shall be a mortgagor under a mortgage which meets the requirements of and is insured under subsection (i) or (j)(4) of this section: Provided, That a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i)(3)(A) of this section but insured under section 237 may qualify for assistance payments if such mortgage was executed by a mortgagor who is determined not to be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes (but otherwise eligible) under subsection (j)(4) of this section or under section 221(d)(2) or 234(c) and accepted as a reasonably satisfactory credit risk under section 237; or

"(2) the cooperative association of which the family is a member shall operate a housing project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been financed with a mortgage insured under section 213 and which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and the dwelling unit has had no previous occupant other than the family: Provided, That if the initial cooperative member receiving assistance payments transfers his membership and occupancy rights to another person who satisfies the eligibility requirements prescribed by the Secretary, such new cooperative memb may qualify for assistance payments upon the filing of an application with respect to the dwelling unit involved to be occupied by him: Provided further, That assistance payments may be made with respect to a dwelling unit in an existing cooperative project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, if the family qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the amount of the mortgage attributable to the dwelling unit shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

"(c) The assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a mortgagor shall be made during such time as the mortgagor shall continue to occupy the property which secures the mortgage: Provided, That assistance payments may be made on behalf of a homeowner who assumes a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4) with respect to which assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner, if the homeowner is approved by the Secretary as eligible for receiving such assistance. The payment shall be in an amount not exceeding the lesser of—

"(1) the balance of the monthly payment for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium due under the mortgage remaining unpaid after applying 20 per centum of the mortgagor's income; or

"(2) the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which the mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) Assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a family holding membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project shall be made only during such time as the family is an occupant of such project and shall be in amounts computed on the basis of the formula set forth in subsection (c) applying the cooperative member's proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage to the items specified in the formula.

"(e) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), (d), or (j)(7), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(f) Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for recertifications of the mortgagor's (or cooperative member's) income at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting the amount of such assistance payments within the limits of the formula described in subsection (c).

"(g) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he deems necessary to assure that the sales price of, or other consideration paid in connection with, the purchase by a homeowner of the property with respect to which assistance payments are to be made is not increased above the appraised value on which the maximum mortgage which the Secretary will insure is computed.

"(h)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make the assistance payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(2) Not more than 20 per centum of the total amount of assistance payments authorized to be contracted to be made pursuant to appropriation Acts shall be contracted to be made on behalf of families whose incomes at the time of their initial occupancy exceed 135 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for initial occupancy in public housing dwellings, but the incomes of such families at the time of their initial occupancy shall in no case exceed 90 per centum of the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with mortgages insured under section 221(d)(3) which bear interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of section 221(d)(5). The limitations prescribed in this paragraph shall be administered by the Secretary so as to accord a preference to those families whose incomes are within the lowest practicable limits for achieving howeownership with assistance under this section. The Secretary shall report annually to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives with respect to the income levels of families on behalf of which assistance payments have been made under this section.

"(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (b)(2) and (i)(3)(A) with respect to the prior construction or rehabilitation of a dwelling, or of the project in which there is a dwelling unit, for which assistance payments may be made, and notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (j)(1) authorizing the purchase of housing which is neither deteriorating nor substandard, not more than—

"(A) 25 per centum of the total amount of contracts for assistance payments authorized by appropriation Acts to be made prior to July 1, 1969,

"(B) 15 per centum of the total additional amount of contracts for assistance payments authorized by appropriation Acts to be made prior to July 1, 1970, and

"(C) 10 per centum of the total additional amount of contracts for assistance payments authorized by appropriations Acts to be made prior to July 1, 1971, may be made with respect to existing dwellings, or dwelling units in existing projects.

"(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who meets the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements of section 221(d)(2) or 234(c), except as such requirements are modified by this subsection.

"(3) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) involve a single-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of construction or substantial rehabilitation, or a two-family dwelling one of the units of which is to be occupied by the owner if the dwelling is purchased with the assistance of a nonprofit organization and is approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of substantial rehabilitation, or a one-family unit in a condominium project (together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities serving the project) which is released from a multifamily project, the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments with respect to such family unit and the unit has had no previous occupant other than the mortgagor: Provided, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, if the mortgagor qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project if assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner of the dwelling or family unit with respect to a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4): Provided further, That the mortgage may involve a dwelling unit in an existing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 or in an existing project receiving the benefits of financial assistance under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(B) where it is to cover a one-family unit in a condominium project, have a principal obligation not exceeding $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively; and

"(C) be executed by a mortgagor who shall have paid (i) in the case of any family whose income is not in excess of 135 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for initial occupancy in public housing dwellings, at least $200, or (ii) in the case of any other family, at least 3 per centum (or such larger amount as the Secretary may require) of the Secretary's estimate of the cost of acquisition, which amount (in cash or its equivalent) in either instance may be applied for the payment of settlement costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and other prepaid expenses.

"(j) (1) In addition to mortgages insured under the provisions of subsection (i), the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization or public body or agency to finance the purchase of housing, and the rehabilitation of such housing if it is deteriorating or substandard, for subsequent resale to lower income home purchasers who meet the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit organization or public body or agency, approved by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase (with the intention of subsequent resale), and rehabilitation where the housing involved is deteriorating or substandard, of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established; except that in a case not involving the rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing the property purchased may consist of one or more such dwellings or units;

"(B) be in a principal amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of any rehabilitation;

"(C) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market;

"(D) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (4)(E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

"(E) provide for the release of individual single-family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon their sale in accordance with paragraph (4).

"(3) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor shall have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that (A) the property involved is located in a neighborhood which is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (B) the purchase or rehabilitation of such property plus the mortgagor's related activities and the activities of other owners of housing in the neighborhood, together with actions to be taken by public authorities, will be of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created in the neighborhood.

"(4)(A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement, satisfactory to the Secretary, that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, after purchase and upon completion of any rehabilitation, to lower income individuals or families meeting the eligibility requirements established by the Secretary under subsection (b).

"(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to lower income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

"(i) be in a principal amount not in excess of that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved;

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the blanket mortgage; and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such blanket mortgage.

"(C) The price for which any individual dwelling is sold under this paragraph shall be in an amount equal to that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the dwelling plus such additional amount, not less than $200 (which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs and may be paid in cash or its equivalent), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable.

"(D) Upon the sale under this paragraph of any individual dwelling, such dwelling shall be released from the lien of the blanket mortgage. Until all of the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage have been sold, the mortgagor shall hold and operate the dwellings remaining unsold at any given time, in such manner and under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, as though they constituted rental units.

"(E) Upon the sale under this paragraph of all the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage and the release of all individual dwellings from the lien of the blanket mortgage, the insurance of the blanket mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be charged by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(5) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(6) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (5)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

"(7) In addition to the assistance payments authorized under subsection (b), the Secretary may make such payments to a mortgagee on behalf of a nonprofit organization or public body or agency which is a mortgagor under the provisions of paragraph (1) in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(8) A mortgage covering property which is not deteriorating or substandard may be insured under this subsection only if it is situated in an area in which mortgages may be insured under section 221(h).

"(k) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make assistance payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (h)(1).

"(l) In determining the income of any person for the purposes of this section, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $300 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of such person and living with such family, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such person or his family."

(b)(1) Section 221(d)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "not to exceed (i) $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed (i) $15,000 (or $17,500, if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)"; and

(B) by striking out "not to exceed $15,000" in the second proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $17,500 (or $20,000 if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)".

(2) Section 221(d)(2)(B) of such Act is amended—

(A) by inserting ", in cash or its equivalent" before the semicolon after "acquisition cost" in the first proviso; and

(B) by inserting before the semicolon after "appraised value" at the end thereof the following: ": Provided further, That, if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property, such mortgagor shall to the maximum extent feasible be given the opportunity to contribute the value of his labor as equity in such dwelling".

(c)(1) Section 221(h)(5)(B)(ii) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

> "(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the principal mortgage or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the purchaser's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate, and provide for complete amortization within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such principal mortgage: Provided, That, if the rate of interest initially prescribed is less than the rate borne by the principal mortgage and the purchaser's income (as determined on the basis of periodic review) subsequently rises, the rate of interest so prescribed shall be increased (but not above the rate borne by such principal mortgage), under regulations of the Secretary, to the extent appropriate to reflect the increase in such income, and the mortgage shall so provide."

"(2) Section 221(h)(4) of such Act is amended by striking out "$20,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$50,000,000".

(3) Section 221(h) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) In addition to the mortgages that may be insured under paragraphs (1) and (5), the Secretary is authorized to insure under this subsection at any time within one year after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, mortgages which are executed by individuals or families that meet the income criteria prescribed in paragraph (5)(A) and are executed for the purpose of financing the rehabilitation or improvement of single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction that are owned and occupied in each instance by a mortgagor who has purchased the dwelling from a nonprofit organization of the type described in this subsection. To be eligible for such insurance, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be in a principal amount not exceeding the lesser of $15,000 or the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at 3 per centum per annum or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the mortgagor's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate: Provided, That, if the rate of interest initially prescribed is less than 3 per centum per annum and the mortgagor's income (as determined on the basis of periodic review) subsequently rises, the rate shall be increased (but not above 3 per centum), under regulations of the Secretary, to the extent appropriate to reflect the increase in such income, and the mortgage shall so provide;

"(C) involve a mortgagor that shall have paid on account of the property at the time of the rehabilitation such amount (which shall not be less than $200 in cash or its equivalent, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs) as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances; and

"(D) contain a provision that, if the low-income mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time of the commitment was issued for insurance of the mortgage; except that the increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit organization which has been engaged in purchasing and rehabilitating deteriorating and substandard housing with financing under a mortgage insured under paragraph (1) of this subsection, (ii) a public housing agency having jurisdiction under the United States Housing Act of 1937 over the area where the dwelling is located, or (iii) a low-income purchaser approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary."

(4) The purchase of any individual dwelling, sold by a nonprofit organization pursuant to the provisions of section 221(h)(5) of the National Housing Act after the date of enactment of this section, may be financed with a mortgage insured under the provisions of section 235(j)(4) of such Act, but such mortgage shall bear interest at the rate provided in section 235(j)(2)(C) of such Act.

(d) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or section 235(j)(1)" after "subsection (h)(1)" each place it appears.

(e) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under section 235(i) or 235(j)(4) of the National Housing Act as he determines to be necessary to assist such mortgagors in meeting the responsibilities of homeownership. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

CREDIT ASSISTANCE

SEC. 102. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 236 (as added by section 201 of this Act) the following new section:

"SPECIAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE ASSISTANCE

"SEC. 237. (a) The purpose of this section is to help provide adequate housing for families of low and moderate income, including those who, for reasons of credit history, irregular income patterns caused by seasonal employement, or other factors, are unable to meet the credit requirements of the Secretary for the purchase of a single-family home financed by a mortgage insured under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), but who, through the incentive of homeownership and counseling assistance, appear to be able to achieve homeownership.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized upon application by the mortgagee to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

"(1) meet the requirements of section 203 (except subsection (m)), 220(d)(3)(A), 221(d)(2), 221(h)(5), 221(i), 234(c), or 235(j)(4), except as such requirements are modified by this section;

"(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $15,000: Provided, That the Secretary may increase the amount to not exceed $17,500 in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require: Provided further, That no mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203(h) or 203(i) shall be eligible for insurance under this section if its principal obligation is in excess of the maximum limits prescribed in such section;

"(3) be executed by a mortgagor who the Secretary has determined, after a full and complete study of the case, would not be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), because of his credit standing, debt obligations, total annual income, or income characteristics, but who the Secretary is satisfied would be a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, consistent with the objectives stated in subsection (a), if he were to receive budget, debt management, and related counseling: Provided, That, in determining whether the mortgagor is a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, the Secretary shall review the credit history of the applicant giving special consideration to those delinquent accounts which were ultimately paid by the applicant and to extenuating factors which may have caused credit accounts of the applicant to become delinquent; and the Secretary shall also give special consideration to income characteristics of applicants whose total income over the two years prior to their applications has remained at levels of eligibility (as required under paragraph (4) of this subsection), but who, because of the character of their seasonal employment or for other reasons, have not maintained continuous employment under one employer during that time; and

"(4) require monthly payments which, in combination with local real estate taxes on the property involved, do not exceed 25 per centum of the applicant's income, based on his average monthly income during the year prior to his application or the average monthly income during the three years prior to his application, whichever is higher.

"(d) The Secretary shall give preference in approving mortgage insurance applications under this section to families living in public housing units, especially those families required to leave public housing because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed income limits, and families eligible for residence in public housing who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under this section as he determines to be necessary to meet the objectives of this section. The Secretary may also provide such counseling to otherwise eligible families who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment to help them to save an amount necessary for that purpose.

"(f) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under this section and outstanding at one time shall not exceed $200,000,000.

"(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (e) of this section."

(b) Section 226 of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "235(i), 237," after "234,".

RELAXATION OF MORTGAGE INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS IN CERTAIN URBAN NEIGHBORHOODS

SEC. 103. (a) Section 223 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title except section 212, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section of this title, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under any section of this title a mortgage executed in connection with the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in an older, declining urban area in which the conditions are such that one or more of the eligibility requirements applicable to the section of this title under which insurance is sought could not be met, if the Secretary finds that (1) the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such area, and (2) the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration. The insurance of a mortgage pursuant to this subsection shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

(b) Section 203(l) of such Act is repealed.

SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 104. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 237 (as added by section 102 of this Act) the following new section:

"PAYMENT OF INSURANCE—SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

"SEC. 238. (a)(1) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203. The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (g), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, except that all references therein to the 'Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund', and all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, as may be appropriate.

"(2) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of insurance as provided in section 207(g) with respect to mortgages insured under section 207. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236, except that all references therein to the 'General Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund' and the premium charge provided in section 207(d) shall be payable only in cash or debentures of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

"(3) In lieu of the amount of insurance benefits computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection the Secretary, in his discretion and in accordance with such regulations as he may prescribe, may (with respect to any mortgage loan acquired by him) compute and pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee in a total amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances approved by the Secretary and made previously by the mortgagee under the provisions of the mortgage.

"(b) There is hereby created a Special Risk Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237, and the Secretary is hereby authorized to advance to the fund the sum of $5,000,000 from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to the provisions of section 519. Such advance shall be repayable at such times and at such rates of interest as the Secretary deems appropriate. Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, inspection and other fees, service charges, and any other income received by the Secretary under sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237, together with all earnings on the assets of the fund, shall be credited to the fund. All payments made pursuant to claims of mortgagees with respect to mortgages insured under sections 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237 or pursuant to section 223(e), cash adjustments, the principal of and interest paid on debentures which are the obligation of the fund, expenses incurred in connection with or as a consequence of the acquisition and disposal of property acquired under such sections, and all administrative expenses in connection with the mortgage insurance operations under such sections shall be paid out of the fund. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be needed from time to time to cover losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237. Moneys in the fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed by, the United States. The Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligation of the fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtained from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(b) Section 224 of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 238".

(c) Section 519(e) of such Act is amended by inserting after "section 213(k)" the following: ", or the provisions of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236 and 237".

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 105. (a) Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a plan of family unit ownership. Under such plan, each family unit shall be eligible for individual ownership and provision shall be included for the sale of the family units, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project, to low or moderate income purchasers. The Secretary shall obtain such agreements as he determines to be necessary to assure continued maintenance of the common areas and facilities. Upon such sale, the family unit and the undivided interest in the common areas shall be released from the lien of the project mortgage.

"(2)(A) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection mortgages financing the purchase of individual family units under the plan prescribed in paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) be executed by a mortgagor having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5);

"(ii) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed the Secretary's estimate of the appraised value of the family unit, including the mortgagor's interest in the common areas and facilities, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

"(iii) bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary (which may vary in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary promulgated pursuant to the last sentence of paragraph (4) of this subsection) but not less than the below-market rate in effect under the proviso of subsection (d)(5) at the date of the commitment for insurance; and

"(iv) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe, but not to exceed the lesser of forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-quarters of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the building improvements.

"(B) The price for which the individual family unit is sold to the low or moderate income purchaser shall not exceed the appraised value of the property, as determined under subparagraph (A)(ii), except that the purchaser shall be required to pay on account of the property at the time of purchase at least such amount, in cash or its equivalent (which shall be not less than 3 per centum of such price, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate.

"(3) Upon the sale of all of the family units covered by the project mortgage, and the release of all of the family units (including the undivided interest allocable to each unit in the common areas and facilities) from the lien of the project mortgage, the insurance of the project mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be collected by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(4) Any mortgage covering an individual family unit insured under this subsection shall contain a provision that, if the original mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the project mortgage; except that the requirement for an increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary, or (ii) a low or moderate income purchaser who has an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5). The mortgage shall also contain a provision that, if the Secretary determines that the annual income of the original mortgagor (or a purchaser described in clause (ii) of the preceding sentence) has increased to an amount enabling payment of a greater rate of interest, the interest rate of the individual mortgage may be increased up to the highest rate permissible under the regulations of the Secretary for mortgages insured under this section effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the mortgage.

"(5) For the purpose of this subsection—

"(i) the term 'mortgage', when used in relation to a mortgage insured under paragraph (2) of this subsection, includes a first mortgage given to secure the unpaid purchase price of a fee interest in, or a long-term lease-hold interest in, a one-family unit in a multifamily project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project; and

"(ii) the term 'common areas and facilities' includes the land and such commercial, community, and other facilities as are are approved by the Secretary.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any rental project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a cooperative approved by the Secretary. Membership in such cooperative shall be made available only to those families having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at such below-market rate: Provided, That families residing in the rental project at the time of its conversion to a cooperative who do not meet such income limits may be permitted to become members in the cooperative under such special terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection cooperative mortgages financing the purchase of projects meeting the requirements of paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves;

"(ii) bear interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5); and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization within such term as the Secretary may prescribe."

(b) Section 221(g)(1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (i) of this section".

(c) Section 221(g)(2) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (1) of subsection (h)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (1) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (j),".

(d) Section 221(f) of such Act is amended by inserting after "subsection (h)" in the third sentence of the second paragraph the following: ", (i), or (j)".

ASSISTANCE TO NONPROFIT SPONSORS OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 106. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, information, advice, and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation by nonprofit organizations of housing for low or moderate income families. Assistance by the Secretary may include—

(1) the assembly, correlation, publication, and dissemination of information with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing, and

(2) the provision of advice and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing.

(b)(1) The Secretary is authorized to make loans to nonprofit organizations for the necessary expenses, prior to construction, in planning, and obtaining financing for, the rehabilitation or construction of housing for low or moderate income families under any federally assisted program. Such loans shall be made without interest and shall not exceed 80 per centum of the reasonable costs expected to be incurred in planning, and in obtaining financing for, such housing prior to the availability of financing, including, but not limited to, preliminary surveys and analyses of market needs, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. The Secretary shall require repayment of loans made under this subsection, under such terms and conditions as he may require, upon completion of the project or sooner, and may cancel any part or all of a loan if he determines that it cannot be recovered from the proceeds of any permanent loan made to finance the rehabilitation or construction of the housing.

(2) The Secretary shall determine prior to the making of any loan that the nonprofit organization meets such requirements with respect to financial responsibility and stability as he may prescribe.

(3) There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this subsection not to exceed $7,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $10,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this paragraph but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year.

(4) All funds appropriated for the purposes of this subsection shall be deposited in a fund which shall be known as the Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund, and which shall be available without fiscal year limitation and be administered by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the purposes of this subsection. Sums received in repayment of loans made under this subsection shall be deposited in such fund.

NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

SEC. 107. (a)(1) There is hereby created a body corporate to be known as the "National Homeownership Foundation" (hereinafter referred to as the "Foundation") to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families through such means as—

(A) encouraging the investment in, and sponsoring of, housing for lower income families;

(B) encouraging the establishment of programs of assistance and counseling to lower income families to enable them better to achieve and afford adequate housing;

(C) providing a broad range of technical assistance through publications and advisory services to public and private organizations which are carrying out, or are desirous of carrying out, programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families; and

(D) providing grants and loans to public and private organizations carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to help cover some of the expenses of such programs.

(2) The Foundation shall be deemed to be a corporation without members organized and established under the provisions of the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act, with all the rights, powers, and responsibilities thereof except as limited by this section and any amendments thereto. This section shall constitute the articles of incorporation and charter of the Foundation, which shall not be an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government. The Congress expressly reserves the exclusive right to alter or amend this charter. The Foundation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. The Foundation shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia.

(3) No part of the net earnings of the Foundation shall inure to the benefit of any private person, and no substantial part of its activities shall be devoted to attempting to influence legislation. The Foundation shall not participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office. The Foundation shall be operated and administered at all times as a charitable and educational foundation.

(4) No employee or officer of the Foundation shall receive compensation in excess of that received by or hereafter prescribed by law for heads of executive departments.

(5) The Foundation shall make maximum use of existing public and private agencies and programs, and in carrying out its functions the Foundation is authorized to contract with individuals, private corporations, organizations, and associations, and with agencies of the Federal, State, and local governments.

(6) The Foundation is authorized to receive donations and grants from individuals and from public and private organizations, foundations, and agencies.

(7) The Foundation may use only donated funds, or funds derived from payment of interest on loans made by it, for the principal and interest payments on any borrowings.

(b)(1) The Foundation shall have a Board of Directors consisting of eighteen members, fifteen of whom shall be appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The other three members shall be, ex officio, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. The President shall appoint one of the fifteen appointed members to serve as Chairman of the Board during his term of office as a member.

(2) Within thirty days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall appoint the fifteen appointed members of the Board. Not more than five of such members shall, at the time of their appointment, be serving full time as officers or employees of the Federal Government, or as officers or employees of any State or local government. Each appointed member of the Board shall hold office for a term of three years, except that (A) any member appointed to fill a vacancy prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term, and (B) the terms of the members first taking office shall expire, as designated by the President at the time of appointment, five at the end of the first year, five at the end of the second year, and five at the end of the third year after the date of appointment. Members of the Board, however appointed, shall be eligible for reappointment, but at no time shall there be more than five members of the Board who at the time of their appointment or reappointment were full-time officers or employees of the Federal Government or of any State or local government.

(3) Appointed members of the Board who are not employees of the Federal Government, while attending meetings or conferences of the Board or otherwise serving on business of the Board, shall be entitled to receive compensation at rates fixed by the President, but not exceeding $100 per day, including travel time, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(4) The Board shall appoint an Executive Director of the Foundation. The Executive Director shall be the chief executive officer of the Foundation and shall serve at the pleasure of the Board, and all other executive officers and employees of the Board shall be responsible to him. The Board shall also cause to be appointed a secretary, a treasurer, and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct properly the business of the Foundation, and shall provide for filling vacancies in such offices.

(5) The Board shall adopt bylaws for the Foundation which shall be made available for public inspection upon request.

(c)(1) The Foundation shall assist public and private organizations, at their request, in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families. To provide such assistance and to carry out the purposes of this section, the Foundation is authorized to—

(A) carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in the establishment of such programs;

(B) assist in the formation of organizations the purpose of which is the development and carrying out of such programs, including the establishment of local development funds for financing housing for lower income families through the pooling of moneys from private sources;

(C) identify and arrange for the technical and managerial assistance and personnel needed for the successful operation of such programs by public and private organizations;

(D) assist public and private organizations in obtaining the mortgage financing, insurance, and other requirements or aids necessary for conducting programs of housing construction, rehabilitation, or improvement for lower income families;

(E) arrange for, or provide on a limited basis, training for persons in the skills needed in administering programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families;

(F) encourage research and innovation, and collect and make available such information as may be desirable to further the purposes of this section, including but not limited to such activities as the sponsoring of seminars, conferences, and meetings and the establishment of a continuing information program to acquaint lower income families with the means they can use to improve the quality of their housing and the homeownership and housing opportunities available to them;

(G) assist private and public organizations in establishing, in connection with their homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families, counseling and similar activities designed to advise lower income families of the means available to better themselves economically through job training and manpower development programs; and

(H) perform other similar services in order to further the purposes of this section.

(2) The Foundation may, if it deems it appropriate, charge a reasonable fee for any assistance or service provided under this subsection.

(d) (1) In order to assist public and private organizations which are carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to fill unmet needs, initiate exceptional programs, and experiment with new approaches and programs, the Foundation is authorized, subject to such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, to make grants and loans to such organizations to help defray the following expenses:

(A) organizational and administrative expenses incurred in commencing the operation of a program, or in expanding an existing program, to the extent that the activities are related to providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families;

(B) necessary preconstruction costs incurred for architectural assistance, land options, application fees, and similar items; and

(C) the cost of carrying out programs providing counseling or similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided, in order to enable those families better to achieve and afford adequate housing, in such matters as home management, budget management, and home maintenance.

(2) In order to be eligible for a grant or loan under this subsection, the organization seeking such assistance shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Foundation that the funds requested are not otherwise available from Federal sources: Provided, That a grant or loan under this subsection may be provided to help cover that portion of the cost of an eligible activity not covered by Federal funds.

(3) The Foundation shall encourage cooperation between public and private organizations carrying out programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families and the neighborhoods and communities affected by such programs. To help assure such cooperation and in order to coordinate, to the maximum extent feasible, any construction or rehabilitation activities with the development goals of the neighborhood or community affected, no application for a loan or grant under this subsection shall be considered unless such application has been submitted to the governing body of the community affected, or to such other entity of local government as may be designated by the governing body, for such recommendations as the local governing body or its designee may desire to make. Any recommendations so made shall be given careful consideration by the Foundation before taking final action on any such application. If, upon the expiration of thirty days after any such application has been submitted to such governing body or its designee, such body or designee fails to provide such recommendations, the application may be considered without the benefit of such recommendations.

(e) The Foundation shall coordinate its activities and consult with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and other Federal departments and agencies engaged in providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(f) (1) Not later than one hundred and twenty days after the close of each fiscal year, the Foundation shall prepare and submit to the President and to the Congress a full report of its activities during such year. Such report shall include an account of the Foundation's experiences with the efforts of private and public organizations to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, together with such recommendations as it deems appropriate.

(2) Whenever in its judgment the general unavailability of mortgage funds is sufficiently serious to deter the Foundation from carrying out its objective of expanding homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, the Foundation shall, in its annual report or in a separate report to the President and the Congress, state its findings and make such recommendations for alternate means of financing housing for such families as it deems appropriate.

(g)(1) The financial transactions of the Foundation shall be audited by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial corporate transactions and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, accounts, financial records, reports, files, and all other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by the Foundation and necessary to facilitate the audit, and they shall be afforded full facilities for verifying transactions with the balances or securities held by depositories, fiscal agents, and custodians. The audit shall cover the fiscal year corresponding to that of the United States Government.

(2) A report of each such audit shall be made by the Comptroller General to the Congress not later than January 15 following the close of the fiscal year for which the audit was made. The report shall set forth the scope of the audit and shall include a statement of assets and liabilities, capital, and surplus or deficit; a statement of sources and application of funds; and such comments and information as may be deemed necessary to keep the Congress informed of the operations and financial condition of the Foundation, together with such recommendations with respect thereto as the Comptroller General may deem advisable. The report shall also show specifically any program, expenditure, or other financial transaction or undertaking, observed in the course of the audit, which, in the opinion of the Comptroller General, has been carried on or made without authority of law. A copy of each report shall be furnished to the President and to the Foundation at the time submitted to the Congress.

(h) Funds of the Foundation shall be deposited, to the extent practicable, in accounts with financial institutions which are actively engaged in making loans or are otherwise carrying on activities in furtherance of homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(i) There is authorized to be appropriated to the Foundation not to exceed $10,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section. Appropriations made hereunder shall remain available until expended.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 108. (a) In order to encourage the use of new housing technologies in providing decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families; to encourage large-scale experimentation in the use of such technologies; to provide a basis for comparison of such technologies with existing housing technologies in providing such housing; and to evaluate the effect of local housing codes and zoning regulations on the large-scale use of new housing technologies in the provision of such housing, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") shall institute a program under which qualified organizations, public and private, will submit plans for the development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies, on Federal land which has been made available by the Secretary for the purposes of this section, or on other land where (1) local building regulations permit the construction of experimental housing, or (2) State or local law permits variances from building regulations in the construction of experimental housing for the purpose of testing and developing new building technologies.

(b) The Secretary shall approve not more than five plans utilizing new housing technologies which are submitted to him pursuant to the program referred to in subsection (a) and which he determines are most promising in furtherance of the purposes of this section. In making such determination the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the potential of the technology employed for producing housing for lower income families on a large scale at a moderate cost;

(2) the extent to which the plan envisages environmental quality;

(3) the possibility of mass production of the technology; and

(4) the financial soundness of the organization submitting the plan, and the ability of such organization, alone or in combination with other organizations, to produce at least one thousand dwelling units a year utilizing the technology proposed.

(c) In approving projects for mortgage insurance under section 233 (a) (2) of the National Housing Act (as added by subsection (f) of this section), the Secretary shall seek to achieve the construction of at least one thousand dwelling units a year over a five-year period for each of the various types of technologies proposed in approved plans under subsection (b). The Secretary shall evaluate each project with respect to which assistance is extended pursuant to this section with a view to determining (1) the detailed cost breakdown per dwelling unit, (2) the environmental quality achieved in each such unit, and (3) the effect which local housing codes and zoning regulations have, or would have if applicable, on the cost per dwelling unit.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, any land which is excess property within the meaning of such Act and which is determined by the Secretary to be suitable in furtherance of the purposes of this section may be transferred to the Secretary upon his request.

(e) The Secretary shall, at the earliest practicable date, report his findings with respect to projects assisted pursuant to this section (including evalutions of each such project in accordance with subsection (c)), together with such recommendations for additional legislation as he determines to be necessary or desirable to expand the available supply of decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families through the use of technologies the efficacy of which has been demonstrated under this section.

(f) (1) Section 233(a) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by inserting "(1)" after "(a)",

(B) by redesignating clauses (1), (2), and (3) as clauses (A), (B), and (C), respectively, and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The Secretary is further authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties in projects to be carried out in accordance with plans approved by the Secretary under section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.".

(2) Section 233(c) of such Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any authority which the Secretary may exercise in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, insured under any other section of this title (including payments to reduce rentals for, or to facilitate homeownership by, lower income families) may be exercised in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, meeting the requirements of such other section (except as specified in subsection (b)), which is insured under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as if the mortgage insured under this section was insured under such other section."

INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR HOMEOWNERS

SEC. 109. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, to develop a plan for the establishment at the earliest practicable date of an insurance program to help homeowners in meeting mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity. Such insurance program shall be designed to protect mortgagors against foreclosure due to curtailment of income resulting from factors beyond their effective control, including such factors as death, disability, illness, and unemployment. Such insurance program shall also be designed to be actuarially sound through the use of premiums, fees, extended or increased payment schedules, or other similar methods, in conjunction with such Federal participation as may be necessary.

(b) Within six months following the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on his actions under this section, and shall recommend to the Congress such legislation as he deems appropriate to authorize him to enter into agreements with any insurance company, or any corporation or joint enterprise formed to provide home mortgage insurance protection, for the purpose of reinsuring insurance reserve funds, subsidizing premium payments on behalf of lower income mortgagors, or otherwise making possible the insurance protection of homeowners in accordance with subsection (a). In preparing such recommendations the Secretary shall consult with other agencies or instrumentalities of the United States which insure or guarantee home mortgages in order that such legislation as may be recommended affords equal benefits to mortgagors participating in their programs.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMISSION ON LOW INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 110. (a) (1) There is hereby established the National Advisory Commission on Low Income Housing (hereinafter referred to as the "Commission"). The Commission shall be composed of twenty-one members as follows:

(A) Four members appointed by the President of the Senate, two from the majority party and two from the minority party;

(B) Four members appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, two from the majority party and two from the minority party; and

(C) Thirteen members appointed by the President, not more than three of whom shall be from the Federal Government, and of whom four shall be representative of persons eligible for low income housing. Appointment shall be made by the President, whenever practicable, after consultation with the ranking majority and minority members of the Housing Subcommittees of the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

(2) Any vacancy in the Commission shall not affect its powers, but shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

(3) Eleven members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum, but a lesser number may conduct hearings.

(4) The members of the Commission shall elect a Chairman and a Vice Chairman from the membership of the Commission.

(b) (1) The Commission shall undertake a comprehensive study and investigation, to further the policy set forth in section 2 of this Act, of practicable and effective ways of bringing decent, safe, and sanitary housing within the reach of low income families. Such study shall evaluate existing housing programs designed to assist such families, and explore new ways by which public and private resources may be more effectively utilized in meeting the housing needs of such families. In the carrying out of such study, the Commission may, where necessary or desirable, utilize the services of private research organizations, and shall, insofar as is practicable, seek to coordinate its investigation with studies undertaken, or being undertaken by the Banking and Currency Committees of the Senate and House of Representatives

(2) The Commission shall be organized and begin its functions at the earliest possible date, and shall submit to the President and to the Congress an interim report with respect to its findings and recommendations not later than July 1, 1969. A final report of its findings and recommendations shall be submitted to the President and the Congress not later than July 1, 1970.

(c) (1) The Commission or, on the authorization of the Commission, any subcommittee or members thereof, may, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this section, hold such hearings, take such testimony, and sit and act at such times and places as the Commission deems advisable. Any member authorized by the Commission may administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses appearing before the Commission or any subcommittee or members thereof.

(2) Each department, agency, and instrumentality of the executive branch of the Government is authorized and directed to furnish to the Commission, upon request made by the Chairman or Vice Chairman, such information as the Commission deems necessary to carry out its functions under this section.

(3) Subject to such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the Commission, the Chairman, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates, shall have the power—

(1) to appoint and fix the compensation of such staff personnel as he deems necessary, and

(2) to procure temporary and intermittent services to the same extent as is authorized by section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, but at rates not to exceed $50 a day for individuals.

(d) (1) Any member of the Commission who is appointed from the executive or legislative branch of the Government shall serve without compensation in addition to that received in his regular employment, but shall be entitled to reimbursement for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred by him in the performance of duties vested in the Commission.

(2) Members of the Commission, other than those referred to in paragraph (1), shall receive compensation at the rate of $75 per day for each day they are engaged in the performance of their duties as members of the Commission and shall be entitled to reinbursement for travel, subsistence, and other necessary expenses incurred by them in the performance of their duties as members of the Commission.

(e) There are authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

(f) The Commission shall cease to exist thirty days after the submission of its final report.

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

Part A—Private Housing

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

Sec. 201. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 235 (as added by section 101 of this Act) the following new section:

"RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

"Sec. 236. (a) For the purpose of reducing rentals for lower income families, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by lower income families, which shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) Interest reduction payments with respect to a project shall only be made during such time as the project is operated as a rental housing project and is subject to a mortgage which meets the requirements of, and is insured under, subsection (j) of this section: Provided, That interest reduction payments may be made with respect to a rental or cooperative housing project owned by a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, and which prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation is approved for receiving the benefits of this section.

"(c) The interest reduction payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a project owner shall be in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the project owner as a mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such project owner would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of one per centum per annum.

"(d) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(e) As a condition for receiving the benefits of interest reduction payments, the project owner shall operate the project in accordance with such requirements with respect to tenant eligibility and rents as the Secretary may prescribe. Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for review of tenant incomes at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable).

"(f) For each dwelling unit there shall be established with the approval of the Secretary (1) a basic rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal and interest due under a mortgage bearing interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum; and (2) a fair market rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage covering the project. The rental for each dwelling unit shall be at the basic rental charge or such greater amount, not exceeding the fair market rental charge, as represents 25 per centum of the tenant's income.

"(g) The project owner shall, as required by the Secretary, accumulate, safeguard, and periodically pay to the Secretary all rental charges collected in excess of the basic rental charges. Such excess charges shall be deposited by the Secretary in a fund which may be used by him as a revolving fund for the purpose of making interest reduction payments with respect to any rental housing project receiving assistance under this section, subject to limits approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (i). Moneys in such fund not needed for current operations may be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

"(h) In addition to establishing the requirements specified in subsection (e), the Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section.

"(i)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make interest reduction payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(2) Not more than 20 per centum of the total amount of interest reduction payments authorized to be contracted to be made pursuant to appropriation Acts shall be contracted to be made with respect to families, occupying rental housing projects assisted under this section, whose incomes at the time of the initial renting of the projects exceed 135 per centum of the maximum income limits which can be established in the area, pursuant to the limitations prescribed in sections 2(2) and 15(7)(b)(ii) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, for initial occupancy in public housing dwellings, but the income of such families at the time of the initial renting of the projects shall in no case exceed 90 per centum of the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with mortgages insured under section 221(d)(3) which bear interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of section 221(d)(5). The limitations prescribed in this paragraph shall be administered by the Secretary so as to accord a preference to those families whose incomes are within the lowest practicable limits for obtaining rental accommodations in projects assisted under this section. The Secretary shall report annually to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives with respect to the income levels of families living in projects assisted under this section.

"(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) which meets the requirements of this subsection. Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(2) As used in this subsection—

"(A) the terms 'family' and 'families' shall have the same meaning as in section 221;

"(B) the term 'elderly or handicapped families' shall have the same meaning as in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; and

"(C) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortagee', and 'mortgagor' shall have the same meaning as in section 201.

"(3) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements specified in subsections (d)(1) and (d)(3) of section 221, except as such requirements are modified by this subsection. In the case of a project financed with a mortgage insured under this subsection which involves a mortgagor other than a cooperative or a private nonprofit corporation or association and which is sold to a cooperative or a nonprofit corporation or association, the Secretary is further authorized to insure under this subsection a mortgage given by such purchaser in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves.

"(4) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) be executed by a private mortgagor eligible under subsection (d)(3) or (e) of section 221;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market; and

"(C) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(5) The property or project shall—

"(A) comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of the property for mortgage insurance and may include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deems adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants and the surrounding neighborhood: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Secretary to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Secretary shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community: Provided further, That, in the case of a project designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicaped families, the project may include related facilities for use by elderly or handicapped families, including cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms, workshops, infirmaries, or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, and other essential service facilities;

"(B) include five or more dwelling units; and

"(C) be designed primarily for use as a rental project to be occupied by lower income families or by elderly or handicapped families: Provided, That lower income persons who are less than sixty-two years of age shall be eligible for occupancy in such a project, but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

"(6) With the approval of the Secretary, the mortgagor may sell the individual dwelling units to lower income or elderly or handicapped purchasers. The Secretary may consent to the release of the mortgagor from his liability under the mortgage and the credit instrument secured thereby, or consent to the release of parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, and the mortgage may provide for such release.

"(k) As used in this section the term 'tenant' includes a member of a cooperative; the term 'rental housing project' includes a cooperative housing project; and the terms 'rental' and 'rental charge' mean, with respect to members of a cooperative, the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

"(l) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make periodic interest reduction payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (i).

"(m) In determining the income of any person for the purposes of this section, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $300 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of such person and living with such family, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such person or his family."

(b)(1) Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "or 232" in the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof ", 232, or 236".

(2) Section 227(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "or (viii) under section 234(d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(viii) under section 234(d), or (ix) under section 236".

(3) Section 227(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233(b)(2)" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 236".

(c) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to transfer to section 236(j) of the National Housing Act the insurance of a mortgage which has not been finally endorsed for insurance under section 221(d)(3) of such Act and which has been approved for the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of section 221(d)(5) of such Act.

(d) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to insure under section 236(j) of the National Housing Act a mortgage meeting the requirements of such section which is given to refinance a mortgage loan made under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959: Provided, That the application for such insurance is filed with the Secretary on or before the date of project completion, or within such reasonable time thereafter as the Secretary may permit.

(e)(1) Section 101(d) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "In determining the income of any tenant for the purposes of this section, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $300 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of such tenant and living with such tenant, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such tenant."

(2) Section 101(g) of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 231(c)(3)" and inserting in lieu thereof ", section 231(c)(3), or section 236".

(3) Section 101(j)(1) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (B);

(B) by striking out the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(C) by inserting after subparagraph (C) a new subparagraph as follows:

"(D) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited divided legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is assisted under section 236 of the National Housing Act and which has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed."

(f) Section 207 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 is amended—

(1) by inserting in the heading "AND SECTION 236" immediately after "SECTION 221";

(2) by inserting "or section 236" after "section 221" each place it appears;

(3) by inserting "or 'section 236'" after "'section 221'" in subsection (a); and

(4) by inserting ", Government National Mortgage Association," immediately after "Federal Housing Administration" in subsection (c).

(g) The first sentence of section 305(i) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "or (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(3)"; and

(2) by inserting after "221(e)" the following: ", or (4) a mortgage insured under section 236".

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

SEC. 202. (a) Section 101(a) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out everything after the word "exceed" the second time the word appears in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$150,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollars amount shall be increased by $40,000,000, on July 1, 1969, and by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1970."

(b) Section 101(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following: "Such term also includes a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is the owner of a rental or cooperative housing project financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatement and which prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation is approved for receiving the benefits of this section."

PART B—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

INCREASED LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 203. (a) Section 10(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "$366,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $47,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively," in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$554,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and by further amounts of $150,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970,".

(b) Section 20 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "not to exceed $1,500,000,000" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "which shall not, unless authorized by the President, exceed $1,500,000,000"; and

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "For the purpose of determining obligations incurred to make loans pursuant to this Act against any limitation otherwise applicable with respect to such loans, the Secretary shall estimate the maximum amount to be loaned at any one time pursuant to loan agreements then outstanding with public housing agencies."

UPGRADING MANAGEMENT AND SERVICES IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

SEC. 204. Section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(10) The Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to public housing agencies to assist, where necessary, in financing tenant services for families living in low-rent housing projects. In making such contracts and grants, the Secretary shall give preference to programs providing for the maximum feasible participation of the tenants in the development and operation of such tenant services. For purposes of this paragraph the term 'tenant services' includes the following services and activities for families living in low-rent housing projects: counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters; advice as to resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other community services; services which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment; and referral to appropriate agencies when necessary for the provision of such services. To the maximum extent available and appropriate, existing public and private agencies in the community shall be used for the provision of such services. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this paragraph not to exceed $15,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $30,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this paragraph but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

SEC. 205. Section 15(9) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction" and inserting in lieu thereof ", if the property to be acquired is sufficiently separable from other property retained by the public housing agency to make it suitable".

"(11) Except in the case of housing predominantly for the elderly, upon enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall not approve high-rise elevator projects for families with children unless he makes a determination that there is no practical alternative."

SALE TO TENANTS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 208. (a) Section 23(f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting "(1)" after "shall not apply to", and by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", or (2) housing purchased (or in the process of purchase) by the public housing agency for resale to tenants as provided in subsection (g)".

(b) Section 23 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) To the extent authorized in contracts entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency, such agency may purchase any structure containing one or more dwelling units leased to provide low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants of the structure or to a group of such tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 per centum of the structure's total value. Any such resale shall be made subject to such terms and conditions (including provision for deferment of the required downpayment and for elimination of or adjustments in the required interest payments during a temporary period) as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship."

ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY FOR LARGE FAMILIES AND FAMILIES OF UNUSUALLY LOW INCOME

SEC. 209. (a) Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentences: "The term 'large families' means families which include four or more minors. The term 'families of unusually low income' means families with incomes below the income level established by the public housing agency, as approved by the Authority, who could not be housed without the additional subsidy authorized under section 10 (a)."

(b) The first proviso in section 10(a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after "an elderly family," the following: "or a large family, or a family of unusually low income,";

(2) by striking out "to lease the dwelling unit to an elderly or displaced family at a rental it could afford and"; and

(3) by striking out ", and, in the case of displaced families, if and to the extent that the average or estimated average rental for units so occupied by such families was less than the rental which the Authority determines, on the basis of the average or estimated average project rentals, would have been established in leasing the units to families which were neither elderly nor similarly displaced".

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON TYPES OR CATEGORIES OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 210. The first sentence of section 23(d) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "(and no limitation not specifically provided for in this section shall be imposed by regulations of the Authority on the types or categories of structures or dwelling units, qualifying under subsection (a) (3) and approved under subsection (c), which may be so used in any community)".

(1) by striking out "Secretary of the Treasury" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretary of Transportation"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(f) The Secretary is authorized to transfer to this section the insurance on any mortgage covering a single-family dwelling or a one-family unit in a condominium project insured under this Act, if the mortgage indebtedness thereof has been assumed by a serviceman who at the time of assumption is the owner of the property and either occupies the property or certifies, that his failure to do so is the result of his military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

"(g) Where a serviceman dies while on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States or in the United States Coast Guard, leaving a surviving widow as owner of the property, the period of ownership by the serviceman (within the meaning of subsection (c) of this section) shall extend for two years beyond the date of the serviceman's death or until the date the widow disposes of the property, whichever date occurs first. The Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation, as the case may be, shall notify such widow promptly following the serviceman's death of the additional costs to be borne by the mortgagor following termination of the two-year period."

MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

SEC. 302. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 238 (as added by section 104 of this Act) the following new section:

"MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 239. (a) The Secretary shall not consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, as defined in the regulations of the Secretary, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, except in conformity with regulations prescribed by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this section. Such regulations shall require, as a condition to the granting of any such request, that, during the period of such extension or modification, any part of the rents or other funds derived by the mortgagor from the property covered by the mortgage which is not required to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with the operation of such property, including amortization charges under the mortgage, be held in trust by the mortgagor and distributed only with the consent of the Secretary; except that the Secretary may provide for the granting of consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, without regard to the foregoing requirement, in any case or class of cases in which an exemption from such requirement does not (as determined by the Secretary) jeopardize the interests of the United States.

"(b) Whoever, as an owner of a property which is security for a mortgage described in subsection (a), or as a stockholder of a coporation owning such property, or as a beneficial owner under any business organization or trust owning such property, or as an officer, director, or agent of any such owner, (1) willfully uses or authorizes the use of any part of the rents or other funds derived from property covered by such mortgage in violation of a regulation prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (a), or (2) if such mortgage is determined, as provided in subsection (a), to be exempt from the requirement of any such regulation or is not otherwise covered by such regulation, willfully and knowingly uses or authorizes the use, while such mortgage is in default, of any part of the rents or other funds derived from the property covered by such mortgage for any purpose other than to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with such property (including amortization charges under the mortgage), shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both."

"PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

"SEC. 240. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure loans made by financial institutions for the purpose of financing purchasers by homeowners of the fee simple title to property on which their homes are located.

"(b) As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'financial institution' means a lender approved by the Secretary as eligible for insurance under section 2 or a mortgagee approved under section 203(b)(1); and

"(2) the term 'homeowner' means a lessee under a long-term ground lease.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a loan shall—

"(1) relate to property on which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-, two-, three-, or four-family residence;

"(2) not exceed the cost of purchasing the fee simple title, or $10,000 per family unit, whichever is the lesser;

"(3) be limited to an amount which when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property (as determined by the Secretary) creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the applicable mortgage limit prescribed in section 203(b);

"(4) bear interest at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions, and such other charges (including service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees) as may be approved by the Secretary;

"(5) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed twenty years from the beginning of amortization of the loan or three-quarters of the remaining economic life of the home, whichever is the lesser; and

"(6) comply with such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(d) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (5), (6), (7), (8), and (10) of section 220(h) shall be applicable to loans insured under this section and, as applied to loans insured under this section, references in those paragraphs to 'home improvement loans' and 'this subsection' shall be construed to refer to loans under this section."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464(c)) is amended by adding immediately after the next to the last paragraph the following new paragraph:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under section 240 of the National Housing Act, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

SUPPLEMENTAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR PROJECTS FINANCED WITH FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 307. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 240 (as added by section 304 of this Act) the following new section:

"SUPPLEMENTAL LOANS FOR MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 241. (a) With respect to a multifamily project or group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure, and to insure, supplemental loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. As used in this section, 'supplemental loan' means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing improvements or additions to such project or facility: Provided, That a loan involving a nursing home covered by a mortgage insured under section 232 or a loan involving a group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under title XI may also be made for the purpose of financing equipment to be used in the operation of such nursing home or facility.

"(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a supplemental loan shall—

"(1) be limited to 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements, additions, and equipment, except that such amount when added to the outstanding balance of the mortgage covering the project or facility, shall not exceed the maximum mortgage amount insurable under the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering such project or facility is insured;

"(2) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage;

"(3) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions;

"(4) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

"(5) be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 that are applicable to the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured; and

"(6) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(c) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, except that (1) all references to the term 'mortgage' shall be construed to refer to the term 'loan' as used in this section, (2) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 213 that is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of such fund, and (3) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

(3) by striking out "this title" each time it appears in subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof "this Act";

(4) by striking out "title I, title II, title VI, title VII, title VIII, or title IX" in subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof "any section or title of this Act"; and

(5) by striking out "(except that in any case the payment of insurance shall be in debentures)" at the end of subsection (c).

(b) Section 223(d) of such Act is amended by striking out all that follows "as he may prescribe," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "insure under the same section as the original mortgage a loan by the mortgagee in an amount not exceeding the excess of the foregoing expenses over the project income. Such loan shall (1) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed the per centum per annum currently permitted for mortgages insured under the section under which it is to be insured, (2) be secured in such manner as the Secretary shall require, and (3) be limited to a term not exceeding the unexpired term of the original mortgage. The Secretary is authorized to collect a premium charge for insurance of loans pursuant to this subsection in an amount computed at the same premium rate as is applicable to the original mortgage. This premium shall be payable in cash or in debentures of the insurance fund under which the loan is insured at par plus accrued interest. In the event of a failure of the borrower to make any payment due under such loan or under the original mortgage, both the loan and original mortgage shall be considered in default, and if such default continues for a period of thirty days, the lender shall be entitled to insurance benefits, computed in the same manner as for the original mortgage, except that in determining the interest rate under section 224 for the debentures representing the portion of the claim applicable to the loan, the date of the commitment to insure the loan and the insurance date of the loan shall be taken into consideration rather than the commitment or insurance date for the original mortgage."

SUPPLEMENTARY LOANS FOR COOPERATIVE HOUSING PURCHASED FROM THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

SEC. 313. Section 213(j) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after the first sentence of paragraph (1) the following sentence: "The Secretary is further authorized to make commitments to insure and to insure supplementary cooperative loans (including advances during construction or improvement) with respect to any property purchased from the Federal Government by a nonprofit corporation or trust of the character described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a), if the property is covered by an uninsured mortgage representing a part of the purchase price."; and

(2) by adding before the semicolon at the end of paragraph (2)(B) the following: "; except that, in the case of repairs or improvements to a property covered by an uninsured mortgage dated more than twenty years prior to the date of the commitment to insure, of such magnitude that the Secretary deems them to be a major rehabilitation or modernization of such property, the loan may have a maturity date up to ten years in excess of the remaining term of the uninsured mortgage".

EQUIPMENT IN NURSING HOMES

SEC. 314. Section 232 of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out subsection (b)(2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) the term 'mortgage' means a first mortgage on real estate in fee simple, or on the interest of either the lessor or lessee thereof (A) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (B) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed. The term 'first mortgage' means such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and any mortgage may be in the form of one or more trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trust, securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments, and, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty. The term 'mortgagor' shall have the meaning set forth in section 207(a) of this Act.";

(2) by striking out so much of subsection (d) as precedes paragraph (1) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated nursing home, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:"; and

(3) by striking out "when the proposed improvements are completed" before the period at the end of subsection (d)(2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: ", including equipment to be used in the operation of the nursing home, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed".

FLEXIBLE INTEREST RATES FOR CERTAIN FHA INSURANCE PROGRAMS

SEC. 315. Section 3(a) of the Act entitled "An Act to amend chapter 37 of title 38 of the United States Code with respect to the veterans' home loan program, to amend the National Housing Act with respect to interest rates on insured mortgages, and for other purposes", approved May 7, 1968, is amended by inserting "235(j)(2)(C), 236(j)(4)(B), 240(c)(4), 241(b)(3), 242(d)(3)(B)," after "234(f),".

FHA SECTION 221(h) PROGRAM

SEC. 316. (a) Section 221(h)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended to read as follows:

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit corporation or association, approved by the Secretary, for financing the purchase and rehabilitation (with the intention of subsequent resale) of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, upon which there is located deteriorating or substandard housing consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established;".

(b) Section 221(h) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 101(c)(3) of this Act) two new paragraphs as follows:

"(7) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(8) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (7)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner."

HOUSING IN OUTLYING AREAS

SEC. 317. Section 203(i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "not in excess of $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not in excess of $13,500".

SEASONAL HOMES

SEC. 318. Section 203 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(m) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (b) of this section, except as modified by this subsection. To be eligible, the mortgage shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 and not in excess of 75 per centum of the appraised value of the property, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance. The mortgage shall cover a dwelling for single-family occupancy which is approved for mortgage insurance prior to the beginning of construction. The dwelling need not be designed for year-round occupancy, but it shall (1) meet standards prescribed by the Secretary, and (2) be located in an area where the Secretary finds it is not practicable to obtain conformity with many of the requirements essential to the insuring of mortgages on housing in built-up urban areas. The development of the property with respect to which the mortgage is executed shall be consistent with the conservation of water and other natural resources of the area, and such property shall be an acceptable risk, giving consideration to the economic potential of the area in which the dwelling is located and the contribution that the housing will make toward improving the area. The Secretary may suspend the issuance of commitments under this subsection for the insurance of mortgages secured by properties situated in any area, whenever he determines that (i) there is a serious and unusual shortage of mortgage funds for residential construction in such area, (ii) such insurance would affect materially and adversely the availability of mortgage funds for residential construction in such area, and (iii) such suspension would not have an adverse impact upon the balanced economic development of the area."

TITLE IV—GUARANTEES FOR FINANCING NEW COMMUNITY LAND DEVELOPMENT

CITATION

SEC. 401. This title may be referred to as the "New Communities Act of 1968".

PURPOSE

SEC. 402. It is the purpose of this title, by facilitating the enlistment of private capital in new community development, to encourage the development of new communities that—

(1) contribute to the general betterment of living conditions through the improved quality of community development made possible by a consistent design for the provision of homes, commercial and industrial facilities, public and communty facilites, and open spaces;

(2) make substantal contributions to the sound and economic growth of the areas in which they are located;

(3) provide needed additions to the general housing supply;

(4) provide opportunities for innovation in housing and community development technology and in land use planning;

(5) enlarge housing and employment opportunities by increasing the range of housing choice and providing new investment opportunities for industry and commerce;

(6) encourage the maintenance and growth of a diversified local homebuilding industry; and

(7) include, to the greatest extent feasible, the employment of new and improved technology, techniques, materials, and methods in housing construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance under programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development with a view to reducing the cost of such construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance, and stimulating the increased and sustained production of housing under such programs.

GUARANTEE AUTHORITY

SEC. 403. To carry out the purposes of this title the Secretary is authorized to guarantee, and enter into commitments to guarantee, the bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by new community developers to help finance new community development projects. The Secretary may make such guarantees and enter into such commitments, subject to the limitations contained in sections 404 and 405, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, taking into account (1) the large initial capital investment required to finance sound new communities, (2) the extended period before initial returns on this type of investment can be expected, (3) the irregular pattern of cash returns characteristic of such investment, and (4) the financial and security interests of the United States in connection with guarantees made under this title.

ELIGIBLE NEW COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 404. No guarantee or commitment to guarantee may be made under this title unless the Secretary has determined that—

(1) the proposed new community (A) will be economically feasible in terms of economic base or potential for growth, and (B) will contribute to the orderly growth and development of the area of which it is a part;

(2) there is a practicable plan (including appropriate time schedules) for financing the land acquisition and land development costs of the proposed new community and for improving and marketing the land which, giving due consideration to the public purposes of this title and the special problems involved in financing new communities, represents an acceptable financial risk to the United States;

(3) there is a sound internal development plan for the new community which (A) has received all governmental approvals required by State or local law or by the Secretary; and (B) is acceptable to the Secretary as providing reasonable assurance that the development will contribute to good living conditions in the area being developed, will be characterized by sound land use patterns, will include a proper balance of housing for families of low and moderate income, and will include or be served by such shopping, school, recreational, transportation, and other facilities as the Secretary deems satisfactory; and

(4) the internal development plan is consistent with a comprehensive plan which covers, or with comprehensive planning being carried on for, the area in which the land is situated, and which meets criteria established by the Secretary for such comprehensive plans or planning.

ELIGIBLE OBLIGATIONS

SEC. 405. (a) Any bond, debenture, note or other obligation guaranteed under this title shall—

(1) be issued by a new community developer, other than a public body, approved by the Secretary on the basis of financial, technical and administrative ability which demonstrates his capacity to carry out the proposed project;

(2) be issued to and held by investors approved by, or meeting requirements prescribed by, the Secretary, or if an offering to the public is contemplated, be underwritten upon terms and conditions approved by the Secretary;

(3) be issued to finance a program of land development (including acquisition or use of land) approved by the Secretary: Provided, That the Secretary shall, through cost certification procedures, escrow or trusteeship requirements, or other means, insure that all proceeds from the sale of obligations guaranteed under this title are expended pursuant to such program;

(4) involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed the lesser of (A) 80 per centum of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development or (B) the sum of 75 per centum of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate of the actual cost of the land development;

(5) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Secretary, such interest to be exclusive of any service charges and fees that may be approved by the Secretary;

(6) contain repayment and maturity provisions satisfactory to the Secretary; and

(7) contain provisions which the Secretary shall prescribe with respect to the protection of the security interests of the United States (including subrogation provisions), liens and releases of liens, payment of taxes, and such other matters as the Secretary may, in his discretion, prescribe.

(b) The outstanding principal obligations guaranteed under this title with respect to a single new community development project shall at no time exceed $50,000,000.

FEES AND CHARGES

SEC. 406. The Secretary is authorized to establish and collect fees for guarantees made under this title and may make such charges as he considers reasonable for the analysis of development and financing plans and for appraisals and inspections related to new community development projects. On or before January 1, 1970, the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress concerning the fees and other charges under this title that he estimates will be adequate to provide income sufficient for a self-supporting program.

GUARANTEE FUND

SEC. 407. (a) To provide for the payment of any liabilities incurred as a result of guarantees made under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a revolving fund which shall be comprised of (1) receipts from fees and charges; (2) recoveries under security or subrogation rights or other rights, and any other receipts obtained in connection with such guarantees; and (3) such sums, which are hereby authorized to be appropriated, as may be required for program operations and nonadministrative expenses and to make any and all payments guaranteed under this title.

(b) The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all guarantees made under this title with respect to both principal and interest, including (1) interest, as may be provided for in the guarantee, accruing between the date of default under a guaranteed obligation and the payment in full of the guarantee, and (2) principal and interest due under any debentures issued by the Secretary toward payment of guarantees made under this title.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law relating to the acquisition, handling, improvement, or disposal of real and other property by the United States, the Secretary shall have power, for the protection of the interests of the guarantee fund authorized under this section, to pay out of such fund all expenses or charges in connection with the acquisition, handling, improvement, or disposal of any property acquired by him under this title; and notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall also have power to pursue to final collection by way of compromise or otherwise all claims acquired by him in connection with any security, subrogation, or other rights obtained by him in carrying out this title.

(d) The aggregate of the outstanding principal obligations guaranteed under this title shall at no time exceed $250,000,000.

INCONTESTABILITY

SEC. 408. Any guarantee made by the Secretary under this title shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the obligations for such guarantee, and the validity of any guarantee so made shall be incontestable in the hands of a qualified holder of the guaranteed obligation except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of such holder.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF SMALL BUILDERS

SEC. 409. The Secretary shall adopt such requirements as he deems necessary to assure that new community construction assisted under this title will encourage the maintenance of a diversified local home-building industry and broad participation by builders, particularly small builders.

LABOR

SEC. 410. All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in land development assisted under section 403 shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5). No assistance shall be extended under section 403 for land development without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work involved in such development. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this section, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1267), and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (40 U.S.C. 276c).

REAL PROPERTY TAXATION

SEC. 411. Nothing in this title shall be construed to exempt any real property that may be acquired and held by the Secretary as a result of the exercise of lien or subrogation rights from real property taxation to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

SUPPLEMENTARY GRANTS

SEC. 412. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make supplementary grants to State and local public bodies and agencies carrying out new community assistance projects, as defined in section 415(c), if the Secretary determines that such grants are necessary or desirable for carrying out a new community development project approved for assistance under section 403, and that a substantial number of housing units for low and moderate income persons is to be made available through such development project.

(b) In no case shall any grant under this section exceed 20 per centum of the cost of the new community assistance project for which the grant is made; and in no case shall the total Federal contributions to the cost of such project be more than 80 per centum.

(c) In carrying out his authority under this section the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to new community assistance projects assisted by that Department, and he shall, for the purpose of subsection (b), accept that Department's certifications as to the cost of such projects.

(d) There are authorized to be appropriated for grants under this section not to exceed $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $25,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this subsection but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AND RULES AND REGULATIONS

SEC. 413. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c)(2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950: Provided, That subsection (a)(1) of section 402 shall not apply with respect to functions, powers, and duties under section 412 of this title.

AUDIT BY GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

SEC. 414. Insofar as they relate to any grants or guarantees made pursuant to this title, the financial transactions of recipients of Federal grants or of developers whose obligations are guaranteed by the United States pursuant to this title may be audited by the General Accounting Office under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, account, records, reports, files, and all other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by such developers or recipients of grants pertaining to such financial transactions and necessary to facilitate the audit.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 415. As used in this title—

(a) The term "land development" means the process of grading land, making, installing, or constructing water lines and water supply installations, sewer lines and sewage disposal intallations, steam, gas, and electric lines and installations, roads, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, storm drainage facilities, and other installations or work, whether on or off the site, which the Secretary deems necessary or desirable to prepare land for residential, commercial, industrial, or other uses, or to provide facilities for public or common use. The term

"land development" shall not include any building unless it is (1) a building which is needed in connection with a water supply or sewage disposal installation or a steam, gas, or electric line or installation, or (2) a building, other than a school, which is to be owned and maintained jointly by the residents of the new community or is to be transferred to public ownership, but not prior to its completion.

(b) The term "actual costs" means the costs (exclusive of rebates or discounts) incurred by a new community developer in carrying out the land development assisted under this title. These costs may include amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, land planning, engineers' and architects' fees, surveys, taxes, and interest during development, organizational and legal expenses, such allocation of general overhead expenses as are acceptable to the Secretary, and other items of expense incidental to development which may be approved by the Secretary. If the Secretary determines that there is an identity of interest between the new community developer and a contractor, there may be included as a part of actual costs an allowance for the contractor's profit in an amount deemed reasonable by the Secretary.

(c) The term "new community assistance projects" means projects assisted by grants made under section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, section 306(a)(2) of the Consolidated Farmers' Home Administration Act, or title VII of the Housing Act of 1961.

CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

SEC. 416. (a) Section 202(b)(4) of the Housing Amendments of 1955 is amended by adding before the period at the end of the second sentence "or under title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

(b) The first paragraph of section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act is amended by striking out all that follows "national banking association" in the fourth sentence and adding "may make loans or purchase obligations for land development which are secured by mortgages insured under title X of the National Housing Act or guaranteed under title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.".

(c) The paragraph which, prior to the amendments made by this Act, was the next to last paragraph of section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of any guaranty under title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as now or hereafter in effect, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

TITLE V—URBAN RENEWAL

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 501. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after the title heading the following new subheading:

"PART A—URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS, DEMOLITION PROGRAMS, AND CODE ENFORCEMENT PROGRAMS"

(b) Title I of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"PART B—NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

"PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

"SEC. 131. (a) To facilitate more rapid renewal and development of urban areas on an effective scale, and to encourage more efficient and flexible utilization of public and private development opportunities by local communities in such areas, the Secretary is authorized to make financial assistance available under this title to local public agencies for undertakings and activities which are carried out under a neighborhood development program approved by him pursuant to this part.

"(b) A neighborhood development program shall consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas which are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments in accordance with the provisions of this title for planning and carrying out urban renewal projects, except as modified by the provisions of this part.

"(c) No application for financial assistance in planning and carrying out a neighborhood development program shall be approved by the Secretary unless—

"(1) the governing body of the locality has, by resolution or ordinance, approved the proposed program and the annual increment covered by the application and authorized the filing of the application for financial assistance; and

"(2) the Secretary has concluded that there is the necessary capacity to carry out the undertakings and activities included under the program.

"FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 132. (a) Upon the approval of a neighborhood development program by the Secretary, the cost of any undertakings and activities authorized as part of the program shall be financed in accordance with the loan, capital grant, and project cost provisions of part A, except that—

"(1) net project cost may be calculated on the basis of costs incurred and proceeds derived for the account of the program during a specified twelve-month period, and may be recalculated for succeeding periods of twelve months to reflect additional costs and additional proceeds since the date of the last computation or recomputation; and

"(2) if property has been acquired but not disposed of prior to the computation or recomputation of net project cost, temporary loans made or secured under this title to finance undertakings or activities included in the program may remain outstanding until the property has been disposed of and the proceeds thereof, together with additional funds becoming available to the program, are sufficient to permit repayment of the loans.

"(b) In the event that gross project cost as computed for a specified twelve-month period is exceeded, with respect to that period, by the sum of (1) the sales price of land or other property sold, and (2) the imputed capital value of land or other property leased or retained by the local public agency in accordance with the provisions of the urban renewal plan, the local public agency shall pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess (or three-fourths in the case of a program on a three-fourths grant basis), which amount shall be available to the Secretary for grant payments under section 103.

"LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

"SEC. 133. (a) For the purpose of determining the eligibility of local grants-in-aid in connection with undertakings and activities carried out under a neighborhood development program, the three-year period referred to in the second paragraph of section 110(d) shall be deemed to be a period of three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; and the seven-year period referred to in clause (1) of section 112(b) shall be deemed to be a period of seven years prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed.

"(b) No portion of the cost of a public improvement or public facility (to the extent otherwise eligible) may be included as a local grant-in-aid in computing the gross project cost of an approved program for any twelve-month period—

"(1) prior to commencement of construction of the improvement or facility, or

"(2) in excess of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

"(c) The provisions of section 104 with respect to the pooling of local grants-in-aid among the various projects undertaken by a local public agency shall not be applicable with respect to any excess local grants-in-aid resulting from the urban renewal projects contained in a neighborhood development program.

"GENERAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 134. (a) For purposes of this part—

"(1) the workable program requirement in section 101(c) shall apply to the authorization, rather than the execution, of any contract for loans or capital grants;

"(2) capital grants on a three-fourths basis may only be made under section 103(a)(2)(B);

"(3) the relocation requirements specified in section 105(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program;

"(4) section 106(g) (relating to transient housing) shall apply to activities undertaken under approved programs, except that the determination as to need for transient housing shall be made with respect to any sale or lease of land for construction of such housing prior to such sale or lease; and

"(5) the requirement concerning demolition and removal of buildings and improvements stated in clause (A) of the sentence following paragraph (10) of section 110(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program.

"(b) The approval by the Secretary of financial assistance for one or more annual increments of a neighborhood development program shall not be considered as obligating him to provide financial assistance for any subsequent annual increments.

"(c) The urban renewal plan referred to in section 110(b) may cover one or more of the urban renewal areas covered by a neighborhood development program and such plan may be modified from time to time to cover additional urban renewal areas added to the program. The Secretary may establish such requirements as he deems appropriate prescribing the scope and content of such plan, taking into consideration, among other matters, the degree of detail needed in the plan to properly and expeditiously carry out the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment of a neighborhood development program."

(c) Notwithstanding any requirement or condition to the contrary in section 6 or 20(i) of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945 or in any other provision of law, the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency may plan and undertake neighborhood development programs under part B of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 (as added by this section), subject to all of the provisions of such Act of 1945 to the extent not inconsistent with such part B, and any such program shall be regarded as complying with the requirements of such sections 6 and 20(i) and of such other provision of law if it meets the applicable requirements established under such part B.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 502. (a) Section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out everything in the first sentence after "exceed" and inserting in lieu thereof "$7,600,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969".

(b) Section 103(b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "$250,000,000" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "$600,000,000".

REHABILITATION GRANTS

SEC. 503. (a) The second sentence of section 115(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the words "a structure" and "such structure" and inserting in lieu thereof "real property" and "such real property", respectively.

(b) Section 115(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$3,000".

(c) Section 115(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(a)", and by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"(2) In addition to the authority conferred by paragraph (1), and notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to an individual or family, as described in subsection (b), to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make real property owned and occupied by such individual or family conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing. No grants shall be made under this paragraph in the case of any property, unless (A) such property is in an area within a locality (other than an urban renewal or code enforcement area) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of such repairs and improvements, (B) there is in effect for the locality a workable program meeting the requirements of section 101(c), and (C) the area is definitely planned for rehabilitation or concentrated code enforcement within a reasonable time, and such repairs and improvements to such property are consistent with the plan for rehabilitation or concentrated code enforcement."

(d) Section 115 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection (b) as follows:

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)), through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), who owns and occupies real property which has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act. Such grants may only be made to rehabilitate such property to the extent which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by such plan."; and

(2) by striking out "subsection (b)" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (c)".

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 504. Section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out (1) "guidance purposes, and", and (2) the proviso at the end thereof.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 505. Section 107(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting after "public body or agency," the following: "or other approved purchaser or lessee,";

(2) by inserting ", section 221(h)(1), section 235(j)(1), or section 236" after "or (d)(4)";

(3) by inserting "or lessee" after "a purchaser" and after "such purchaser", and "or lease" after "purchase";

(4) by striking out "rental or cooperative";

(5) by striking out "moderate" and inserting in lieu thereof "low or moderate"; and

(6) by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ": Provided, That when property is made available under clause (1) to an approved purchaser or lessee other than a limited dividend corporation, nonprofit corporation or association, cooperative, or public body or agency, the Secretary shall assure that the benefits of this subsection will go to the occupant of the property rather than to such purchaser or lessee".

GRANTS FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN OPEN LAND PROJECTS

SEC. 506. Section 103(a)(1) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", except that he may contract for a grant in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of pursuant to section 107 and the fair value of the land without regard to such section".

URBAN RENEWAL LOAN CONTRACTS

SEC. 507. (a) Section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "at interest rates lower than provided in the loan contract" in the first sentence; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ": Provided, That, if at any time during the undertaking of the project, the interest rate on such a loan from a source other than the Federal Government is greater than the rate at which funds could be made available under the Federal loan contract, the Secretary may make a supplemental grant to the local public agency in the amount of the difference between the interest cost from such sources and the interest cost at the contract rate, and no part of the amount of any such grant shall be required to be contributed as a part of the local grant-in-aid".

(b) Loan contracts outstanding on the date of enactment of this section may be amended to incorporate the provisions authorized by the amendment contained in subsection (a) without regard to the proviso in section 110(g) of the Housing Act of 1949.

PROJECT COMPLETION PRIOR TO DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

SEC. 508. (a) Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) Upon a determination by the Secretary that (1) not more than 5 per centum of the total area of land acquired as part of an urban renewal project remains to be disposed of, (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of such land in the near future, (3) all other project activities are completed, and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan, the urban renewal project may be deemed completed, and the net project cost may be computed and the capital grant paid."

(b) Section 110(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "or for subsequent disposition or retention as provided under section 106(i)".

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 509. (a) The first sentence of section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended to read as follows: "There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $150,000,000 for each fiscal year which shall constitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section."

(b) Section 312(h) of such Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1969" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1973".

(c) Section 312(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners and tenants of property to finance the rehabilitation of such property. No loan shall be made under this section unless—

"(1)(A) the property is situated in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activity is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949, and the rehabilitation is required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area and, in addition, to generally improve the condition of the property; or

"(B) (i) the property is in an area (other than an area described in subparagraph (A)) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation, (ii) there is in effect for the locality a workable program meeting the requirements of section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, (iii) the property is residential and owner-occupied, (iv) the property is in need of rehabilitation and is in violation of the local minimum housing or similar code, and (v) the area is definitely planned for rehabilitation or concentrated code enforcement within a reasonable time, and the rehabilitation of such property is consistent with the plan for rehabilitation or code enforcement;

"(2) the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions; and

"(3) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan."

(d) Section 312 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1)(B) in subsection (a) (as amended by subsection (c) of this section), and by inserting after such paragraph (1)(B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C)(i) the property has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act, and (ii) the loan is made to the owner or tenant of the property to finance rehabilitation which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards;"; and

(2) by striking out "or" after "applicable codes" in subsection (b)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof a comma, and by inserting after "urban renewal plan" in such subsection ", or a statewide property insurance plan".

(e) Section 312(a) of such Act (as amended by the preceding provisions of this section) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, no loan with respect to residential property shall be made under this section to any person whose annual income, as determined pursuant to criteria and procedures established by the Secretary, exceeds the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with below-market interest rate mortgages insured (in the area involved) under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act: Provided, That the provisions of this sentence shall not apply to property in the area of an urban renewal project or a code enforcement project for which the city or other local public body or agency is receiving financial assistance under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 if, prior to the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, such local public body or agency specifically developed plans for such project in reliance upon the availability of loans under this section."

DEMOLITION GRANTS

SEC. 510. (a) The first sentence of section 116(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "unsound" the following: ", a harborage or potential harborage of rats,".

(b) Section 116(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the comma at the end of clause (2) the following: "or will be consistent with a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood,".

AIR RIGHTS SITES IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 511. (a) Section 110(c)(1)(iv) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "for use for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for use for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

(b) Section 110(c)(7) of such Act is amended by striking out "for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN RESIDENTIAL URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 512. Section 105(f) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(f) A majority of the housing units provided in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects as will be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals: Provided, That the units in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects which are for low-income families or individuals shall constitute at least 20 per centum of the units in such projects, except that the Secretary may waive the requirement of this proviso in any community to the extent that units for low-income families and individuals are not needed. The Secretary shall promptly report any waiver under the proviso in the preceding sentence to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and the House of Representatives."

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF INDIAN TRIBES

SEC. 513. Section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "1964" in the second proviso the following: "or, in the case of an Indian tribe, band, or nation, commencing January 1, 1970".

INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

SEC. 514. Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 117 a new section as follows:

"INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

"SEC. 118. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts (in an aggregate amount not to exceed $15,000,000 in any fiscal year) to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying our programs to alleviate harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas which are planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation, or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future but in which some immediate public action is needed until clearance, rehabilitation, or code enforcement activities can be undertaken. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out programs which may include (1) the repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings to meet needs consistent with the short-term continued use of the area prior to the undertaking of the contemplated clearance or upgrading activities, (2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to public health and safety, (3) the demolition of structures determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation and which constitute a public nuisance and serious hazard to the public health and safety, (4) the establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land within the area, and (5) the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning, and similar activities. The Secretary shall encourage, wherever feasible, the employment of otherwise unemployed or underemployed residents of the area in carrying out the activities and undertakings assisted under this section. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, and 114 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project."

UTILIZATION OF LOCAL PRIVATE NONPROFIT AGENCIES FOR REHABILITATION GRANTS IN CODE ENFORCEMENT AREAS

SEC. 515. Section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting the following before the period at the end thereof: ": Provided, That the Secretary may, in addition to authorizing a local public agency to make grants as prescribed in section 115, make such grants through the utilization of local private nonprofit agencies".

RELOCATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 516. Section 114(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out the first sentence of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may pay to or on behalf of any displaced family, displaced individual sixty-two years of age or over, or displaced handicapped individual, monthly payments over a period not to exceed twenty-four months in an amount not to exceed $500 in the first twelve months and $500 in the second twelve months to assist such displaced family or individual to secure a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling.";

(2) by striking out "relocation adjustment" in the second sentence of paragraph A2Q and inserting in lieu thereof "additional";

(3) by striking out the second proviso in paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: ": Provided further, That additional payments under this paragraph may be paid on a lump sum or other than monthly basis in cases in which the small size of the payments that would otherwise be required do not warrant a number of separate payments or in other cases in which other than monthly payments are determined warranted by the Secretary: And provided further, That no payment received under this paragraph shall be considered as income for the purpose of determining the eligibility or the extent of eligibility of any person for assistance under the Social Security Act or any other Federal Act"; and

(4) by inserting a new paragraph (3) as follows:

"(3) In addition to any amount under paragraph (1), a local public agency may make a payment to a displaced family or individual, who does not receive the additional payment authorized under paragraph (2) and who is the owner of real property which is acquired for a project assisted under this title and which is improved by a single- or two-family dwelling occupied by the owner for a period of not less than one year prior to the initiation of negotiations for the acquisition of such property. Such payment, not to exceed $5,000, shall be an amount which, when added to the acquisition payment, equals the average price required for a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling of modest standards adequate in size to accommodate the displaced owner, reasonably accessible to public services and places of employment and available on the private market: Provided, That such payment may be made only to a displaced owner who purchases and occupies a dwelling within one year subsequent to the date on which he is required to move from the dwelling acquired for the project: Provided further, That no such payment may be made if the owner-occupant receives a payment required by the State law of eminent domain which is determined by the Secretary to have substantially the same purpose and effect as this paragraph and to be part of the cost of the project for which Federal financial assistance is available."

TITLE VI—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

SEC. 601. Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

"SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems, including those resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas and the out-migration from and lack of coordinated development of resources and services in rural areas; to facilitate comprehensive planing for urban and rural development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs and techniques on an areawide basis, and to engage private consultants where their professional services are deemed appropriate by the assisted governments, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

"(1) State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more, according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after September 2, 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection, and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

"(2) State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies for metropolitan or regional planning, and to cities, within metropolitan areas, for planning which is part of comprehensive metropolitan planning and which shall supplement and be coordinated with State, metropolitan, and regional planning;

"(3) (A) economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, and

"(B) cities, other municipalities, and counties which (i) are situated in redevelopment areas or economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, or (ii) have suffered substantial damage as a result of catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes', approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855a), has determined to be a major disaster;

"(4) official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act or title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968;

"(5) States for State and interstate comprehensive planning and for research and coordination activity related thereto, including technical and other assistance for the establishment and operation of intrastate and interstate planning agencies;

"(6) State planning agencies for assistance to district planning, or planning for areas within districts, carried on by or for district planning agencies;

"(7) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency exists) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

"(8) official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

"(9) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation;

"(10) the various regional commissions established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 or under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 for comprehensive planning for the regions established under such Acts (or State agencies or instrumentalities participating in such planning); and

"(11) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire areas having common or related development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense.

Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other areas and reducing transportation needs. Planning carried out with assistance under this section shall also include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans, and this consideration of the housing needs and land use requirements for housing in each comprehensive plan shall take into account all available evidence of the assumptions and statistical bases upon which the projection of zoning, community facilities, and population growth is based, so that the housing needs of both the region and the local communities studied in the planning will be adequately covered in terms of existing and prospective in-migrant population growth. Funds available under this section shall be addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other federally aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Transportation under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

"(b) A planning grant made under subsection (a) shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be made for up to 75 per centum of such estimated cost when made for planning primarily for (1) redevelopment areas, local development districts, or economic development districts, or portions thereof, described in paragraph (3) (A) and (B) (i) and paragraph (11) of subsection (a), (2) areas described in subsection (a) (8), and (3) the various regions, as described in subsection (a) (10). All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this section. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section not to exceed $265,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $390,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Of the amount available prior to July 1, 1969, $20,000,000 may be used only for district planning grants under subsection (a) (6), which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended: Provided, That, of any funds appropriated under this section, not to exceed an aggregate of $10,000,000 plus 5 per centum of the funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects, undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified regional, district, or metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

"(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportation planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, districts, regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefor. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and publish information on related problems.

"(e) In the exercise of his responsibilities under this section, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities and other comprehensively planned activities. He shall, particularly, consult with the Secretary of Agriculture prior to his approval of any district planning grants under subsections (a)(6) and (g), and with the Secretary of Commerce prior to his approval of any planning grants which include any part of an economic development district as defined and designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Commerce, as appropriate, may provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of districts by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the carrying out of planning by such districts.

"(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

"(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials representative of the political jurisdictions within the metropolitan area, region, or district for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop metropolitan, regional, and district plans and programs, and engage in such other activities, including implementation of such plans, as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan, regional, or district problems in such areas, regions, or districts. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area, region, or district including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resources development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

"(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropriate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary or appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balanced and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable to those used in establishing the national register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (11) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.

"(i) As used in this section—

"(1) The term 'metropolitan area' means a standard metropolitan statistical area, as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject, however, to such modifications or extensions as the Secretary deems to be appropriate for the purposes of this section.

"(2) The term 'region' includes (A) all or part of the area of jurisdiction of one or more units of general local government, and (B) one or more metropolitan areas.

"(3) The term 'district' includes all or part of the area of jurisdiction of (A) one or more counties, and (B) one or more other units of general local government, but does not include any portion of a metropolitan area.

"(4) The term 'comprehensive planning' includes the following:

"(A) preparation, as a guide for governmental policies and action, of general plans with respect to (i) the pattern and intensity of land use, (ii) the provision of public facilities (including transportation facilities) and other government services, and (iii) the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources;

"(B) long-range physical and fiscal plans for such action;

"(C) programing of capital improvements and other major expenditures, based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for such expenditures in the earlier years of the program;

"(D) coordination of all related plans and activities of the State and local governments and agencies concerned; and

"(E) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Comprehensive planning for the purpose of districts shall not include planning for or assistance to establishments in relocating from one area to another or assist subcontractors whose purpose is to divest, or whose economic success is dependent upon divesting, other contractors or subcontractors of contracts theretofore customarily performed by them: Provided, That this limitation shall not be construed to prohibit assistance for the expansion of an existing business entity through the establishment of a new branch, affiliate, or subsidiary of such entity, if the Secretary finds that the establishment of such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary will not result in an increase in unemployment in the area of original location or in any other area where such entity conducts business operations, unless the Secretary has reason to believe that such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary is being established with the intention of closing down the operations of the existing business entity in the area of its original location or in any other area where it conducts such operations.

"(5) The term 'State planning agencies' includes official State planning agencies and (in States where no such planning agency exists) agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary.

"(6) The terms 'metropolitan planning agencies', 'regional planning agencies', and 'district planning agencies' mean official metropolitan, regional, and district planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning), and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local law or interstate compact to perform metropolitan, regional, or district planning, respectively: Provided, That such agencies and instrumentalities shall, to the greatest practicable extent, be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to engage in planning."

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 602. (a) The heading of title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended to read as follows: "TITLE II—PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT".

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

"SEC. 201. (a) The Congress hereby finds that the welfare of the Nation and of its people is directly dependent upon the sound and orderly development and the effective organization and functioning of our State and local governments.

"It further finds that it is essential that our State and local governments prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.

"It further finds that our State and local governments are especially handicapped in this task by the complexity and scope of governmental services required, the multiplicity of political jurisdictions and agencies involved, and the inadequacy of the operational and administrative arrangements available for cooperation among them.

"It further finds that present requirements for areawide planning and programing in connection with various Federal programs have materially assisted in the solution of areawide problems, but that greater coordination of Federal programs and additional participation and cooperation are needed from the States and localities in perfecting and carrying out such efforts.

"(b) It is the purpose of this title to provide through greater coordination of Federal programs, and through supplementary grants for certain federally assisted development projects, additional encouragement and assistance to States and localities for making comprehensive areawide planning and programing effective."

(c) Section 202 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(d) (1) Section 205 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan development" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide development".

(2) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan areas" and "metropolitan area" and inserting in lieu thereof "areas" and "area", respectively.

(3) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitanwide" each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(4) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan planning" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide planning".

(5) Such section is further amended by inserting "where appropriate," after "(B)" in subsection (c) (1).

(6) Such section is further amended by striking out "within the metropolitanwide area" in subsection (f).

(e) (1) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 208 of such Act are amended by striking out "Metropolitan" and inserting in lieu thereof "Areawide".

(2) Paragraph (7) of such section is amended—

(A) by striking out "or metropolitan or regional" and inserting in lieu thereof ", metropolitan, regional, or district"; and

(B) by striking out "metropolitan" in the parenthetical phrase.

(f) Section 206 (b) of such Act is amended by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 603. (a) Section 701 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities" in clause (3) and inserting in lieu thereof "in the future for public purposes".

(b) Section 704 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

"SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loans or other financial obligations incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not in excess of the lesser of (1) five years from the date of acquisition of such land or (2) the period of time between the date on which the land was acquired and the date its use began for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That where all or any portion of the cost of such land is not financed through borrowings, the amount of the grant shall be computed on the basis of the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges that the Secretary determines would have been required.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the land will be utilized for a public purpose within a reasonable period of time and that such utilization will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area. The Secretary shall in all cases require that land acquired with the assistance of a grant under this section be utilized for a public purpose within five years after the date on which a contract to make such grant is entered into, unless the Secretary (1) determines that due to unusual circumstances a longer period of time is necessary and in the public interest, and (2) reports such determination promptly to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

"(d) No land acquired with assistance under this section shall, without approval of the Secretary, be diverted from the purpose originally approved. The Secretary shall approve no such diversion unless he finds that the diversion is in accord with the then applicable comprehensive plan for the area. In cases of a diversion of land to other than a public purpose, the Secretary may require repayment of the grant, or substitution of land of approximately equal fair market value, whichever he deems appropriate. An interim use of the land for a public or private purpose in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, or approved by him, shall not constitute a diversion within the meaning of this subsection.

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no project for which land is acquired with assistance under this section shall, solely as a result of such advance acquisition, be considered ineligible for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program, and the amount of the purchase price paid for the land by the recipient of a grant under this section may be considered an eligible cost for the purpose of such other Federal loan or grant program."

(2) by striking out "Chairman of the Board" and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretary of Housing and Urban Development";

(3) by striking out "agents," and inserting in lieu thereof "agents of the Association,"; and

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The board of directors of the corporation shall have the power to select and appoint or employ such officers, attorneys, employees, and agents, to vest them with such powers and duties, and to fix and to cause the corporation to pay such compensation to them for their services, as it may determine; and any such action shall be without regard to the Federal civil service and classification laws. Appointments, promotions, and separations so made shall be based on merit and efficiency, and no political tests or qualifications shall be permitted or given consideration. Each officer and employee of the corporation who is employed by the corporation prior to the termination of the transitional period referred to in section 810(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and who on the day previous to the beginning of such employment will have been subject to the civil service retirement law (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, United States Code) shall, so long as his employment by the corporation continues without a break in continuity of service, continue to be subject to such law; and for the purpose of such law his employment by the corporation without a break in continuity of service shall be deemed to be employment by the Government of the United States. The corporation shall contribute to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund a sum as provided by section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code, except that such sum shall be determined by applying to the total basic pay (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 8331(3) and except as hereinafter provided) paid to the employees of the corporation who are covered by the civil service retirement law, the per centum rate determined annually by the United States Civil Service Commission to be the excess of the total normal cost per centum rate of the civil service retirement system over the employee deduction rate specified in section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code. The corporation shall also pay into the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund such portion of the cost of administration of the fund as is determined by the United States Civil Service Commission to be attributable to its employees. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, there shall not be considered for the purposes of the civil service retirement law that portion of the basic pay in any one year of any officer or employee of the corporation which exceeds the basic pay provided for in section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, on the last day of such year. Except as provided in this subsection, the corporation shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code."

(1) by striking out "body corporate created by section 302" and inserting in lieu thereof "bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)";

(2) by inserting ", 'Government National Mortgage Association'," immediately following " 'Federal National Mortgage Association' "; and

(3) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Violations of the foregoing sentence may be enjoined by any court of general jurisdiction at the suit of the proper body corporate. In any such suit, the plaintiff may recover any actual damages flowing from such violation, and, in addition, shall be entitled to punitive damages (regardless of the existence or nonexistence of actual damages) of not exceeding $100 for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated."

(dd) Section 309(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositaries, custodians, and fiscal agents for each of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2), for its own account or as fiduciary, and such banks shall be reimbursed for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon; and each of such bodies corporate may itself act in such capacities, for its own account or as fiduciary, and for the account of others."

(ee) Section 309 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have general regulatory power over the Federal National Mortgage Association and shall make such rules and regulations as shall be necessary and proper to insure that the purposes of this title are accomplished. No stock, obligation, security, or other instrument shall be issued by the corporation without the prior approval of the Secretary. The Secretary may require that a reasonable portion of the corporation's mortgage purchases be related to the national goal of providing adequate housing for low and moderate income families, but with reasonable economic return to the corporation. The Secretary may examine and audit the books and financial transactions of the corporation, and he may require the corporation to make such reports on its activities as he deems advisable."

(ff) Section 311 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "either of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2)"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following: "All stock, obligations, securities, participations, or other instruments issued pursuant to this title shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission; but all such issuances shall be made only with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development."

PARTICIPATIONS

SEC. 803. Section 302(c)(5) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following: "In the event that the insufficiency required by the trustee is on account of principal maturities of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection, or pursuant hereto, the trustee is authorized to elect to issue additional beneficial interests or participations for refinancing purposes in lieu of requiring any trustor or trustors to make payments to the trustee from appropriated funds or other sources. Each such issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be in an amount determined by the trustee but not in excess of the aggregate amount which the trustee would otherwise require the trustor or trustors to pay from appropriated funds or other sources, and may be issued without regard to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection. All refinancing issues of beneficial interests or participations shall be deemed to have been issued pursuant to the authority contained in the appropriation Act or Acts under which the beneficial interests or participations were originally issued."

MORTGAGE-BACKED SECURITIES

SEC. 804. (a) Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d) To provide a greater degree of liquidity to the mortgage investment market and an additional means of financing its operations under this section, the corporation is authorized to set aside any mortgages held by it under this section, and, upon approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and sell securities based upon the mortgages so set aside. Securities issued under this subsection may be in the form of debt obligations or trust certificates of beneficial interest, or both. Securities issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Securities issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Mortgages set aside pursuant to this subsection shall at all times be adequate to enable the corporation to make timely principal and interest payments on the securities issued and sold pursuant to this subsection."

(b) Section 306 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on such trust certificates or other securities as shall (1) be issued by the corporation under section 304(d), or by any other issuer approved for the purposes of this subsection by the Association, and (2) be based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any trust or other security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any security guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the rights satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any mortgage or mortgages constituting the trust or pool against which the guaranteed securities are issued; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed securities, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constitute such trust or pool shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatisfied rights of the holders of the securities based on and backed by such trust or pool. The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection."

(c) Section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"Ninth. To issue and sell securities which are guaranteed pursuant to section 306(g) of the National Housing Act."

(d) The first proviso of section 21(a)(1) of the Banking Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 378(a)(1)) is amended by inserting ", or issuing securities," immediately following "investment securities".

(e) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464(c)) is amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"Any such association may issue and sell securities which are guaranteed pursuant to section 306(g) of the National Housing Act."

SUBORDINATED AND CONVERTIBLE OBLIGATIONS

SEC. 805. Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding thereto (after subsection (d) as added by section 804 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(e) For the purposes of this section, the corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, obligations which are subordinated to any or all other obligations of the corporation, including subsequent obligations. The obligations issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and may be made redeemable at the option of the corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations. Any of such obligations may be made convertible into shares of common stock in such manner, at such price or prices, and at such time or times as may be stipulated therein. The total principal amount of such subordinated obligations which may be outstanding at any one time shall not exceed two times the sum of (1) the capital of the corporation represented by its outstanding common stock and (2) its surplus and undistributed earnings at such time. The outstanding total principal amount of such obligations, which are entirely subordinated to the obligations of the corporation issued or to be issued under subsection (b), shall be deemed to be capital of the corporation for the purpose of determining the aggregate amount of obligations issued under subsection (b) which may be outstanding at any one time. Obligations issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the corporation. The corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price."

(n) Section 8(8)(E) of the Federal Credit Union Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 808. The amendments made by this title shall be effective from and after a date, no more than one hundred and twenty days following the date of enactment of this Act, as established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Notice of the establishment of such effective date shall be published in the Federal Register at least thirty days prior thereto.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 809. (a) No cause of action by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association existing prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 808 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. Any such cause of action may thereafter be asserted by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act.

(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association, or any officer thereof in his official capacity, prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 808 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. A court may at any time thereafter during the pendency of any such litigation, on its own motion or that of any party, order that the litigation may be maintained by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302(a)(2) of the National Housing Act or the appropriate corresponding officer thereof.

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 810. (a) On the effective date established pursuant to section 808 of this Act, each share of outstanding nonvoting common stock, with a par value of $100 per share, of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be changed into and shall become one share of voting common stock, without par value, of such corporation.

(b)(1) The provisions of section 308(b) of the National Housing Act (as added by section 802(y)(7) of this Act) shall be applicable only to the extent that its provisions do not conflict with this subsection.

(2) For a transitional period after the effective date established pursuant to section 808 of this Act, the board of directors of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall consist of nine persons. For a term expiring on the date of the first annual meeting of the corporation's stockholders, all members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. For a term beginning on such date, seven members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary, and two members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For subsequent terms beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, five members shall be appointed by the Secretary, and four members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For each term beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, the Secretary shall appoint as a member of the board the president of the corporation. During the transitional period, the president of the corporation shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may be removed from office by the President for good cause.

(3) The transitional period referred to in paragraph (2) shall come to an end at such time as the board of directors shall find, with the approval of the Secretary, that not less than one-third of the corporation's common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses; but in no event shall it end sooner than May 1, 1970, or later than May 1, 1973.

(c) From the effective date established pursuant to section 808 and until the retirement of the last of the outstanding shares of its preferred stock, the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be deemed to be a wholly owned corporation for the purposes of the Government Corporation Control Act. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the financial transactions of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall continue to be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office for such period as there may be outstanding obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association which are guaranteed as to principal or interest by the Government National Mortgage Association.

(d) Those persons who are the officers and employees of the Federal National Mortgage Association immediately prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 808 shall become the officers and employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such date. The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Government National Mortgage Association shall provide by contract for the conditions and methods under which and by which the Federal National Mortgage Association during the transitional period may employ those individuals who are employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date; and may provide by contract for the operation by either of such corporations of any of the functions of the other. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make every reasonable effort to place in other comparable Federal positions any individuals who are career or career-conditional employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date and who are subsequently during the transitional period neither employed by the Federal National Mortgage Association nor retained by the Government National Mortgage Association.

TITLE IX—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

SEC. 901. The Congress finds that the volume of housing being produced for families and individuals of low or moderate income must be increased to meet the national goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family, and declares that it is the policy of the United States to encourage the widest possible participation by private enterprise in the provision of housing for low or moderate income families. The Congress has therefore determined that one or more private organizations should be created to encourage maximum participation by private investors in programs and projects to provide low and moderate income housing.

CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

SEC. 902. (a) There is hereby authorized to be created a private corporation for profit (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "corporation"). The corporation will not be an agency or establishment of the United States Government. The corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this title and, to the extent consistent with this title, to the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29–901 et seq.).

(b) Whenever the President finds it in the national interest to do so, he may cause the creation of an additional corporation or additional corporations to carry out the purposes of this title. All the provisions of this title shall thereupon become applicable to each such corporation, and to the limited partnership formed by it pursuant to section 907.

(c) Nothing in this title shall be construed to preclude private persons from creating other corporations and organizing other partnerships, joint ventures, or associations for the purposes set forth in this title as the purposes of the corporation and the partnership described in section 907.

PROCESS OF ORGANIZATION

SEC. 903. (a) The President of the United States shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, incorporators of the corporation, one of whom shall be designated by the President to serve as chairman. The incorporators shall serve as the initial board of directors until the first annual meeting of stockholders or until their successors are elected and have qualified.

(b) The incorporators shall take whatever actions are necessary or appropriate to establish the corporation, including the filing of articles of incorporation as approved by the President.

(c) The incorporators shall also arrange for an initial offering of shares of stock in the corporation and of interests in the partnership described in section 907 of this title. If the incorporators deem it advisable in order to carry out the purposes of this title, the initial offering may be made upon terms which require the purchase of other securities of the corporation or of interests in such partnership.

DIRECTORS

SEC. 904. The corporation shall have a board of directors (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "board"), consisting of fifteen members. Three members of the board shall be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, effective on the date on which the other members are elected, and for terms of three years or until their successors have been appointed and have qualified, except that the first three members of the board so appointed shall continue in office for terms of one, two, and three years, respectively, and any member so appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the director whom he succeeds. Twelve members of the board shall be elected by the stockholders.

FINANCING THE CORPORATION

SEC. 905. The corporation shall have the power to create and issue the number of shares stated in its articles of incorporation. Such shares may be divided into one or more classes, any or all of which classes may consist of shares with par value or shares without par value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, and special or relative rights and such limitations, restrictions, or qualifications thereof as shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation may limit or deny the voting power of the shares of any class.

PURPOSES AND POWERS OF THE CORPORATION

SEC. 906. (a) In order to achieve the objectives and carry out the purposes of this title, the corporation is authorized to—

(1) plan, initiate, and carry out, pursuant to Federal programs or otherwise, the building or rehabilitation of housing and related facilities primarily for the benefit of families and individuals of low or moderate income;

(2) buy, own, manage, lease, or otherwise acquire or dispose of property in connection with the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1); and

(3) provide such funds as may be necessary to accomplish the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1).

(b) Included in the activities authorized to the corporation for the accomplishment of the purposes indicated in subsection (a) of this section are, among others not specifically named—

(1) to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, joint ventures, and other associations with individuals, corporations, and private and governmental agencies, organizations, and institutions;

(2) to act as manager or general partner of any such partnership, venture, or association;

(3) to conduct or contract for research and studies related to the development, demonstration, and evaluation of improved techniques and methods of constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing;

(4) to provide technical assistance to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others with respect to the planning, financing, construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, and management of housing for low and moderate income families and individuals;

(5) to make loans or grants including grants of interests in housing and related facilities, to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others, in carrying out its activities under subsection (a) of this section; and

(6) to hire or accept the voluntary services of consultants, experts, advisory boards, and panels to aid the corporation in carrying out the purposes of this title.

(c) To carry out the foregoing purposes and engage in the foregoing activities, the corporation shall have the usual powers conferred upon a stock corporation by the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act.

(d) Nothing in this title shall have the effect of waiving or otherwise affecting the applicability of the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 267a—276a–5), or any other law requiring compliance with labor standards, in the case of any construction to which such provisions would otherwise apply.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

SEC. 907. (a) The corporation is authorized to arrange for the formation, as a separate organization, of a limited partnership (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "partnership") under the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–401 et seq.) for the purpose of engaging in any of the activities authorized for the corporation under section 906 of this title, and to enter into a partnership agreement governing the affairs of such limited partnership.

(b) The partnership shall be subject to the provisions, to the extent consistent with this title, of (1) the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act and (2) those provisions of the District of Columbia Uniform Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–301 et seq.) made applicable by section 6(2) of that Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–305(2)). Notwithstanding any inconsistency between the provisions of such Acts, or of any other law, and the provisions of this section, the partnership organized pursuant to this section shall be deemed to have the legal status of a limited partnership.

(c) The partnership is authorized to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures organized under applicable State or local law for the purpose of engaging in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in particular localities.

(d) The corporation shall be the general partner in the partnership. The capital of the partnership and the contributions of the partners shall be in such amounts and at such times as are set forth in or pursuant to the partnership agreement.

(e) The partnership agreement shall include provisions designed to assure that (1) the partnership shall participate in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in a manner designed to encourage the participation therein of local interests, and (2) in any such development, project, or undertaking the partnership shall not subscribe to more than 25 per centum (including equity investments made in services or property) of the aggregate initial equity investment unless, in the judgment of the corporation as general partner, the balance of the required equity investment is not readily obtainable from other responsible investors residing or doing business in the local community.

(f) The partnership agreement may without limitation (1) permit each of the stockholders of the corporation to become a member of the partnership as a limited partner, (2) authorize the inclusion of other limited partners in addition to the stockholders of the corporation, (3) provide that the assignee of the partnership interest of a limited partner of the partnership who is also a stockholder of the corporation may not become a substituted limited partner unless he also acquires the assignor's stock of the corporation, and (4) include provisions requiring that the corporation as a general partner approve the substitution or addition of a member of the partnership.

(g) A corporation which is a limited partner in the partnership shall not become liable as a general partner by reason of the fact that

(1) such corporation is a holder of shares of voting stock of the corporation constituting not more than 5 per centum of the total number of outstanding shares of such stock and exercises any of the rights (including voting rights) of a holder of such shares, and/or (2) a person who is an officer or director of such corporation (or of another corporation which controls or is subject to the control of, or is under common control with, such corporation) is a director of the corporation and performs the duties of that office. The interest of a limited partner in the partnership shall not be treated as a stock interest in the corporation, notwithstanding that such interest of a limited partner may be proportionate to his stock interest in the corporation.

(h) The certificate of the partnership and any amendment thereof required by the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act shall be executed and acknowledged by the corporation as member and by each other member of the partnership or his attorney-in-fact duly authorized by power of attorney in writing. The corporation may execute and acknowledge the certificate and any amendment thereof as attorney-in-fact for any member, member to be substituted or added, or assigning member, by whom the certificate or amendment is required to be executed and acknowledged and who has appointed the corporation as such attorney.

REPORT TO CONGRESS AND RECORDS

SEC. 908. (a) The corporation shall submit an annual report to the President for transmittal to the Congress within six months after the end of its fiscal year. The report shall include a comprehensive and detailed report of the operations, activities, and financial condition of the corporation and the partnership under this title.

(b) The accounts of the corporation and of the partnership shall be audited annually in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards by independent certified public accountants or independent licensed public accountants certified or licensed by a regulatory authority of a State or other political subdivision of the United States.

ANTITRUST LAWS

SEC. 909. Nothing contained herein shall affect the applicability of the Federal antitrust laws to the activities of the corporation and the partnership created under this title and of the persons participating therein or in partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures with either of them.

RIGHT TO REPEAL, ALTER, OR AMEND

SEC. 910. The right to repeal, alter, or amend this title at any time is expressly reserved.

AMENDMENT TO BANKING LAWS

SEC. 911. Paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "Notwithstanding any other provision in this paragraph, the association may purchase for its own account shares of stock issued by a corporation authorized to be created pursuant to title IX of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and may make investments in a partnership, limited partnership, or joint venture formed pursuant to section 907(a) or 907(c) of that Act."

TITLE X—RURAL HOUSING

HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

SEC. 1001. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"LOANS TO PROVIDE OCCUPANT-OWNED, RENTAL, AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

"SEC. 521. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 502, 517(a) and 515, loans to persons of low or moderate income under section 502 or 517(a)(1), and loans under section 515 to provide rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for persons and families of low or moderate income or elderly persons and elderly families, shall bear interest at a rate prescribed by the Secretary at not less than a rate determined annually by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum: Provided, That such a loan may be made only when the Secretary determines that the needs of the applicant for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources including assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act: Provided further, That interest on loans under section 502 or 517(a) to victims of natural disasters shall not exceed the rate which would be applicable to such loans under section 502 without regard to this section.

"(b) Housing and related facilities provided with loans described in subsection (a) shall be located in rural areas; and applicants eligible for such loans under section 502 or 517(a)(1), or for occupancy of housing provided with such loans under section 515, shall include otherwise qualified nonrural residents who will become rural residents.

"(c) There shall be reimbursed to the Rural Housing Insurance Fund by annual appropriations the amounts by which nonprincipal payments made from the fund during each fiscal year to the holders of insured loans described in subsection (a) exceed interest due from the borrowers during each year; and the Secretary from time to time may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 517(h) to obtain amounts equal to such unreimbursed excess payments, pending the annual reimbursement by appropriation."

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 1002. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 521 (as added by section 1001 of this Act) the following new section:

"HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 1002. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding division thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization, the Secretary is authorized, after consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and after the Secretary determines that the housing and related facilities cannot reasonably be provided in any other way, to provide financial and technical assistance for the establishment, in rural areas, of housing and related facilities for trainees and their families who are residents of a rural area and have a rural background, while such trainees are enrolled and participating in training courses designed to improve their employment capability. The selection of training sites and location of housing shall be made with due regard to the economic viability of the area, and only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Government agencies having primary responsibility for administering related programs.

"(b) Housing and related facilities assisted under this section shall be safe and sanitary, constructed in the most economical manner, and of modest design, giving due consideration to the purposes to be served and the needs of the occupants, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary, include mobile family quarters. Design and location shall be such as to facilitate, as feasible, the use of such housing and related facilities for other purposes when no longer needed for the primary purpose.

"(c) The applicant shall contribute the necessary land, or funds to acquire such land, from its own resources, including land acquired by donation or from funds repayable under subsection (e) or borrowed from other sources.

"(d) No financial assistance shall be made available under this section unless, to the extent and for the periods required by the Secretary, the applicant agrees that—

"(1) such housing will be maintained at all times in a safe and sanitary condition in accordance with standards prescribed by State or local law, or, in the absence of such standards, with requirements prescribed by the Secretary;

"(2) priority shall be given at all times, in granting occupancy of such housing and facilities, to the trainees and their families described in subsection (a); and

"(3) rentals charged them shall not exceed amounts approved by the Secretary after considering the portion of the actual total family income which the family can afford to pay for rent while meeting its other immediate needs during occupancy.

"(e) The Secretary may make advances pursuant to any contract for financial assistance under this section at such times and in such manner as may be specified in the contract. Such advances for the purchase of land shall be repayable with interest and within a period not to exceed thirty-three years and may be made upon such security, if any, as the Secretary requires. Advances for other purposes may be made repayable with or without interest or nonrepayable, as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the anticipated income and cost of operation of the housing and related facilities and the ability of each applicant to finance such facilities. Any advances shall be limited to cover the capital costs of constructing such facilities, plus interest on borrowings to cover such costs.

"(f) Should housing and related facilities assisted pursuant to a contract under this section be sold to an ineligible transferee or diverted to a use other than its primary purpose within a period specified in the contract, all advances made under such contract shall be repaid to the Secretary, up to the amount of the sales price or the fair value of the property as determined by the Secretary, whichever is higher, with interest from the date of the sale or diversion. If no suitable alternate use of the property is available, as determined by the Secretary, after the purpose of this section can no longer be served, the property shall be returned to its original condition by the recipient of the assistance.

"(g) Interest charged on advances made under this section shall be at a rate, prescribed by the Secretary, which shall be not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum, as determined by the Secretary.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to insure that Federal funds expended under this section are not wasted or dissipated.

"(i) As used in this section (1) the term 'related facilities' shall include any necessary community rooms or buildings, infirmaries, utilities, access roads, water and sewer services, and the minimum fixed or movable equipment determined by the Secretary to be necessary to make the housing reasonably habitable by trainees and their families; and (2) the term 'trainee' means any person receiving training under any federally assisted training program.

"(j) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section."

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1003. Section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and (e)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(e)"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and (f) such sums as may be required by the Secretary to administer the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act".

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR BUILDING SITES

SEC. 1004. Section 514(f)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" before "(B)", and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof the following: "and (C) land necessary for an adequate site".

MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

SEC. 1005. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 522 (as added by section 1002 of this Act) the following new section:

"MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

"SEC. 523. (a) The purposes of this section are (1) to make financial assistance available on reasonable terms and conditions in rural areas and small towns to needy low-income individuals and their families who, with the benefit of technical assistance and overall guidance and supervision, particiate in approved programs of mutual or self-help housing by acquiring and developing necessary land, acquiring building materials, providing their own labor, and working cooperatively with others for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for themselves, their families, and others in the area or town involved, and (2) to facilitate the efforts of both public and private nonprofit organizations providing assistance to such individuals to contribute their technical and supervisory skills toward more effective and comprehensive programs of mutual or self-help housing in rural areas and small towns wherever necessary.

"(b) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture (in this section referred to as the 'Secretary') is authorized—

"(1) (A) to make grants to, or contract with, public or private nonprofit corporations, agencies, institutions, organizations, and other associations approved by him, to pay part or all of the costs of developing, conducting, administering, or coordinating effective and comprehensive programs of technical and supervisory assistance which will aid needy low-income individuals and their families in carrying out mutual or self-help housing efforts; and

"(B) to establish the Self-Help Housing Land Development Fund, referred to herein as the Self-Help Fund, to be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for making loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to public or private nonprofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to families, nonprofit organizations, and cooperatives eligible for assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act or section 521 of this Act. Such a loan, with interest at a rate not to exceed 3 percent per annum, shall be repaid within a period not to exceed two years from the making of the loan, or within such additional period as may be authorized by the Secretary in any case as being necessary to carry out the purposes hereof; and

"(2) to make loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to needy low-income individuals participating in programs of mutual or self-help housing approved by him, for the acquisition and development of land and for the purchase of such other building materials as may be necessary in order to enable them, by providing substantially all of their own labor, and by cooperating with others participating in such programs, to carry out to completion the construction of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for such individuals and their families, subject to the following limitations:

"(A) there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan;

"(B) the amount of the loan, together with other funds which may be available, is adequate to achieve the purpose for which the loan is made;

"(C) the credit assistance is not otherwise available on like terms or conditions from private sources or through other Federal, State, or local programs;

"(D) the loan bears interest at a rate not to exceed 3 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, plus such additional charge, if any, toward covering other costs of the loan program as the Secretary may determine to be consistent with its purposes; and

"(E) the loan is repayable within not more than thirty-three years.

"(c) In determining whether to extend financial assistance under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other factors, the suitability of the area within which construction will be carried out to the type of dwelling which can be provided under mutual or self-help housing programs, the extent to which the assistance will facilitate the provision of more decent, safe, and sanitary housing conditions than presently exist in the area, the extent to which the assistance will be utilized efficiently and expeditiously, the extent to which the assistance will effect an increase in the standard of living of low-income individuals participating in the mutual or self-help housing program, and whether the assistance will fulfill a need in the area which is not otherwise being met through other programs, including those carried out by other Federal, State, or local agencies.

"(d) As used in this section, the term 'construction' includes the erection of new dwellings, and the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to establish appropriate criteria and procedures in order to determine the eligibility of applicants for the financial assistance provided under this section, including criteria and procedures with respect to the periodic review of any construction carried out with such financial assistance.

"(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1968, and ending prior to July 1, 1973, such sums, not in excess of $5,000,000 for any such fiscal year, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section. No grant or loan may be made or contract entered into under the authority of this section after June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a commitment or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date.

"(g) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of subsection (b) (1) (B) not to exceed $1,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $2,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amount so authorized to be appropriated for any fiscal year which is not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year or years. Amounts appropriated under this subsection shall be deposited in the Self-Help Fund, which shall be available without fiscal year limitation for making loans under subsection (b) (1) (B). Instruments and property acquired by the Secretary in or as a result of making such loans shall be assets of the Self-Help Fund. Sums received from the repayment of such loans shall be deposited in and be a part of the Self-Help Fund."

TITLE XI—URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1101. This title may be cited as the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1102. (a) The Congress finds that (1) the vitality of many American cities is being threatened by the deterioration of their inner city areas; responsible owners of well-maintained residential, business, and other properties in many of these areas are unable to obtain adequate property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils; the lack of such insurance coverage accelerates the deterioration of these areas by discouraging private investment and restricting the availability of credit to repair and improve property therein; and this deterioration poses a serious threat to the national economy; (2) recent riots and other civil commotion in many American cities have brought about abnormally high losses to the private property insurance industry for which adequate reinsurance cannot be obtained at reasonable cost, and the risk of such losses will make most lines of property insurance even more difficult to obtain; (3) the capacity of the private property insurance industry to provide adequate insurance is threatened, and the continuity of such property insurance protection is essential to the extension of credit in these areas; and (4) the national interest demands urgent action by the Congress to assure that essential lines of property insurance, including lines providing protection against riot and civil commotion damage will be available to property owners at reasonable cost.

(b) The purposes of this title are, therefore, to (1) encourage and assist the various State insurance authorities and the property insurance industry to develop and carry out statewide programs which will make necessary property insurance coverage against the fire, crime, and other perils more readily available for residential, business, and other properties meeting reasonable underwriting standards; and (2) provide a Federal program of reinsurance against abnormally high property insurance losses resulting from riots and other civil commotion, placing appropriate financial responsibility upon the States to share in such losses.

AMENDMENT OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1103. The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

"PROGRAM AUTHORITY

"SEC. 1201. (a) The Secretary is authorized to establish and carry out the programs provided for in parts A, B, and C of this title.

"(b)(1) The powers of the Secretary under this title shall terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary—

"(A) to continue reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1223(b) until April 30, 1976;

"(B) to process, verify, and pay claims for reinsured losses and perform other necessary functions in connection therewith; and

"(C) to complete the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"(2) On April 30, 1976, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, for its approval, a plan for the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"ADVISORY BOARD; MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION, AND EXPENSES

"SEC. 1202. (a)(1) There is established an Advisory Board (hereinafter called the 'Board') consisting of nineteen members appointed by the Secretary. Members of the Board shall be selected from among representatives of the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments including State insurance authorities, and the Federal Government. Of these members of the Board, not more than six shall be regular full-time employees of the Federal Government, and not less than four shall be representatives of the private insurance industry and not less than four shall be representatives of State insurance authorities.

"(2) The Secretary shall designate a Chairman and a Vice Chairman of the Board.

"(3) Each member shall serve for a term of two years or until his successor has been appointed, except that no person who is appointed while a full-time employee of a State or the Federal Government shall serve in such position after he ceases to be so employed, unless he is reappointed.

"(4) Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of that term.

"(b) The Chairman shall preside at all meetings, and the Vice Chairman shall preside in the absence or disability of the Chairman. In the absence of both the Chairman and Vice Chairman, the Secretary may appoint any member to act as Chairman pro tempore. The Board shall meet at such times and places as it or the Secretary may fix and determine, but shall hold at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Chairman or any three members of the Board, or at the call of the Secretary.

"(c) The Board shall review general policies and shall advise the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform such other functions as are specified in this title.

"(d) The members of the Board shall not, by reason of such membership, be deemed to be employees of the United States, and such members, except those who are regular full-time employees of the Government, shall receive for their services, as members, the per diem equivalent to the rate for grade GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, when engaged in the performance of their duties, and each member of the Board shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1203. (a) When used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

"(1) 'environmental hazard' means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner;

"(2) 'essential property insurance' means insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire policies and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the State insurance authority, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations of property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, or theft, as the Secretary by rule shall designate. Such insurance shall not include automobile insurance and shall not include insurance on such types of manufacturing risks as may be excluded by the State insurance authority;

"(3) 'inspection facility', with respect to any State, means any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under fair access to insurance requirements plans under part A;

"(4) 'insurer' includes any insurance company or group of companies under common ownership which is authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

"(5) 'pool' means any pool or association of insurance companies in any State which is formed, associated, or otherwise created for the purpose of making property insurance more readily available;

"(6) 'losses resulting from riots or civil disorders' means losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered under section 1221, as determined under regulations of the Secretary;

"(7) 'property owner', with respect to any real, personal, or mixed real and personal property, means any person having an insurable interest in such property;

"(8) 'person' includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, or association, or any other organized group of persons;

"(9) 'reinsured losses' means losses on reinsurance claims and all direct expenses incurred in connection therewith including, but not limited to, expenses for processing, verifying, and paying such losses;

"(10) 'standard line of property insurance' includes—

"(A) fire and extended coverage;

"(B) vandalism and malicious mischief;

"(C) other allied lines of fire insurance;

"(D) burglary and theft;

"(E) those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to those provided for in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

"(F) inland marine;

"(G) glass;

"(H) boiler and machinery;

"(I) ocean marine;

"(J) aircraft physical damage; and

"(K) such other lines generally offered to the public which include protection against damage from riot or civil commotion as the Secretary by regulation may designate;

"(11) 'State' means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the territories and possessions, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

"(12) 'urban area' includes any municipality or other political subdivision of a State, subject to population or other limitations defined in rules and regulations of the Secretary and such additional areas as may be designated by the State insurance authority; and

"(13) 'year' means a calendar year, fiscal year of a company, or such other period of twelve months as may be designated by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to define, by rules and regulations, any technical or trade term, insofar as such definition is not inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

"PART A—STATEWIDE PLANS TO ASSURE FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

"FAIR PLANS

"SEC. 1211. (a) Each insurer reinsured under this title shall cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is to acquire such reinsurance in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

"(b) Such plans must be approved by, and administered under the supervision of, the State insurance authority, or be authorized or required by State law, and shall be designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in, but not necessarily limited to, urban areas. Such plans may vary in detail from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans shall contain provision that—

"(1) no risk shall be written at surcharged rates or be denied insurance coverage for essential property insurance unless there has first been an inspection of the risk, without cost to the owner, by an inspection facility and a determination by the insurer, based on information in the inspection report and other sources, that the risk does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate;

"(2) inspections under the plan may be requested by the property owner or his representative, the insurer, or the insurance agent, broker or other producer, and such requests need not be made in writing;

"(3) the absence of a building owner or his representative during an inspection shall not preclude a tenant seeking insurance from obtaining an inspection under the plan;

"(4) following the inspection, a copy of the inspection report shall be promptly sent by the inspection facility to the insurer or insurers, or to an all-industry placement facility referred to under section 1212, as may be designated by the person requesting the inspection;

"(5) after the inspection report is received by an insurer, it shall promptly determine if the risk meets reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate, and shall promptly return to the inspection facility the inspection report and provide an action report setting forth—

"(A) (i) the amount of coverage it agrees to write; and if the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge (if such a surcharge is authorized by the State insurance authority), the improvements necessary before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged premium rate; and

"(ii) the amount of coverage it agrees to write if certain improvements specified in the action report are made; or

"(B) the specific reasons it declines to write coverage;

"(6) if the insurer declines the risk, or agrees to write the coverage sought on condition that the property will be improved, it shall also promptly send a copy of both the inspection and action reports to the property owner and the State insurance authority, and at the time the insurer sends such reports to the property owner, it shall also explain his right, under applicable State laws, to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority, setting forth the procedures to be followed for such appeal;

"(7) all policies written pursuant to the plan shall be promptly written after inspection or reinspection and shall be separately coded so that appropriate records may be compiled for purposes of performing loss prevention and other studies of the operation of the plan;

"(8) the inspection facility shall submit to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary periodic reports setting forth information, by individual insurers, including the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and such other information as the State insurance authority may request;

"(9) notice will be given to any policyholder a reasonable time prior to the cancellation or nonrenewal of any risk eligible under the plan (except in case of nonpayment of premium or evidence of incendiarism), to allow ample time for an application for new coverage to be made and a new policy to be written under the plan, and the insurer shall, in writing, explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining an inspection under the plan in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal; and

"(10) a continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

"ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

"SEC. 1212. Any plan under this part shall include an all-industry placement facility doing business with every insurer participating in the plan in the State, and shall provide that this facility shall perform certain functions including, but not limited to, the following:

"(1) seeking, upon request by or on behalf of any property owner requesting an inspection under the plan, to distribute the risks involved equitably among the insurers with which it is doing business; and

"(2) seeking to place insurance up to the full insurable value of the risk to be insured with one or more insurers with which it is doing business, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

"INDUSTRY COOPERATION

"SEC. 1213. (a) Each insurer seeking reinsurance under this title shall file a statement with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is participating in a plan under this part, pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan, and shall file a copy of such statement with the Secretary.

"(b) No insurer acquiring reinsurance under this title shall direct any agent or broker or other producer not to solicit business through such a plan, nor shall any agent, broker, or other producer be penalized by such insurer in any way for submitting applications for insurance to an insurer under the plan.

"PLAN EVALUATION

"SEC. 1214. (a) In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, each State insurance authority shall—

"(1) transmit to the Secretary any proposed or adopted plan, or amendments thereto; and

"(2) advise the Secretary, from time to time, concerning the operation of the plan, its effectiveness in providing essential property insurance, and the need to form a pool of insurers or adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State.

"(b) The Secretary may, after full consultation with the Board, by rules and regulations, modify the plan criteria set forth under this part, if he finds, on the basis of experience, that such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title. The Secretary may also, with respect to any State, waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria, upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law.

"PART B—REINSURANCE COVERAGE

"REINSURANCE OF LOSSES FROM RIOTS OR CIVIL DISORDERS

"SEC. 1221. (a)(1) The Secretary is authorized to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders in any one or more States.

"(2) Reinsurance shall be offered to any such insurer or pool only on all standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 1203(a)(10) together, and any insurer or pool purchasing such reinsurance shall also be eligible, to purchase reinsurance on any one or more standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (F) through (J) of section 1203(a)(10) or which may be designated by regulation pursuant to subparagraph (K) of that section.

"(b) Reinsurance coverage under this section may be provided immediately following the enactment of this title to any insurer or pool in any State on a temporary basis, and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, and coverage under such terms and conditions may be bound with respect to any such insurer or pool by means of a written binder which shall remain in force not more than ninety days and shall expire at the earlier of either—

"(1) the termination of such ninety-day period, or

"(2) the effective date of any governing contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into between the insurer or pool and the Secretary under section 1222 for the purpose of providing reinsurance coverage against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders.

"(c) No reinsurance shall be offered to any insurer or pool in a State after the expiration of the written binder entered into under subsection (b), unless there is in effect in such State a plan as set forth under part A and the insurer or pool is participating in such plan, and unless, in the case of an insurer in a State where a pool has been established pursuant to State law, the insurer is participating in such a pool.

"REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS AND PREMIUMS

"SEC. 1222. (a) During the first year following the date of the enactment of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement with any insurer or pool for reinsurance coverage, in consideration of payment of such premiums, fees, or other charges by insurers or pools which the Secretary, after full consultation with the Board, deems to be adequate to obtain aggregate reinsurance premiums for deposit in the National Insurance Development Fund established under section 1233 in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during the calendar year 1967, on the assumption that a substantial proportion of the property insurance written will be reinsured under this title, and thereafter the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found after full consultation with the Board and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that such action is necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title.

"(b) Reinsurance offered under this title shall reimburse an insurer or pool for its total proved and approved claims for covered losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement, over and above the amount of the insurer's or pool's retention of such losses as provided in such reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into under this section.

"(c) Such contracts, agreements, treaties, or other arrangements may be made without regard to section 3679(a) of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665(a)), and shall include any terms and conditions which the Secretary deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. The premium rates, terms, and conditions of such contracts with insurers or pools, throughout the country, in any one year shall be uniform.

"(d) Any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement for reinsurance under this section shall be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter, and shall be entered into within ninety days after the date of the enactment of this title or within ninety days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within ninety days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance eligible for reinsurance in a State which it was not authorized to write in the preceding year.

"CONDITIONS OF REINSURANCE

"SEC. 1223. (a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b), reinsurance shall not be offered by the Secretary in a State or be applicable to insurance polices written in that State by an insurer—

"(1) after one year following the date of the enactment of this title, or, if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year, by the close of its next regular session, in any State which has not adopted appropriate legislation, retroactive to the date of the enactment of this title, under which the State, its political subdivisions, or a governmental corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, will reimburse the Secretary, in an amount up to 5 per centum of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in that State during the current year, such that the Secretary may be reimbursed for amounts paid by him in respect to reinsured losses that occurred in that State during a calendar year in excess of (A) reinsurance premiums received in that State during the same calendar year plus (B) the excess of (i) the total premiums received by the Secretary for reinsurance in that State during a preceding period measured from the end of the most recent calendar year with respect to which the Secretary was reimbursed for losses under this title over (ii) any amounts paid by the Secretary for reinsured losses that occurred during this same period;

"(2) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds (after consultation with the State insurance authority) that there has not been adopted by the State, or the property insurance industry in that State, a suitable program or programs, in addition to plans under part A, to make essential property insurance available without regard to environmental hazards, and that such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; except that this paragraph shall not become effective until two years after the date of the enactment of this title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine;

"(3) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary, or the State insurance authority, finds that such insurer is not fully participating—

"(A) in the plan in the State;

"(B) where it exists, in a pool; and

"(C) where it exists, in any other program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State:

Provided, That the Secretary shall not make any such finding with respect to any insurer unless (i) prior to making such finding the Secretary has requested and considered the views of the State insurance authority as to whether such finding should be made, or (ii) the Secretary has made such a request in writing to the State insurance authority and such authority has failed to respond thereto within a reasonable period of time after receiving such request;

"(4) following a merger, acquisition, consolidation or reorganization involving one or more insurers having lines of property insurance in the State reinsured under this title and one or more insurers with or without such reinsurance, unless the surviving company—

"(A) meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance, other than as provided under section 1222(d); and

"(B) within ten days pays any reinsurance premiums due; or

"(5) upon receipt of notice from the insurer or pool that it desires to cancel its reinsurance agreement with the Secretary in the State.

"(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, reinsurance may be continued for the term of the policies written prior to the date of termination or nonrenewal of reinsurance under this section, for as long as the insurer pays reinsurance premiums annually in such amounts as are determined under section 1222, based on the annual premiums earned on such reinsured policies, and for the purpose of this subsection, the renewal, extension, modification, or other change in a policy, for which any additional premium is charged, shall be deemed to be a policy written on the date such change was made.

"RECOVERY OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

"SEC. 1224. (a) The Secretary, in a suit brought in the appropriate United States district court, shall be entitled to recover from any insurer the amount of any unpaid premiums lawfully payable by such insurer to the Secretary.

"(b) No action or proceeding shall be brought for the recovery of any premium due to the Secretary for reinsurance, or for the recovery of any premium paid to the Secretary in excess of the amount due to him, unless such action or proceeding shall have been brought within five years after the right accrued for which the claim is made, except that, where the insurer has made or filed with the Secretary a false or fraudulent annual statement, or other document with the intent to evade, in whole or in part, the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until its discovery by the Secretary.

"PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

"CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1231. (a) All reinsurance claims for losses under this title shall be submitted by insurers in accordance with such terms and conditions as may be established by the Secretary.

"(b)(1) Upon disallowance of any claim under color of reinsurance made available under this title, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the claim arose.

"(2) Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant received written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.

"FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

"SEC. 1232. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the reinsurance program under this title, and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with any insurer, pool, or other person, for the purpose of providing for the performance of any or all of the following functions:

"(1) estimating or determining any amounts of payments for reinsurance claims;

"(2) receiving and disbursing and accounting for funds in making payments for reinsurance claims;

"(3) auditing the records of any insurer, pool, or other person to the extent necessary to assure that proper payments are made;

"(4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance payments, including the total amount of proved and approved claims which may be payable to any insurer, and the total amount of premiums earned by any insurer in the respective States for reinsured lines of property insurance; and

"(5) otherwise assisting in any manner provided in the contract to further the purposes of this title.

"(b) (1) Any such contract may require the insurer, pool, or other person, or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amounts as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

"(2) In the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States—

"(A) no individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section; and

"(B) no officer of the United States disbursing funds shall be liable with respect to any otherwise proper payment by him if it was based on a voucher signed by an individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments.

"NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

"SEC. 1233. (a) To carry out the programs authorized under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a National Insurance Development Fund (hereinafter called the 'fund') which shall be available, without fiscal year limitations—

"(1) to make such payments as may, from time to time, be required under reinsurance contracts under this title;

"(2) to pay such administrative expenses as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title; and

"(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums, including interest thereon, as may be borrowed from him for purposes of such programs under section 520(b).

"(b) The fund shall be credited with—

"(1) reinsurance premiums, fees, and other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with reinsurance provided under part B;

"(2) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund;

"(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appro- priations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

"(4) receipts from any other source which may, from time to time, be credited to the fund; and

"(5) funds borrowed by the Secretary under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

"(c) If, after any amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced (including interest thereon at the rate prescribed under section 520(b)), the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

"(d) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations.

"RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENT, AND AUDITS

"SEC. 1234. (a) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall furnish the Secretary with such summaries and analyses of information in its records as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, in such form as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall, by rules and regulations, prescribe. The Secretary shall make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

"(b) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall file with the Secretary a true and correct copy of any annual statement, or amendment thereof, filed with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files such statement or amendment with such State insurance authority.

"(c) Any insurer or other person executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under section 1222 or section 1232 shall keep reasonable records which fully disclose the total costs of the programs undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

"(d) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of investigation, audit, and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of any insurer or other person that are pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to, the Secretary. Such audits shall be conducted to the maximum extent feasible in cooperation with the State insurance authorities and through the use of their examining facilities.

"STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

"SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized and directed to conduct a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure—

"(1) an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas; and

"(2) adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas.

"(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of this study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and Congress no later than one year following the date of the enactment of this title.

"OTHER STUDIES

"SEC. 1236. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title including, but not limited to, inquiries concerning—

"(1) the operation of plans under part A;

"(2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas;

"(3) the market for private reinsurance; and

"(4) loss prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

"(b) To such extent and under such circumstances as may be practicable and feasible, the Secretary shall conduct any study authorized under this section in cooperation with State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry.

"GENERAL POWERS

"SEC. 1237. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c)(2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950. Any rules or regulations of the Secretary shall only be issued after full consultation with the Board and after notice and hearing, if granted, as required by the Administrative Procedure Act.

"SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

"SEC. 1238. The Secretary may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a reimbursable basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, except that any such agency having custody of any data relating to any of the matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall, to the extent permitted by law, upon request of the Secretary, make such data available to the Secretary.

"ADVANCE PAYMENTS

"SEC. 1239. Any payments which are made under the authority of this title may be made, after necessary adjustments on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments in advance or by way of reimbursement. Payments may be made in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

"TAXATION

"SEC. 1240. (a) The National Insurance Development Fund, including its reserves, surplus, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation

now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any State, or any subdivision thereof, except that any real property acquired by the Secretary as a result of reinsurance shall be subject to taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"(b) Any measures undertaken by any State to meet or to fund its obligations under section 1223(a)(1) shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

"APPROPRIATIONS

"SEC. 1241. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title."

FINANCING

SEC. 1104. Section 520(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "necessary" in the first sentence, and by striking out the period at the end of such sentence and inserting in lieu thereof ", and (2) to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII of this Act: Provided, however, That borrowings to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII shall be limited to $250,000,000 or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine."

FEDERAL INSURANCE ADMINISTRATOR

SEC. 1105. (a) There is hereby established in the Department of Housing and Urban Development the position of Federal Insurance Administrator.

(b) Section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(91) Federal Insurance Administrator, Department of Housing and Urban Development."

CLARIFYING AMENDMENTS TO ACTS REFERRING TO DISASTERS

SEC. 1106. (a) Section 7(b)(1) of the Small Business Act is amended by inserting ", riots or civil disorders," before "or other catastrophes".

(b) Section 101(c)(2)(E) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "natural".

(c) Section 111 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "the Secretary" after "disaster," and inserting in lieu thereof "or which the Secretary has determined is in need of such redevelopment or rehabilitation as a result of a riot or civil disorder, he".

(d) Section 203(h) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "riot or civil disorder," before "or other catastrophe".

(e) No person who has been convicted of committing a felony during and in connection with a riot or civil disorder shall be permitted, for a period of one year after the date of his conviction, to receive any benefit under any law of the United States providing relief for disaster victims.

TITLE XII—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA INSURANCE PLACEMENT ACT

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1201. This title may be cited as the "District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act".

DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1202. The purposes of this title are—

(1) to assure stability in the property insurance market for property located in the District of Columbia;

(2) to assure the availability of basic property insurance as defined by this title;

(3) to encourage maximum use, in obtaining basic property insurance, of the normal insurance market provided by authorized insurers; and

(4) to provide for the equitable distribution among insurers of the responsibility for insuring qualified property in the District of Columbia for which insurance cannot be obtained through the normal insurance market and to authorize the establishment of a joint underwriting association in the District of Columbia to provide for reinsuring of basic property insurance without regard to environmental hazards.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1203. As used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires—

(1) The term "Commissoner" means the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or his designated agent.

(2) The term "basic property insurance" means (1) insurance against direct loss to property caused by perils as defined and limited in the standard fire policy and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the Commissioner, and (2) such other insurance (including insurance against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, theft, and robbery) as the Commissioner may designate (under regulations adopted or made under section 1205 of this title) from those lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is available for losses from riots or civil disorders under part B of title XII of the National Housing Act.

(3) The term "environmental hazard" means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner.

(4) The term "inspection bureau" means any rating bureau or other organization designated by the Commissioner to perform inspections to determine the condition of the properties for which basic property insurance is sought.

(5) The terms "Industry Placement Facility" and "Facility" mean the facility consisting of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing basic property insurance (including homeowners and commercial multiperil policies) within the District of Columbia to assist agents, brokers, and applicants in securing basic property insurance.

(6) The term "premiums written" means gross direct premiums charged with respect to property in the District of Columbia on all policies of basic property insurance and the basic property insurance premium components of all multiperil policies, less all premiums and dividends returned, paid, or credited to policyholders or the unused or unabsorbed portions of premiums deposits.

(7) The term "property owner" means any person having an insurable interest in real, personal, or mixed real and personal property.

INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

SEC. 1204. (a) Within thirty days after the date of the enactment of this title all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies, shall establish an Industry Placement Facility. The Facility shall formulate and administer a program, subject to disapproval by the Commissioner in whole or in part, to seek the equitable apportionment among such insurers of basic property insurance which may be afforded applicants in the District of Columbia whose property is insurable in accordance with reasonable underwriting standards and who individually or through their insurance agent or broker request the aid of the Facility to procure such insurance. The Facility shall seek to place insurance with one or more participating companies up to the full insurable value of the risk, if requested, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

(b) The Facility may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, provide as part of its program for the equitable distribution of commercial risks and dwelling risks among insurers.

(c) Each insurer licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies shall participate in the Industry Placement Facility program in accordance with the established rules of the program as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that, in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the established rules of the program, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

SEC. 1205. (a) The Industry Placement Facility shall on its own motion, or within thirty days after a request by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner such proposed rules and regulations applicable to insurers, agents, and brokers deemed necessary to assure all property owners fair access to basic property insurance through the normal insurance markets, including rules and regulations concerning—

(1) the manner and scope of inspections of risk by an inspection bureau;

(2) the preparation and filing of inspection reports and reports on actions taken in connection with inspected risks, and summaries thereof;

(3) the operation of the Facility, including rules and regulations concerning—

(A) the basic property insurance coverages to be provided through the Facility;

(B) the reasonable effort to obtain insurance in the normal commercial market required of an applicant before recourse to the Facility; and

(C) the appeals procedure within the Facility for any applicant for insurance regarding any ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the Facility.

(b) The Commissioner may adopt such of the rules and regulations submitted purusuant to subsection (a) of this section as he approves. If the Commissioner disapproves any proposed rule or regulation submitted, he shall state the reasons for so doing, and he shall require the Facility to submit a revision thereof within such time as he may designate, but no less than ten days. During such designated time, the Commissioner and the Facility shall consult regarding any such disapproved rule or regulation. If the Facility fails to submit a proposed rule or regulation, or revision thereof, within the designated time, or if a revised rule or regulation is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner may make such rules and regulations covering the proposed general subject matter as he shall deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. Any rule or regulation adopted or made under this section shall be consistent with the requirements of part A of title XII of the National Housing Act.

JOINT UNDERWRITING ASSOCIATION

SEC. 1206. (a) The Commissioner is authorized to establish by order a joint underwriting association if he finds, after notice and hearing, that such association is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. Such joint underwriting association shall consist of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner or any component thereof in multiperil policies.

(b) Every such insurer shall be and remain a member of the association and shall comply with all requirements of membership as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the requirements of membership, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

(c) (1) Within sixty days following the effective date of the order of the Commissioner under this section the association shall submit to him a proposed plan of operation, consistent with the provisions of this title, which shall provide for economical, fair, and nondiscriminatory administration of the association and for the prompt and efficient provision of reinsurance, without regard to environmental hazards, for such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner. The plan of operation shall include provisions for—

(A) preliminary assessment of all members for initial expenses necessary to commence operations;

(B) establishment of necessary facilities;

(C) management and operation of the association;

(D) assessment of members to defray losses and expenses;

(E) commission arrangements;

(F) reasonable underwriting standards;

(G) assumption and cession of reinsurance; and

(H) such other matters as the Commissioner may designate.

(2) The plan of operation shall not take effect until approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner disapproves the proposed plan of operation (or any part thereof), he shall state the reasons for so doing, and the association shall within thirty days thereafter submit for his review an appropriately revised plan of operation. During such time, the Commissioner and the association shall consult regarding the disapproved plan or part thereof. If the association fails to submit a revised plan of operation, or if the revised plan so submitted is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner shall promulgate a plan of operation.

(3) The association may, on its own initiative, amend such plan, subject to approval by the Commissioner, and shall amend such plan at the direction of the Commissioner if he finds such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(d) All members of the association shall participate in its writings, expenses, profits, and losses, or in such categories thereof as may be separately established by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner, in the proportion that the premiums written by each such member during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums written in the District of Columbia by all members of the association, or in accordance with such other formula as the association may devise with the approval of the Commissioner. Such participation by each insurer in the association shall be determined annually on the basis of such premiums written during the preceding calendar year as disclosed in the annual statements and other reports filed by the insurer with the Commissioner.

(e) The association shall be governed by a board of eleven directors, elected annually by cumulative voting by the members of the association, whose votes in such election shall be weighted in accordance with the proportionate amount of each member's net direct premiums written in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar year. The first board shall be elected at a meeting of the members or their authorized representatives, which shall be held within thirty days after the effective date of the order under this section establishing the association, at a time and place designated by the Commissioner.

EXAMINATION BY COMMISSIONER

SEC. 1207. The operation of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association shall at all times be subject to the supervision and regulation of the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the power of visitation of and examination into such operations and free access to all the books, records, files, papers, and documents that relate to such operations, may summon and qualify witnesses under oath, and may examine directors, officers, agents, employees or, any other person having knowledge of such operations.

WAIVER OF LIABILITY

SEC. 1208. There shall be no liability on the part of, and no cause of action of any nature shall arise against, insurers, any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, the joint underwriting association, the agents or employees of such bureau, Facility, or association, or any officer or employee of the District of Columbia, for any statements made in good faith by them concerning the insurability of property (A) in any reports or other communications, (B) at the time of the hearings conducted in connection therewith, or (C) in the findings with respect thereto required by the provisions of this title. The reports and communications of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association with respect to individual properties shall not be open to inspection by, or otherwise available to, the public.

ANNUAL REPORTS BY JOINT UNDERWRITING ASSOCIATION

SEC. 1209. The joint underwriting association shall file with the Commissioner, annually on or before the 1st day of March, a statement which shall contain information with respect to its transactions, condition, operations, and affairs during the preceding year. Such statement shall contain such matters and information as are prescribed by the Commissioner and shall be in such form as is approved by him. The Commissioner may at any time require the association to furnish him with additional information with respect to its transactions, condition, or any matter connected therewith which he considers to be material and which will assist him in evaluating the scope, operation, and experience of the association.

APPEALS

SEC. 1210. (a) Any applicant for insurance and any affected insurer may appeal to the Commissioner within ninety days after any final ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, or the joint underwriting association, following exhaustion of remedies available within such bureau, Facility, or association.

(b) All final orders or decisions of the Commissioner made under this title shall be subject to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals under section 11–742 of the District of Columbia Code.

REIMBURSEMENT FOR REINSURANCE PROVIDED UNDER NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

SEC. 1211. (a) In order to carry out the purposes of this title and to make available to insurers who participate hereunder the reinsurance afforded under part B of title XII of the National Housing Act against losses to property resulting from riots or civil disorders, the Commissioner is authorized to assess each insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia an amount, in the proportion that the premiums earned by each such company in the District of Columbia, on lines reinsured in the District of Columbia by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums earned on those lines in the District of Columbia by all insurance companies, sufficient to provide a fund to reimburse the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development in the manner set forth in section 1223(a)(1) of such part B. Such fund may be added to or such fund may be created by moneys appropriated therefor by the Congress.

(b) Insurers shall add to the premium rate an amount, to be approved by the Commissioner, sufficient to recover, within not more than three years, any amounts assessed under subsection (a) of this section during the preceding calendar year. Such amount shall be a separate charge to the insured in addition to the premium to be paid and shall be reflected as such in the policy of insurance. No commission shall be paid thereon to any agent or broker producing or selling the policy of insurance wherein such amount is added.

DELEGATION

SEC. 1212. The Commissioner is authorized to delegate any of the functions vested in him by this title.

JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1213. Section 11–742(a) of the District of Columbia Code is amended (1) by striking out "and" immediately following paragraph (10); (2) by striking out the period following paragraph (11) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and (3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

> "(12) final orders and decisions of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia under the provisions of the District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act."

TITLE XIII—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1301. This title may be cited as the "National Flood Insurance Act of 1968".

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1302. (a) The Congress finds that (1) from time to time flood disasters have created personal hardships and economic distress which have required unforeseen disaster relief measures and have placed an increasing burden on the Nation's resources; (2) despite the installation of preventive and protective works and the adoption of other public programs designed to reduce losses caused by flood damage, these methods have not been sufficient to protect adequately against growing exposure to future flood losses; (3) as a matter of national policy, a reasonable method of sharing the risk of flood losses is through a program of flood insurance which can complement and encourage preventive and protective measures; and (4) if such a program is initiated and carried out gradually, it can be expanded as knowledge is gained and experience is appraised, thus eventually making flood insurance coverage available on reasonable terms and conditions to persons who have need for such protection.

(b) The Congress also finds that (1) many factors have made it uneconomic for the private insurance industry alone to make flood insurance available to those in need of such protection on reasonable terms and conditions; but (2) a program of flood insurance with large-scale participation of the Federal Government and carried out to the maximum extent practicable by the private insurance industry is feasible and can be initiated.

(c) The Congress further finds that (1) a program of flood insurance can promote the public interest by providing appropriate protection against the perils of flood losses and encouraging sound land use by minimizing exposure of property to flood losses; and (2) the objectives of a flood insurance program should be integrally related to a unified national program for flood plain management and, to this end, it is the sense of Congress that within two years following the effective date of this title the President should transmit to the Congress for its consideration any further proposals necessary for such a unified program, including proposals for the allocation of costs among beneficiaries of flood protection.

(d) It is therefore the purpose of this title to (1) authorize a flood insurance program by means of which flood insurance, over a period of time, can be made available on a nationwide basis through the cooperative efforts of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry, and (2) provide flexibility in the program so that such flood insurance may be based on workable methods of pooling risks, minimizing costs, and distributing burdens equitably among those who will be protected by flood insurance and the general public.

(e) It is the further purpose of this title to (1) encourage State and local governments to make appropriate land use adjustments to constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage and minimize damage caused by flood losses, (2) guide the development of proposed future construction, where practicable, away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards, (3) encourage lending and credit institutions, as a matter of national policy, to assist in furthering the objectives of the flood insurance program, (4) assure that any Federal assistance provided under the program will be related closely to all flood-related programs and activities of the Federal Government, and (5) authorize continuing studies of flood hazards in order to provide for a constant reappraisal of the flood insurance program and its effect on land use requirements.

AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FLOOD INSURANCE ACT OF 1956

SEC. 1303. (a) The second sentence of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (79 Stat. 1078) is amended—

(1) by striking out "rate" the second time it appears in such sentence, and inserting in lieu thereof "market yield", and

(2) by striking out "as of the last day of", and inserting in lieu thereof "during".

(b) Section 15(e) of such Act is further amended by striking out the last sentence thereof.

(c) Sections 2 through 14, subsections (a) through (d), and (f) and (g) of section 15, and sections 16 through 23 of such Act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER I—THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

BASIC AUTHORITY

SEC. 1304. (a) To carry out the purposes of this title, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program which will enable interested persons to purchase insurance against loss resulting from physical damage to or loss of real property or personal property related thereto arising from any flood occurring in the United States.

(b) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent practicable, encourage and arrange for—

(1) appropriate financial participation and risk sharing in the program by insurance companies and other insurers, and

(2) other appropriate participation, on other than a risk-sharing basis, by insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, in accordance with the provisions of chapter II.

SCOPE OF PROGRAM AND PRIORITIES

SEC. 1305. (a) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall afford a priority to making flood insurance available to cover residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families and business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns.

(b) If on the basis of—

(1) studies and investigations undertaken and carried out and information received or exchanged under section 1307, and

(2) such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary determines that it would be feasible to extend the flood insurance program to cover other properties, he may take such action under this title as from time to time may be necessary in order to make flood insurance available to cover, on such basis as may be feasible, any types and classes of—

(A) other residential properties,

(B) other business properties,

(C) agricultural properties,

(D) properties occupied by private nonprofit organizations, and

(E) properties owned by State and local governments and agencies thereof, and any such extensions of the program to any types and classes of these properties shall from time to time be prescribed in regulations.

(c) The Secretary shall make flood insurance available in only those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have—

(1) evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program, and

(2) given satisfactory assurance that by June 30, 1970, permanent land use and control measures will have been adopted for the State or area (or subdivision) which are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use developed under section 1361, and that the application and enforcement of such measures will commence as soon as technical information on floodways and on controlling flood elevations is available.

NATURE AND LIMITATION OF INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1306. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1318, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under under section 1331, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, provide by regulation for general terms and conditions of insurability which shall be applicable to properties eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1305, including—

(1) the types, classes, and locations of any such properties which shall be eligible for flood insurance;

(2) the nature and limits of loss or damage in any areas (or subdivisions thereof) which may be covered by such insurance;

(3) the classification, limitation, and rejection of any risks which may be advisable;

(4) appropriate minimum premiums;

(5) appropriate loss-deductibles; and

(6) any other terms and conditions relating to insurance coverage or exclusion which may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) In addition to any other terms and conditions under subsection (a), such regulations shall provide that—

(1) any flood insurance coverage based on chargeable premium rates under section 1308 which are less than the estimated premium rates under section 1307(a)(1) shall not exceed—

(A) in the case of residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families—

(i) $17,500 aggregate liability for any dwelling unit, and $30,000 for any single dwelling structure containing more than one dwelling unit, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit;

(B) in the case of business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns, an aggregate liability with respect to any single structure, including any contents thereof related to premises of small business occupants (as that term is defined by the Secretary), which shall be equal to (i) $30,000 plus (ii) $5,000 multiplied by the number of such occupants and shall be allocated among such occupants (or among the occupant or occupants and the owner) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary; except that the aggregate liability for the structure itself may in no case exceed $30,000; and

(C) in the case of any other properties which may become eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1305—

(i) $30,000 aggregate liability for any single structure, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit in the case of residential properties, or per occupant (as that term is defined by the Secretary) for any contents related to the premises occupied in the case of any other properties; and

(2) any flood insurance coverage which may be made available in excess of any of the limits specified in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (1) (or allocated to any person under subparagraph (B) of such paragraph) shall be based only on chargeable premium rates under section 1308 which are not less than the estimated premium rates under section 1307(a)(1), and the amount of such excess coverage shall not in any case exceed an amount which is equal to the applicable limit so specified (or allocated).

ESTIMATES OF PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1307. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake and carry out such studies and investigations and receive or exchange such information as may be necessary to estimate, and shall from time to time estimate, on an area, subdivision, or other appropriate basis—

(1) the risk premium rates for flood insurance which—

(A) based on consideration of the risk involved and accepted actuarial principles, and

(B) including—

(i) the applicable operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311 and reflected in such rates, and

(ii) any administrative expenses (or portion of such expenses) of carrying out the flood insurance program which, in his discretion, should properly be reflected in such rates, would be required in order to make such insurance available on an actuarial basis for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage is available under section 1305(a) (or is recommended to the Congress under section 1305(b));

(2) the rates, if less than the rates estimated under paragraph (1), which would be reasonable, would encourage prospective insureds to purchase flood insurance, and would be consistent with the purposes of this title; and

(3) the extent, if any, to which federally assisted or other flood protection measures initiated after the date of the enactment of this title affect such rates.

(b) In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible and on a reimbursement basis, utilize the services of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, and, as appropriate, other Federal departments or agencies, and for such purposes may enter into agreements or other appropriate arrangements with any persons.

(c) The Secretary shall give priority to conducting studies and investigations and making estimates under this section in those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program.

ESTABLISHMENT OF CHARGEABLE PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1308. (a) On the basis of estimates made under section 1307 and such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1318, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1331, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, prescribe by regulation—

(1) chargeable premium rates for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage shall be available under section 1305 (at less than the estimated risk premium rates under section 1307(a)(1), where necessary), and

(2) the terms and conditions under which, and the areas (including subdivisions thereof) within which, such rates shall apply.

(b) Such rates shall, insofar as practicable, be—

(1) based on a consideration of the respective risks involved, including differences in risks due to land use measures, flood-proofing, flood forecasting, and similar measures,

(2) adequate, on the basis of accepted actuarial principles, to provide reserves for anticipated losses, or, if less than such amount, consistent with the objective of making flood insurance available where necessary at reasonable rates so as to encourage prospective insureds to purchase such insurance and with the purposes of this title, and

(3) stated so as to reflect the basis for such rates, including the differences (if any) between the estimated risk premium rates under section 1307(a)(1) and the estimated rates under section 1307(a)(2).

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the chargeable rate with respect to any property, the construction or substantial improvement of which the Secretary determines has been started after the identification of the area in which such property is located has been published under paragraph (1) of section 1360, shall not be less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate for such area (or subdivision thereof) under section 1307(a)(1).

(d) In the event any chargeable premium rate prescribed under this section—

(1) is a rate which is not less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate under section 1307(a)(1), and

(2) includes any amount for administrative expenses of carrying out the flood insurance program which have been estimaated under clause (ii) of section 1307(a)(1)(B), a sum equal to such amount shall be paid to the Secretary, and he shall deposit such sum in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1310.

FINANCING

SEC. 1309. (a) All authority which was vested in the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by virtue of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1084) (pertaining to the issue of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury), as amended by subsections (a) and (b) of section 1303 of this Act, shall be available to the Secretary for the purpose of carrying out the flood insurance program under this title; except that the total amount of notes and obligations which may be issued by the Secretary pursuant to such authority shall not exceed $250,000,000, and all authority of the Secretary to issue notes and obligations under said section 15 (e) beyond such sum is hereby rescinded.

(b) Any funds borrowed by the Secretary under this authority shall, from time to time, be deposited in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1310.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 1310. (a) To carry out the flood insurance program authorized by this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish in the Treasury of the United States a National Flood Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") which shall be available, without fiscal year limitation—

(1) for making such payments as may, from time to time, be required under section 1334;

(2) to pay reinsurance claims under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1335;

(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums as may be borrowed from him (together with interest) in accordance with the authority provided in section 1309; and

(4) to pay such administrative expenses (or portion of such expenses) of carrying out the flood insurance program as he may deem necessary; and

(5) for the purposes specified in subsection (d) under the conditions provided therein.

(b) The fund shall be credited with—

(1) such funds borrowed in accordance with the authority provided in section 1309 as may from time to time be deposited in the fund;

(2) premiums, fees, or other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1335;

(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

(4) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund pursuant to subsection (c);

(5) such sums as are required to be paid to the Secretary under section 1308(d); and

(6) receipts from any other operations under this title (including premiums under the conditions specified in subsection (d), and salvage proceeds, if any, resulting from reinsurance coverage).

(c) If, after—

(1) all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated, and

(2) any outstanding amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations authorized under section

1376(a)(2)(B) have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced, with interest accrued at the rate prescribed under section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956, as in effect immediately prior to the enactment of this title, the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

(d) In the event the Secretary makes a determination in accordance with the provisions of section 1340 that operation of the flood insurance program, in whole or in part, should be carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, the fund shall be available for all purposes incident thereto, including—

(1) cost incurred in the adjustment and payment of any claims for losses, and

(2) payment of applicable operating costs set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311,

for so long as the program is so carried out, and in such event any premiums paid shall be deposited by the Secretary to the credit of the fund.

(e) An annual business-type budget for the fund shall be prepared, transmitted to the Congress, considered, and enacted in the manner prescribed by law (sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 847–849)) for wholly-owned Government corporations.

OPERATING COSTS AND ALLOWANCES

SEC. 1311. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time negotiate with appropriate representatives of the insurance industry for the purpose of establishing—

(1) a current schedule of operating costs applicable both to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers and to insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations participating on other than a risk-sharing basis, and

(2) a current schedule of operating allowances applicable to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers, which may be payable in accordance with the provisions of chapter II, and such schedules shall from time to time be prescribed in regulations.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a)—

(1) The term "operating costs" shall (without limiting such term) include—

(A) expense reimbursements covering the direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred in connection with selling and servicing flood insurance coverage;

(B) reasonable compensation payable for selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, or commissions or service fees paid to producers;

(C) loss adjustment expenses; and

(D) other direct, actual, and necessary expenses which the Secretary finds are incurred in connection with selling or servicing flood insurance coverage; and

(2) the term "operating allowances" shall (without limiting such term) include amounts for profit and contingencies which the Secretary finds reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

SEC. 1312. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe regulations establishing the general method or methods by which proved and approved claims for losses may be adjusted and paid for any damage to or loss of property which is covered by flood insurance made available under the provisions of this title.

DISSEMINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE INFORMATION

SEC. 1313. The Secretary shall from time to time take such action as may be necessary in order to make information and data available to the public, and to any State or local agency or official, with regard to—

(1) the flood insurance program, its coverage and objectives, and

(2) estimated and chargeable flood insurance premium rates, including the basis for and differences between such rates in accordance with the provisions of section 1308.

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN DUPLICATIONS OF BENEFITS

SEC. 1314. (a) Nothwithstanding the provisions of any other law, no Federal diaster assistance shall be made available to any person—

(1) for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage is covered by a valid claim which may be adjusted and paid under flood insurance made available under the authority of this title, or

(2) except in the situation provided for under subsection (b), for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered by a valid claim under flood insurance which had been made available under the authority of this title, if—

(A) such loss, destruction, or damage occurred subsequent to one year following the date flood insurance was made available in the area (or subdivision thereof) in which such property or the major part thereof was located, and

(B) such property was eligible for flood insurance under this title at that date;

and in such circumstances the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered shall be presumed (for purposes of this subsection) to be an amount not less than the maximum limit of insurable loss or damage applicable to such property in such area (or subdivision thereof), pursuant to regulations under section 1306, at the time insurance was made available in such area (or subdivision thereof).

(b) In order to assure that the provisions of subsection (a)(2) will not create undue hardship for low-income persons who might otherwise benefit from the provision of Federal disaster assistance, the Secretary shall provide by regulation for the circumstances in which the provisions of subsection (a)(2) shall not be applicable to any such persons.

(c) For purposes of this section, "Federal disaster assistance" shall include any Federal financial assistance which may be made available to any person as a result of—

(1) a major disaster (within the meaning of that term as determined by the President pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to State and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g)),

(2) a natural disaster, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 321 of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 (7 U.S.C. 1961), or

(3) a disaster with respect to which loans may be made under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(b)).

(d) For purposes of section 10 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1320), the term "financial assistance" shall be deemed to include any flood insurance which is made available under this title.

STATE AND LOCAL LAND USE CONTROLS

SEC. 1315. After June 30, 1970, no new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title in any area (or subdivision thereof) unless an appropriate public body shall have adopted permanent land use and control measures (with effective enforcement provisions) which the Secretary finds are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use under section 1361.

PROPERTIES IN VIOLATION OF STATE AND LOCAL LAW

SEC. 1316. No new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title for any property which the Secretary finds has been declared by a duly constituted State or local zoning authority, or other authorized public body, to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances which are intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development or occupancy in flood-prone areas.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROGRAMS

SEC. 1317. In carrying out this title, the Secretary shall consult with other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, and with interstate, State, and local agencies having responsibilities for flood control, flood forecasting, or flood damage prevention, in order to assure that the programs of such agencies and the flood insurance program authorized under this title are mutually consistent.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

SEC. 1318. (a) The Secretary shall appoint a flood insurance advisory committee, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and such committee shall advise the secretary in the preparation of any regulations prescribed in accordance with this title and with respect to policy matters arising in the administration of this title, and shall perform such other responsibilities as the Secretary may, from time to time, assign to such committee.

(b) Such committee shall consist of not more than fifteen persons and such persons shall be selected from among representatives of—

(1) the insurance industry,

(2) State and local governments,

(3) lending institutions,

(4) the homebuilding industry, and

(5) the general public.

(c) Members of the committee shall, while attending conferences or meetings thereof, be entitled to receive compensation at a rate fixed by the Secretary but not exceeding $100 per day, including traveltime, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as is authorized under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

INITIAL PROGRAM LIMITATION

Sec. 1319. The face amount of flood insurance coverage outstanding and in force at any one time under this title shall not exceed the sum of $2,500,000,000.

REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

Sec. 1320. The Secretary shall include a report of operations under this title in the annual report to the President for submission to the Congress required by section 8 of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act.

CHAPTER II—ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 1330. Following such consultation with representatives of the insurance industry as may be necessary, the Secretary shall implement the flood insurance program authorized under chapter I in accordance with the provisions of part A of this chapter and, if a determination is made by him under section 1340, under part B of this chapter.

Part A—Industry Program With Federal Financial Assistance

INDUSTRY FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

Sec. 1331. (a) The Secretary is authorized to encourage and otherwise assist any insurance companies and other insurers which meet the requirements prescribed under subsection (b) to form, associate, or otherwise join together in a pool—

(1) in order to provide the flood insurance coverage authorized under chapter I; and

(2) for the purpose of assuming, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, such financial responsibility as will enable such companies and other insurers, with the Federal financial and other assistance available under this title, to assume a reasonable proportion of responsibility for the adjustment and payment of claims for losses under the flood insurance program.

(b) In order to promote the effective administration of the flood insurance program under this part, and to assure that the objectives of this title are furthered, the Secretary is authorized to prescribe appropriate requirements for insurance companies and other insurers participating in such pool including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for capital or surplus or assets.

AGREEMENTS WITH FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1332. (a) The Secretary is authorized to enter into such agreements with the pool formed or otherwise created under this part as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) Such agreements shall specify—

(1) the terms and conditions under which risk capital will be available for the adjustment and payment of claims,

(2) the terms and conditions under which the pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein) shall participate in premiums received and profits or losses realized or sustained,

(3) the maximum amount of profit, established by the Secretary and set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311, which may be realized by such pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein),

(4) the terms and conditions under which operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311 may be paid, and

(5) the terms and conditions under which premium equalization payments under section 1334 will be made and reinsurance claims under section 1335 will be paid.

(c) In addition, such agreements shall contain such provisions as the Secretary finds necessary to assure that—

(1) no insurance company or other insurer which meets the requirements prescribed under section 1331(b), and which has indicated an intention to participate in the flood insurance program on a risk-sharing basis, will be excluded from participating in the pool,

(2) the insurance companies and other insurers participating in the pool will take whatever action may be necessary to provide continuity of flood insurance coverage by the pool, and

(3) any insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations will be permitted to cooperate with the pool as fiscal agents or otherwise, on other than a risk-sharing basis, to the maximum extent practicable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1333. The insurance companies and other insurers which form, associate, or otherwise join together in the pool under this part may adjust and pay all claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance in accordance with the provisions of this title and, upon the disallowance by any such company or other insurer of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, may institute an action on such claim against such company or other insurer in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PREMIUM EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 1334. (a) The Secretary, on such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe, shall make periodic payments to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1331, in recognition of such reductions in chargeable premium rates under section 1308 below estimated premium rates under section 1307(a)(1) as are required in order to make flood insurance available on reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) Such payments shall be based only on the aggregate amount of flood insurance retained by the pool after ceding reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1335, and shall not exceed an aggregate amount in any payment period equal to the sum of the following:

(1) an amount for losses which bears the same ratio to the amount of all proved and approved claims for losses under this title during any designated period as the amount equal to the difference between—

(A) the sum of all premium payments for flood insurance coverage in force under this title during such designated period which would have been payable during such period if all such coverage were based on estimated risk premium rates under section 1307(a)(1) (excluding any administrative expenses which may be reflected in such rates, as specified in clause (ii) of section 1307(a)(1)(B)), and

(B) the sum of the premium payments actually paid or payable for such insurance under this title during such period,

bears to the amount specified in clause (A); and

(2) subject to the terms and conditions specified in the agreements entered into with the pool under section 1332, a proportionate amount for appropriate operating costs and allowances (as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311) during any designated period which bears the same ratio to the total amount of such operating costs and allowances during such period as the ratio specified in paragraph (1).

(c) Designated periods under this section and the methods for determining the sum of premiums paid or payable during such periods shall be established by the Secretary.

REINSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1335. (a) The Secretary is authorized to take such action as may be necessary in order to make available, to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1331, reinsurance for losses (due to claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance) which are in excess of losses assumed by such pool in accordance with the excess loss agreement entered into under subsection (c).

(b) Such reinsurance shall be made available pursuant to contract, agreement, or any other arrangement, in consideration of such payment of a premium, fee, or other charge as the Secretary finds necessary to cover anticipated losses and other costs of providing such reinsurance.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to negotiate an excess loss agreement, from time to time, under which the amount of flood insurance retained by the pool, after ceding reinsurance, shall be adequate to further the purposes of this title, consistent with the objective of maintaining appropriate financial participation and risk sharing to the maximum extent practicable on the part of participating insurance companies and other insurers.

(d) All reinsurance claims for losses in excess of losses assumed by the pool shall be submitted on a portfolio basis by such pool in accordance with terms and conditions established by the Secretary.

Part B—Government Program With Industry Assistance

FEDERAL OPERATION OF THE PROGRAM

Sec. 1340. (a) If at any time, after consultation with representatives of the insurance industry, the Secretary determines that operation of the flood insurance program as provided under part A cannot be carried out, or that such operation, in itself, would be assisted materially by the Federal Government's assumption, in whole or in part, of the operational responsibility for flood insurance under this title (on a temporary or other basis) he shall promptly undertake any necessary arrangements to carry out the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, utilizing, for purposes of providing flood insurance coverage, either—

(1) insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, as fiscal agents of the United States,

(2) officers and employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and such other officers and employees of any executive agency (as defined in section 105 of title 5 of the United States Code) as the Secretary and the head of any such agency may, from time to time, agree upon, on a reimbursement or other basis, or

(3) both the alternatives specified in paragraphs (1) and (2).

(b) Upon making the determination referred to in subsection (a), and at least thirty days prior to implementing the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress and such report shall—

(1) state the reasons for such determination,

(2) be supported by pertinent findings,

(3) indicate the extent to which it is anticipated that the insurance industry will be utilized in providing flood insurance coverage under the program, and

(4) contain such recommendations as the Secretary deems advisable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1341. In the event the program is carried out as provided in section 1340, the Secretary shall be authorized to adjust and make payment of any claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance, and upon the disallowance by the Secretary of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance by the Secretary, may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

SERVICES BY INSURANCE INDUSTRY

SEC. 1345. (a) In administering the flood insurance program under this chapter, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements which may, from time to time, be necessary for the purpose of utilizing, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, the facilities and services of any insurance companies or other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, or insurance adjustment organizations; and such contracts, agreements, or arrangements may include provision for payment of applicable operating costs and allowances for such facilities and services as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1311.

(b) Any such contracts, agreements, or other arrangements may be entered into without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

USE OF INSURANCE POOL, COMPANIES, OR OTHER PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS

SEC. 1346. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the flood insurance program and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any Federal funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with pool formed or otherwise created under section 1331, or any insurance company or other private organization, for the purpose of securing performance by such pool, company, or organization of any or all of the following responsibilities:

(1) estimating and later determining any amounts of payments to be made;

(2) receiving from the Secretary, disbursing, and accounting for funds in making such payments;

(3) making such audits of the records of any insurance company or other insurer, insurance agent or broker, or insurance adjustment organization as may be necessary to assure that proper payments are made; and

(4) otherwise assisting in such manner as the contract may provide to further the purposes of this title.

(b) Any contract with the pool or an insurance company or other private organization under this section may contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary finds necessary or appropriate for carrying out responsibilities under subsection (a), and may provide for payment of any costs which the Secretary determines are incidental to carrying out such responsibilities which are covered by the contract.

(c) Any contract entered into under subsection (a) may be entered into without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statute (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

(d) No contract may be entered into under this section unless the Secretary finds that the pool, company, or organization will perform its obligations under the contract efficiently and effectively, and will meet such requirements as to financial responsibility, legal authority, and other matters as he finds pertinent.

(e)(1) Any such contract may require the pool, company, or organization or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amount as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(2) No individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section.

(3) No officer disbursing funds shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment by him under this section if it was based upon a voucher signed by an individual designated to certify payments as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(f) Any contract entered into under this section shall be for a term of one year, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of an intention to terminate at the end of the current term; except that the Secretary may terminate any such contract at any time (after reasonable notice to the pool, company, or organization involved) if he finds that the pool, company, or organization has failed substantially to carry out the contract, or is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the flood insurance program authorized under this title.

SETTLEMENT AND ARBITRATION

SEC. 1347. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make final settlement of any claims or demands which may arise as a result of any financial transactions which he is authorized to carry out under this chapter, and may, to assist him in making any such settlement, refer any disputes relating to such claims or demands to arbitration, with the consent of the parties concerned.

(b) Such arbitration shall be advisory in nature, and any award, decision, or recommendation which may be made shall become final only upon the approval of the Secretary.

RECORDS AND AUDITS

SEC. 1348. (a) The flood insurance pool formed or otherwise created under part A of this chapter, and any insurance company or other private organization executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under part B of this chapter or this part, shall keep such records as the Secretary shall prescribe, including records which fully disclose the total costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit.

(b) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of the pool and any such insurance company or other private organization that are pertinent to the costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered.

CHAPTER III—COORDINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE WITH LAND-MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS IN FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

IDENTIFICATION OF FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

SEC. 1360. The Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any agreements or other arrangements with the Secretaries of the Army, the Interior, Agriculture, and Commerce, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the heads of other Federal departments or agencies, on a reimbursement basis, or with the head of any State or local agency, or enter into contracts with any persons or private firms, in order that he may—

(1) identify and publish information with respect to all flood plain areas, including coastal areas located in the United States, which have special flood hazards, within five years following the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(2) establish flood-risk zones in all such areas, and make estimates with respect to the rates of probable flood-caused loss for the various flood-risk zones for each of these areas, within fifteen years following such date.

CRITERIA FOR LAND MANAGEMENT AND USE

SEC. 1361. (a) The Secretary is authorized to carry out studies and investigations, utilizing to the maximum extent practicable the existing facilities and services of other Federal departments or agencies, and State and local governmental agencies, and any other organizations, with respect to the adequacy of State and local measures in flood-prone areas as to land management and use, flood control, flood zoning, and flood damage prevention, and may enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements to carry out such authority.

(b) Such studies and investigations shall include, but not be limited to, laws, regulations, or ordinances relating to encroachments and obstructions on stream channels and floodways, the orderly development and use of flood plains of rivers or streams, floodway encroachment lines, and flood plain zoning, building codes, building permits, and subdivision or other building restrictions.

(c) On the basis of such studies and investigations, and such other information as he deems necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time develop comprehensive criteria designed to encourage, where necessary, the adoption of permanent State and local measures which, to the maximum extent feasible, will—

(1) constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage where appropriate,

(2) guide the development of proposed construction away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards,

(3) assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and

(4) otherwise improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas, and he shall work closely with and provide any necessary technical assistance to State, interstate, and local governmental agencies, to encourage the application of such criteria and the adoption and enforcement of such measures.

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN INSURED PROPERTIES

SEC. 1362. The Secretary may, when he determines that the public interest would be served thereby, enter into negotiations with any owner of real property or interest therein which—

(1) was located in any flood-risk area, as determined by the Secretary,

(2) was covered by flood insurance under the flood insurance program authorized under this title, and

(3) was damaged substantially beyond repair by flood while so covered,

and may purchase such property or interests therein, for subsequent transfer, by sale, lease, donation, or otherwise, to any State or local agency which enters into an agreement with the Secretary that such property shall, for a period not less than forty years following transfer, be used for only such purposes as the Secretary may, by regulation, determine to be consistent with sound land management and use in such area.

CHAPTER IV—APPROPRIATIONS AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1370. As used in this title—

(1) the term "flood" shall have such meaning as may be prescribed in regulations of the Secretary, and may include inundation from rising waters or from the overflow of streams, rivers, or other bodies of water, or from tidal surges, abnormally high tidal water, tidal waves, tsunamis, hurricanes, or other severe storms or deluge;

(2) the terms "United States" (when used in a geographic sense) and "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands;

(3) the terms "insurance company", "other insurer", and "insurance agent or broker" include any organizations and persons authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

(4) the term "insurance adjustment organization" includes any organizations and persons engaged in the business of adjusting loss claims arising under insurance policies issued by any insurance company or other insurer;

(5) the term "person" includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, including State and local governments and agencies thereof; and

(6) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

STUDIES OF OTHER NATURAL DISASTERS

SEC. 1371. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the extent to which insurance protection against earthquakes or any other natural disaster perils, other than flood, is not available from public or private sources, and the feasibility of such insurance protection being made available.

(b) Studies under this section shall be carried out, to the maximum extent practicable, with the cooperation of other Federal departments and agencies and State and local agencies, and the Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any necessary agreements or other arrangements with such other Federal departments and agencies (on a reimbursement basis) and such State and local agencies.

PAYMENTS

SEC. 1372. Any payments under this title may be made (after necessary adjustment on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments) in advance or by way of reimbursement, and in such installments and on such conditions, as the Secretary may determine.

GOVERNMENT CORPORATION CONTROL ACT

SEC. 1373. The provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act shall apply to the program authorized under this title to the same extent as they apply to wholly owned Government corporations.

FINALITY OF CERTAIN FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

SEC. 1374. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law—

(1) any financial transaction authorized to be carried out under this title, and

(2) any payment authorized to be made or to be received in connection with any such financial transaction.

shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

SEC. 1375. Any administrative expenses which may be sustained by the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program authorized under this title may be paid out of appropriated funds.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1376. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may from time to time be necessary to carry out this title, including sums—

(1) to cover administrative expenses authorized under section 1375;

(2) to reimburse the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1310 for—

(A) premium equalization payments under section 1334 which have been made from such fund; and

(B) reinsurance claims paid under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1335; and

(3) to make such other payments as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) All such funds shall be available without fiscal year limitation.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1377. This title shall take effect one hundred and twenty days following the date of its enactment, except that the Secretary, on the basis of a finding that conditions exist necessitating the prescribing of an additional period, may prescribe a later effective date which in no event shall be more than one hundred and eighty days following such date of enactment.

TITLE XIV—INTERSTATE LAND SALES

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1401. This title may be cited as the "Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act".

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1402. For the purposes of this title, the term—

(1) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development;

(2) "person" means an individual, or an unincorporated organization, partnership, association, corporation, trust, or estate;

(3) "subdivision" means any land which is divided or proposed to be divided into fifty or more lots, whether contiguous or not, for the purpose of sale or lease as part of a common promotional plan and where subdivided land is offered for sale or lease by a single developer, or a group of developers acting in concert, and such land is contiguous or is known, designated, or advertised as a common unit or by a common name such land shall be presumed, without regard to the number of lots covered by each individual offering, as being offered for sale or lease as part of a common promotional plan;

(4) "developer" means any person who, directly or indirectly, sells or leases, or offers to sell or lease, or advertises for sale or lease any lots in a subdivision;

(5) "agent" means any person who represents, or acts for or on behalf of, a developer in selling or leasing, or offering to sell or lease, any lot or lots in a subdivision; but shall not include an attorney at law whose representation of another person consists solely of rendering legal services;

(6) "blanket encumbrance" means a trust deed, mortgage, judgment, or any other lien or encumbrance, including an option or contract to sell or a trust agreement, affecting a subdivision or affecting more than one lot offered within a subdivision, except that such term shall not include any lien or other encumbrance arising as the result of the imposition of any tax assessment by any public authority;

(7) "interstate commerce" means trade or commerce among the several States;

(8) "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the territories and possessions of the United States;

(9) "purchaser" means an actual or prospective purchaser or lessee of any lot in a subdivision;

(10) "offer" includes any inducement, solicitation, or attempt to encourage a person to acquire a lot in a subdivision.

EXEMPTIONS

SEC. 1403. (a) Unless the method of disposition is adopted for the purpose of evasion of this title, the provisions of this title shall not apply to—

(1) the sale or lease of real estate not pursuant to a common promotional plan to offer or sell fifty or more lots in a subdivision;

(2) the sale or lease of lots in a subdivision, all of which are five acres or more in size;

(3) the sale or lease of any improved land on which there is a residential, commercial, or industrial building, or to the sale or lease of land under a contract obligating the seller to erect such a building thereon within a period of two years;

(4) the sale or lease of real estate under or pursuant to court order;

(5) the sale of evidences of indebtedness secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real estate;

(6) the sale of securities issued by a real estate investment trust;

(7) the sale or lease of real estate by any government or government agency;

(8) the sale or lease of cemetery lots;

(9) the sale or lease of lots to any person who acquires such lots for the purpose of engaging in the business of constructing residential, commercial, or industrial buildings or for the purpose of resale or lease of such lots to persons engaged in such business; or

(10) the sale or lease of real estate which is free and clear of all liens, encumbrances, and adverse claims if each and every purchaser or his or her spouse has personally inspected the lot which he purchased and if the developer executes a written affirmation to that effect to be made a matter of record in accordance with rules and regulations of the Secretary. As used in this subparagraph, the terms "liens," "encumbrances," and "adverse claims" are not intended to refer to property reservations which land developers commonly convey or dedicate to local bodies or public utilities for the purpose of bringing public services to the land being developed nor to taxes and assessments which, under applicable State or local law, constitute liens on the property before they are due and payable.

(b) The Secretary may from time to time, pursuant to rules and regulations issued by him, exempt from any of the provisions of this title any subdivision or any lots in a subdivision, if he finds that the enforcement of this title with respect to such subdivision or lots is not necessary in the public interest and for the protection of purchasers by reason of the small amount involved or the limited character of the public offering.

PROHIBITIONS RELATING TO THE SALE OR LEASE OF LOTS IN SUBDIVISIONS

SEC. 1404. (a) It shall be unlawful for any developer or agent, directly or indirectly, to make use of any means or instruments of transportation or communication in interstate commerce, or of the mails—

(1) to sell or lease any lot in any subdivision unless a statement of record with respect to such lot is in effect in accordance with section 1407 and a printed property report, meeting the requirements of section 1408, is furnished to the purchaser in advance of the signing of any contract or agreement for sale or lease by the purchaser; and

(2) in selling or leasing, or offering to sell or lease, any lot in a subdivision—

(A) to employ any device, scheme, or artifice to defraud, or

(B) to obtain money or property by means of a material misrepresentation with respect to any information included in the statement of record or the property report or with respect to any other information pertinent to the lot or the subdivision and upon which the purchaser relies, or

(C) to engage in any transaction, practice, or course of business which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon a purchaser.

(b) Any contract or agreement for the purchase or leasing of a lot in a subdivision covered by this title, where the property report has not been given to the purchaser in advance or at the time of his signing, shall be voidable at the option of the purchaser. A purchaser may revoke such contract or agreement within forty-eight hours, where he has received the property report less than forty-eight hours before he signed the contract or agreement, and the contract or agreement shall so provide, except that the contract or agreement may stipulate that the foregoing revocation authority shall not apply in the case of a purchaser who (1) has received the property report and inspected the lot to be purchased or leased in advance of signing the contract or agreement, and (2) acknowledges by his signature that he has made such inspection and has read and understood such report.

REGISTRATION OF SUBDIVISIONS

SEC. 1405. (a) A subdivision may be registered by filing with the Secretary a statement of record, meeting the requirements of this title and such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary in furtherance of the provisions of this title. A statement of record shall be deemed effective only as to the lots specified therein.

(b) At the time of filing a statement of record, or any amendment thereto, the developer shall pay to the Secretary a fee, not in excess of $1,000, in accordance with a schedule to be fixed by the regulations of the Secretary, which fees may be used by the Secretary to cover all or part of the cost of rendering services under this title, and such expenses as are paid from such fees shall be considered non-administrative.

(c) The filing with the Secretary of a statement of record, or of an amendment thereto, shall be deemed to have taken place upon the receipt thereof, accompanied by payment of the fee required by subsection (b).

(d) The information contained in or filed with any statement of record shall be made available to the public under such regulations as the Secretary may prescribe and copies thereof shall be furnished to every applicant at such reasonable charge as the Secretary may prescribe.

INFORMATION REQUIRED IN STATEMENT OF RECORD

SEC. 1406. The statement of record shall contain the information and be accompanied by the documents specified hereinafter in this section—

(1) the name and address of each person having an interest in the lots in the subdivision to be covered by the statement of record and the extent of such interest;

(2) a legal description of, and a statement of the total area included in, the subdivision and a statement of the topography thereof, together with a map showing the division proposed and the dimensions of the lots to be covered by the statement of record and their relation to existing streets and roads;

(3) a statement of the condition of the title to the land comprising the subdivision, including all encumbrances and deed restrictions and covenants applicable thereto;

(4) a statement of the general terms and conditions, including the range of selling prices or rents at which it is proposed to dispose of the lots in the subdivision;

(5) a statement of the present condition of access to the subdivision, the availability of sewage disposal facilities and other public utilities (including water, electricity, gas, and telephone facilities) in the subdivision, the proximity in miles of the subdivision to nearby municipalities, and the nature of any improvements to be installed by the developer and his estimated schedule for completion;

(6) in the case of any subdivision or portion thereof against which there exists a blanket encumbrance, a statement of the consequences for an individual purchaser of a failure, by the person or persons bound, to fulfill obligations under the instrument or instruments creating such encumbrance and the steps, if any, taken to protect the purchaser in such eventuality;

(7) (A) copy of its articles of incorporation, with all amendments thereto, if the developer is a corporation; (B) copies of all instruments by which the trust is created or declared, if the developer is a trust; (C) copies of its articles of partnership or association and all other papers pertaining to its organization, if the developer is a partnership, unincorporated association, joint stock company, or any other form of organization; and (D) if the purported holder of legal title is a person other than developer, copies of the above documents for such person;

(8) copies of the deed or other instrument establishing title to the subdivision in the developer or other person and copies of any instrument creating a lien or encumbrance upon the title of developer or other person, or copies of the opinion or opinions of counsel in respect to the title to the subdivision in the developer or other person, or copies of the title insurance policy guaranteeing such title;

(9) copies of all forms of conveyance to be used in selling or leasing lots to purchasers;

(10) copies of instruments creating easements or other restrictions;

(11) such certified and uncertified financial statements of the developer as the Secretary may require; and

(12) such other information and such other documents and certifications as the Secretary may require as being reasonably necessary or appropriate for the protection of purchasers.

TAKING EFFECT OF STATEMENTS OF RECORD AND AMENDMENTS THERETO

SEC. 1407. (a) Except as hereinafter provided, the effective date of a statement of record, or any amendment thereto, shall be the thirtieth day after the filing thereof or such earlier date as the Secretary may determine, having due regard to the public interest and the protection of purchasers. If any amendment to any such statement is filed prior to the effective date of the statement, the statement shall be deemed to have been filed when such amendment was filed; except that such an amendment filed with the consent of the Secretary, or filed pursuant to an order of the Secretary, shall be treated as being filed as of the date of the filing of the statement of record. When a developer records additional lands to be offered for disposition, he may consolidate the subsequent statement of record with any earlier recording offering subdivided land for disposition under the same promotional plan. At the time of consolidation the developer shall include in the consolidated statement of record any material changes in the information contained in the earlier statement.

(b) If it appears to the Secretary that a statement of record, or any amendment thereto, is on its face incomplete or inaccurate in any material respect, the Secretary shall so advise the developer within a reasonable time after the filing of the statement or the amendment, but prior to the date the statement or amendment would otherwise be effective. Such notification shall serve to suspend the effective date of the statement or the amendment until thirty days after the developer files such additional information as the Secretary shall require. Any developer, upon receipt of such notice, may request a hearing, and such hearing shall be held within twenty days of receipt of such request by the Secretary.

(c) If, at any time subsequent to the effective date of a statement of record, a change shall occur affecting any material fact required to be contained in the statement, the developer shall promptly file an amendment thereto. Upon receipt of any such amendment, the Secretary may, if he determines such action to be necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of purchasers, suspend the statement of record until the amendment becomes effective.

(d) If it appears to the Secretary at any time that a statement of record, which is in effect, includes any untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, the Secretary may, after notice, and after opportunity for hearing (at a time fixed by the Secretary) within fifteen days after such notice, issue an order suspending the statement of record. When such statement has been amended in accordance with such order, the Secretary shall so declare and thereupon the order shall cease to be effective.

(e) The Secretary is hereby empowered to make an examination in any case to determine whether an order should issue under subsection (d). In making such examination, the Secretary or anyone designated by him shall have access to and may demand the production of any books and papers of, and may administer oaths and affirmations to and examine, the developer, any agents, or any other person, in respect of any matter revelant to the examination. If the developer or any agents shall fail to cooperate, or shall obstruct or refuse to permit the making of an examination, such conduct shall be proper ground for the issuance of an order suspending the statement of record.

(f) Any notice required under this section shall be sent to or served on the developer or his authorized agent.

INFORMATION REQUIRED IN PROPERTY REPORT

SEC. 1408. (a) A property report relating to the lots in a subdivision shall contain such of the information contained in the statement of record, and any amendments thereto, as the Secretary may deem necessary, but need not include the documents referred to in paragraphs (7) to (11), inclusive, of section 1406. A property report shall also contain such other information as the Secretary may by rules or regulations require as being necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of purchasers.

(b) The property report shall not be used for any promotional purposes before the statement of record becomes effective and then only if it is used in its entirety. No person may advertise or represent that the Secretary approves or recommends the subdivision or the sale or lease of lots therein. No portion of the property report shall be underscored, italicized, or printed in larger or bolder type than the balance of the statement unless the Secretary requires or permits it.

COOPERATION WITH STATE AUTHORITIES

SEC. 1409. (a) In administering this title, the Secretary shall cooperate with State authorities charged with the responsibility of regulating the sale of lots in subdivisions which are also subject to this title and may accept for filing under section 1405 and declare effective as a statement of record, if he finds such action to be appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of purchasers, material filed with and found acceptable by such authorities.

(b) Nothing in this title shall affect the jurisdiction of the real estate commission (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any subdivision or any person.

CIVIL LIABILITIES

SEC. 1410. (a) Where any part of the statement of record, when such part became effective, contained an untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state a material fact required to be stated therein, any person acquiring a lot in the subdivision covered by such statement of record from the developer or his agent during such period the statement remained uncorrected (unless it is proved that at the time of such acquisition he knew of such untruth or omission) may, either at law or in equity, in any court of competent jurisdiction, sue the developer.

(b) Any developer or agent, who sells or leases a lot in a subdivision—

(1) in violation of section 1404, or

(2) by means of a property report which contained an untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state a material fact required to be stated therein, may be sued by the purchaser of such lot.

(c) The suit authorized under subsection (a) or (b) may be to recover such damages as shall represent the difference between the amount paid for the lot and the reasonable cost of any improvements thereto, and the lesser of (1) the value thereof as of the time such suit was brought, or (2) the price at which such lot shall have been disposed of in a bona fide market transaction before suit, or (3) the price at which such lot shall have been disposed of after suit in a bona fide market transaction but before judgment.

(d) Every person who becomes liable to make any payment under this section may recover contribution as in cases of contract from any person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment.

(e) In no case shall amount recoverable under this section exceed the sum of the purchase price of the lot, the reasonable cost of improvements, and reasonable court costs.

COURT REVIEW OF ORDERS

SEC. 1411. (a) Any person, aggrieved by an order or determination of the Secretary issued after a hearing, may obtain a review of such order or determination in the court of appeals of the United States, within any circuit wherein such person resides or has his principal place of business, or in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, by filing in such court, within sixty days after the entry of such order or determination, a written petition praying that the order or determination of the Secretary be modified or be set aside in whole or in part. A copy of such petition shall be forthwith transmitted by the clerk of the court to the Secretary, and thereupon the Secretary shall file in the court the record upon which the order or determination complained of was entered, as provided in section 2112 of title 28, United States Code. No objection to an order or determination of the Secretary shall be considered by the court unless such objection shall have been urged before the Secretary. The finding of the Secretary as to the facts, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive. If either party shall apply to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence, and shall show to the satisfaction of the court that such additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for failure to adduce such evidence in the hearing before the Secretary, the court may order such additional evidence to be taken before the Secretary and to be adduced upon a hearing in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as to the court may seem proper. The Secretary may modify his findings as to the facts by reason of the additional evidence so taken, and shall file such modified or new findings, which, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive, and his recommendation, if any, for the modification or setting aside of the original order. Upon the filing of such petition, the jurisdiction of the court shall be exclusive and its judgment and decree, affirming, modifying, or setting aside, in whole or in part, any order of the Secretary, shall be final, subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States upon certiorari or certification as provided in section 1254 of title 28, United States Code.

(b) The commencement of proceedings under subsection (a) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the Secretary's order.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS

SEC. 1412. No action shall be maintained to enforce any liability created under section 1410 (a) or (b) (2) unless brought within one year after the discovery of the untrue statement or the omission, or after such discovery should have been made by the exercise of reasonable diligence, or, if the action is to enforce a liability created under section 1401(b)(1), unless brought within two years after the violation upon which it is based. In no event shall any such action be brought by a purchaser more than three years after the sale or lease to such purchaser.

CONTRARY STIPULATIONS VOID

SEC. 1413. Any condition, stipulation, or provision binding any person acquiring any lot in a subdivision to waive compliance with any provision of this title or of the rules and regulations of the Secretary shall be void.

ADDITIONAL REMEDIES

SEC. 1414. The rights and remedies provided by this title shall be in addition to any and all other rights and remedies that may exist at law or in equity.

INVESTIGATIONS, INJUNCTIONS, AND PROSECUTION OF OFFENSES

SEC. 1415. (a) Whenever it shall appear to the Secretary that any person is engaged or about to engage in any acts or practices which constitute or will constitute a violation of the provisions of this title, or of any rule or regulation prescribed pursuant thereto, he may, in his discretion, bring an action in any district court of the United States, or the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to enjoin such acts or practices, and, upon a proper showing, a permanent or temporary injunction or restraining order shall be granted without bond. The Secretary may transmit such evidence as may be available concerning such acts or practices to the Attorney General who may, in his discretion, institute the appropriate criminal proceedings under this title.

(b) The Secretary may, in his discretion, make such investigations as he deems necessary to determine whether any person has violated or is about to violate any provision of this title or any rule or regulation prescribed pursuant thereto, and may require or permit any person to file with him a statement in writing, under oath or otherwise as the Secretary shall determine, as to all the facts and circumstances concerning the matter to be investigated. The Secretary is authorized, in his discretion, to publish information concerning any such violations, and to investigate any facts, conditions, practices, or matters which he may deem necessary or proper to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of this title, in the prescribing of rules and regulations thereunder, or in securing information to serve as a basis for recommending further legislation concerning the matters to which this title relates.

(c) For the purpose of any such investigation, or any other proceeding under this title, the Secretary, or any officer designated by him, is empowered to administer oaths and affirmations, subpena witnesses, compel their attendance, take evidence, and require the production of any books, papers, correspondence, memorandums, or other records which the Secretary deems relevant or material to the inquiry. Such attendance of witnesses and the production of any such records may be required from any place in the United States or any State at any designated place of hearing.

(d) In case of contumacy by, or refusal to obey a subpena issued to, any person, the Secretary may invoke the aid of any court of the United States within the jurisdiction of which such investigation or proceeding is carried on, or where such person resides or carries on business, in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of books, papers, correspondence, memorandums, and other records and documents. And such court may issue an order requiring such person to appear before the Secretary or any officer designated by the Secretary, there to produce records, if so ordered, or to give testimony touching the matter under investigation or in question; and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. All process in any such case may be served in the judicial district whereof such person is an inhabitant or wherever he may be found.

(e) No person shall be excused from attending and testifying or from producing books, papers, correspondence, memorandums, and other records and documents before the Secretary, or in obedience to the subpena of the Secretary or any officer designated by him, or in any cause or proceeding instituted by the Secretary, on the ground that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no individual shall be prosecuted or subject to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he is compelled, after having claimed his privilege against self-incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, except that such individual so testifying shall not be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 1416. (a) The authority and responsibility for administering this title shall be in the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development who may delegate any of his functions, duties, and powers to employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development or to boards of such employees, including functions, duties, and powers with respect to investigating, hearing, determining, ordering, or otherwise acting as to any work, business, or matter under this title. The persons to whom such delegations are made with respect to hearing functions, duties, and powers shall be appointed and shall serve in the Department in compliance with sections 3105, 3344, 5362, and 7521 of title 5 of the United States Code. The Secretary shall by rule prescribe such rights of appeal from the decisions of his hearing examiners to other hearing examiners or to other officers in the Department, to boards of officers or to himself, as shall be appropriate and in accordance with law.

(b) All hearings shall be public and appropriate records thereof shall be kept, and any order issued after such hearing shall be based on the record made in such hearing which shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act.

UNLAWFUL REPRESENTATIONS

SEC. 1417. The fact that a statement of record with respect to a subdivision has been filed or is in effect shall not be deemed a finding by the Secretary that the statement of record is true and accurate on its face, or be held to mean the Secretary has in any way passed upon the merits of, or given approval to, such subdivision. It shall be unlawful to make, or cause to be made, to any prospective purchaser any representation contrary to the foregoing.

PENALTIES

SEC. 1418. Any person who willfully violates any of the provisions of this title or the rules and regulations prescribed pursuant thereto, or any person who willfully, in a statement of record filed under, or in a property report issued pursuant to, this title, makes any untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein, shall upon conviction be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

RULES, REGULATIONS, AND ORDERS

SEC. 1419. The Secretary shall have authority from time to time to make, issue, amend, and rescind such rules and regulations and such orders as are necessary or appropriate to the exercise of the functions and powers conferred upon him elsewhere in this title. For the purpose of his rules and regulations, the Secretary may classify persons and matters within his jurisdiction and prescribe different requirements for different classes of persons or matters.

JURISDICTION OF OFFENSES AND SUITS

SEC. 1420. (a) The district courts of the United States, the United States courts of any territory, and the United States District Court for the District of Columbia shall have juridiction of offenses and violations under this title and under the rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary pursuant thereto, and, concurrent with State courts, of all suits in equity and actions at law brought to enforce any liability or duty created by this title. Any such suit or action may be brought to enforce any liability or duty created by this title. Any such suit or action may be brought in the district wherein the defendant is found or is an inhabitant or transacts business, or in the district where the offer or sale took place, if the defendant participated therein, and process in such cases may be served in any other district of which the defendant is an inhabitant or wherever the defendant may be found. Judgments and decrees so rendered shall be subject to review as provided in sections 1254 and 1291 of title 28, United States Code. No case arising under this title and brought in any State court of competent jurisdiction shall be removed to any court of the United States, except where the United States or any officer or employee of the United States in his official capacity is a party. No costs shall be assessed for or against the Secretary in any proceeding under this titl brought by or against him in the Supreme Court or such other courts.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1421. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title.

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 1422. This title shall take effect upon the expiration of two hundred and seventy days after the date of its enactment.

TITLE XV—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1501. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 307 of this Act) the following new section:

"MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

"SEC. 242. (a) The purpose of this section is to assist the provision of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill or who otherwise require medical care and related services of the kind customarily furnished only (or most effectively) by hospitals.

"(b) For the purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'hospital' means a facility—

"(A) which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care);

"(B) not more than 50 per centum of the total patient days of which during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescent and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis; and

"(C) which is owned and operated by one or more nonprofit corporations or associations no part of the net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; and

"(2) the terms 'mortgage' and 'mortgagor' shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207(a) of this Act.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

"(d) In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:

"(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

"(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $25,000,000, and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated replacement cost of the property or project, including equipment to be used in the operation of the hospital, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

"(3) The mortgage shall—

"(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe, and

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

"(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this section unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which is located the hospital covered by the mortgage, a certification that (A) there is a need for such hospital, and (B) there are in force in such State or the political subdivision of the State in which the proposed hopsital would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. No such mortgage shall be insured under this section unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

"(e) The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property or project from the lien of any mortgage insured under this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(f) The activities and functions provided for in this section shall be carried out by the agencies involved so as to encourage programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population.

"(g)(1) Notwithstanding any of the other provisions of this title, the Secretary may insure under this section a mortgage which provides permanent financing or refinancing of existing mortgage indebtedness in the case of a hospital whose permanent financing is presently lacking, if the construction of such hospital was completed between January 1, 1966, and the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(2) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under paragraph (1) and outstanding at any one time shall not exceed $20,000,000.

"(h) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section and all references therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 1502. Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the fifth sentence the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 242, except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project, voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation or association undertaking the construction; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under section 242 shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be."

TITLE XVI—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

REAFFIRMATION OF GOAL

SEC. 1601. The Congress finds that the supply of the Nation's housing is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal, established in the Housing Act of 1949, of the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family". The Congress reaffirms this national housing goal and determines that it can be substantially achieved within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of twenty-six million housing units, six million of these for low and moderate income families.

REPORT OUTLINING PLAN

SEC. 1602. Not later than January 15, 1969, the President shall make a report to the Congress setting forth a plan, to be carried out over a period of ten years (June 30, 1968, to June 30, 1978), for the elimination of all substandard housing and the realization of the goal referred to in section 1601. Such plan shall—

(1) indicate the number of new or rehabilitated housing units which it is anticipated will have to be provided, with or without Government assistance, during each fiscal year of the ten-year period, in order to achieve the objectives of the plan, showing the number of such units which it is anticipated will have to be provided under each of the various Federal programs designed to assist in the provision of housing;

(2) indicate the reduction in the number of occupied substandard housing units which it is anticipated will have to occur during each fiscal year of the ten-year period in order to achieve the objectives of the plan;

(3) provide an estimate of the cost of carrying out the plan for each of the various Federal programs and for each fiscal year during the ten-year period to the extent that such costs will be reflected in the Federal budget;

(4) make recommendations with respect to the legislative and administrative actions necessary or desirable to achieve the objectives of the plan; and

(5) provide such other pertinent data, estimates, and recommendations as the President deems advisable.

Such report shall, in addition, contain a projection of the residential mortgage market needs and prospects during the coming year, including an estimate of the requirements with respect to the availability, need, and flow of mortgage funds (particularly in declining urban and rural areas) during such year, together with such recommendations as may be deemed appropriate for encouraging the availability of such funds.

PERIODIC REPORTS

SEC. 1603. On January 15, 1970, and on each succeeding year through 1979, the President shall submit to the Congress a report which shall—

(1) compare the results achieved during the preceding fiscal year for the completion of new or rehabilitated housing units and the reduction in occupied substandard housing with the objectives established for such year under the plan;

(2) if the comparison provided under clause (1) shows a failure to achieve the objectives set for such year, indicate (A) the reasons for such failure; (B) the steps being taken to achieve the objectives of the plan during each of the remaining fiscal years of the ten-year period; and (C) any necessary revision in the objectives established under the plan for each such year;

(3) project residential mortgage market needs and prospects for the coming calendar year including an estimate of the requirements with respect to the availability, need, and flow of mortgage funds (particularly in declining urban and rural areas) during such period, in order to achieve the objectives of the plan;

(4) provide an analysis of the monetary and fiscal policies of the Government for the coming calendar year required to achieve the objectives of the plan and the impact upon the domestic economy of achieving the plan's objectives for such period;

(5) make recommendations with respect to any additional legislative or administrative action which is necessary or desirable to achieve the objectives of the plan; and

(6) provide such other pertinent data, estimates, and recommendations as the President deems advisable.

COMMISSION ON MORTGAGE INTEREST RATES

SEC. 1604. Funds appropriated and available for studies of housing markets and credit as authorized by section 301 of the Housing Act of 1948 and section 602(a) of the Housing Act of 1956 shall be available for expenses of the Commission established by section 4(b) of Public Law 90–301, including the report required to be rendered by such Commission.

TITLE XVII—MISCELLANEOUS

MODEL CITIES

SEC. 1701. (a) Section 111(a) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the third time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $12,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969".

(b) Section 111(b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the third time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $1,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970".

(c) Section 111(c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANT PROGRAM

SEC. 1702. (a) Section 314(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended—

(1) by striking out in the first sentence "to public bodies, including cities and other political subdivisions," and inserting in lieu thereof "to public bodies (including cities and other political subdivisions) and nonprofit organizations,";

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "In the case of any such grant to a nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall require that the assisted activities and undertakings are not inconsistent with the program of the local public agency."; and

(3) by striking out in the second sentence "No such grant shall exceed two-thirds of the cost, as determined or estimated by said Secretary, of such activities or undertakings," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "No such grant shall exceed 90 per centum of the cost, as determined or estimated by the Secretary, of the assisted activities or undertakings,".

(b) Section 314(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "$10,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$20,000,000".

AUTHORIZATION FOR URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICES PROGRAM

SEC. 1703. (a) The first sentence of section 906 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by striking out "and not to exceed $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969, and not to exceed $15,000,000 for fiscal year 1970".

(b) The second sentence of section 906 of such Act is amended to read as follows: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 1704. (a) Section 1010(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ", and not to exceed such sums for subsequent fiscal years as may be necessary".

(b) Section 1010(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "two years" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "four years".

(c) Section 1010(a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(2) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (2) a new paragraph as follows:

"(3) require, to the greatest extent feasible, the employment of new and improved technology, techniques, materials, and methods in housing construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance under programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development with a view to reducing the cost of such construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance, and stimulating the increased and sustained production of housing under such programs."

COLLEGE HOUSING

SEC. 1705. (a) The heading of section 401 of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "LOANS" and inserting in lieu thereof "ASSISTANCE IN THE FORM OF LOANS OR ANNUAL GRANTS".

(b) Section 401(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) To assist educational institutions in providing housing and other educational facilities for students and faculties, the Secretary may make loans of funds to such institutions for the construction or purchase of such facilities or may, as an alternative to all or part of the loan (in the case of any such institution), make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase: Provided, That no such assistance shall be provided unless (1) the educational institution involved is unable to secure the necessary funds for the construction or purchase from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2)

the Secretary finds that any such construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that any such facilities are not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials."

(c) Section 401(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "(c)";

(2) by striking out "of (1)" and "or (2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "of (A)" and "or (B)", respectively; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any housing or other educational facilities shall be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and provision for such grants shall be embodied in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such period. Each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between (A) the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of the loan, on the amount borrowed from other sources for the construction or purchase of such facilities, and (B) the average annual debt service which the institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, with respect to such amount if the applicable interest rate were the rate specified in paragraph (1): Provided, That the amount on which such grant is based shall be approved by the Secretary but in no event shall exceed the total development cost of the facilities."

(d) Section 401(d) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(d)", and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted with loans made hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section."

(e) Section 401(f) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(f)(1) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the payment of annual grants to educational institutions in accordance with this section.

"(2) Contracts for annual grants under this section shall not be entered into in an aggregate amount greater than is authorized in appropriation Acts; and in any event the total amount of annual grants which may be paid to educational institutions in any year pursuant to contracts entered into under this section shall not exceed $10,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969."

(f) Section 403 of such Act is amended by striking out "the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "the amount of the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans, and not more than 12½ per centum of the funds provided for in this title for grants,".

(g)(1) Section 401(g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case of any loan which is made under this section to a nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation referred to in clause (5) of section 404(b), or which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under this section, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by the educational institution (referred to in clause (1) of such section) at which such corporation is located, and that, in the event of the dissolution of such corporation, title to the housing constructed with such loan will vest in such educational institution."

(2) Section 404(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or existing" immediately after "new".

(3) Clause (3)(B) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "of any loan secured under this title" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "of any loan which is made under section 401, or is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(4) Clause (4) of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by striking out "to obtain loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "to obtain loans or grants".

(5) The second paragraph of section 404(b) of such Act is amended by inserting after "clause (5) of this subsection," the following: "and in the case of any loan which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(6) Section 404(c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; except that in the case of the purchase of facilities such term means the cost as approved by the Secretary".

(7) Section 404(h) of such Act is amended by inserting "or existing" immediately after "new".

(h) The last sentence of paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) (appearing immediately before the sentence added by section 911 of this Act) is amended by inserting after "the Asian Development Bank" the following: ", or obligations issued by any State or political subdivision or any agency of a State or political subdivision for housing, university, or dormitory purposes,".

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

SEC. 1706. Section 202(a) of the Housing Act of 1959 is amended—

(1) by inserting in paragraph (1) after "corporations," the following: "limited profit sponsors,";

(2) by inserting in paragraph (2) after "(as defined in subsection (d)(2))," the following: "to any limited profit sponsor approved by the Secretary,"; and

(3) by inserting in paragraph (3) after "Secretary" the following: ", except that in the case of other than a corporation, consumer cooperative, or public body or agency the amount of the loan shall not exceed 90 per centum of the development cost".

FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING PROGRAMS

SEC. 1707. (a) Title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended—

(1) by inserting after "urban centers," in section 801(b) the following: "and with business firms and associations, labor unions, and other interested associations and organizations"; and

(2) by striking out "technical and professional people" in sections 801(b)(1) and 802(a)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof "technical, professional, and other persons with the capacity to master and employ such skills"; and

(3) by inserting after "which has responsibility for community development" in sections 801(b)(1) and 802(a)(1) the following: ", or by a private nonprofit organization which is conducting or has responsibility for housing and community development programs".

(b) Section 805 of such Act is amended by inserting "Guam, American Samoa, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands," after "the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico,".

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 1708. (a) The first sentence of section 4(a) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act is amended by striking out "five" and inserting in lieu thereof "six".

(b) Paragraph (87) of section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking out "(4)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(6)".

INTERNATIONAL HOUSING

SEC. 1709. Section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 604. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations and assemble such data from other nations, through participation in international conferences and other means, where such exchange or assembly is deemed by him to be beneficial in carrying out his responsibilities under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act or other legislation. In carrying out his responsibilities under this subsection the Secretary may—

"(1) pay the expenses of participation in activities conducted under authority of this section including, but not limited to, the compensation, travel expenses, and per diem in lieu of subsistence of persons serving in an advisory capacity while away from their homes or regular places of business in connection with attendance at international meetings and conferences, or other travel for the purpose of exchange or assembly of data relating to housing and urban planning and development; but such travel expenses shall not exceed those authorized for regular officers and employees traveling in connection with said activities; and

"(2) accept from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations, funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations to be utilized jointly in carrying out activities under this section.

"(b) International programs and activities carried out by the Secretary under the authority provided in subsection (a) shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for the purpose of assuring that such authority shall be exercised in a manner consistent with the foreign policy of the United States."

ELIGIBILITY FOR RENT SUPPLEMENT PAYMENTS

SEC. 1710. Notwithstanding any other provision of law respecting the date after which a mortgage must have been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make, and contract to make, rent supplement payments under the provisions of section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to the owners of the housing projects known as the 114th Street rehabilitation project and the 114th Street rehabilitation project numbered 2, in New York City, New York (project numbers 012–33501 and 012–33512).

CONSOLIDATION OF LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SEC. 1711. All projects now operated and maintained by the National Capital Housing Authority pursuant to title I of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act are deemed to be low-rent housing projects and may be consolidated, pursuant to section 15(6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into any contract for annual contributions covering projects maintained and operated pursuant to title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN GARDEN CITY, MICHIGAN

SEC. 1712. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Florence Primary School in Garden City, Michigan, local expenditures made in connection with such school shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward the Cherry Hill urban renewal project (Mich. R–46) for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

SEC. 1713. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the storm drainage system in the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project (Calif. R–67) in Sacramento, California, local expenditures made in connection with such storm drainage system located in that project shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward that project for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

SELF-HELP STUDIES

SEC. 1714. (a) Section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by inserting after the words "improved means" the following: ", including the study of self-help in the construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance of housing for low-income persons and families and the methods of selecting, involving, and directing such persons and families in self-help activities,".

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make a report to the Congress, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, setting forth the results of the self-help studies and demonstrations carried out under section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961, together with such recommendations as he deems appropriate.

EARTHQUAKE STUDY

SEC. 1715. Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "three years after the appropriation of funds for this study" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1969".

SEC. 1716. (a) Section 5(b) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended to read as follows:

"(b) (1) An association may raise capital in the form of such savings deposits, shares, or other accounts, for fixed, minimum, or indefinite periods of time (all of which are referred to in this section as savings accounts and all of which shall have the same priority upon liquidation) as are authorized by its charter or by regulations of the Board, and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized. Holders of savings accounts and obligors of an association shall, to such extent as may be provided by its charter or by regulations of the Board, be members of the association, and shall have such voting rights and such other rights as are thereby provided. Except as may be otherwise authorized by the association's charter or regulation of the Board in the case of savings accounts for fixed or minimum terms of not less than thirty days, the payment of any savings account shall be subject to the right of the association to require such advance notice, not less than thirty days, as shall be provided for by the charter of the association or the regulations of the Board. The payment of withdrawals from savings accounts in the event an association does not pay all withdrawals in full (subject to the right of the association to require notice) shall be subject to such rules and procedures as may be prescribed by the association's charter or by regulation of the Board, but any association which, except as authorized in writing by the Board, fails to make full payment of any withdrawal when due shall be deemed to be in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact business within the meaning of subsection (d) of this section. Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association, but the Board may by regulation provide for withdrawal or transfer of savings accounts upon nontransferable order or authorization.

"(2) To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended—

(1) by striking out "shares" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "savings accounts"; and

(2) by inserting after the first semicolon in the second proviso the following words: "or in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;".

(c) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by inserting in the second paragraph after "property alteration, repair, or improvement" the following: ", including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property".

(d) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding immediately after the second paragraph thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, but subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe, any such association may make and invest in—

"(A) any loan not exceeding $5,000 made for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, or

"(B) any loan made for the purpose of mobile home financing."

(e) The first sentence of the paragraph which, prior to the amendments made by this Act, was the next to the last paragraph of section 5(c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" immediately before "invest";

(2) by striking out "(1)" before "secured";

(3) by inserting ", now or hereafter in effect," after "National Housing Act"; and

(4) by striking out all that follows "(2)" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "acquire and hold investments in housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections."

(f) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding immediately before the last paragraph thereof the following new paragraph:

"Any such association may invest in loans, or interests in loans, to financial institutions with respect to which the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof has any function of examination or supervision, or to any broker or dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly."

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK ACT

SEC. 1717. Section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1432), is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 12.", and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) Subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board, one or more Federal home loans banks may acquire, hold, or dispose of, in whole or in part, or facilitate such acquisition, holding, or disposition by members of any such bank of, housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections."

FEDERAL RESERVE ACT

SEC. 1718. Section 24 of the Federal Reserve Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 371), is amended—

(1) by striking out "twenty-four months", wherever it appears in the third paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof "thirty-six months";

(2) by striking out "when the entire amount of such obligation is sold to the association", wherever it appears in the first and second paragraphs, and inserting in lieu thereof "in whole or in part and at any time or times prior to the maturity of such obligation"; and

(3) by striking out the last paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"Loans made to any borrower (i) where the association looks for repayment by relying primarily on the borrower's general credit standing and forecast of income, with or without other security, or (ii) where the association relies on other security as collateral for the loans (including but not limited to a guaranty of a third party), and where, in either case described in clause (i) or (ii) above, the association wishes to take a mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument upon real estate (whether or not constituting a first lien) as a precaution against contingencies, such loans shall not be considered as real estate loans within the meaning of this section but shall be classed as ordinary non-real-estate loans."

LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING—CORPORATE STATUS

SEC. 1719. (a) The first sentence of section 3 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking "a body corporate of perpetual duration to be known as".

(b) Section 17 of such Act is repealed. The capital stock referred to in such section shall be retired, and sum of $1,000,000 represented by such stock shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States.

(c) Such Act is amended by adding a new section 17 as follows:

"SEC. 17. In the performance of, and with respect to, functions powers, and duties under this Act, the Secretary shall have (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) the functions, powers, and duties set forth in subsections (a), (b), and (e) of section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950."

(d) Section 101 of the Government Corporation Control Act is amended by striking out "United States Housing Authority and including public housing projects financed through appropriated funds and operations thereof;".

SPECIAL STUDIES OF SAVINGS AND LOAN INDUSTRY

SEC. 1720. That part of chapter IV of the Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1966, which relates to expenses necessary for special studies of the savings and loan industry is amended by striking out "1968" and inserting "1969".

SMALL BUSINESS ACT

SEC. 1721. Subsection (a) of section 4 of the Small Business Act is amended by inserting immediately after "the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico," the following: "the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands,".

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 1722. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), (9), and (10)".

(b) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "clauses (2), (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "clauses (2), (3), (7)".

(c) Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "and (9)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(9), and (10)".

(d) Section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage" immediately after "twenty-five years".

(e) Section 213(o) of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof four new sentences as follows: "Moneys in the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Secretary may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligations of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this subsection. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(f) Section 810(e) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "private corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor approved by the Secretary", and

(2) by striking out "corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the third and fourth sentences and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor".

(g) Section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "corporations restricted by" and inserting in lieu thereof "corporations or other legal entities restricted by or under".

And the House agree to the same.

STATEMENT OF THE MANAGERS ON THE PART OF THE HOUSE

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 3497) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompany conference report:

The House struck out all of the Senate bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute amendment. The committee of conference has agreed to a substitute for both the House amendment and the Senate bill. Except for technical, clarifying, and conforming changes, the following statement explains the differences between the House amendment and the substitute agreed to in conference.

Employment opportunities

The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment requiring consultation with the Secretary of Labor, and covered "training", "planning", and "operation of housing", in addition to employment in construction and rehabilitation. The Senate bill also contained a provision directing the awarding of contracts to the greatest extent feasible to business concerns in the area of such programs in consultation with the Administrator of the Small Business Administration. The conference report contains the Senate provisions.

Annual report on program administration and management

The House amendment contained a provision requiring annual reports beginning with an interim report on January 15, 1969, to the Banking and Currency Committees of the House and Senate on areas of program administration and management which require improvement. The conference substitute contains the House provision but requires only two reports, the first as early as practicable in calendar year 1969, and the second in calendar year 1970.

Title I—Lower Income Housing

Homeownership for lower income families

The Senate bill describes the title of section 101 as "Homeownership for Lower Income Families". The section title of the House amendment was "Homeownership for Low and Moderate Income Families". The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

Family income ceiling

The Senate bill limited eligibility for interest rate subsidies to families with incomes less than 70 percent of section 221(d)(3) BMIR program except that 20 percent of the funds could be used for families with incomes exceeding that limit. The House amendment limited initial eligibility and continued assistance to families with incomes less than 130 percent of income levels of continued occupancy in the area which can be established pursuant to the public housing law.

The conference substitute provides the following income limits: For 80 percent of the funds authorized, the income limit is 135 percent of the public housing level in the area for initial occupancy, plus $300 per minor child. For the remaining 20 percent of the funds authorized, the income limit is 90 percent of the maximum levels established in the area under the Below Market Interest Rate program, plus $300 per minor child.

The conference substitute also directs the Secretary to the maximum extent practicable to use the authorized funds for the lowest income families for whom homeownership is practicable.

The conference substitute also requires an annual report by the Secretary to the Banking and Currency Committees of the Senate and House on the income groups being served by the program.

Deduction for children

The Senate bill contained a deduction of $300 per minor child from family income for purposes of determining monthly payment as well as income eligibility. The House amendment allowed a $200 deduction from family income in determining the monthly payment. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Downpayment

The Senate bill contained a provision permitting a $200 downpayment for families whose incomes are below 70 percent of section 221(d)(3) level, and 3 percent downpayment for all others. The House amendment permitted $200 downpayment for displaced families, and 3 percent for others.

The conference substitute provides for a $200 downpayment for families receiving subsidy assistance whose incomes fall below the ceiling of 135 percent of public housing initial occupancy income levels, and a 3 percent downpayment for all others.

Eligibility of standard existing housing

The Senate bill contained a provision which limited eligibility generally to new and rehabilitated housing but made exceptions with respect to standard existing housing as follows:

a. Displaced families.
b. Families with five or more minors.
c. Families occupying public housing.
d. A dwelling unit in a rent supplement project.
e. A dwelling unit in a section 236 project.

However, assistance for standard existing housing including the above categories but not limited to them cannot exceed—

a. 25 percent of funds for fiscal year 1969;
b. 15 percent of funds for fiscal year 1970;
c. 10 percent of funds for fiscal year 1971.

The House amendment placed no statutory restrictions on existing structures, provided they met standards prescribed by Secretary of HUD, or if assistance payments are made on behalf of the previous owner who purchased the unit from a nonprofit organization pursuant to 235(j).

The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision except that it retains the provision in the House amendment extending eligibility for existing housing if assistance payments are made on behalf of a family who purchased the unit from a nonprofit organization pursuant to section 235(j) and other standard housing aided under section 235(j).

Preference for benefits

The House amendment contained a provision which would have provided a general preference for displaced families, families with five or more minors and families occupying public housing. The Senate bill did not contain this provision and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Eligibility of cooperative members

The Senate bill contained a provision permitting payments to an otherwise eligible cooperative member who receives membership by transfer from an initial member who received assistance payments under the program. This provision, not contained in the House amendment, is contained in the conference substitute.

Interest subsidy benefits for housing purchased by nonprofit organizations for resale to lower income families under the new section 235(j)

(a) Sponsor.—The Senate bill contained a provision permitting sponsorship by public bodies or agencies as well as by nonprofit organizations. The House amendment limited sponsorship to nonprofit organizations. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

(b) Type of housing.—The Senate bill contained a provision limiting this program to substandard housing in need of rehabilitation. The House amendment made eligible the purchase and resale of existing standard housing as well as a two-family dwelling, one unit of which will be occupied by the purchaser. The conference substitute conforms to the House amendment except that eligibility (in the case of standard housing) is to be confined to the type of neighborhoods in which the present section 221(h) program operates.

(c) Subsidy payment.—The Senate bill contained a provision authorizing payments to lower income families purchasing and occupying units sold by a nonprofit organization. The House amendment authorized payments to low and moderate income families who either purchased the unit from the nonprofit group or purchased by assumption from the previous owner who received assistance payments. The conference substitute conforms to the House amendment but confines eligibility to lower income families.

(d) Price of individual unit sold by nonprofit sponsor.—The Senate bill contained a provision authorizing a fixed price based on the allocable share of the unpaid mortgage plus at least $200 in cash or its equivalent. The House amendment contained a similar provision except it contained no provision for paying the $200 in the equivalent of cash. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

The section 221(h) rehabilitation program for subsequent resale to low income families

(a) Interest rate.—The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill which would authorize the Secretary to set interest rates as low as 1%. The conference substitute adopts the House provision but requires the Secretary to raise the rate as high as 3% if subsequent income review shows an increase in the homeowner's income.

(b) New authority for rehabilitation and refinancing of existing indebtedness.—The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill authorizing the Secretary to insure mortgages for rehabilitation and refinancing under the following conditions:

(1) Maximum mortgage $15,000.
(2) Interest rate between 1 and 3 percent depending on income.
(3) Reasonable downpayment as determined by the Secretary, but at least $200.
(4) Family income cannot exceed local public housing level.

The conference substitute contains the provision in the House amendment except that the refinancing authority which will be available is limited to a period of one year following enactment and requires the Secretary to raise the rate as high as 3 percent if subsequent income review shows an increase in the homeowner's income.

Credit assistance

Both the House and Senate bills authorized FHA mortgage insurance for marginal credit risks who could be qualified for mortgage credit with the aid of counseling. The Senate bill limited such insurance to $200 million outstanding while the House bill imposed a limit of $100 million. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

Special risk insurance fund

The House bill contained a provision, not in the Senate bill, requiring an annual business-type budget for the newly established Special Risk Fund in FHA. While the conference substitute does not include this requirement, the conferees expect the Federal Housing Administration to give particular emphasis to this Fund in its annual reports and maintain its accounts in such a way that experience under this program can be readily evaluated.

Advisory commission on low income housing

The Senate bill contained a provision establishing a National Advisory Commission on Low Income Housing. The House amendment contained no such provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Title II—Rental Housing for Lower Income Families

Rental and Cooperative housing

(a) Section title.—The Senate bill described the title of section 201 as "Rental and Cooperative Housing for Lower Income Families". The section title of the House amendment was "Rental and Cooperative Housing for Low and Moderate Income Families". The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

(b) Family income ceiling.—The Senate bill limited eligibility to families with incomes less than 70 percent of section 221(d)(3) below market interest rate levels, except that 20 percent of the funds could be used for families with incomes exceeding that limit. The House amendment limited initial eligibility to families with incomes less than 130 percent of income levels for continued occupancy in the area which can be established pursuant to public housing law.

The conference substitute provides the following income limits: For 80 percent of the funds authorized the income limit is 135 percent of the public housing level in the area for initial occupancy, plus $300 per minor child. For the remaining 20 percent of the funds authorized the income limit is 90 percent of the maximum level established under the below market interest rate program in the area, plus $300 per minor child.

The conference substitute also requires an annual report by the Secretary to the Banking and Currency Committees of the Senate and House on how the subsidy program is operated with respect to the income limits provided in the conference substitute.

(c) Deduction for children.—The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment providing a $300 deduction per minor child from family income for purposes of determining monthly payment as well as income eligibility.

The conference substitute contains the Senate language.

Rent supplements; percent of income payable

The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill requiring a payment of 20 percent of income (existing law requires 25 percent of income). The conference substitute retains the 25 percent requirement in existing law but permits a deduction from income of $300 per minor child.

Public housing

(a) Number of units per structure in leased section 223 housing.—The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill which would have limited eligible units in a single structure to the lesser of (a) 10 units or 10 percent, whichever is greater, or (b) 50 percent of the units in the structure. No such provision is contained in the conference substitute.

(b) Tenant services.—The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment which authorized grants to local housing authorities to provide tenant services with an authorized limit on appropriations of $20 million for fiscal year 1969, and $40 million in fiscal year 1970. The conference substitute authorizes $15 million for fiscal year 1969 and $30 million for fiscal year 1970 and lists the types of services to be covered.

The list is that contained in the bill reported by the House Committee on Banking and Currency with two changes. The committee-reported bill stated that "the term 'tenant services' includes (without being limited to) the following services and activities." The parenthetic phrase "without being limited to" has been stricken in the conference substitute. The committee-reported bill also included in the list of eligible activities a reference to "intertenant activities" which has been stricken in the conference substitute.

Title III—Federal Housing Administration Insurance Operations

Supplemental loans for multifamily projects

The Senate bill contained a provision applying to a supplemental loan the labor standards provisions "that are applicable to" the section under which the original mortgage was insured. The House amendment applied the labor standards provisions "without regard to" the section under which the original mortgage was insured. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

It is the intention of the conferees that the construction financed by these loans be governed by the same labor standards provisions of section 212 of the National Housing Act that are applicable, at the time the commitment to insure a supplemental loan is issued, to the program under which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured. This would mean that the owner of an existing FHA multifamily project wishing to obtain a supplemental loan to expand or modernize his project would be governed by the same labor standards provisions that would govern the construction of a new project of the same type.

Term of Federal Housing Administration mortgages for land development

The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment giving the Secretary authority to extend the maturity of land development mortgages beyond 10 years if he determines such an extension warranted by unusual or unforeseen circumstances. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

Equipment in nursing homes; mortgage maturity

The House amendment contained a provision limiting the maturity of mortgages covering equipment to the reasonable use expectancy of the equipment. The Senate bill contained no provision and none is contained in the conference report.

Housing in outlying areas

The House amendment contained a provision increasing the maximum mortgage under the section 203(i) program from $12,500 to $15,000. The Senate bill contained no provision. The conference substitute retains this provision, with an amendment providing that the maximum mortgage be raised to $13,500.

Notification prerequisite in connection with local government for section 221(d)(3) projects

The House amendment contained a provision requiring the Secretary of HUD to notify a local governing body of a proposed section 221(d)(3) project, requesting a statement of the project's impact on local public services and its relationship to any locally adopted master plans. The Senate bill contained no provision, and no such provision is contained in the conference substitute.

Seasonal homes

The Senate bill authorized FHA to insure mortgages on seasonal homes not exceeding $15,000, and 75 percent of the appraised value, on an acceptable risk basis, taking into consideration the economic potential of the area and the effect the insurance on such mortgages would have on the availability of mortgage credit in the area.

The Senate bill also requires that proper steps be taken to preserve the natural resources of the area. The House amendment contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate provision.

Title IV—New Communities

Guarantees for financing new community development

The Senate bill contained a provision, not in the House bill, authorizing the Secretary of HUD to guarantee bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by private new community developers to help finance development of new community projects.

The maximum guarantee could not exceed the lesser of (a) 80 percent of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development, or (b) the sum of 75 percent of the Secretary's estimate of value of land before development and 90 percent of his estimate of actual cost of the land development.

The guarantee could not exceed $50 million for any single new development and $250 million aggregate outstanding principal obligation at any one time.

Fees and charges collected by the Secretary will be deposited in a revolving fund to cover any liabilities under guarantees. In addition, full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to payment of guarantees and debentures and appropriations to cover program operations and nonadministrative expenses and, if necessary, any guarantee payments are authorized.

The provision would require HUD to adopt requirements encouraging small builders to participate in new community projects.

The provision would authorize supplemental grants to States and localities assisting new community development with basic water and sewer and open space projects. The additional grant is limited to 20 percent of cost of the facility and requires, if supplementary grants are used, that a substantial number of housing units for low and moderate income persons must be made available through such development project. (Total Federal grant cannot exceed 80 percent of facility cost.) Appropriations of not to exceed $5 million for supplemental grants for fiscal year 1969 and not to exceed $25 million for fiscal year 1970 would be authorized.

Sections of this title also require cost certifications in connection with a land development project and authorize the General Accounting Office to audit the transactions of developers whose obligations are guaranteed pursuant to this title.

The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with a modification restricting the GAO audits to transactions related to new community undertakings.

Title V—Urban Renewal

Extension of rehabilitation grants to property located outside urban renewal and code enforcement areas

The Senate bill contained a provision authorizing grants under section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949 to property located in an area certified by a local governing body as containing a substantial number of structures in need of repairs and improvements; also the locality must have the workable program and the area must be scheduled for rehabilitation or code enforcement within a reasonable time, and repairs to property must be consistent with such plans. The House amendment contained a provision requiring that such property be located in an area certified by a local governing body as containing a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation. The conference report contains the Senate provision with a requirement that the area be "definitely planned" for rehabilitation or code enforcement.

The House amendment also contained a provision authorizing grants for property determined to be uninsurable after inspection under the FAIR plan where located in an area which has a substantial number of properties in need of rehabilitation. The Senate bill contains no provision. The conference report retains the House provision, with an amendment providing that such properties will be eligible regardless of location.

Disposition of urban renewal land

The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill authorizing the disposition of urban renewal property at fair value to private developers (in addition to nonprofit groups, limited dividend corporations, and public organizations eligible under existing law). The conference substitute retains the House provision with an amendment directing the Secretary to assure that the benefit of this provision goes to the home buyer rather than to the private developer.

Rehabilitation loan program

Both the House and Senate bills broadened eligibility for rehabilitation loans under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964 to areas outside urban renewal and code enforcement. The Senate bill required that such areas contain a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation; that the areas be scheduled for rehabilitation or code enforcement within a reasonable time; that the rehabilitation be consistent with the plan; that there be a workable program covering the area; and that the property be in violation of local codes. The House bill required that the area contain a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation and that the property required substantial rehabilitation. The conference report contains the Senate provision with a requirement that the area be "definitely planned" for rehabilitation or code enforcement.

The House amendment also contained a provision authorizing section 312 loans for property determined to be uninsurable after inspection under the FAIR plan where located in an area which has a substantial number of properties in need of rehabilitation. The Senate bill contained no provision. The conference report retains the House provision, with an amendment providing that such properties will be eligible regardless of location.

The House bill also included an amendment not in the Senate bill limiting section 312 rehabilitation loans to persons whose income is within locally applicable section 221(d)(3) BMIR limits. The conference report retains this provisions with an amendment limiting this restriction to residential loans and exempting urban renewal and code enforcement projects now receiving financial assistance under title I of the Housing Act of 1949 which contemplate the use of these loans.

Interim assistance for blighted areas

The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment authorizing the use of up to $20 million a year of the regular urban renewal authorization to assist localities in alleviating harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas where urban renewal or code enforcement activities are planned but some immediate action is needed until those activities can be begun. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision with a reduction in the dollar amount to $15 million.

Low and moderate income housing in residential areas

The Senate bill contained a provision requiring that a majority of housing units in urban renewal areas to be developed for predominately residential uses be for low and moderate income families. The House amendment required that a majority of housing units in each community's urban renewal projects to be developed for predominately residential uses be for low and moderate income families and that at least 20 percent of the total units in such projects in each community be for low-income families. The conference substitute contains the House provision with authority for the Secretary to waive the requirement of 20 percent for low-income families where he determines that this is not needed. In any case in which the Secretary exercised this waiver authority, he would be required by the conference substitute to report on his action to the Committees on Banking and Currency.

Workable program for indian tribes

The House amendment contained a provision not in the Senate bill deferring the effective date for meeting the code enforcement requirement of the workable program in the case of Indian tribes until January 1, 1969. The conference substitute contains the House provision but extends the date to January 1, 1970.

Property damage by limestone quarry subsidence

The House amendment contained a provision permitting urban renewal project payment of unreduced value upon acquisition of property damaged by limestone quarry subsidence. There was no similar provision in the Senate bill and none is contained in the conference report.

Title VI—Urban Planning and Facilities

Comprehensive planning

The Senate bill contained a provision making eligible for planning grants under section 701 grant program the various regional commissions established under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965. The House amendment contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Consultation with the Secretary of Commerce

The Senate bill contained a provision requiring the Secretary of HUD to consult with the Secretary of Commerce before approval of any planning grant which includes any part of an economic development district, and also permits the Secretary of Commerce to provide technical assistance in the establishment of districts and their planning. The House amendment contains no such language. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Implementation of planning

The House amendment contained a provision which provides that grants to councils of governments may be used for implementation of plans. The Senate bill contained no provision. The conference report contains the House language. The conferees wish to state that none of these grant funds used for the implementation of plans may be used for construction.

Water and sewer program

The House amendment contained a provision increasing the authorization for water and sewer facilities program to $500 million for each of fiscal years 1968 and 1969. The Senate bill provided an additional $115 million for fiscal year 1970. The conference report authorizes an increase to $350 million for fiscal year 1969 and $115 million for 1970.

Repeal of 1966 provision for coordination of Federal aids in metropolitan areas

The House amendment contained a provision repealing section 204 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 which provides for review by an areawide planning body of applications under certain Federal programs. There is no such provision in the Senate bill and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Title VII—Urban Mass Transit

Extension of emergency program

The Senate bill contained a provision extending the emergency program from November 1, 1968, to July 1, 1970. The House amendment extended the program to October 1, 1969. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Title VIII—Secondary Mortgage Market

Debt to capital ratio

The Senate bill contained a provision permitting the Secretary of HUD to fix the debt to capital ratio at a figure higher than the present limit of fifteen times the sum of its capital, surplus, and reserves. The House amendment contained a provision permitting the Board of Directors to set the debt to capital ratio instead of the Secretary of HUD. The conference report contains the Senate language.

GNMA guaranteed securities

The Senate bill contained a provision making it possible for savings and loan associations and banks to issue and sell GNMA guaranteed securities. The House amendment contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Title X—Rural Housing

Labor standards

The House amendment contained a provision requiring labor standards of the Davis-Bacon Act to be applied in all housing constructed for rural trainees where eight or more units are involved. The Senate bill contained no provision and none is contained in the conference report.

Title XI—National Insurance Development Program

Operation of the program

The conference substitute generally conforms to the House provisions for the operation of the National Insurance Development Program. The Senate bill included a provision not included in the House bill for an Executive Director to administer the program. In place of this, the conference substitute provides for a Federal Insurance Administrator at executive level IV who will be responsible for both this program and the flood insurance program provided for in title XIII of this bill. Also, the House bill provided that the definition of "essential property insurance" would be approved both by the State insurance authority and the Secretary. The conference substitute requires approval by the State insurance authority only.

FAIR plans

Both bills required as a condition of reinsurance that participating companies comply with FAIR plans designed to assure the property owners of fair access to insurance requirements. The conference substitute includes a provision not in the House bill that the FAIR plans must be administered under the supervision of the State insurance authority. Both bills provided that reinsurance will not be available following notification that the Secretary has found that programs other than the FAIR plans are needed but have not been implemented. The conference substitute includes a provision not in the House bill requiring the Secretary to consult with State insurance authorities in making this determination. The conference substitute also provides that the Secretary must request the views of the State insurance authority before denying reinsurance to an insurer on the grounds that he is not fully participating in the FAIR plan pool or other program.

Studies

Both bills authorized various studies in connection with the insurance program. The Senate bill directed that the studies be made in cooperation with State insurance authorities, while the House bill made this optional. The conference substitute directs cooperation with State authorities to the maximum extent feasible.

General powers

The conference substitute includes a provision contained in the Senate bill but not in the House bill, requiring that in issuing rules and regulations the Secretary must consult with the Advisory Board provided for in this title.

Financing

Both the House and Senate bills authorized Treasury borrowing to meet the Federal commitment under this program. The Senate bill placed no limitation on this borrowing, while the House bill limited it to $150 million or such further sums as may be determined by congressional joint resolution. The conference report limits the borrowing to $250 million and such further sums as may be authorized by joint resolution.

Disaster relief

The Senate bill contained provisions not included in the House bill amending section 7(b)(1) of the Small Business Act, section 101(c)(2)(E) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1949, and section 203(h) of the National Housing Act to make clear that their provisions apply in case of riot or civil disorder, and further providing that no person convicted of a felony during the riot or civil disorder shall be permitted to benefit from the disaster relief laws of the United States. The conference substitute included the Senate provisions, but places a 1-year limit on the prohibition on disaster relief to persons convicted of felonies.

Cancellation of insurance

It has been called to the attention of the conference that a number of existing insurance policies covering inner city properties have been canceled since the April, 1968 disorders. Presumably many of these cancellations were due to the unavailability of reinsurance for riot loss. The conference expects that policies canceled for this reason will be reinstated as soon as reinsurance under this title becomes available, without waiting for implementation of the FAIR plans, and that the Secretary shall encourage to the maximum extent feasible the acceptance of requests for reinstatement of such insurance.

Title XIII—National Flood Insurance

Extension of coverage

The Senate bill gave the Secretary of HUD discretionary authority to extend flood insurance coverage to multifamily residential properties, larger business, farm, nonprofit, and public property. The House bill (which authorized initial coverage of smaller businesses) authorized the Secretary to make recommendations to Congress for extended coverage but did not empower the Secretary to act. The conference substitute retains the House provision on initial coverage of smaller businesses and contains the Senate provision giving the Secretary discretionary authority to extend the coverage.

Financing

The Senate bill authorized the same general Treasury borrowing authority provided in the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (which limits borrowing to $500 million plus such additional sums as the President may authorize). The House bill limited this authority to $150 million and rescinded the unused portion of the Federal Flood Insurance Act authority. The conference substitute limits the borrowing to $250 million and rescinds the balance of the 1956 authority.

National flood insurance fund

The Senate bill authorized the Secretary to establish in the Treasury a fund to pay insurance claims as necessary to make premium equalization payments and to pay administrative expenses. The House provision is similar except that it did not provide for payment of administrative expenses. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Federal operation of the program

In the event that the alternative federally operated program were undertaken, the Senate bill authorized the Secretary to operate the program through the facilities of the Federal Government by utilizing personnel of HUD and any other executive agency (and through insurance companies, agents, brokers, and organizations as fiscal agents). The House bill was similar except it had no expressed provision authorizing the use of HUD or other executive agency employees. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate provision.

Effective date

The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House bill making the National Flood Insurance Act effective 120 days after enactment unless the Secretary extends the date to a maximum of 180 days. The conference substitute includes the Senate provision.

Title XIV—Interstate Land Sales

This title includes title XIII of the Senate bill with two amendments. "The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act" requires developers and promoters selling or leasing 50 or more unimproved lots pursuant to a common promotional plan to file a registration statement, called a "statement of record" with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. The statement of record must disclose all material and legal information relating to the property. The purpose of full disclosure is to deter or prohibit the sale of land by use of the mails or other channels of interstate commerce through misrepresentation of material facts relating to the property. A property report, which would include part of the statement of record, must be submitted to the purchaser who may revoke the contract if it is not submitted. He may also revoke the contract within 48 hours after signing if the report was submitted within 48 hours before the signing. The revocation authority does not apply where the purchaser has received the report and inspected the lot and so acknowledges such by signature.

The conference substitute adopted all the exemptions contained in the Senate bill with one exception: Section 1403(a)(10) provides that, absent any purpose to evade the provisions of the title, the sale or lease of real estate is exempt where the purchaser or his or her spouse has personally inspected the lot purchased. However, to gain the exemption, the real estate must be free and clear of liens, encumbrances, and adverse claims. The latter terms are not intended to include property reservations which land developers commonly convey or dedicate to local agencies or public utilities and do not include taxes and assessments which constitute liens on the property before they are due and payable.

Notwithstanding the specific exemptions contained in section 1403, the conferees agreed that the Secretary has the discretion to exempt sales which would be technically covered but are intrastate or almost entirely intrastate in nature. An example would be where a few out-of-State purchasers buy lots only being offered for sale within the State of the land's location or in nearby communities.

The bill also contains provisions directing the Secretary to cooperate with States which have comparable disclosure and registration laws. The Secretary may accept for filing, the registration statement required by such State law.

Unless the Secretary finds material error in the statement of record the latter becomes effective upon the 30th day following filing. The Secretary is authorized to file suits to enjoin the sale of lots in violation of title XIV; and appropriate relief, including damages, is provided purchasers of lots who are victimized because of fraud or material misrepresentation in the required disclosures.

The conference substitute provides that this title will be effective 270 days after enactment, rather than 180 days after enactment as provided in the Senate bill.

Title XV—Mortgage Insurance for Nonprofit Hospitals

Mortgage insurance for existing hospitals

The House amendment contained a provision permitting the insurance of a mortgage to provide permanent financing or refinancing of existing indebtedness for a hospital lacking permanent financing if construction was completed after 1965 and before the date of enactment. The Senate bill did not contain this provision. The conference report retains the House language with an amendment providing that mortgage insurance not exceeding $20 million at any one time will be available for this provision.

Equipment mortgage

The House amendment contained a provision providing that the maturity of a mortgage covering equipment could not exceed a reasonable use expectancy of the equipment. There is no such provision in the Senate bill and none is contained in the conference report.

Title XVI—Ten Year Housing Program—Housing Goals and Annual Housing Report

Declaration of purpose

The House amendment contained a provision that the Congress finds that the Nation's housing supply is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal—the "realization as soon as feasible, of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family"; the Congress reaffirms this goal and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of 26 million housing units including 6 million for low- and moderate-income families. The conference report contains the House language with an amendment that states that this goal should be substantially achieved within the next decade.

Report outlining plan

The Senate bill contained a section adding new provisions to the housing laws requiring the President to submit a report, not later than January 15, 1969, containing a 10-year plan for the national housing needs, along with legislative recommedations for fulfilling these needs. The House amendment contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Periodic reports

The Senate bill contained a provision requiring annual reports to be made by the President on January 15, 1970, and on each succeeding year through 1978 showing the progress made under the plan and the reasons why, if any, the goals set forth in the plan have not been reached along with the estimates of the need for the following year.

The House amendment contained a provision directing the Secretary of HUD to submit annually to the President and the Council of Economic Advisers a report containing an estimate of the number of standard housing units produced in the preceding year, the number of such units produced for low- and moderate-income families, his assessment of whether the 10-year housing goal is being met, his recommendation of the current annual goal, and his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions required to achieve the 10-year housing goal. The conference report contains the Senate language with an amendment requiring the Secretary of HUD to submit his legislative recommendations and the administrative actions required to achieve the 10-year housing goal. The conference report also contained an amendment providing that funds available for studies of housing markets and credit as authorized by section 301 of the Housing Act 1948 and section 602(a), the Housing Act of 1966, shall be available for expenses of the commission established by Public Law 90–301 including the report required to be rendered by such commission.

Title XVII—Miscellaneous

Advances in technology

The Senate bill contained a provision authorizing research contracts for periods of up to 4 years instead of the presently authorized 2-year period. The House bill limited contracts to 3 years. The conference substitute conforms to the Senate bill.

The Senate bill also directed the Secretary to require to the greatest extent feasible employment of new and improved technology in programs administered by HUD. This provision which was not in the House bill is included in the conference substitute.

Housing for the elderly

The House amendment contained a provision amending the Davis-Bacon Act prevailing wage requirements on the direct loan program for housing for the elderly to permit waiver of these requirements only where persons involved donate their services without any compensation. There was no comparable provision in the Senate bill and none is contained in the conference substitute.

The House bill authorized refinancing of FHA section 231 housing for the elderly projects where commitments were issued prior to July 1, 1967, under the section 202 direct loan program for the elderly. There was no comparable provision in the Senate bill and none is contained in the conference substitute.

Investment authority for Federal savings and loans

(a) The House amendment contained a provision authorizing Federal savings and loan associations to invest in loans secured by investments in which the association has statutory authority to invest directly. The Senate bill contained a similar provision authorizing Federal savings and loan associations to invest in loans to federally supervised financial institutions secured by investments in which the association has direct authority to invest. The conference report contains the Senate language with an amendment authorizing such loans to any broker or dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

(b) The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment authorizing Federal savings and loan associations to invest up to 1 percent of assets in AID guarantee loans to developing countries outside of Latin America. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

(c) The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment authorizing savings and loan associations to make loans not exceeding $5,000 to finance new structures related to residential uses. The conference substitute contains the Senate provision.

(d) The House amendment contained a provision authorizing loans not exceeding $5,000 for equipping real property. The conference substitute retains this provision but it is the intention of the conferees that the term "equipping" refers to fixtures attached to the realty.

Authority for savings and loans to raise capital

The House amendment contained a provision authorizing Federal savings and loan associations to raise capital in the form of savings deposits or other accounts or to borrow or issue bonds or other securities. The conference substitute includes this provision but it is the intention of the conferees that any debentures or other debt instruments issued under this authority should always be subordinated to the withdrawable or face value of savings accounts authorized under section 5(b)(1) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933. Such obligations would not be eligible for insurance, and it is expected that the Board will require sellers of any such instruments to make full disclosure to purchasers consistently with the requirements of Federal securities laws.

Federal Reserve Act

The Senate bill contained a provision:

(1) changing the present 24-month limit on construction loans to 36 months;

(2) permitting national banks to continue to purchase participations in existing mortgages; and

(3) providing that loans by national banks shall not be considered real estate loans where a bank looks primarily for repayment out of income of borrowers or security other than real estate even though a bank take a mortgage on real estate as additional security for loan.

The House amendment contains no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

Corporate status of low rent public housing

The Senate bill contained a provision not in the House amendment eliminating the present corporate status of HUD's public housing entity and providing for the retirement of that entity's $1 million capital stock. The conference substitute includes the Senate provision.

Special studies of savings and loan industry

The Senate bill contains a provision extending for one year, until 1969, a study of the savings and loan industry authorized by The Second Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1966. The House amendment contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands

The Senate bill contained a provision including the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands in the definition of the term "United States" thereby extending the provisions of the Small Business Act to such Territory. The House contained no provision. The conference report contains the Senate language.

trict of Muscogee County, Georgia, and more particularly described as all of that part of land lot numbered 252, tenth land district, Muscogee County, Georgia, which lies north of the northerly margin of the Central of Georgia Railway Company right-of-way in said land lot numbered 252, said tract consisting of sixty-two acres, more or less, and being a part of the real estate described in and conveyed to James W. Jackson by deed from C. M. Smith, recorded in deed book Z, folio 336, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Muscogee County, Georgia.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 14711 which is identical to S. 2908, is a bill to authorize the Secretary of the Army to quitclaim certain real property in Muscogee County, Ga.

The purpose of this bill is to remove a cloud on the title to a parcel of land purchased in 1963 by Mr. William T. Heard, Jr., from the heirs of Mr. James W. Jackson. This parcel of land consists of approximately 62 acres lying north of the Central of Georgia Railway right-of-way and being situated in land lot 252, 10th land district, Muscogee County, Ga. A cloud on the title to this property arose in 1942 when the U.S. Army purchased from the heirs of Mr. James W. Jackson all of their property located in land lot 252 located south of the Central of Georgia right-of-way. However, by mutual mistake, a companion deed erroneously quitclaimed all interest in all property located in the land lot 252. This, of course, included the 62 acres located north of the railway right-of-way.

The United States has never claimed title to this 62 acres nor has it ever exercised control over it. To the contrary, the heirs of the former owner and the present owner have consistently paid taxes on the 62 acres and exercise complete control over it.

The Secretary of the Army does not have authority to execute a quitclaim deed to clear this title. This bill provides such authority to the Secretary of the Army.

Obviously, this being a mutual error, there is no monetary consideration involved.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H.R. 14711) was laid on the table.

AUTHORIZATION FOR THE SECRETARY OF THE ARMY TO MODIFY CERTAIN USE RESTRICTIONS

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of S. 3495, to authorize the Secretary of the Army to modify certain use restrictions on a tract of land in the State of Iowa in order that such land may be used as a site for the construction of buildings or other improvements for the Iowa Law-Enforcement Academy.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 3495

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Army is authorized to modify on behalf of the United States the land use restriction applicable to a tract of land constituting a portion of a larger tract of State-owned land and also a portion of lands heretofore conveyed by the United States to the State of Iowa pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to direct the Secreary of he Army to convey certain property located in Polk County, Iowa, and described as Camp Dodge and Polk County Target Range, to the State of Iowa", approved June 1, 1955 (69 Stat. 70), so that such tract with respect to which such modification is given may be used by such State for law enforcement academy purposes. The exact description of the tract with respect to which such restriction is modified by the Secretary pursuant to this authority shall be agreed upon by the Secretary and the State of Iowa, but in no event shall the total area of such tract exceed nine acres.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Army is authorized to impose such terms and conditions on the modification authorized by this Act as he deems appropriate to protect the interests of the United States. All expenses for surveys and the preparation and execution of legal documents necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this Act shall be borne by the State of Iowa.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, S. 3495 authorizes the Secretary of the Army to release certain use restrictions on a tract of land in the State of Iowa in order that such land may be used as a site for the construction of buildings or other improvements for the Iowa Law Enforcement Academy.

By Public Law 50 of the 84th Congress, the Secretary of the Army was authorized and directed to convey by quitclaim deed, without consideration, to the State of Iowa, all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to the Camp Dodge Military Reservation and Polk County Target Range to the State of Iowa for use as a training base for the Iowa National Guard and for other military purposes.

The original deed of conveyance stated that should the State of Iowa cease to use the property for the purposes intended, then the title should immediately revert to the United States together with all improvements made thereon.

The State of Iowa now has requested the concurrence of the Department of the Army to permit the use of a 9-acre tract located within the land conveyed by the United States for the construction of facilities to house the Iowa Law Enforcement Academy. The facilities will be used primarily to train policemen. However, joint use will be made for training the National Guard in connection with civil disturbances. The use of this 9-acre tract by the academy will not interfere with the use of the remainder of this large reservation for National Guard purposes.

The Department of the Army considers that the proposed construction and operation of the Law Enforcement Academy is not adverse to the National Guard training or future military requirements. The additional facilities should, in fact, prove of mutual benefit to the State and Federal Government.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I rise to urge passage of S. 3495, a bill relating to the use of certain land at Camp Dodge, Iowa. The bill amends a law passed in 1955.

When the Federal Government transferred the land, which is now used for a National Guard training center, to the State of Iowa, a reverter was included in the deed to provide that the land shall revert to the United States whenever it is no longer used for National Guard purposes. The State of Iowa now desires to use 9 acres of this tract for a statewide law-enforcement academy. The Department of the Army is of the opinion that unless the original conveyance is modified to specifically permit this kind of use without reversion that the 9-acre tract so used might revert to the United States.

This bill merely authorizes a modification of the conveyance so that a 9-acre tract can be used by the State of Iowa for a law-enforcement academy without the State losing the right to possession of the land. I believe this provides a full explanation of the purpose of the bill, but any further details can be found in the report issued by the Armed Services Committee.

I had introduced H.R. 17612, which would provide the same results as the bill now before the House. As the Members know, where there are bills providing the same results in both the House and Senate, we enact into law whichever bill happens to pass the respective body first. Through no fault of the House committee, which had a very loaded docket, the Senate committee reported out this bill first and it passed the Senate a few days ago. Under the circumstances, the thing to do is to pass the Senate bill and I therefore urge that my colleagues support passage of the bill now before the House.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NATIONAL FAMILY HEALTH WEEK

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Joint Resolution 1404, authorizing and requesting the President to proclaim the week of November 17 through 23, 1968, as "National Family Health Week."

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 1404

Whereas good health is a blessing prized above all others by every citizen, and

Whereas the well-being of the Nation depends upon the maintenance of good health among all segments and elements of our population, and

Whereas the family physician performs a critical service to the Nation in the maintenance of health and the prevention of disease, and

Whereas the Nation's family doctors have a unique responsibility in the American health care system, since they are the individual's primary source of contact with the medical profession, and

Whereas the dedication and skill of family physicians have served as the foundation of medical progress in this Nation, and

Whereas the family doctor's role as a physician and counselor to the whole person and the entire family embraces the widest scope of basic medical necessity, including advice on subjects ranging from personal health to family planning to emotional well-being, and

Whereas the American Academy of General Practice, national professional association of family physicians, is conducting a continuing effort to educate the public in the progress of our health care system and supports measures for its improvement: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That the President is authorized and requested to officially proclaim the week of November 17 through 23, 1968, as "National Family Health Week" as a means of focusing national attention during the year upon the accomplishments of the American health care system and the central role played by the family physician in the maintenance of superior medical care for Americans of all ages and from all walks of life.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS OF COLORADO

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ROGERS of Colorado: On pages 1 and 2 strike out all "whereas clauses."

PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHY WEEK

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of Senate Joint Resolution 181, to authorize the President to designate the week of August 4 through August 10, 1968, as "Professional Photography Week."

The Clerk read the title of the Senate joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate joint resolution, as follows:

S.J. RES. 181

Whereas professional photography is vital to the economy and welfare of our Nation, touching upon every aspect of this country's economic, scientific, industrial, and family life; and

Whereas one hundred and fifty thousand men and women are engaged in the practice of professional photography; and

Whereas a billion-dollar industry is generated and supported by the activities of the professional photographer; and

Whereas the work of the professional photographer is used by industry in product design, research, manufacture, the promotion of safety, training, purchasing, and sales; and

Whereas professional photography communicates and educates and illustrates in advertising, in our courts, on our farms; and

Whereas in our reach toward outer space, in our search of the oceans' depth, and in research in our hospitals and laboratories throughout the land the professional photographer serves the cause of science; and

Whereas the professional photographer records history for our edification today and the benefit of our posterity; and

Whereas professional photography as an art form enriched the cultural life of America; and

Whereas professional photography continues in its traditional role of remembrance and recording those we love: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That as a tribute to the professional photographer and his many works and in recognition of the importance of professional photography in our life today and in America's future, the President is authorized to issue a proclamation designating the week beginning August 4 through August 10, 1968, as "Professional Photography Week", and calling upon the people of the United States to observe such week with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS OF OF COLORADO

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ROGERS of Coloradi : On pages 1 and 2 strike out all "whereas" clauses.

NATIONAL HISPANIC HERITAGE WEEK

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 1299) authorizing the President to proclaim annually the week including September 15 and 16 as "National Hispanic Heritage Week."

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 1299

Whereas it is in the tradition of our country to recognize, cherish, and conserve the many cultural contributions of the people who have helped achieve the greatness of our Nation;

Whereas our country is constantly searching for ways to assist the development of our neighbor nations, and, through positive approaches, attain mutual understanding, respect, and appreciation of our cultures, heritage, and arts;

Whereas seven of our States, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Nevada, New Mexico, and Texas; the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; and many of our cities and towns proudly bear Hispanic names, as part of our tradition;

Whereas the national census shows that a considerable portion of our population also bear Spanish surnames, especially in our Southwestern States and in New York City;

Whereas many cities, towns, and regions were initially developed by citizens of Hispanic origin, as attested by our history;

Whereas in a large part of our country, the Mexican Independence Days, and the independence day of some of our Latin sister Republics, are celebrated on September 15 and 16;

Whereas the Spanish surnamed population has contributed the highest proportion of Medal of Honor winners through acts of bravery and determination in the defense of our land: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President is hereby authorized and requested to issue annually a proclamation designating the week including September 15 and 16 as "National Hispanic Heritage Week" and calling upon the people of the United States, especially the educational commmunity, to observe such week with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS OF COLORADO

There was no objection.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY TO FILE A CONFERENCE REPORT ON S. 3497

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Banking and Currency may have until midnight tonight to file a conference report on S. 3497, the Housing and Urban Development Act.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. No. 1718)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 3497) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 2. The Congress affirms the national goal, as set forth in section 2 of the Housing Act of 1949, of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family".

The Congress finds that this goal has not been fully realized for many of the Nation's lower income families; that this is a matter of grave national concern; and that there exist in the public and private sectors of the economy the resources and capabilities necessary to the full realization of this goal.

The Congress declares that in the administration of those housing programs authorized by this Act which are designed to assist families with incomes so low that they could not otherwise decently house themselves, and of other Government programs designed to assist in the provision of housing for such families, the highest priority and emphasis should be given to meeting the housing needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality; and in the carrying out of such programs there should be the fullest practicable utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques.

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

SEC. 3. In the administration of the programs authorized by sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act, the below-market interest rate program under section 221(d)(3) of such Act, the low-rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall—

(1) require, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor, that to the greatest extent feasible opportunities for training and employment arising in connection with the planning, construction, rehabilitation, and operation of housing assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing; and

(2) require, in consultation with the Administrator of the Small Business Administration, that to the greatest extent feasible contracts for work to be performed pursuant to such programs shall, where appropriate, be awarded to business concerns, including but not limited to individuals or firms doing business in the fields of design, architecture, building construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, or repair, located in or owned in substantial part by persons residing in the area of such housing.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROGRAM

SEC. 4. The Congress finds that Federal aids to housing have not contributed fully to improvement in architectural standards. This objective has been contemplated in Federal housing legislation since the establishment of mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration.

The Congress commends the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its recent efforts to improve architectural standards through competitive design awards and in other ways but at the same time recognizes that this important objective requires high priority if Federal aid is to make its full communitywide contribution toward improving our urban environment.

The Congress further finds that even within the necessary budget limitations on housing for low and moderate income families architectural design could be improved not only to make the housing more attractive, but to make it better suited to the needs of occupants.

The Congress declares that in the administration of housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing and to developing housing which will be of such quality as to reflect its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated, consistent with prudent budgeting.

ANNUAL REPORT ON AREAS OF PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT WHICH REQUIRE IMPROVEMENT
